

LONDON AND ITS
ROMANTIC PASTBut its Future is Great According To Writer

(By Julian Hall.)

At a recent dinner in the city, Lord Melchett spoke of London's long sustained beauty and importance. It is time that London had its due. No great town has of late received fewer tributes, and none is more deserving; for as Lord Melchett pointed out, it combines an international importance with a long national tradition of its own.

Contemporary writers have had little to say of London. Mayfair certainly has been Mr. Arlen's happy hunting-ground; but even with him you are apt to find yourself at Cannes or in the Place Vendôme before you can say "Iris Storm." Mr. Bennett, once the poet of Bursley counting-houses and King's Cross bookshops, now looks for inspiration to the continental train de luxe and the millionaire's yacht on the Mediterranean. Mr. Wells' fancy prefers either to conjure up an island as imaginary as Crusoe's or else to deal with the whole world in terms of history and economics. Mr. Maugham has eyes only for China and Malay islands in the Pacific where the rain seems eternal and which the missionary, if he is wise, will leave unvisited. Even the Forsyte Saga—that chronicle of a family which could never have been happy outside London—has reached its last chapter; and who knows what new country Mr. Galsworthy may now explore?

Lord Melchett has recently been exploring Wall Street; but the trip served only to convince him that London is still "the pulse and centre of the entire world." The record of London is indeed unique. It is the only one of the great towns of medieval and Renaissance Europe which has developed into a centre of modern world-enterprise. Consider the fate which has befallen the other centres of medieval commerce and culture. Florence, Venice, Nuremberg, Prague, the Hanse towns—what are they now but the sum total of their monuments and picture galleries? Such economic importance as they retain is an importance merely provincial. Such is their charm and such is their misfortune.

How different is the record of London and how fascinating to trace its development since it superseded Winchester as the capital! We see it as the turbulent medieval town extracting its charter from the King and regulating its guilds and "mysteries" as the London of the 16th and 17th centuries—the London of Shakespeare and the "Mermoid Tavern," the supporter of Henry VIII and Elizabeth against the Pope and of Parliament against their successors, London of the Plague and the Fire, of the Civil War and the Glorious Revolution; again we see it as London of the 18th century—the coffee-house London of Dr. Johnson and Sheridan and the Pitts father and son; as London of the Reform Bill and of the People's Charter, of Charles Dickens and of the Queen's Jubilee; and now as postwar London, the capital of the western world and the Empire, the centre of international commerce and of imperial industry. What a pageant, and how many scenes yet more imposing are to follow! What a history lies behind us, and what a destiny before us!

THE QUALIFICATIONS OF A GOOD WIFE

"The Mental and Personal Qualifications of a Wife" is the title of an article discovered in a recently examined copy of "The Gentleman's Magazine" from some month way back in 1761. Summing it all up, gentlemen then as now seemed to like them beautiful but dumb.

This worthy stipulated "a great good nature and a prudent generosity, a lively look and a proper spirit and a cheerful disposition, young, by all means, old, by no means."

Winnipeg—Equipped with sound bodies and a thorough training on the Canadian Farm School at Brinsford, thirty young men from various parts of the British Isles arrived in Winnipeg recently for placement on prairie farms by the Canadian National Railways colonization department. Some of them have had actual farming experience in England but they have all taken the sixteen weeks training course in Canadian methods and are now able to handle horses and machinery and to milk cows. Blacksmiths, gardeners and laborers are prominent in this group. The young men, most of them are single, were selected carefully and passed personally by Dan Johnson, Canadian National Railways European colonization manager, who was formerly man-ager of the department in Western Canada and who is familiar with conditions here. One chap gave up the sea to come inland to a Canadian farm, this was Thomas Wardle, who served on a training ship and was at sea three years. The forecastle has not unfitted him for the field, however, and he has shown a marked aptitude for rural life, another outstanding man being John Gwynne Evans, son of Lady Blanche Gwynne Evans of Queen's Gate.

Lawrence Driscoll, an Irishman, whose parents were killed in the war. He was born on a farm and has been farming ever since the war. Frank Belcher of Surrey goes to be near a brother in the Roland district, and Donald Charles goes straight to a friend near Saskatoon. G. E. Drew of Copplestone has had seven years general farming experience, and Augustus Morgan, of Blotley, who was educated in New Zealand, is not only a good milker and able with the horses but knows how to wield both saw and axe.

The group which crossed the Atlantic on the Laurania, came to Canada on the ten pound passage rate. Employment has been found for all of them and telegrams are still being received at the Canadian National offices from farmers asking for British workers.

HOME COOKING GETS
SOME SEVERE RAPS

Chicago, Ill., Feb.—Mother's cooking received some heavy jolts recently at the annual gathering of the National Cannery Association.

"Isn't it logical to suppose that scientists who have spent their lives in culinary research are better fitted to prepare food than housewives who at best know only the mechanical rudiments of cooking?" asked Ben C. Nott of Grand Rapids, Mich., the association's president.

SOUTH AFRICA'S COLOR HATREDHave Strongest Feeling Against Indians of Any of Colonies

Interesting Anglo-Indian comment on one of the vexed problems of South Africa is to be found in the Pioneer Allphabad.

Well informed students of Indian politics have long been aware of the distressing fact that the strongest anti-color feeling that exists in the British Commonwealth of Nations is to be found in the Union of South Africa. Imperial Conference after Imperial Conference has found the bitterest opposition to a rational liberal solution of the problem in Dutch statesmen who, in other matters, have been possessed of commendably progressive views. India's representatives, for example, in the Imperial Conference, which had to deal with an acute form of the problem of the Indian in South Africa in 1923, found General Smuts a most reactionary opponent, and it was only the acute intelligent intervention of Lord Curzon that prevented a disastrous breach.

In recent years the problem has become more acute, and now responsible members of General Hertzog's cabinet are invoking the boggy of Bolshevism to justify their attitude towards the attempts that are being made to develop the natives and the colored men on more liberal lines. The Dutch have always had a contempt for the colored man, and never was his rule so intolerant as he clothed his patriarchal autocracy with biblical texts. This spirit still lingers, and it will be remembered that some of the most plausible excuses for Rhodes' interference in the affairs of the Transvaal were connected with the virtual slavery of the native. Now the spirit of reaction has once more raised its head, and the apparently reasonable claims of the South African native are being identified with Bolshevism! Mr. Roos has told the truth when he proclaimed his intention of fighting to the bitter end attempts to develop the natives.

ANNUAL SURVEY OF EDUCATION

The Annual Survey of Education in Canada issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for the year 1927-28, or the latest year in which the education statistics of all institutes and provinces could be brought together has just been released for circulation. The following is a brief summary of the information contained in the fourteen sections in which the report covers the different phases of educational activities.

The number enrolled in all educational institutes in Canada was 2,291,729. These included 2,027,729 in ordinary publicly controlled day schools, 102,668 in technical and evening schools, 10,463 in private or independent schools; 3,589 in preparatory courses in universities and colleges or in schools affiliated to these universities and colleges in addition to those in the private schools; 14,710 in Indian schools and 1,724 in schools for blind and deaf. The remainder were in business colleges, normal schools and institutes for higher education.

As near as can be computed the educational standing of the enrolment was 1,932,963 in elementary grades and 300,149 in secondary or higher grades. These do not include the great part of night school pupils whose standing could not be determined.

The recommendation for the pupils in schools under control and independent schools is measured most adequately by the number of teachers, viz. 66,004, and the number of classrooms, viz. approximately 58,269. There were 29,357 school districts or units of local school legislation.

The expenditure on public education during the year is given as $125,876,375, but several deductions should be made from this figure on the score of such items as cannot be legitimately entered under the expenditure of any one year. The gross expenditure shows about the same rate per pupil in average daily attendance as last year, but in several provinces it shows a lower rate. This is chiefly due to the increased regularity of attendance.

No marked increase is noticeable from last year in connection with most of the features of school activities. However, it is interesting to notice that while the enrolment of younger pupils has increased normally, there are some marked decreases in the case of older pupils, especially boys. Clearly the high school has not suffered from these decreases. The inference would seem to be justifiable that more of these older boys are successful in obtaining employment than during the years immediately previous and that the enrolment in high schools is being kept up by the fact that pupils take a shorter time in passing through the elementary school system. If this is so, it must be largely credited to the ever increasing regularity of attendance, and the consequent decreasing waste. It is also noticeable that there are marked decreases in attendance at teacher-training institutions. Most of these decreases are explainable by the discontinuance of institutes for the training of low grade teachers, which discontinuance reflects an approach to sufficiency in the supply of trained teachers.

The Statistics of higher education may be regarded as a short cut at least. Such a publication is Bulletin No. 19 recently issued by the University of Alberta and which deals with all phases of the sheep industry. While primarily designed for the province in which it is written, it should prove valuable not only to all present and prospective sheep owners on the prairies but in other sections of Canada.

One can hardly learn farming out of a book, though the right kind of a book will come in very useful and J. P. Sackville and J. E. Bowditch.

After a brief introduction in which reference is made to Canada's small position in lamb and wool production, the machinery for handling wool is in operation. "The Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association," states Messrs. Bowditch and Sackville, "maintains a considerable expansion particularly in South Eastern Alberta where there are still considerable areas of open range available. Canada, it is stated, does not meet her own requirements in the way of mutton and wool, which is one very good reason for increasing the home flock, while another lies in the fact that the marketing machinery for handling wool is in operation. STRAINING AT GNATS

Recently, in one of the big cities of the United States, booksellers were forbidden to retail a book which criticized the courts and prosecutors of their state. Ten members of the council of that particular city are facing trial on a charge of attempting to force a bribe of $60,000 from a business man. In another city, a woman languished for three months in jail, awaiting trial on a charge of disorderly conduct—her offense being that she appeared on the street with out stockings. Throughout the length and breadth of the United States, traffic laws are being enforced to the hilt. Progressive penalties for over-staying parking limits are being imposed and jay-walkers are being haled into court. In other words, the police departments of the big cities across the line are straining at gnats and swallowing camels, holus bolus. The homicide rate in the United States is highest in the civilized world; boot-leggers are corrupting government and selling poison to the citizens. Honest business men are compelled to pay graft to illegal combines or go out of business. Vicious racketeering organizations built around staffs of gunmen and bomb throwers say to this business men: "Come across or close up" and because the police campaign against the gangsters is ineffective the merchants "come across." The underworld is completely out of hand. An American editor, commenting on the situation a few days ago, had this to say: "Probably the real reason for all this is that we are lazy. We hate to take the effort to clean up our cities, suppress crime and bring criminals to justice. Instead we go after the petty violators. Such arrests save our conscience and help us to forget that this great nation of super-efficiency has reached new depths of inefficiency in the matter of law enforcement and civic order." There is a lesson here for Canada to heed. Extremation of organized vice in the United States is now recognized to be an impossibility. It is too deeply rooted. In Canada it has been prevented from gaining a foothold and it has been demonstrated that it is easier to prevent an epidemic whether it be disease or crime than it is to eradicate it after it is in full bloom.

CANADA'S CHAMPION

At Boston, in his first start in indoor competition, pitted against the fleetest sprinters of the United States, Percy Williams, the Canadian strippling, showed the way to the tape. The only thing that the observers seem to be unanimous upon however, is that Williams won. As to the manner of his winning, there is a mass of conflicting testimony. Some say he broke in front with the flash of the gun and stayed there; others that he "hung" on the starting line and came from behind to win; another's descriptive yarn tells of the Canadian boy stumbling and overcoming the mistake by a superhuman explosion of speed. It is a difficult assignment to write a "running story" of a spring of 40 yards engaged in by champions. Williams ran his qualifying heat at Boston in 43.5 seconds. The echo of the starting gun had scarcely died away before he had broken the tape. And no matter how he did it it was a remarkable achievement. Williams the double-sprint champion of the Olympic games, was not expected to win the 40-yard dash at Boston. He was admittedly green at the indoor game, unaccustomed to the shorter spikes called for by board track competition and competing at what was for him a new distance. The Vancouver boy's time in the sprint was so close to the world's record that it is predicted he will hang up a new mark when he becomes better acquainted with the arts of indoor footing. What it is that this boy has that made him the unquestioned champion of the world—the fastest human, is, like the manner of his winning at Boston, a matter for debate. But he has that something that is different and when he gets up full steam he comes closer to flying without mechanical equipment, than anybody else on this terrestrial sphere. As we have said, Williams could have met defeat at Boston without losing caste. But winning, he indelibly marked himself as a phenom.

PASSING YEARS
(From the Intelligencer of This Day 30 Years Ago)

A party of Belleville young people last evening attended a dance given by the Misses Nightingale of Huff's Island. Mr. J. B. Gerow was floor manager and the Chalaupka Orchestra played.

Last night the audience at the Tabernacle enjoyed one of the greatest treats by listening to the Emeralds sing and speak and by looking at moving pictures. These are produced by a projectoscope and a most powerful light, the invention of Edison's wonderful brain. Nothing so clear and life-like has ever been seen in Belleville. Mr. Smith has promised to produce some more of his startling scenes from life.

Bert Harvey, C. LeRoy Kenny and J. H. Cameron are stopping at the Quinte and will assist at the I. O. O. F. concert.

SHADE, BEAUTY
TREES' OBJECT

Should Be planted for These Two Reasons; Latter
More Important

Trees are planted in the home grounds for two reasons, shade and beauty. The latter is the more important. A tree should always add beauty to its surroundings; and if possible, it should be placed where its shade will be enjoyed.

Spring is a good time for tree planting. Many such as birch, cherry, Lombardy poplars, oaks and others transplant better now than in the fall. Of course, care must be taken in preparing the soil, and setting the tree in the ground. But equally vital is that it be set in the right place to do its full duty.

It is easy to select the variety you need, and the location for it. Perhaps it is intended to frame the view of the house. Then it should grow to the proper height, when mature, so that it is in scale with the house, and it should have a crown so shaped as to harmonize with the architecture. There will usually be several locations permissible and one may be chosen which will be most satisfactory for shade.

A garden seat or terrace will be more pleasant if it is shaded by a tree in the afternoon. On a porch, or in a doorway may be made more inviting by this protection from the summer sun. A little investigation at the right time on a sunny day will help you determine just where a tree should be planted to cast the desired shade; having in mind always, the shape and height of the tree.

Trees have diverse beauties, and different varieties may be combined to secure year-round interest and beauty. The hardiness of the variety in your locality is important. It never pays to plant kinds that are likely to be killed, or usually fail to thrive. Varieties less rare, but happier in their surroundings, will be more satisfactory.

Good subjects for street or avenue planting are elms, ash and lindens. Weeping trees, to be planted sparingly, where their conspicuously interesting shapes seem permissible, are the weeping mulberry, cut-leaved weeping birch, Weeping willow and Niobe weeping willow.

FIRE CHIEF IS DEAD ON COAST

Chief Carlisle of Vancouver Passes Away; 42
Years Service

Vancouver, B.C. (By Canadian Press).—Chief John Howe Carlisle, pioneer of fire protection on the Pacific Coast and the oldest fire chief in point of service in a large Canadian city, has retired. He had been on the job as head of the Vancouver Fire Department for more than 42 years. Vancouver is now trying to get used to the experience of having a fire department under a new boss, for the force has been so closely identified with the personal administration of Chief Carlisle that his name and the department had become almost synonymous.

"The department will still be animated by the Carlisle spirit," said one of the aldermen when the chief was granted leave to retire. "That's something."

Carlisle came to Vancouver the year of the big fire in 1886 that practically swept all that had been the struggling pioneer town into a pile of ashes. It was in the trucking business and he made him chief of the volunteer fire brigade. It was a sort of water bucket squad in those days with an all-man power horse reel and hose. It was efficient in fire fighting, but when flames attacked the whole town at once, as happened in 1886, the fire fighters were powerless in spite of their heroism.

But the great fire gave Vancouver a lesson in fire protection that has never been forgotten. A permanent paid force was organized and Carlisle was chosen as the chief of the new department. Carlisle sold out his trucking business and put his big heart and his tremendous energy into the fire department. He was one of the most modern fighting units on the Pacific Coast, Carlisle scrapping

COMMITTEE TO STUDY PROBLEM
TRANSPORTATION

Hon. Amery Appoints Body to Study Aspects of Mechanical Transport

A Directing Committee has been appointed by the Right Hon. L. S. M. Amery, M. P., Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs and for the Colonies to study every aspect of Mechanical Transport likely to further the economic development of the overseas empire. Sir James Currie, K.B.E., C.M.G., chairman and the other members are Sir Henry Fowler, K.B.E., Brig. Gen. F.D. Hammond, C.B.E., D.S.O., and Mr. Herbert Niblett, C.B.E., D.S.O.

One of the primary objects of the investigations of this committee will be the development of a large mechanical transport unit, not confined in its operations solely to good roads. It is hoped that by increasing the load now hauled in ordinary practice, the ton-mile costs of transport will be materially reduced. Governments will be carried out in selected areas overseas as soon as the progress of the work justifies them.

It is contemplated that the expenses of the committee shall be shared between the Empire Marketing Board, which will provide half the total amount, and the various overseas governments who take part in the work. In order to enable work to commence forthwith, the Empire Marketing Board is advancing the whole amount required for the first year.

Considerable work on this subject has already been done in Australia, and as was made clear at the proceedings of the Colonial Governors' Conference, the development of the African colonies in particular is closely bound up with a solution of the problem involved.

It is proposed ultimately to set up an Overseas Mechanical Transport Committee containing representatives of the various overseas governments. His Majesty's Government in Great Britain, the Colonial Empire and of the Governments of the Dominions, India and the Sudan should they desire to co-operate. The present committee has been appointed in order that work may be started promptly on this urgent question. Until the general committee has been appointed, the work will be responsible to Mr. Ormsby-Gore.

Mr. J. C. May, O.B.E., has been appointed Secretary to the Directing Committee, and any communications should be addressed to him.

He had the old equipment and, backed by a sympathetic city council, went ahead and purchased the most efficient apparatus he could find.

"There's one thing you can be sure of," said the chief to the city council. "You won't ever need to fight another great Vancouver fire." Chief Carlisle was one of the first fire executives to foresee the important part that motor equipment would play in combating fires. He installed the automobile system at a time when most of the large cities were still using horses, and officials from many parts of the continent came here to inspect the new establishment, study its methods of operation. Carlisle was regarded as just a few steps ahead of every other fire chief on the Pacific Coast for years, and even today Vancouver yields supremacy to no other city in fire fighting efficiency.

Chief Carlisle was a close student of fire protection and kept himself informed on the scientific angle of the subject, but possibly the trait that made him famous was his quality of leadership. A man of huge frame, he was a spectacle in himself at a fire and his methods of handling men as well as apparatus was direct. He won a name for himself as a man of daring decision, but almost invariably his quick judgment was vindicated.

Chief Carlisle, who was born in Hillsboro, N.S., in 1858, retired on January 15 last, in recognition of his long services the new council of Greater Vancouver granted him an honorarium of $2500 in addition to his superannuation allowance.

LIKENS BRAIN TO NEWSPAPER

Scientist Finds High Forehead Really Indicates Much Brainpower

London, Feb. (By C.P.).—A remarkable resemblance between the manner in which the brain and a newspaper function was found by Sir Arthur Keith, lecturer at the Royal College of Surgeons here. He found that in modern man the "staff" part of the brain—the executive part—had grown to a decided preponderance over the "mechanical part"—or the part that handles and despatches the messages from the nerve centres of the body. This was not the case in the lower mammals, where the brain was given almost entirely over to the "mechanical part."

Sir Arthur said that 100 years ago a small but enthusiastic band of medical men were mapping the surface of the human head into areas, believing that in each underlying part of the brain there was situated a specific faculty of the mind.

Advancing knowledge of the brain had swept away old phrenological maps from the surface of the head, but unfortunately the fate which had attended these early attempts had brought the art of the cartographer as applied to the human brain into disrepute. Such scepticism was unjustified. At the beginning of the present century anatomists set out in earnest to make an elaborate survey of the grey rind or cortex of man's brain; the first maps produced were comparative simple, but had since become more complex, the latest showing the cortex of the brain divided into over 100 distinct districts or areas.

In later maps, although there was complete agreement as to the main areas, there was still a considerable discrepancy as regards the number and extent of the secondary or minor areas.

The most striking generalization which had emerged from recent research on the brain was to show that all the cortex behind the central fissure had to deal with the receipt and interpretation of messages coming in from sense organs of the body and all that lay in front was executive or controlling in function. General opinion, which had long favoured an ample forehead as a mark of ability, was receiving some degree of justification from modern inquiry.

There was a degree of resemblance between the organization of a newspaper office and that of the brain. Messages from various quarters flowed in and according to their nature passed to departments devoted to foreign news, politics, commerce, sport, fashion, Bazaar and the time passed to "expression" in the hands of the printer much work by the staff had to be done. The organization in the human brain was a similar kind. The remarkable thing in the course of evolution of the animal brain was that it was not the staffs which handled the messages, and which saw to the printing of the news that had increased; the changes which had come about concerned the "editorial" staff. It had grown enormous, the cortex of the brain was made up almost entirely of the staffs which handled the messages and the men who ran the printing machines. As the brain was followed upward in course of its evolution these primary groups became pushed aside and separated more and more by "staff" cortex until in the brain of man the "staff" areas completely overshadowed the original members.

SEED CONDITION IN THE BAY OF QUINTE DISTRICT IS EXCELLENT

Harry Pearson, Seed Inspector, Presents Report to the Press

BARLEY FEATURED

Considerable Attention Paid to Barley in the Report

This is a report on conditions for the last eighteen years showing what has been done, what is being done and the need for improvement in the future. We perhaps had better summarize conditions first:

In 1910 we had a total acreage of 20,518.83 acres yielding 70,969 bushels; average 31.3 bushels per acre.

Barley—52,334 acres yielding 1,209,819 bushels; average 23.1 bushels per acre.

Full Wheat—17,483 acres yielding 479,351 bushels; average 27.5 bushels per acre.

Spring Wheat—9,519 acres yielding 86,398 bushels; average 24.3 bushels per acre.

Rye—23,153 acres yielding 365,934 bushels; average 15.8 bushels per acre.

555,667 acres yielding a total of 94,240,001 bushels. We find that barley has 14.5 per cent of total grain crop producing 8 per cent total crop yield.

The figures for barley according to counties for 1910-1913 inclusive were:

Hastings—65,525 acres producing 1,571,422 bushels with an average of 24.0 bushels per acre.

Lennox and Addington—40,198 acres producing 938,232 bushels with an average of 23.3 bushels per acre.

Northumberland—49,792 acres producing 1,300,005 bushels with an average of 26.1 bushels per acre.

Prince Edward—42,974 acres, producing 1,021,000 bushels with an average of 23.8 bushels per acre.

Total—198,489 acres producing 4,830,768 bushels with an average of 24.2 bushels per acre.

In the four year period namely 1910-1913 inclusive we produced a total of 4,830,768 bushels of barley of 198,489 acres for an average yield of 24.2 bushels per acre. These figures given to you as at that time. Production was at its highest to meet the demand which has been created for the product of the area, which ranked second as regards yields but which ranked in first place as regards cash crops. During this period the premium was still being paid for barley from the area but the brewers and malsters were beginning to complain that mixed grains and mixed varieties were having a grain desired for their trade. Just after this period the sale for this trade fell off considerably.

During the years of the war 1916 to 1919 inclusive, production was being greatly encouraged but that again we find the conditions that we lacked seed cleaning and grading machinery, also that through shortage of labor we were not cleaning up fields and seed like we should as this was paid to sell the product at a greatly enhanced price, in fact everything assisting in the downward quality of our barley.

We find however with the inclusion of two bad years during this period that the barley figures for 1916-1919 were as follows:

Hastings—74,579 acres producing 1,938,234 bushels; average of 21.1 bushels per acre.

Lennox and Addington—32,664 acres producing 711,440; average of 21.8 bushels per acre.

Northumberland—43,107 acres producing 1,170,768 bushels; average of 26.0 bushels per acre.

Prince Edward—37,534 acres producing 92,058 bushels; average of 24.7 bushels per acre.

Total of 187,864 acres producing 4,690,500 bushels; average of 24.9 bushels per acre.

Which shows a decline of 10,625 acres and 134,260 bushels for the area or a percentage of 5.7, a decrease in acreage and a percentage of only 2.2 decrease in production.

At this period namely 1921-1922 agricultural organizations provincial and federal governments were spending a great amount of energy, money and time in educational work with the result that individual growers started sowing the best seed of a recognized variety in their superior fields. Agricultural organizations have started holding "combined" or "better" seed competitions with the result growers were demanding a better quality and grade than formerly. This educational work was carried on till we came to 1922 when we find the first real attempt in Prince Edward County to produce the higher grade of seed so that the county as a whole would shortly be in a position to start sowing in earnest the seed previously that we had. We had thirteen growers with a combined acreage of sixty-five acres producing twenty-five hundred bushels. In 1923 there were applications for inspection of 310 acres with an estimated yield of twelve thousand and ninety bushels. We find in the area for the year 1923 to 1928 inclusive the following:

Hastings—65,662 acres producing 1,936,137 bushels or an average of 29.5 bushels per acre.

Lennox and Addington—39,294 acres producing 920,280 bushels or average of 30.4 bushels per acre.

Northumberland—36,667 acres producing 1,124,001 bushels or an average of 30.7 bushels per acre.

Prince Edward—36,417 acres producing 1,037,375 bushels or an average of 29.0 bushels per acre.

Total of 100,940 acres producing 5,373,903 bushels or an average of 29.3 bushels per acre.

Although there has been a remarkable increase in the acreage during 1923 we still find a decrease of 18,224 acres or 18.2 per cent of the area, however if we take the yield we find an expected betterment in conditions. First barley more free from other grains and a freedom from other varieties which were so pronounced, and an increase of 341,403 bushels or a percentage of seven of less acreage.

This condition is highly encouraged and we expect to find though that as a great portion will be spread throughout the area as better class seed during the spring of 1929.

In the grain crops of 1929 we have the following:

Barley—46,211 acres producing 1,343,694 bushels or average of 29.1 bushels per acre.

Oats—220,822 acres producing 7,452,549 bushels or average of 33.9 bushels per acre.

Rye—12,799 acres producing 214,769 bushels or average of 17.6 bushels per acre.

Buckwheat—42,341 acres producing 931,837 bushels or average of 21.1 bushels per acre.

461,964 bushels or average of 13.0 bushels per acre.

Spring Wheat—8,426 acres producing 169,300 bushels or average of 20.1 bushels per acre.

In comparison with 1910-1913 we have then 198,489 acres producing 4,830,768 with an average of 24.2 bushels per acre and now 169,940 acres producing 5,037,903 with an average of 29.8 bushels per acre which gives us a decrease yet of 28,549 acres or 14.9 per cent, with an increase of 207,143 bushels or percentage of 4.3, yet we had on the acre basis an improvement of 5.6 bushels per acre or an increase of 23.1 per cent.

From the financial standpoint of the producer what does the barley situation mean? Using the cost figures put out by the Central Experimental Farm we find that in 1923 for the Quinte area there were 46,211 acres producing 1,343,694 bushels at a cost of $751,568.87.

In comparison with oats we take 46,211 acres producing 1,577,310 bushels at a cost of $890,430 giving a difference in cost of $81,925.37. However, we find that the crop to sell is worth in the case of barley $940,585.80 in the case of oats $778,655.00 leaving us a balance in favor of barley of $80,053.43.

These figures represent the commercial grain prices and not if the grain was being sold for seed, the difference would be appreciably great or here.

Seed Cleaning Facilities

Up until 1922 we had to depend on five seed cleaners for the whole area which takes in Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, Hastings and Northumberland Counties. The secretaries of Agricultural Societies, District Clubs and Agricultural Organizations of all kinds did not put forward their best efforts to correct the situation that was developing, which was the condition of sowing inferior, ungraded, uncleaned seed. Better varieties and also crops which represented most cash value at that time would have assisted materially.

What facilities have we for cleaning and grading? We have seven seed cleaners owned by commercial firms available for cleaning and grading. We have six cleaners owned by Farmers Clubs and one man's grade. This is certainly better than our equipment in the past 1910-1913 and yet only represents a start in the right direction.

Seed Survey Conditions

What actual conditions we find in the seed survey? In this we will have to confine our remarks to Hastings County taking Oats and Barley figures combined.

There were 200 samples taken, giving us a total of: No. 1 grade, 19; No. 2 grade, 10; No. 3 grade, 17; rejected, 146; rejected on account of mixed grains, 104; samples which leaves us 32 rejected by weeds.

Requirements for 1929 Seeding

For barley we require 100,000 bushels of seed.

For oats we require 40,000 bushels of seed.

For spring wheat we require 12,000 bushels of seed.

This does not include buckwheat, which if we take the average for the last ten years will require 70,000 bushels giving us a total for grain of 602,000 bushels or, basing our figures on results of seed survey what we require in 1929, there should be a market for 400,000 bushels.

In conclusion I may say cultivate the soil, the seed to start with, but which we need better seed and more careful attention paid to the seed, and to use more summer fallowing and cleaning crops in our rotation.

Publicity Given

ANTI-CHURCH BILL

Bombay, India, Feb.—(By C.P.)—Publicity seems to be the best remedy for a measure of this kind, says the Times of India, which is informed that the United Church of Canada Mission of Central India has appointed a Committee to give the utmost publicity to a drastic Bill proposed by the Gwalior State Council.

A rough synopsis of a Bill concerning change in religious faith has been sent out in draft form by the Gwalior State Council," the Times says. "It seems that the measure contemplated in the State makes it a criminal offence for anyone to change his religion without the permission of the State, deprives parents of their right to be the spiritual guardians of their children, makes it criminal for any missionary or Indian pastor to receive anyone into the Christian Church and seeks to interfere with the license given by Government to ministers to conduct the marriage service. A paper to which we have referred, published for the Christian Council of Mad-India, says there is but one motive back of this Bill and that is to defeat the work of Christian missions.... For over 20 years efforts have continually been made to secure a church site in the State, but the officials have always found some way of preventing it. Now it seems that in one final effort they would wipe out every sign and trace of Christianity."

SIR GEORGE FOSTER RETIRING AFTER FOUR YEARS OF SERVICE

Article Tells of Splendid Work Done by Veteran of Peace

We have legends of veterans of war, but few legends of peace. The former seem heroic; the latter, dull and indramatic. But then, here are exceptions. Sir George Foster is one of them. He is assuredly a veteran prophet of peace, and a picturesque and popular prophet. A politician, a statesman, who has transcended the bounds of party and even the limits of country, in the service of internationalism, Sir George Foster has achieved the praiseworthy and almost remarkable feat of maintaining a position outstanding in national and world affairs from within the walls of our Senate Chamber. He has since the close of the war been actively engaged in the League of Nations, with Imperial and with international affairs, and since its inception he has been the moving spirit of the League of Nations Society in Canada. On the eve of the annual meeting of this international organization, to be held shortly at Ottawa, he has announced his retirement as president and his departure for his country, attention is drawn to this latter phase in the life of one of the truly "Grand Old Men" of Canadian politics.

Of Sir George Foster's political activity in the past few years, it is sufficient to say that he has been vividly by Canadians who have seen the progress of the nation during the past forty odd years, and who live as his will live in Canadian history, he alone remains. He has served on the cabinets of seven prime ministers—Macdonald, Abbott, Thompson, Bowell, Tupper, Borden and Meighen and retains to this day a political prestige and an energy that make him one of the most interesting and important persons in the Senate.

Less interesting, perhaps, at any rate, less known has been his work in Canada in gaining support for the League movement throughout the country through the medium of the League of Nations Society. But it has been, in reality, no less significant. The society, of which he has been the great driving force, has grown from an organization of less than one thousand to one of upwards of fifteen thousand members, a number that is likely to be considerably augmented on April 16th—League of Nations Day—when a nation wide drive will be conducted. It is one of the most important and influential societies in the country, as it includes so many distinguished Canadians upon its active list. It was probably responsible for the development of the public opinion last year that urged the Prime Minister to himself represent Canada at Geneva, and it will continue to play a leading role in the affairs of the country.

Sir George Foster is retiring as president of the League of Nations Society in Canada, but he will continue, undoubtedly, to aid in its work, and will assuredly retain the affection and esteem of those who have been associated with him.

At a joint meeting of the Ontario Field Crop Committee and prominent seedmen in Toronto the other day, a resolution favoring field inspection of clover, alfalfa and timothy seeds was approved unanimously. It was pointed out that the general quality of the clover and timothy seed produced in this Province was deteriorating chiefly because of the spread of weeds. Seed merchants stated that they were prepared to pay a premium for high-quality pure seed, thoroughly re-cleaned, but that it was becoming increasingly difficult to locate such seed.

One of the main drawbacks in the way of clean seed production today, it was emphasized, was the lack of manurialy on the part of the grower with the various weeds when growing in the fields. A man might think he had a fine field only to find at threshing time that the results were disappointing, the crop dirty with weeds. Such a crop would be classed "Rejected" by the Government and refused by the regular seed buyer who under the Seeds Act is only allowed to sell seed that comes up to a certain specified high standard of purity. Naturally there is a strong temptation on the grower's part, then, to dispose of the dirty seed to neighboring farmers at the best price he can obtain, contrary to the law.

Field inspection, it is believed, would do much to stamp out this illicit trade in the seed producing districts and parts of the seed producing districts.

And the first sip will convince you it is best.

"SALADA" TEA

'Fresh from the gardens'

With weeds. The field inspector, who could be introduced by the local Agricultural Representative, would go through the seed districts early in the growing season. Being a skilled botanist, he would rapidly identify any harmful weeds and would be able to tell the grower whether his field would turn out a clean crop of seed or not. Perhaps with a little "roguing," that is, weed pulling, during early June, the clover, alfalfa or timothy could be changed from a field which would produce a crop that would not grade at all, and would therefore be worthless, to one worth from $20 to $50 per acre, or even considerably more. If it was not practicable to clean up the field, the grower would be advised to cut it for hay, in which case he would get a fair return from his labor and investment instead of the loss he would experience if the same was saved for seed. Information in regard to the possibilities of the crops would be of great value to the grower as would also be the education in connection with identifying our noxious weeds. Perhaps after the system got underway, it could be so developed that the inspector might be authorized to provide the grower of a cleaned up field with a certificate which might enable him to obtain a higher price for his seed. At all events, such inspections and cleaned up fields would always command a ready market.

Inspection work of this kind has been carried out in the seed-growing sections of Peel, York, Halton and Brant, and has been one of the chief factors in building up the present favorable seed reputation of these counties.

WHY THE NORTH POLE ATTRACTS SCIENCE

(Toronto, Ont., (By Canadian Press.)

—Why do scientists endure hardship and face death in the wastes of Antarctica? For one reason, because a large share of the world's weather is made at the South Pole and observation stations in the Antarctic can foretell the weather of the entire three and a half years in advance. J. R. Gibbs told the Toronto branch of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada recently.

Mr. Gibbs, member of the Royal Meteorological Society of England, has retired from his work to lecture on the feats of South Polar explorers.

He explained that Britain, with millions of pounds sterling invested in the Argentine, is particularly interested in Antarctic observations to forestall climatic catastrophes.

Suitable observation points 800 miles from the South Pole are the coldest places in the world, he said. There the temperature drops to 78 degrees below zero, freezing the alcohol in scientific instruments, and the blizzards blow 100 miles an hour. Yet one member of Amundsen's expedition stayed alone in such a spot for three months to carry on his observations.

Just For The Feminine Reader

COMFORT IN CHILDREN'S CLOTHES

Clothes play a much larger part in the behavior of both children and adults than we think on that consideration.

Have you ever tried to wear out a dress or a suit because it is still good yet in which you know you look too fat or too thin, or which is too tight under the arms or which is rough and scratchy? Did you show yourself off at your best? Were you comfortable? Were you pleasant and agreeable?

I visited a teacher friend of mine at work last month and a tiny girl in a nicely made, nicely pressed blue serge dress sat in the front seat. She giggled. She scratched. She shied around in her seat, and she failed in the only recitation I heard her give. My friend being a most understanding person called the child to her, put her arm about her and asked: "Marian what is wrong to-day? You don't seem comfortable and you didn't read as well as yesterday?" The child wiped her forehead with the back of her hand and hitched up one small shoulder. "I'm so hot!" she exclaimed vehemently, "and I itch." The child was immaculately clean, so there was no cause for suspicion about the "itch" she spoke of.

"She acts that way every time she wears that serge dress," explained my friend when the child wiped her face. "I wish mothers would dress the children in wash-clothes. They are more comfortable."

I knew just how the little girl felt and I too wished her mother would lay away the heavy serge dress for a soft little clean one of cotton, even though it were exceedingly plain and clean, with a good warm outer garment for out of door use, and you will be doing him a favor.

for school children anyway, not only because I feel that they get warm and uncomfortable in woolen things but because it is so much more sanitary to let them wear clothes which can be sterilized in hot sudsy and rinsing water.

There need not be many tucks and yards of lace which require hours of meticulous ironing. Plain little garments which are straight of line and which can be run through the mangle, if you have one, or quickly pressed if you use a board, are so much more sanitary and so much better looking to say nothing of the child's comfort.

See that your child's clothes do not bind him. He needs freedom to move easily and grow. He needs to be comfortable in order to "think."

And let him conform in the matter of clothing so that he does not feel conspicuous. We adults like to show our individuality by dressing a bit differently than other people sometimes, but a child has not reached the stage where he can be "different" and still be happy. His main idea in life is to identify himself with other people, to be one of them, to be like them. So, no matter if you think your son looks adorable in a velvet jacket or your tiny daughter resembles a cunning doll in an all white fur coat, restrain your tastes until they are a bit older, and dress them in plain, serviceable clothes which conform to the outfits generally worn in their school.

I should be glad to see uniforms compulsory in schools. It would eliminate much class distinction and many a heartache. Meanwhile, do not emphasize the fact to your child that he can have better clothing than Johnny Jones. Give Johnny Jones a chance to stand on his own merits. Just keep your child comfortable and clean, with a good warm outer garment for out of door use, and you will be doing him a favor.

WHAT'S NEW (From A Woman's Standpoint)

Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer recently remarked: The term "single standard" used to mean bringing men up to the standard required of women. Now it means allowing women to do with social approval, or at least tolerance, all that men did in the past.

For semi-sports frock Lucile Paray sponsors short necklaces of cellophane in various colors, paper thin rondelles separated by several long glass beads; while Worth, for this type of frock, presents jewelry of highly polished wooden beads alternating with small graduated gold beads.

The color chart of one of the big fabric houses shows a decided upward trend for grey, in fact it is in the lead among spring shades, and it is echoed in the numerous frocks, and suits that are appearing on the avenue and in the smart restaurants, where one well known woman wore a hip length jacket and short, smartly tailored skirt fashioned of slate gray, while the accompanying blouse was of crepe de chine in matching color, and for accessories she chose a two-toned fox felt hat, two-skin lined platinum fox scarf, envelope bag of reptile skin and gray stockings and sandals.

The Love Myth By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 22 SPRING FEVERS

Betty peered on the arm of a violent red plush chair in the living-room of a shabby, furnished apartment, looked at her friend, Gerie, with hungry eyes.

"You mean it, kid? Honest?" Gerie swung round on the squeaking piano stool. Her hands rested on the yellowed keys of the instrument, and small, sturdy room still echoed with the final chords of her accompaniment. It echoed with something else, also—the ghost of a melody sung in a clear voice—a voice poignant and wistful and wondering. Betty's voice!

"You've had a good break, baby!" Gerie said. "You've got your voice back, all right. It does happen often, so you'd better be pretty thankful."

"Do you think it will stay with me?" Betty's tone was awed.

"It will, if you treat it right," shrilled Gerie, and rose from the piano with a yawn. "Gee, it's tough to have to go to rehearsal on a day like this—I thought I ought to be doing a little thanksgiving myself for the chance to release, after the long lean winter—Spring had come. It was a breath of life from the narrow, noisy street. Flower-vendors were calling their wares on the corners, and the sound of an occasional high heel could be heard. Betty wore a big little suit with a violet hat and shoes of violet hard skin. Her clothes weren't paid for, but Julian didn't suspect that, for she had opened an account at a shop where she had been a customer in the days of old musical show.

Gerie yawned, stretched, and slipped out of her kimono, dropped a one-piece frock over her head, pulled on a hat, picked up a hand-bag, and announced:

"Ready! Let's go!"

When they reached the street and turned toward Broadway, she asked: "Want to stop in the theater and wait for me? We're only doing a couple of scenes, and it won't be long. We can go and have tea with the gang afterward."

Betty's eyes lighted, but she shook her head wistfully.

"I've got to go home, work! I bought a roast for dinner, and it takes hours to cook the thing. Gosh, if I'd known my voice was coming back so soon—Gee, why do things always happen too late in this world—or too soon? Never at the right time!"

Gerie looked at her. "What's eating you? Aren't you glad you're married?"

"I don't know," Betty's tone was sulky.

She didn't know. Julian was very kind to her. He had saved her from destitution, saved her life, in fact. Of course, she told herself, she was grateful. But she was beginning to feel a little like a prisoner, especially since she'd learned that she might recover her voice. With the coming of the spring, a new restlessness had developed in her. She felt a curious desire to be on the move. She was a born vagabond. Not for her the comfort and security of home. She thrived on uncertainty. She wanted her sensations to be either definitely black or definitely white—no indefinite gray. The sharp pang of hunger, or the sharp pang of satiety. She couldn't put these feelings into words; she could only grope about blindly and wonder why she wasn't happy and content.

Gerie was saying: "You haven't gone and fallen out of love with your husband already, have you?"

Betty was gazing into admiringly.

"I never was in love with him."

Gerie shrugged carelessly. "Well, look before you leap, old girl. It may be spring now, and you can sleep on a park bench for a couple of months, but the snow'll fly in December, just the same, and you'll be shivering with sneezing. A bird in the hand is worth two in a glass house, as the poets say."

But Betty refused to be consoled.

"It's all very well for you to talk like that, Gerie, but you don't have to be a household drudge," she protested resentfully. "You're married, but Joe leaves you free as air."

Her friend sniffed. "I'll say he does! When I pay the rent, the poor prairie dog, he'll be the one who'll be free."

They had reached the theater by that time. Gerie turned in at the stage door and said to Betty: "You'll be here tomorrow—same time—if you can't stop today." Betty stared after her with a hungry look in her eyes, as if that battered door shut out a glimpse of Paradise. Then she turned reluctantly and walked slowly away.

She made her way home, but her thoughts were in the theater, in the land of make-believe that she loved. She contemplated reality, the preparation of the evening meal, the long, dull hours at home, or at a cheap movie with a fresh distaste. Since she had learned she might regain her voice, that there was a chance of returning to the stage, her marital bonds seemed suddenly unendurable.

Mechanically, she walked along streets that were filled with late shoppers and the home-bound matinee ladies. A familiar hand and shoulder suddenly caught her attention. She saw Julian, and by his side, the girl who had been pointed out to her in the theater as Norman Kendall's hope, less passion. They were walking slowly, her husband and the girl, and were much more absorbed in each other than they suspected; in fact, they were busy huddled and humiliated, if they had known that passers-by, seeing them, were moved to murmur—if they were human and not too rushed for a bit of sentiment—

"Ah, Spring . . . and Youth . . . and Love!"

Julian's handsome head was close to Lucinda's. He didn't see Betty, who disappeared in the crowd. Strangely enough, she grinning.

"Caught with the goods!" she told herself, and chuckled.

It occurred to her suddenly that she wasn't in the habit of seeing the girl who had been after him for months. Tokyo's most talked of thief, known popularly as the "Preaching Burglar," broke into another man's home at Zoshigaya and made away with a small sum of money.

True to the habit which has earned for him the nickname the thief preached a long sermon to his victim before he made his escape. It was the 65th robbery known to have been committed by the man.

He had no trouble in knowing who it was responsible for the reports made by the victims are the same.

After rifling the house at Zoshigaya, the "Preaching Burglar" sat down in the bedroom of the man he had robbed and proceeded to give the burglar the benefit of sleep. It would do the robbed man no good to make a disturbance, he urged, while on the other hand several hours of sound sleep would improve his general temperance. Lack of sleep, he concluded would interfere with his work at the office the next day.

Thereupon the "Preaching Burglar" took a pack of cards and played solitaire until dawn. When he began to grow light he said "sayonara" and was off.

URGES SHOWING OF HANDICRAFTS

Should Preserve Ancient Art in Province of Quebec Says M. P.

Chicoutimi, Que. (By Canadian Press).—Domestic handicrafts, menaced in the Province of Quebec by the progress in mechanical production should not only be registered to preserve an art that is both distinctive and traditional, but can be made the source of large profits to the craftsman, George Bouchard, M.P. for Kamouraska, declared here before the St. Jean Baptiste Society recently.

"In 1927," said Mr. Bouchard, "we celebrated with great ceremony the fete of the Fathers of Confederation. Let us hope that the day is not far distant when there will be suitable recognition for the mothers of this Confederation who, by distributing their activities between the cradle, the hearth and the handicrafts, have supported populous homes and contributed to make a prosperous Canada."

It was being said everywhere, Mr. Bouchard added, that the day of knitting, of spinning, of weaving was over; that the old handicrafts were going out of fashion as surely as the old song. That might be in a sense, but he said that at the Congress of Popular Arts, held last year at Prague, Czechoslovakia, domestic arts were threatened on all sides by the march of mechanical progress.

But in Quebec, a country embracing the old Indian, French and Anglo-Saxon arts, the sources of profit from handicrafts were still there. Mass production, the penetration of the travelling salesman, and the mail order catalogue were threats. Yet domestic arts, properly cared for, could still survive and should survive, not because they must not be allowed to die, but because there was money in them and more money than ever.

New York, sending thousands of dollars worth of homespun blankets, quilts, carpets, catalogues (small floor coverings), etc., were produced and sold during 1927 the speaker pointed out.

"That," Mr. Bouchard said, "should offer to show the importance of domestic handicrafts in this province."

This huge production of homespun represented only small proportions of the total made in Quebec, as it was produced only in one or two counties and parishes of northeastern Quebec.

The speaker, however, pointed out the application of modern methods such as the use of small motors to operate the "spinning" and other machines would go a long way towards solving many difficulties facing the homespun wife. It would provide greater and cheaper production with consequent increased remuneration. It would also provide interesting work for the growing generation and help keep domestic arts alive, he said.

VANCOUVER HAS LOW CAR DEATH RATE

Vancouver, B.C., (By Canadian Press).—Thirty persons lost their lives in automobile accidents in Vancouver during 1928 and 723 others were injured in a total of 10,529 accidents reported, according to police statistics just published.

An average of 1200 summonses a month were issued during the year, as against 1000 in 1927. Of a total of 14,504 persons summoned 8431 were convicted of breaches of the City By-laws governing automobiles and paid fines amounting to $702.

Automobile accidents for the entire province of British Columbia during the year numbered 87,500 against 77,500 in 1927, and an average of three persons were killed for each 1,000 automobiles operated.

PREACHING BURGLAR LECTURES VICTIMS

Tokyo, (By Canadian Press).—Successfully eluding the police who have been after him for months, Tokyo's most talked of thief, known popularly as the "Preaching Burglar," broke into another man's home at Zoshigaya and made away with a small sum of money.

True to the habit which has earned for him the nickname the thief preached a long sermon to his victim before he made his escape. It was the 65th robbery known to have been committed by the man.

OLD LANDMARK TO VANISH SHORTLY

Wellington, N.Z. (By Canadian Press).—A famous old landmark will vanish when the stone windmill in St. Andrews Road is torn down.

The mill was built more than 75 years ago when wheat was grown extensively in the district. It was used for milling fertilizer for a time and later was converted into a flour mill. The old machinery is still intact and capable of operation.

Of stone construction with walls several feet in thickness the mill in the early days was sometimes used as a fortress on one occasion refugees from as far afield as Oahu seeking shelter from the natives within its walls.

HEART TROUBLE

Before the muscles of the arm contract to produce motion, we first think of the action and as a result the contraction takes place, the heart except that there the same process is also true of thought is a subconscious one.

If the arm will not function, it is known as arm trouble, and of the heart does not function properly, it is known as heart trouble. Either condition will respond to spinal adjustments.

RELATIONS OF JAPAN TO THE WESTERN WORLD

Saduo Saburi Tells of Views and Aims of His People

The relations of Japan and the Occident were dealt with by Saduo Saburi, charge d'affaires of the Japanese embassy, in a recent address to the Royal United Service Institution. There are those who think that a stage has been reached in the life of Japan when she must decide whether she will throw in her lot with East or with West. The idea is manifestly one which presupposes antagonism, ultimately leading to conflict between the two civilizations, and is comprehensible only if one tolerates the fallacy of a "Yellow Peril."

It is, however, entirely too narrow in its conception and far too terrible in its potential consequences to merit any consideration by Japan. In her pursuit of the goal of enduring peace and the continuous advancement of mankind, Japan aspires to serve as a link connecting and harmonizing the civilizations of the East and the West. This aspiration, if it is to be realized, demands the sympathy and co-operation of those countries that hold the key to peace in the East—the United States of America and the British Empire. The latter is our oldest and surest friend and former ally.

As Mr. Baldwin has said—in words which all my fellow-countrymen heartily endorse—"Our friendship has been sealed by historic alliance, and the spirit of that alliance still flourishes, and is the strongest guarantee for peace in the Far East."

The Prime Minister's words, and their endorsement by Japanese Government and the Japanese people, may serve to dispel a lingering suspicion, which might otherwise harden into a mistaken belief, that the Japanese resent the abrogation of the alliance. Any such suspicion is very wide of the mark.

We believed, and still believe, that the spirit of peace which had always animated the alliance should live on to animate and to render effective the wider understanding that replaced it as the guarantee of peace in the Far East.

RACE OF INDIANS SLOWLY DYING OUT

WOMEN ALWAYS SUE WHEN FALL ON ICE

Toronto, Ont., (By C.P.)—If a man falls on the icy sidewalk, he concludes that he was clumsy. If a woman falls, she sues the municipality. This is the general rule, as determined by Ottawa's experience. Controller C. J. Tully said when the executive of Ontario Municipal Association brought even proposed legislation to attention of the cabinet.

"These actions," said Mr. Tully, "are always laid by women. Men fall on the sidewalk and break their arms, but they realize it is their own clumsiness and there is no action. If a woman falls a young lawyer goes to her and says there are precedents which indicate a chance of her winning an action and we have these cases facing us all the time."

HANDEL FESTIVAL TO BE POSTPONED

London, Feb. (By C.P.)—Owing to the probability of the General Election taking place in the summer it has been resolved to postpone the triennial Handel Festival, which was due to have taken place at the Crystal Palace in June. The Festival, which has been held every three years since 1859, has had luck on the last occasion, for the General Strike nearly led to the loss of the money spent upon preliminary advertising and although the Festival eventually carried through with success it did little more than pay expenses.

Like the Crystal Palace itself, the Handel Festival has never renounced its struggle against difficulties. The Palace has gone through all kinds of vicissitudes. From its establishment it was never easy to convince Londoners that Sydenham is really not at all far from the West End and gradually various competing attractions began to create an impression that the Palace was old fashioned. But the trustees never lost heart, and at their last meeting they were able to announce that 1928 had been a successful year, aided by the fine summer—and to describe various restorations now in progress. It would certainly be said if so famous a London landmark ever had to be dismantled, a glass palace may be rather awkward for practical purposes but the idea of such a structure is singularly attractive, and many persons who from a distance on a fine summer's day have seen the Palace poised like a bubble on the Sydenham heights must have felt that a curiously dreamlike architectural conception was given

The Indians, he said number only about 150 and dwell in the region between Tomo and Meseta rivers, tributaries of the Orinoco, just over the Venezuelan line in Colombia. The tribe known as the Cuiapio-Pihibi, is disappearing due to disease and attacks by a more warlike tribe to the west.

CHILD SHOULD HAVE RELIGION

Every child should have instruction in the religion of his people and it should be begun when he is very young.

Do not have it doled out to him once a week merely. If he gets his only instruction about God in a place outside of his home, and by someone outside of his family, he will grow up, as many of us have before him, with a vague idea that God and that hazy thing called his soul, are associated with the church on the corner and with it only.

Entitled to a Belief
There are certain things a child has a right to, just as he has a right to food and education. A belief in a higher power than himself is one of them.

He should grow up with his soul, feel him be made aware of it, even in a vague and probably material way.

Children are made aware of their bodies. They are taught how careful they must be of them, how to keep them clean and well and strong. They know, too, that they have minds, and that they are keenly alive to the disgrace it would be not to learn and remember and store up knowledge, in them.

There we have the physical and mental ideal, but how about the moral?

It is impossible to separate the moral from that higher part of us that we call the soul.

Child-training without it would be like bread without yeast. It is the quickening of all real fitness and greatness.

Should Have Foundation
As a child grows older he may change his belief—he has right to that—but it is the duty of his parents to give him the foundation of soul and God to build on.

Show him God in nature, and in all beauty. How much more the world will mean to him as he grows up! Flowers, trees, birds, the ocean—the sky—teach him reverence for the Great Power that made them.

If his thoughts about God are vague, they will clarify as he grows older. As I said he may make his own interpretation, then. But I should not think of trying to lay a foundation of character without the rock of religion under it.

When the plans of Sir Joseph Paxton were first passed, The Palace was originally erected in Hyde Park, and housed the Great Exhibition of 1851—the first "Wembley" to be held in England.

GIGOLOES ARE READY FOR WINTER SEASON

Canes, France, (By Canadian Press)—Fully five hundred sleek-haired youths have mysteriously appeared on the Riviera during the last few weeks. They are the professional dancing partners coming from England and all parts of the continent to begin their winter task of extracting their living from elderly women who wish to a poor kitchen on the dance floor, and young flappers who wish to appear older than their passports.

It's a hard life but a lucrative one. Many of these men earn $1000 a month during the season. Some of them make as much as $2,000 a month. One man has an oral contract with an elderly English woman whereby she pays him $40 an hour, and guarantees at least seven hours a week. This is the third year the contract has been in force. Last year she only danced twice in the five months but the money was paid regularly.

If the dancer is in the employ of a hotel or a restaurant he draws no house salary but is given free board. There is usually a house rule regarding the maximum charge for a dance but he soon learns to make the maximum the minimum. At one restaurant the dancers expect $4 per dance and the two run the show, sometimes make $1,000 a week apiece. But it is doubtful if fifty out of the four hundred will have any money at the end of the season. Most of them are inveterate gamblers, willing to risk everything for one lucky shot which will enable them to retire.

TURK MUSICIANS HAVE TO PLAY WELL

Stamboul—The Stamboul Musicians Union, bent on reforming the music of Turkey, has persuaded the municipality to suppress all musicians unless they held certificates attesting their ability.

The Turkish police have been thorough enough in executing the order holding up concerts when they are in full swing, to demand certificates from members of the orchestra. Those who fail to produce such passports into the realm of art are immediately ejected.

The police are even demanding certificates of proficiency from the gypsy tambourine shakers and reed players who haunt the lower cabarets and who do their street begging to the music of their primitive instru-

FIRST EDITION IS WORTH THOUSANDS

Toronto, Ont., Feb. - (By C.P.) - After reposing for 25 years on the shelf of a collector's library in Toronto, a first edition of Walt Whitman's poem has shot higher in price in the last six months than International Nickel. For years the owner cherished the volume with no thought of sale. Then he let a private individual he believed interested in Whitman have it for $40, the price he had paid years before. The next day it became the property of a New York bookseller for $90. It was placed on the shelves of the New York store with the price plainly marked - $450. It lay there six weeks before it was disposed of for $1,200 to a purchaser who had already contracted to sell it for $1,900. The last man recorded was at $2,000 - and it was still in a dealer's hands.

playing at the Regent Theatre. Some of his most daring riding is seen in this picture and it was perhaps this that caused Tom to step on the gas a bit hard when he returned to the stud to the day he finished these particular scenes.

"It was only doing 35 per," said Tom "but when the officer told me to pull over to the curb he said I was doing 60. I'm going to do my speeding on my horse from now on, because they can't give you tickets for that."

BELLE THEATRE

There is a great audience appeal to the plot of Columbia's "The Way of the Strong" at the Belle Theatre. It presents an interesting angle in the life of a gangster and shows the tender heart that lies hidden beneath a rough, uncouth exterior.

"The Way of the Strong" is unlike any of the underworld pictures that have previously been shown here. It deals with a phase of life familiar to everyone - the dawn of love. The gangster falls in love and what a heart appeal there is to his love! He is a man so battle scarred that he is repulsive, even his tender nature and thoughtfulness will not compensate for his ugly looks. Into his life comes a pathetic character, a beautiful blind violinist. In her, the gangster sees a ray of hope. She cannot see his face and her idea of him will be the result of his personality. How his plan turns out, furnishes one of the most intensely interesting dramas colored with gang warfare, hijacking the thrills.

SILENT ZONE TO BE LOOKED AT

Victoria, B.C. (By Canadian Press) - The "silent zone" off Race Rocks, at the entrance to the San Juan Straits, dreaded by navigators in the fog, the coire of numerous sea disasters many of which were accompanied by serious loss of life, has attracted the attention of Trinity House, the lighthouse authority of Great Britain. Trinity House has asked a committee of experts to make an investigation of the conditions prevailing at Race Rocks, with a view to finding some means of remedying the deceptive silence that has repeatedly misled ships on the treacherous reefs there.

A silence zone is known to exist at Race Rocks, and not long ago the Federal Government established a radio beacon there, which works effectively. It is not of use to all ships, as there are many vessels that do not carry direction-finding equipment. It is in the interest of these vessels that the committee is now acting.

In spite of the fact that ship after ship has piled on Race Rocks during the past ten years during fog, the navigating officers stating afterwards that they heard no warning from the signals operating on the rock; there are some claim there is no such thing as a silence zone.

The communication from Trinity House, the greatest authority in the world on aids to navigation, frankly admits that silence zones are known to exist, diaphanous in such areas being silent at some angles and audible at others.

The fact that Trinity House is taking an active interest in Race Rocks will, it is believed, assist in the work of making the rock a less dangerous to navigation.

BROKE NECK TWICE YET STILL LIVES

Vancouver, B.C. (By Canadian Press) - When Dan Aymour stepped into the upholstery chair in a dental parlor recently to have three teeth extracted, he asked to be treated as gently as possible.

"You see, I've have my neck broken twice in the last seven years and I've got to be careful," said Aymour. Aymour claims that he is the only man who has survived two fractures of the vertebrae, and while specialists give long and somewhat complicated explanations of this interesting case, he has a reason all his own and to him it's a very simple one. "I've got a double heart," said Aymour. "A fellow with a double heart is kind of hard to kill - like a cat with nine lives."

Dr. Nelson of the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., discovered this abnormality several months ago.

Working at a bench when employed as a machinist seven years ago, Aymour was thrown heavily onto his back when the wrench broke, thus receiving the first fracture of his vertebrae. Four months ago he slipped on the street, once again snapping his spine.

X-ray photographs confirm Aymour's story. In order to prevent any movement of the head he is forced to wear a specially built head harness.

B. C. BEEKEEPERS TO REGISTER CHARGES

Victoria, B.C. (By Canadian Press) - In order to guard against the menace of foul broods, all beekeepers in British Columbia will be required to register with the Department of Agriculture under an amendment to the Apiaries Act in the Legislature shortly. No fee will be charged for registration, which in the opinion of the government is necessary so that the operations of the colonies may be kept under close review.

THE DAIRYING PRODUCTION OF THIS COUNTRY

Production of Milk in 1927
13,060,000,000; Trade
With U. S.

The total estimated production of milk in Canada in 1927 is estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at 13,060,000,000 pounds as compared with 13,407,000,000 pounds in 1926. The total number of cows milked in 1927 was 2,327,000 (as compared with 2,332,000 in 1926). The number of milk cows on farms in 1928 is again slightly less than in the previous year, but it is expected that the milk produced in 1928 will not be greatly less than the total for 1927. The average milk production per cow as reported by the census of 1921 has been used and the total estimate of milk production arrived at.

The production of milk by provinces is (in pounds) as follows: Prince Edward Island 176,543,868; Nova Scotia 236,419,234; New Brunswick 403,014,618; Quebec 4,057,161,966; Ontario 5,128,278,311; Manitoba 600,449,500; Saskatchewan 1,049,216,124; Alberta 761,633,212; British Columbia 294,911,760. The distribution of the total milk produced amongst the different descriptions of dairy produce is placed as follows: the quantities being expressed in pounds of milk. Butter, dairy—2,223,950,000; creamery 4,143,077,150; Cheese, homemade—4,652,670; factory 1,546,237,368; miscellaneous factory products 287,416,913; consumed fresh or otherwise disposed of—4,854,938,192. Production of butter and cheese (in pounds) in 1927 was as follows: Butter, dairy 95,000,000; creamery 176,978,947; total 271,978,947; cheese, homemade 415,417; factory 138,056,908; total 553,473,925.

The total value of all dairy products is estimated to be $253,736,605 for 1927 as compared with $249,710,067 in 1926. Taking the items for Canada separate from the total value for 1927, the corresponding values for 1926 in brackets, are as follows: Dairy butter $30,435,121 ($28,252,777); creamery butter $65,709,886 ($61,753,390); homemade cheese $70,464 ($60,240); factory cheese $25,421,48 ($28,807,841); miscellaneous factory products $18,879,335 ($17,767,271) and whole milk $113,119,361 ($113,048,548).

Within the last few years, the trade in dairy products with the United States has assumed considerable importance. In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1919, the exports of dairy products from Canada to the United States in terms of total value, represented only 8.4 per cent of the total dairy exports. This proportion has increased until in 1927-28 it amounted to 32.1 per cent. Cream is the largest item in these exports at present. Exports of cream to the United States amounted to 485,015 gallons, and the exports of milk to 827,973 gallons, increasing until in the year 1926-27 the exports of cream were 4,495,917 gallons and those of milk 19,198-10 to the value of $1,927-28, some falling-off is shown, the amount of cream being 4,016,961 gallons and of milk 3,624,794 gallons. The exports of cheese from Canada in 1926-27 were 1,000,000 pounds in 1926-27 to the value of $1,000,000 pounds in 1926-27. In 1927-28, the exports to the United States amounted to 12,533,500 pounds. The assembly plants continued operations on the old models until October 26th when the last one closed down to prepare for the new car. The first assembly of the new cars were flowing regularly to dealers and a generous quota was placed with the export organization for foreign shipment.

The complete change involved twenty Chevrolet plants along with 10,000 square feet of floor space and scattered in various sections of the continent. There are eleven manufacturing plants and nine assembly plants from coast to coast. When operating at capacity of 6,000 cars a day, this organization will handle 8,000 tons of material a day including 240 tons of malleable 1200 tons of cast iron, 800 tons of forgings, 2,500 tons of sheet metal and many other materials that go to make up the modern car. The cost of changing models is enormous. Such a large total has been invested by one organization in a similarly short space of time. It was the work of superorganization to provide for its efficient expenditure, timing each operation to coordinate the whole in a smooth flowing stream of quantity production with minimum interruption to the company's main function of producing as many cars as it can sell efficiently and economically. INTERESTING ITEMS ABOUT SHAW

Those who are studying George Bernard Shaw's plays, may be interested in this excerpt from a Toronto paper, where Maurice Colbourne addressed the Women's Canadian Club of that city.

"One of Toronto's most entertaining addresses on Shaw was that given by the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon when Maurice Colbourne declared that Shaw's 'The Intelligent Woman's Guide to Socialism,' while delightful reading, has really nothing in it. 'It is a terribly safe book,' Mr. Colbourne said. 'In substance it says that in about 1,000 years after Mr. Shaw's death, the Acts of Parliament, probably everyone will be receiving about the same income.'

Shaw, it was shown, in spite of his extreme views on socialism, is himself a capitalist, a landed proprietor and a very wealthy man.

According to Mr. Colbourne, Shaw's most outstanding characteristic is his serenity. Although he has allowed himself to appear angry in order to make more pointed remarks, he has never been known to lose his temper. He has not taken the trouble to combat the resentment felt by many at his constant flying of England at the time of the war, by making public the very real services he rendered the British Foreign Office. In fact, Mr. Colbourne considers that Caesar's speech in 'Caesar,' and Cleopatra's 'What have I to do with resentment, thou foolish Egyptian?' is an excellent commentary on the character of the author.

Encouragement to poor students and struggling authors may be found in the confessions of Shaw, that he was the laziest boy in the school, from which he finally ran away, and that during the first nine years of his writing career in London, he earned £6. His first novel was fine writing, but nobody read it and the writer says 'He never could finish it.'

Mr. Colbourne explained that the reason that he and his company have chosen to present the plays of Bernard Shaw on their tour of Canada, is that he feels that they contain the two qualities that are the most inherently British, a sense of fun and play and a sense of humor. He cited as an example 'John Bull's Other Island,' in which the laughter is alternately at the expense of the Conservatives and Liberals, and in which the hearer is left wondering at the last which country claims the dramatist's sympathy.

POCKETS AND HANDS

We were taken to task about an article which appeared in this column some time ago concerning the lack of pockets in women's wearing apparel, and the inconvenience of the modern purse. This person contended that the rooney bags that are so modern nowadays are much superior to the complication of pockets which a man has. She said: 'You spoke of seeing a woman in the Post Office who, in the search for some small change brought forth a vanity case, a lip stick, her check book, a time table some rubber bands, a lead pencil, a handkerchief, a key ring and a box of aspirin.' We suspect that she forgot to mention a few of the other items. Anyway she went on to say that she preferred a handbag with its different compartments to the dozen odd pockets of a man's suit. She went on: 'I stood in line at a theatre in the city once and waited for a man to locate two tickets which were hidden somewhere in his clothes and he brought forth about fifteen letters from his inner coat pocket first. The tickets were not there. Then he commenced a more or less systematic search through the rest of his pockets. In his overcoat pockets were a package of cigarettes, and some loose matches, a pair of gloves and a handkerchief. In his inner coat pockets were a cigarette lighter, a little parcel, and some more matches. His vest pockets contained a watch and a chain in the opposite one, a fountain pen and two lead pencils, some paper clips, a small comb; while his inner coat pockets besides the letters and papers mentioned had a check book and a collar button. And his other coat pocket a silk handkerchief. Being next in line I watched him search through his pockets with interest, and all the articles mentioned were displayed in the search. What was in his trouser pockets was not disclosed as he found the tickets in a leather bill fold which he was carrying. In that pocket, the last place he searched I am of the same opinion as you that there is some reform needed, but I do not see a solution in numerous pockets."

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

A pretty and a different garnish for lamb chops or fried chicken is made by slicing small oranges in very thin white slices and placing an even thinner rim of pimento on top of them.

Bread pudding, flavored with coffee, makes a delightful change. Use coffee instead of milk to moisten it. Serve with thin cream, custard or hard sauce.

If you use two or three tablespoons of honey instead of sugar when making muffins the next time, your family will exclaim over the "new taste."

When hanging pictures, glue a thin piece of cork into the centre of the lower part of the frame, so that the frame doesn't touch the wall—thus preventing that dark streak that sometimes forms on the wall.

The Love Myth By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 23

"I WANT YOU TO TELL HER—TODAY!"

When Julian realized that he was in love with Lucinda Barnum, he underwent a revolution of feeling that was probably the strongest emotion he had ever experienced in his life.

He sat hunched in a seat at the back of the theatre and stared hungrily at her as she sat in a box with Florence Twombly, Nick Jordan and Norman Kendrick. He felt that he must know what he was suffering. She was his ideal—the girl of his dreams. And he was a married man, playing truant from home to look upon her.

He left the theatre, after the second act and walked down to the river where he had first met Betty on that icy winter night and told himself that he must put a barrier between himself and his thoughts of Lucinda.

While he walked, he was thinking, as Betty had, that in this world, everything happens either too early or too late. Only, unlike Betty he was almost resigned to his fate. He told himself that he mustn't see Lucinda again. It would be too difficult to hide his feelings and now that he had faced the situation squarely, he knew that he ought to tell Lucinda that he was married!

But he couldn't tell her! He couldn't! The time for a frank confession had passed. Moreover, he had to think of Betty. She was careless, slangy, ill-bred, but she was his wife. He couldn't go to Lucinda and say, 'I have a wife, but I can't let you meet her. Your world and her world are not the same.'

He couldn't do it! Such a statement would necessitate an explanation, and that would hurt Betty, if she heard of it.

But Julian—for he tried to be honest with himself—wondered whether he was thinking wholly unselfishly of Betty, or whether his own vanity motivated him. After all, a man is judged by the kind of a wife he chooses and he hated to have the girl he adored name him by the standards that his marriage to Betty would suggest.

Finally he reached the spot where he had found Betty that winter night. He stopped and stared through the darkness, remembering how she had crouched on the ground, her face buried in her hands. The dark river flowed on. The stars looked down serenely. Dimly in the distance, he could see the arched under which she had stood when he urged her to let him take her home.

"If only I could go back; if I could undo all the past! If I hadn't come down to the river that night."

And then he was ashamed, for he reminded himself that if he had gone straight home to bed from that point, the girl who was now his wife might have ended her life that night. Too late! Too late!—But not too late, thank Heaven, to do the decent thing. Not too late to stay away from Lucinda!

He didn't reckon with Fate, however, or with Lucinda. It happened that she had guests in June and needed an extra man for a dinner-party. With pretty arrogance, she telephoned Julian and overcame his every objection. She commanded his presence, and he had to go. Had to, he told himself grimly—when he was wild to go. She greeted him graciously when he appeared, looking very handsome.

"I'm taking you for myself," she explained audaciously. "You haven't a scrap of romance about you, so you'd be frightfully disappointing to the other girls."

"I can be extremely romantic on occasion—if you are for that sort of thing," he told her, looking down into her eyes and thinking how lovely she was.

"I don't!" she declared hastily, flushing. "Most people confuse romance with sentiment, which is mushy. Now—be good and dance with everybody I tell you to."

"Oh!" he shrugged. "So that's what being taken for yourself signifies. You

For the first time in Japanese history women took over the job of pounding the rice cake for the New Year, for though up to this year this has been peculiarly the duty or privilege of the men of the household they probably gave it up without reluctance.

Premiere evening models show varied fabrics, combinations of chiffon and lace are characteristic, all lace dresses with accent on black crepe lace are sponsored, plain gowns, and white printed tulle, are again seen while the back dipping movement sweeps the floor while the décolletage shows a carefully worked chemise top effect, low cut, devices are introduced to keep shoulder straps from slipping such pieces encrusted into the corsage and knotted at back, also suspender effects.

She flung him a spiteful, that I'm want to kiss her, and hurried away to discharge her duties as hostess. Julian strolled into the room set apart for smoking and saw Norman and Florence Thorpe. Florence was talking in a low tone, her jeweled fingers twisting restlessly at her ostrich-feather fan and Norman was looking uncomfortably and saying mechanically, "It's a darn shame, Florence, I'm frightfully sorry!" He looked up with relief at Julian's entrance and hastily got to his feet.

"Haven't seen you in an age," He shook his friend's hand enthusiastically and his eyes implored: "Help me to escape!"

Julian said: "You're just the chap I want to see—You'll excuse us for a couple of minutes, Mr. Thorpe? I want to talk about with Norman."

She rose languidly and walked out of the room without a word. Norman wiped his brow and said: "Where! Florence sure is developing a complex, but what it is, I'm hanged if I know—Who did you want to see me about—or was that just a gag to rescue me?"

Julian knew quite suddenly what he wanted to tell his best friend. He plunged into the subject without subterfuge:

"Does Lucinda know I'm married?" Norman stared. "I don't think so. I never mentioned it. Why?"

Julian's reply stunned him.

"I want you to tell her. Tonight!"

"COLLEGIATE CHATTER"

By Helen Jones

The fateful day is approaching. Yesterday afternoon the time table for the examinations next Thursday and Friday was posted. The result was that some were jubilant over the fact that they had only two or three examinations to write while others were silently bemoaning the seven which were their lot. This leads me to say that there actually will be examinations throughout the school on Thursday and Friday of next week, February 14th and 15th.

The Glee Club, the society which has been recently organized in the school met once more on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock. Each member brought fifteen cents and received a sheet of music. The society has become quite popular in the school and we hope to have them sing before the student body shortly.

Another inter-form basketball game was played yesterday. The teams were III-B and V-B. The result was 42 to 1 for V-B. The game was not interesting and to several onlookers appeared to be a game of tag. The one score for III-B was made on a free shot. V-B is now preparing to meet the champion Lower School team which to all appearances will be II-E.

The two Fifth Forms held a skating party last Tuesday evening. Miss Lillian Naylor, a member of V-A kindly loaned her home for the party. There were many students present, although the players on the hockey team did not come until later.

Parties seem to be in fashion in the school just at present in spite of the coming examinations. Two lower school forms held a sleigh drive this week also.

Do not forget the Junior Hockey game to-morrow. B.C.I. Juniors play Trenton and without doubt the game will be one of the best of the season.

To-night at 8 p.m. the Literary Society is holding an open meeting. In spite of the fact that there is a hockey game and various other attractions going on at the same time a fair crowd is expected and those who do come will not regret it. There will be three or four oratoricals by Junior pupils followed by two short plays, also given by junior pupils. To vary the program several musical numbers have also been added. There is no admission fee but there will be a silver collection.

BRANT COUNTY HOLSTEIN MEN ORGANIZE CLUB

The annual meeting of the Brant County Holstein Breeders Club held at Brantford on Saturday, Feb. 2nd, brought out a splendid attendance of breeders and marked enthusiasm featured the discussion which left to the formation of a definite plan of work for 1929. Following the meeting, the club held a banquet attended by upwards of 100 breeders and their wives, the presidents and secretaries of several other Holstein Clubs in adjoining counties and many leading citizens of Brantford. C. C. Hayland, Wilsonville, Ont., last year's president of the Club presided and among the speakers were R. W. E. Burnaby Maritime Trade Commissioner and A. Overholt. Principal of the Brantford Collegiate. Officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows:

President: L. Taylor, Brantford; 1st Vice President: C. C. Kettle, Wilsonville; 2nd Vice President: L. Sager, St. George; Sec.-Treas. W. J. McCormack, Hatchley Station; directors: E. G. Chambers, Hatchley Station; C. Duff, Nelles, Scotland; F. S. Pasmore, Brantford; W. J. Wood, Cainsville; F. V. Woodley, Wilsonville; G. M. Wood, Troy; Hon. Director A. Dorrance, Agriculture Representative, Brantford and County Fieldman E. C. Chambers, Hatchley Station.

Maybe if New York would arrange to remove unemployed actors from the streets the traffic situation wouldn't be so bad.

It won't be long now until we know what Hoover eats for breakfast, and what time the clock is wound and the cat kicked downstairs.

One western newspaper, in a headline over a story about the birth of a fourth set of twins to the same parents, said "Deuces Wild."

FORMER REPORTER PASSES AT NAPANEE Kingston, February 8.—The sudden death took place at Napanee yesterday of D. McClellan, the staff of the Daily Tea Co. for seventeen years.

Mr. McClellan was born in Scotland, and came to Canada in the late eight-ies. For years he followed the news-paper profession, having edited papers in Galt, Alexandria and other places. He was the Napanee correspondent of the Kingston Whig and also correspond-ent of Toronto papers.

Allen testified that a college boy who killed a man in a holdup was suf-fering from an inferiority complex. Oh, well, all right!

NOTES ON THE GAME

Among the notables at the game last night was "Jim" Sutherland, who is called the "Father of Hockey." "Jim" is past President of the O.H.A. and the Linestake way. He is regarded as one of the best timekeepers in the Pro vince and "Jim's" watch is never questioned.

Prof. McDonnell of Queen's Athletic Board of Control, came along with the team. In speaking with your scrib-ble he denied the rumor of another arena in Kingston.

He was non-committal when queried regarding Queen's chances of the grid-iron next Fall.

Three goals should be sufficient to carry the Maroons through. It wouldn't be a little bit of a surprise to see the tricolor whipped right at home.

They had plenty of combination pla- but it got them nowhere last night.

Harry Watson measures off-sides by inches but is a capable official and there is hopes of having him back for the Junior game here on Saturday night.

Last night's was the biggest crowd for an Intermediate game this season. The fans will start turning out in larger numbers after the locals ad-vance into the next play-downs.

The game was particularly clean but few penalties having been handed out and these for minor infractions.

Queen's have a burly pair of defence men in Munro and Gourley, both are front attackers and team up well in front of the roland "Benny" Morris in goal.

One prominent fan said he had been watching them closely and advises all to watch Camp Borden and Oshawa in the Intermediate race.

REGENT THEATRE

Tom Tyler in the "Avengeing Rider" with Frankie Darro, an F. B. O. Picture. Flashing bows, roaring guns, crashing fists in a drama of frontier vengeance. Don't miss it! Today and Saturday at Regent.

BELLE THEATRE

"The Way of the Strong," a Colum-bia production at the Belle Theatre is replete with action. A well outlined series of thrilling events include the hi-jacking of a fleet of rum trucks, a shooting affair in an underworld street, a boxing gun battle in a gangster's lair and a mile a minute chase.

Behind the tense action is a beau-tiful love story, as unusual as it is well told. It is the tale of a gangster's love for a blind violinist. The man is so ugly that he is called handsome; but underneath the rough exterior is a tender, compassionate heart. He be-comes the benefactor of the blind street musician. When she attempts to feel his face to prove to herself his handsomeness, the gangster substitu-tes the face of his good looking pianist.

During the events that follow "Handsome" discovers the faculty of believing that any girl could love him. He also observes the growing attach-ment of the girl for the pianist. It is then that "Handsome" rises to the occasion and does a noble thing.

Mitchell Lewis delineates the gang-ster so realistically that he wins the audience's sympathy. Alice Day is beautifully convincing as the blind girl, and Theodore von Eltz is pleasing as the pianist. Frank Capra directed.

THE CAPITOL

Another thrilling drama of the North is presented patrons of the Capitol Theatre in the "Grip of the North" starring some well-known old favorites in Frances X. Bushman; Neil Hamilton and beautiful June Mar- lowe. It is a tense interesting story of the gold rush days of '98, and of the struggles and hardships experi-enced by the prospectors in their cease-less search for the precious metal.

The second episode of the "Eagle of the Night" Serial is filled with thrills and suspense; and with photo-ton entertainment playing through-out the film programme, this part of the bill is made doubly interesting.

On the stage, Holmes and Graham harmony singing girls, pleased the large audience with their music and songs.

KING LEAVES PALACE FOR BOGNOR

Braun Family Lose Suit For Transfer of Canadian Pacific Shares

MONDAY IS SET FOR SIGNATURE OF PAPAL PACT

Simple Ceremony Will Mark Historic Occasion at Rome

Rome, February 9.—All arrangements have been completed for the signature of the Italo-Vatican treaty of conciliation and concordat at the Lateran Palace Monday morning. The ceremony will be extremely simple and quiet, only Cardinal Gasparri, Premier Mussolini and a few necessary officials being present. Neither the public nor press nor photographers, not even diplomatic corps, are to be admitted.

Despite the fact that everything is tied to the Vatican will be admitted, now ready for signing the treaty, there is a distinct cooling off noticeable in Italian Government circles today. Officially it is confirmed that the stage is all set for the last act of pacification between Church and State, but several dark hints have been thrown out that signature may be postponed, as a few questions still remain to be solved and may possibly not be settled in time.

It is understood that the Government has been somewhat surprised and not a little displeased by the cut and dried down rightness of Cardinal Gasparri's declarations to the diplomatic corps yesterday. The Government apparently was not prepared to have signature of the treaty thrust upon it at a few days' notice, and was somewhat taken aback by the Papal Secretary of State's hurry. It is hoped nevertheless that this new difficulty may be smoothed out before Monday.

K. MUNNINGS IS CONTEST WINNER

Lower School at Collegiate Institute Sponsored Stunt Night

The Lower School at the new Collegiate and Vocational School presented a most clever stunt night in the auditorium last night. As usual, there was a good attendance, and three clever sketches were put on by the lower held in their Club Rooms on Wednesday. The Vocational Department Ford, and how he could build a Ford in two minutes, a comic sketch. It presented an impersonation of Henry gave a costume dance, called "Picking up Sticks", and did it rather cleverly, while the Commercial Department presented a playlet written by themselves.

An added attraction last night was an oratorical contest, which was won by Kenneth Munnings. He was closely followed by Ian Hylop and Miss Helen Findlay took third place. Miss Helen Lynch, Rev. H. Jones and Mr. Norman, of Albert College, acted as judges.

"DADDY LONG LEGS" PROVED TO BE DELIGHTFUL 4-ACT COMEDY

Bridge St. Young People Excell in Amateur Production

That delightful comedy "Daddy Long Legs" received unanimous praise when it was presented last night by the Young People's Association of Bridge Street Church in their Sunday School rooms. The four acts were staged under the capable direction of Miss Young and credit goes to her for the finished style of the performers, Grace Cole, as Judy Abbott, and Leslie Pearson as Jarvis Pendleton were outstanding in their roles. Helen Sulman who was Miss Pritchard of the play is quite at home on the stage, and presented her part with ease.

The story of which Jean Webster is the author deals with history of an orphan in an institution, and the stage play opens on trustees' day. On the stage are Bertha Gilbert, Helen Ackerman, Eleanor Malott, George Ostrom and Anna Gattley as the orphans, and all are busy cleaning in preparation for the visit from the trustees. Edna Moyes is Mrs. Lippett, the harsh matron of the home. Judy Abbott, who is portrayed by Mrs. Cole, is the oldest of the orphans and is given more responsibility. One of the trustees, who is a wealthy bachelor, Jarvis Pendleton of the play, is led into becoming the benefactor of Judy. This was due to the impression made on him by her speech for the rights which orphans had been denied and other children enjoyed. He desires to remain incognito, and this leads to a complication of the plot. Judy is given a college education with all the privileges which money can buy for her and which the other college girls have except family her roommates are Sallie McBride, played by Theo Reid and Julia Ford. In the person of Katharine McPherson, the part of James McBride, brother of Sallie is taken by Karl Sills, who affords the necessary rival in the relationship between Jarvis and Judy. He however finishes satisfactorily as the fiancé of Judy. Judy, unaware of her guardian's real identity, nicknames him "Daddy-Long-Legs". She learns to love him through the medium of Jarvis Pendleton.

The other characters introduced are Mrs. Pendleton, mother of Julia played by George Kennedy, who is a strong exponent of family connections, and is the sister-in-law of Jarvis; Mrs. Semple, acted by Melissa Reid who made a good impression as the former nurse of Jarvis, and the trustees in the opening act which parts were taken by Elmer Dixon and Ralph Elliott. The parts of servants are acted by Allan Sprague, whose brief appearance was for a comic sketch; Helen Ackerman as Currie, and Barbara Holton as Gladiola, with Charles Earle taking the part of Griggs, the secretary.

WIFE OF PLANE DESIGNER DEAD

Mrs. H. G. Fokker, Native of Canada, Leaped 15 Storeys

New York, Feb. 9.—Mrs. Viola Fokker, 35, a native of Canada and wife of Anthony H. G. Fokker, designer and manufacturer of Fokker monoplane, was killed tonight when she jumped from a window of their apartment of the fifteenth floor of No. 285, Riverside Drive, to the sidewalk in 101st street. Her body narrowly missed hitting a passerby.

Mrs. Fokker had been a patient in the Presbyterian hospital, where she was attended for a nervous disorder. She returned home late this afternoon. She suggested to Mr. Fokker that they dine out in the evening and later dress in an evening gown, but changed her mind and decided to stay at home.

Mr. Fokker had a servant prepare sandwiches and coffee. He and Mrs. Fokker dined and then he reclined on a sofa to rest. Her nurse went to an adjoining room. Soon after Mrs. Fokker said she felt ill and requested Mr. Fokker to order the maid to get her a glass of water.

When the maid returned a few minutes later she found the window of the room open and Mrs. Fokker had disappeared. She hurried to the living room to inform Mr. Fokker.

Custodian's Retention of German Investment Is Upheld

BOUGHT IN COLOGNE

Braun Family Loses Suit for Transfer of C.P.R. Shares

Ottawa, February 9.—An important vindication of the policy of the Canadian custodian in retaining German investments in Canadian securities is found in the news received today by the Department of State that the United States District Court in Chicago has given a judgment upholding the retention of the Dominion Government before that court, and against the action of Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, on behalf of the family of the late Jacob Braun, to compel the Canadian Pacific Railway to transfer to the name of that family 470 shares of that railway's stock purchased by Mr. Braun in Cologne, Germany, in 1929. The present market value of this stock and the accrued interest would exceed $200,000. By agreement between the Dominion Government and the railway, the Government defended the action in the Chicago court, through a Chicago attorney, Edwin H. Cassels. In 1923 the Canadian Pacific Railway floated 125,000 shares of its stock in Germany. To enable brokers to deal in these shares, they were made out to bearer, and in that form were placed in the hands of two large German banks. They were dealt in from that time to the outbreak of the war, and were owned, not only by Germans, but also by citizens of many countries of Europe. During the war, the Canadian Government found that there were 140,000 C.P.R. shares in the hands of German nationals, including the 125,000 of the German issue. By an order of Mr. Justice Dugas, of Montreal, these were all vested in the Canadian custodian.

Under the Peace Treaty, Germany obligated herself to hand over every certificate in Germany and issued by a Canadian company. The Germans handed over, though, only 37,000 shares of C.P.R. stock, for which the public debt of Germany was repaid and its ratification many of these securities had been smuggled out of Germany or secreted in Germany by Germans. In 1920 Jacob Braun brought 470 shares of C.P.R. stock in depreciated German currency. On his return to the United States he demanded of the Canadian Pacific Railway that the company transfer these shares to his name, but the Canadian custodian had already notified the C.P.R. not to do so. It was former Senator J. Ham Lewis, who on behalf of the Braun family, instituted the suit recently in Chicago, to make the stock transfer. There is deep satisfaction here over the verdict of the court, which repels the Canadian Pacific Railway, in repelling that action.

It is also regarded as an effective reply to attacks recently made by economists in the United States upon Canadian policy in regard to German property. Their attacks have been in the nature of declaring that American investors should henceforth refuse to invest in Canadian securities, charging that the Canadian Government, in connection with the Braun case, was guilty of an act of confiscation of property to the detriment of those making such attacks were Dr. Edwin M. Borchard, of the Law School of Yale University, and the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Hamilton, Feb. 9.—Marko Torric, 39, Depew street, had a miraculous escape from serious injuries today when his truck was struck on the beach road by a T.H. and B. yard engine and carried a distance of 200 feet.

Torric was lacerated across the forehead and dazed when taken from the wreck by the engine crew. He quickly rallied and this afternoon was able to leave the General Hospital.

The engine was in charge of Conductor G. Andrew, Engineer G. Fitzgerald and Brakeman L. Lammiman, and they declared that the warning bells were sounding. They did not notice the truck until they looked out to see what had been bumped.

Cars were being shunted into the Dominion Foundries yards when the accident happened.

MENTAL HOSPITALS

Serious defects in the method of staffing the mental hospitals in Canada are pointed out in a recent bulletin issued by the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene.

There are 25,000 people in the mental hospitals of Canada, says the bulletin, all of whom require the most careful and intelligent handling. This care is virtually impossible for them to receive under present conditions. The hospital staffs are neither large enough nor competent enough for the work that is required of them.

At the head of each hospital is a qualified superintendent having general control over upwards of a thousand inmates. With a multitude of details to attend to such officials can obviously only study a few patients personally. The assistant physicians are generally younger men with less experience. Each has charge of several hundred patients and can give only a few careful individual attention.

Personal contact with patients must therefore be left to the nurses and male attendants. In ordinary hospitals the nurses are highly trained. Bu in mental hospitals, states the bulletin, the women in charge are "more often than not, largely unendowed to deal adequately with mental patients." With respect to male attendants the situation is worse. "The male attendants" the bulletin adds,
 "receive even less training. Compelled to serve long hours for small pay, they are too often recruited from the ranks of casual labor."

Such a condition hardly becomthinking about. It should be noted, however, that these glaring defects in our mental hospital system are recognized and deplored by those who are devoting their lives to this important and humane work. The difficulty, so far as they are concerned, is a financial one.

The remedy lies with those in charge of the government departments who administer the hospitals. It is their responsibility to make the facts known to the general public and induce it to take a more intelligent interest in the problem of mental disability. The money could be found if the need were widely known.

HELPFUL SERVICE

The department of commerce of the United States made an interesting experiment some years ago. Believing that small manufacturers, whose size did not permit establishment of world-wide organizations, would be benefited by an information bureau, it inaugurated one. This was nothing more or less than a "tipping service," and so successful has its operation been, it is likely to remain a fixture of the machinery of trade.
 It is a clearing house for information valuable to manufacturers and has helped immensely in the development of foreign markets. The big corporations have gone to South America and other parts of the world to push their products with advertising and promotion drives as intensive as they have waged at home but it was recognized that there were thousands of little fellows with products that could be sold in substantial quantities in foreign fields, if given encouragement.
 It is these producers especially who are benefited by the tip system of the department of commerce, which broadcasts weekly a list of the articles in which foreign merchants, agents and consumers are interested. The bureau of foreign and domestic commerce provides the bulletins to any manufacturer who requests them, releasing them simultaneously over the country through its 70 or more district or co-operative offices, so that every one will have an equal chance at the business. It is reported that more than 35,000 such requests have been received from abroad since the service was instituted and Latin-American business men have made extensive use of it. Recently, in one week the bureau listed 30 manufactured articles concerning which it had inquiries from Argentina. It has been in co-operation

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours.
 The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

A Young Appetite Digests Anything

Indigestion is the result of too much acid in the stomach. It sours your food,

COUNTLESS

I gathered my blessings
 To count them one by one,
 I worked from early morning
 Until the setting sun.
 Ah me! I thought, when I commenced,

'Twould be about a score,
 But soon I reached a hundred,
 Then found there were some more.

They seemed to float around me
 Like notes from harp unseen
 And memory laid before me
 A myriad more I ween.

They hung in clustered blossoms
 O'er paths that I had trod,
 They smiled like fairy daisies
 A-peeping from the sod.

In serried ranks parading
 They trooped their colors by,
 In number vast, unending
 Before the watchful eye.

My task, unreckoned still at night,
 Unfinished 'twas at morn
 Maybe I'll still be counting
 When Eternity shall dawn

NORMAL TRADE IN HARDWARE

Better in Sales Volume Than Month
 Year Past

"Hardware and Metal," Toronto, comments on hardware and metal market movements as follows in issue of Feb.
 2nd:—

A normal volume of trade is reported to be passing through hardware wholesale firms at present, and although not very extensive in volume, business in general hardware lines is claimed to be comparatively good for winter months. Sorting orders in winter lines have been slightly heavier in the past week, as the colder weather moved some lines from the retail store.

From the retail standpoint, January has been better in sales volume than January, 1928, in the majority of cases.
 This is explained by dealers as caused by the unseasonal weather which prevailed in December, slowing up the movement of many winter hardware lines in that month, and the consequent heavier buying in such items when cold weather did come in January.

Inventory time is being wound up in many stores, but there are some merchants who are holding their pre-inventory sale, and intend to begin taking stock with the opening of February.

General conditions in the business would appear very favorable for month of January. Employment is still being maintained at a higher level than usual for winter months, and this is creating a wider spread of wage moneys than is usual. Predictions made as to the future of Canada in 1929 all indicate a profound confidence in the trend of events until at least the end of the half year. Thereafter crop conditions will do much to regulate the business transacted through Canada and the industrial development which will take place during the last six months of 1929. Financial authorities reviewing the past year's developments and forecasting ahead for 1929 have all expressed this note of optimism in prevailing conditions. The attainment of employment, development in the construction and building industries, better farm finances, industrial activity, etc., all reflect their influence on the business of the hardware trade, as has been quite apparent in recent years, and dealers are therefore interested in such forecasts.

The outstanding feature in the hardware markets just now is the steadily advancing copper prices on basic merchandise. The price has advanced in New York in recent days and although the feeling is expressed that the limit has been reached for the present, the possibility of higher levels is not forgotten.
 Manufactured products are showing the effect of high basic prices. Advances have been made in valves, brass wood screws, copper tubing, brass fittings, etc., on various markets in Canada and many other lines are firming up. Gasoline has been reduced, making the first change in price since August, 1928. This market is not showing the rapid fluctuations which were experienced a few years ago, but is much more stable.

What Doctors Say About the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARET, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.
 But if you don't KNOW the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice:

The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous condenser mankind has yet found. It stimulates the bowels' muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid as time goes on.
 So the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy Cascaret. Delightful to the taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purges that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from Cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor can tell you about cascara; and any druggist has the candy Cascarets.

CASCARET'S
 They Work While You Sleep!

By any standard you care to set

HERE'S good news for people who are not quite satisfied with the former standard of low-priced cars, for people who want something better. Here is a car that has every right to the title of BIG SIX . . . yet which does not put too much of a strain on the pocket-book.

Judge it any way you like. It's a BIG Six . . . with true big car luxury, performance and dignity.
 It is BIG in its conception of Fisher Body luxury and beauty. Big, roomy interiors, with deep, inviting seats. Massive appearance.
 Lines that reflect the latest vogue.
 Big car refinements.

It is BIG in its standard of performance. A big, new Six-cylinder engine provides a surplus of power and speed for every need, with smoothness and ease as delightful as they are unusual.

It is BIG in its completeness of fine-car features. Big, dirt-and-weather-proof four-wheel brakes of the latest internal-expanding type. Spring covers. Lovejoy Shock Absorbers. Adjustable driver's seat. Full, big-car equipment throughout.

And it is BIGGEST of all in its idea of automobile value. When you see it and ride in it and drive it you'll say "It's the kind of car I've hoped to own some day".
 When you learn its price you'll agree it's a car you can afford to own today.

Come in and see it.

CONDITION IMPROVED

The condition of Fred Ralls, the work man who yesterday slipped from some steel scaffolding and fell forty feet to the ground while engaged in construction work at the gas plant, is reported as improved. Luckily Ralls was not injured seriously, only suffering a severe shaking up. He is attended by Dr. G. S. Cronk.

PICKED UP "HOLLYWOOD"

Mr. E. V. Adams, 31 Everett street, has attained the distinction of "picking up" Hollywood, California on his radio. This morning about 2:30, Mr. Adams was endeavouring to get some distant station when he tuned in Hollywood quite loudly. This is a record for Belleville it is stated.

NO CLUE RECEIVED

No clue has been found to far as to the identity of the man found frozen in the ice in Pleasant Bay last Sunday by Everett Smith, of Concession while out shooting rabbits. The general impression seems to be, however, that the remains are those of one of the crew of the "Sea Hawk" which was found in Pleasant Bay a year ago this month.

LEGION SMOKER

A most successful evening was held by the local Legion post No. 99 in their club rooms last night. There were no outside speakers to address the gathering but a general social evening was enjoyed by all.

GAVE CONCERT.

The young people of Thurston Community Club gave the old people of the House of Refuge a concert last evening, consisting of songs, recitations and mouth organ music, which was much appreciated by all.

DELIGHTFUL SLEIGH DRIVE

Miss Grace Jackson, Sunday School teacher at John Street United Church, was hostess at a sleigh ride party given to her class last night. Following the ride, the class returned to the church where refreshments were served and games were played.

SMALL MARKET

There was a small market this morning, with a slim crowd in attendance. The stalls inside the city hall, however, did a fine business in chickens, eggs and butter. The first named were selling for $1 apiece upwards; eggs were thirty, in a very few cases, thirty-five and thirty-eight cents a dozen and butter was eighty-five and ninety cents for a two pound roll. There was a decided scarcity of apples, as there has been all winter. Vegetables, the few that were displayed, had not changed in price from last Saturday.

KIWANIS BALL

On Monday evening held the local Kiwanis Club will hold its Annual Charity Ball, an event eagerly looked forward to by every dancer in this city and district. Kiwanis by means of its Annual Ball, usually realizes a good sum, which helps towards the carrying out of the Club's Service work in the city, especially in connection with underprivileged children. Kiwanis dances have always been largely attended here, and they have come to be recognized as among the leading events of the winter social season. Some eight hundred invitations have been issued this year and the dance committee anticipates the usual large attendance. Many novelties and specialties are being arranged to make Monday's Charity Ball even better than its predecessors.

GAME STARTS 8:15

There was a rumour current on Front street this afternoon that tonight's Junior O. H. A. game would start at ten o'clock in order to catch the crowd who are employed until this hour. There is absolutely no foundation in the rumour, as the game will be started at sharp eight-fifteen, the usual time. It would be hardly practical to start a game in Ontario at ten o'clock on a Saturday night, as it would probably run into Sunday. This, of course, would be strictly against the law.

SAFE BLOWN OPEN

Brookville, Feb. 9.—A safe in the Canadian National Railways station at Athens was blown open last night and about $200 stolen. The discovery of the theft was made by A. E. Watts, agent, this morning.

How Best to Use

Vicks Vapo Rub

After the Flu

Late Winter Colds are Doubly Dangerous This Year: Don't Let Them Get a Start.

AVOID PNEUMONIA OR A SECOND ATTACK OF FLU

If you catch a fresh cold, don't keep it over. If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade, apply hot wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the children. As it is applied externally, it can be used freely and often, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

THE GOLD RUSH AT MADOC, ONT.

Judge Fraleek Recollects Old Times in Article in Madoc Paper

(By Judge Fraleek.)

Gold sowed the world with every ill. Gold taught the murderous sword to kill.

Twenty gold corrupted human heart, And led to infamy and art. Carr and Johnson never intended to pay Richardson a cent. The thirty day option was only a bind to give these Yankees time to empty the pockets of precious stuff and ship it to the United States. It appears they had come all the way from Boston to fleece the Canadians by a fake oil proposition, and although they failed in this design, they stumbled by accident on success. In this they were assisted by blundering Wisconsiners of Madoc, who looked on with complacency while the mine was being looted and the content of the pocket was shipped away, and only awoke to the reality when too late. It seems that in all times and all ages the world so happens to be plentifully supplied with "I don't Believes" and "It can't be Done." The pork barrels were shipped away and with them disappeared Carr and Johnson.

The thirty day option having expired a Mr. Alfred Anstey, who had lived for some years in South Africa and having some knowledge of gold mines, induced James St. Charles, carriage manufacturer of Belleville, and a Mr. Mitchell, who had opened a hotel in the village and a former resident of Chicago, to join a syndicate, bought out the interests of the Carr and Johnson, capitalist, and President of the First National Bank, to come to Madoc and look over the gold prospect. Mr. Lombard prevailed upon a friend Mr. W. Hardin, to accompany him. Upon looking over the mine and finding it to look promising, bought out the interests of the Carr and Johnson and paid Mr. Richardson $30,000 in cash. Mr. Lombard made an arrangement to work the mine and proposed to send the ore to New York to be treated until such production works should be erected to treat the ore at the mine.

The Belleville people at last began to wake up to the realization that gold did exist in Madoc. Geo. D. Dickson, a Belleville lawyer, was the leading propagandist in the course pursued. First it would bring grist to his mill in the way of lawyer fees and by tying up the mine indefinitely they would compel Lombard and Harding to settle this they would get a large sum.

Geo. D. Dickson examined the option of Carr and Johnson discovered that the old conveyancer at Madoc, who drew up the writings had neglected to make "time the essence of the contract" which gave them the chance of a law-suit.

Now by Bainbridge on Mines and Minerals, the leading work at that time, and various decisions of the courts had laid down as a principal maxim of law, that all contracts for property of a fluctuating value, time is the essence of the contract, whenever expressed in the contract or not. But this did not matter, by putting the mine into law and tying it up indefinitely, they would throw a "money wrench" into Lombard's and Harding's proceedings and compel them to come to time. Accordingly Carr and Johnson were brought back from Boston and were the lions of the town. Writs in chancery were issued and an injunction obtained prohibiting Lombard and Harding from proceeding with the working of the mine.

In the meantime the news of the discovery of gold was scattered far and wide. Belleville was the gate to the gold region and the hotels were crowded with strangers and the country flooded with gold seekers. There being no railroad at that time, travelling needs were supplied by as many as four-horse coaches leaving town morning and afternoon loaded with eager fortune hunters. The newcomers were made up of all kinds and conditions of men. Fifty acres, owned by John Moore, sold like hot cakes. Buildings, hotels on the south was laid out, in building lots along the Hastings Road and were sold like hot cakes. Buildings, hotels and restaurants and boarding houses were up by magic, and by the end of 1867 the place has been named Eldorado and had the appearance of a respectable village.

TEAMS BATTLED TO SCORELESS TIE LAST NIGHT

Point Anne showed little mercy to the Belleville Vulcanizing team in a City League game at the arena last night and the Cement Mixers lost after shot past Donovan and at times he was literally bombarded. Max Matthews and St. Dennis, did the best they could to repulse the Point Anne team's attack but it was to no avail. The second game was a him-dissater and saw the champion Y's Men hook up with the Aleutic squad. At the end of sixty minutes neither team had scored and they decided to call it a day. Wright and Day were probably the best for the Aleutic while Armstrong was going great guns for the Y's Men. Ken Colling handled the first game last night while "Bunny Frechette" was in charge of the scoreless fixture.

First Mortgage 5 1/2% Sinking Fund Twenty-Year Bonds

Dated July 1, 1928 Due July 1, 1948 Principal payable 1 January and 1 July in Canada and United States

PRICE: 99.50 and interest, yielding 5.53%.

The Company operates under a perpetual franchise from the City of Hamilton. The gas supplied is recovered from the coking operations of Hamilton By-Product Gas Works, Limited. Due to the demand during the second quarter of 1928 the industrial load increased nearly 50% over the same period of 1927, taxing the supply to capacity.

Based on the actual earnings for the first nine months of the Company's fiscal year, it is estimated that the earnings available for bond interest and Federal taxes after depreciation (for the current fiscal year ending March 31st, 1929), will amount to nearly three times interest charges.

Just For The Feminine Reader

"CAN SPRING BE FAR BEHIND?"

We have just discovered what is to be new in millinery for Easter, and are reproducing some of the latest ideas on this page. Speaking of Easter has made us definitely make up our minds that we are tired of Winter and feel that we have had enough of the cold weather and snow. The task of dressing warmly with winter coats and hats and gloves—especially gloves—is becoming most tedious. It does seem as though half our time was spent putting on and taking off again gloves. They seem especially tiresome, I suppose, because if it is not a convenient chair, it requires balancing around on one foot and carrying on an uneven struggle every time we leave or enter a house or school room or office. Yes, we will not be sorry to see the last of the snow, and the first of the buds on the trees. We were glad to see the first snow beginning to melt. Or, if it comes—a snow writing in glowing terms of a snowy Christmas—but although we would not trade our Canadian winter for that of any other country, still when thoughts of Easter begin to insinuate themselves, we begin to look a little unwelcome. It isn't pleasant to notice the hours of sunlight beginning to lengthen. A little earlier each morning and a little later each night there is a perceptible lengthening light. Of course, these things have happened for thousands of years but the marvel of the changing seasons is always present. We are afraid we have wandered from our original subject. As we write there is a steady drip, drip of melting snow off the roof, and perhaps it was that or the mention of Easter bonnets which made us recall that "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind?"

THOUGHTS OF EASTER BONNETS

Women are perverse creatures—or perhaps we should say they are artistically appreciative of dramatic contrasts. They love to choose their furs on the first of July under an electric fan, and they adore getting summer things in zero weather.

They take into their heads to do all sorts of queer things.

And these very heads by the way, are the most interesting and significant points of discussion. For where there is a head there's a hat. And wherever there is a woman alive there's a perennial interest in millinery.

She may never expect to set foot in Palm Beach or Saratoga or Pinehurst—but every woman under the sun wants a new Easter bonnet, and wants to know far, far ahead of time what she must buy to be smart. The forecast is already a safe one.

The straw vote is ahead. After a few months of nothing but felt women are likely to choose the light-weight, light color straw for resort wear—ballbuntings, again, panama, bakou with increased importance, and a few of the rough straws—also being sure of favor.

The natural color is flattering and practical and is retained by a smart coterie, but dead white has an exclamatory quality which is being chosen as the straight to the point way to smartness.

White ballbunting, for example, white panama, and white bakou (more rare) are trimmed with black satin bands, bandings and perky bows, as with the classic favorite grosgrain to match the color of a frock of its accessories. Occasionally a bit of silk to match a scarf or frock is draped on the crown.

And speaking of silk, a crepe de chine turban to match a silk dress or the back ground of a print or to strike the color note with a white costume is one of the undisputed marks of chic. It may be jersey to match a sweater, or even velvet but the crepe de chine is the newer and smarter note.

The universal wearability and smartness of the turban, puts no slur on berms. They are as versatile as in size, so long as they do not range too far. Small ones almost invariably grow larger at the sides, often attaining the proportions of the popular medium-brimmed model of last season. They turn up in front, gently and abruptly. They slush downward hastily in almost geometric lines. Sometimes the same brim takes a crease in front and a pair of pleats in the rear. All of these characteristics indicate that the straws this season are soft.

WHAT'S NEW

(From A Woman's Standpoint)

The next ruler of the State of Bhopal after the second Mohammedan state in size in India, will be the daughter of the nabab of Bhopal.

One of the smartest women in Palm Beach is wearing the little checked gingham jacket suit, and that is far this suit is the season's outstanding check success.

Now is the time to make the most of purple, for it is highly fashionable, but it is a color that—as usual—remains rather aloof by reason of the difficulties it presents for many complexities.

A gold medal is awarded annually to "The Mother in Rumania," and competition is open to all women distinguished for charity, patriotism or child welfare work.

Ensembles in which the blouse or dress is in dark color, while the coat is light and lined with the darker fabric, form one of the interesting phases of the spring mode as presented on Fifth Avenue, where the combinations of black and tan and of dark brown and tan are considered exceedingly smart.

The Love Myth

CHAPTER 24

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE QUESTION

When the last guest had left, Lucinda went wearily to her room. She was very tired, and she thanked her stars that the season was finished and she could rest, rest, rest, for three long months. The social games were hard enough for people who had money, but for a girl who had no money and pennies and scrap, it was plain drudgery. But it was her life, and her mother's and she had to live it.

Yet, curiously enough, for all her weariness, once she was tucked in bed, she couldn't get to sleep. Thoughts, bits of conversation, came to mind, again and again.

It occurred to her suddenly that the things that she recalled concerned only Julian Marston and herself. And the incidents were, in themselves, wholly insignificant. Why then did she remember them in every detail? Why did she recall each word that Julian had said to her, every inflection of his voice?

She knew why, though she wouldn't admit it. "Of all the fool things," she told herself disgustedly. "You might at least have picked on somebody who showed a flicker of interest in you!" There was rather ambiguous, but she wouldn't put into definite words, even in her own thoughts, the fact that she was head over heels in love with Julian Marston.

She knew why she remembered those too few and all too brief words with Julian. She was trying to find some hidden significance in them, as lovers have done from time immemorial. Sometimes she thought they meant everything, again she felt that they were casual. Finally she thumped her pillow vigorously and determined to go to sleep. But how thought of Nor-Personality!

When Ziegfeld selects them, you can be sure they have personality. This lovely New York girl, now appearing in "Rio Rita," has talent—and beauty—too—enhanced by wonderful skin and the softest waves of dark brown hair.

"When friends ask me what I do to make my hair so soft and glossy," says Miss Hargrave, "I have to think twice to tell them, because I give so little time to it. The method I use is very popular among New York girls. I just put a little Danderine on my brush each time I use it. I am letting my hair grow, but you'd never know it. Danderine keeps it so soft and easy to arrange and holds it in place so wonderfully. It gives my hair such a silky, soft and lustrous appearance, friends are always commenting on it. There isn't a trace of dandruff left now that I'm using Danderine regularly. And it keeps my hair and scalp so clean and comfortable that I don't shampoo half as often as I used to."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair, brings out its natural color, gives it more lustre than brilliantine. It makes the hair easy to dress, keeps it in place. It usually checks dandruff. It isn't oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. A delicately fragrant necessity for the well-groomed girl!

Norman began to disturb her. Not the Norman who openly adored her but the Norman who was Julian Marston's friend. She was giving him more of her time of late but she would not admit to herself that it was because she wanted to hear him talk about Julian. She learned from Norman the things that she couldn't learn from Julian himself. She came to know, for instance, something of Julian's disillusionment after the war, and the reason for his friend's marriage. He loved Lucinda with a hopeless passion but he also loved his friend. He could so easily have said, "I was unintentionally or by design," "I say, you know of course, that Julian was married last winter?" and he knew that he would see Lucinda's door closed to Julian, thereafter—the door that now was open, whether or not Julian chose to avail himself of his privilege. But it never occurred to Norman to say such a thing. It never occurred to him to be jealous. And yet he was an astute young man, and he saw how things were going. But, he argued, it was not his place to warn them.

Poems Old And New

IF WE COULD ONLY BE!

A POEM FOR PARENTS ONLY

By Lee Shippey

There is a poem I have read, and which is quoted far, advising boys to be the sort their mothers think they are; But I would nobler be than that, and bear fame's oriflame. If I could only be the man my younger thinks I am.

I'd be the bravest man alive, the staunchest ever born. The greatest and most versatile that could the world adorn. And, if I chose, far daughter in strife than any other.

And very near as good and wise and lovable as mother.

Ah, parental! What are precepts all, when little children grow.

To learn we are not quite the sort they thought they used to know!

We could make home a dearer place and life more perfect far.

If we strove more to be the folks our babies think we are.

To Wash Flannels

Never rub soap upon flannels in washing them, except upon badly soiled spots. Have a warm sud in which you have added a little ammonia, rub the flannels between the hands, not upon the board. Dip them up and down in the water until they are clean, squeeze them in the hands and rinse out in water of the same temperature as that in which they were washed. Never rinse in very hot or very cold water. Dry the flannels in the shade, and while still slightly damp iron on the wrong side. Done by this process flannels will not thicken and become yellow. When coloured and white are to be done in the same water wash the coloured flannels last.

JUST IN PASSING

"I cannot tell what you and other men think of this life; but for my single self I had as lief not be as live to be in awe of such a thing as I myself."

Beauty Culture Book 300 Years Old

A "magic" is being much sought after in London. It is owned by a Miss Bond and reveals "Concealed Beauty Secrets" of famous beauties of past ages. Three centuries ago women made their own beauty preparations, which were handed down as a precious legacy from mother to daughter. They were very carefully guarded secrets.

One of the prescriptions in this book is a "pack" of rose leaves, made moist and bound on the face with muslin. It was left on overnight.

Aids to beauty had to be potent in those days, for women did not have the creams, etc., now in use, but they did blacken their eyebrows it seems and paint their faces pink! There was no lipstick.

A tooth could be painlessly extracted by the following method: "Take some of the elder tree or the apples of oak trees and with either of them rub the teeth and gums and it will loosen them, so you may take them out."

The book is said to contain "all the virtues which ought to be in the complete woman."

Do Dogs Dream?

Somebody said in my hearing that dogs do not dream that the noises they make when asleep are canine indigestion, and that very same night I read the following in a Scotch paper on the subject:—"I remember one hot, lazy summer day watching two fox terriers. Neither of them be-

May revel in mud and his dog will not care; Faithful he'll stay for 'the slightest command

And bark with delight at the touch of his hand. Oh, he owns a treasure which nobody steals. Who walks the road with a dog at his heels.

No other can lure him away from his side; He's proof against riches and station and pride; Fine dress does not charm him, and flattery's breath will not harm him, and Is lost on the dog, for he's faithful to death; He sees the great soul which the body conceals— Oh, it's great to be young with a dog at your heels!"

in "When Days are Done."

ABOUT BOOTS

New shoes (or boots) should definitely not be worn for the first time when it is raining or when the streets are wet. New leather, unless it is especially well seasoned, will absorb moisture, which is not exactly the kind of thing to encourage in footwear of any kind.

A boy and his dog make a glorious pair; No better friendship is found anywhere. For they talk and they walk and they run and they play. And they have their deep secrets for many a day; And that boy has a comrade who thinks and who feels. Who walks down the road with a dog at his heels. He may go where he will and his dog will be there.

BEAU NIGHT

(By Barton Rees Pogue.)

Can't you recall, boy in days of yore, At three o'clock or maybe four, Or five of a Sunday afternoon, You'd a little rather, or just as soon Hitch your "rig" to the picket fence. And loaded down with confidence, Enter the house to play your part. In winnin' a lady's guileless heart? With a package of Sen Sen, and cut away clothes.

A big four in hand and striped hose, We've gone to the parlors with faces alight.

For Sunday was Sunday and always beau night.

And the poor old horse would stand and stand.

While you were fiddlin' the lady's hand.

Poor old horse, but wonderful hand! Wonderful! wonderful! wonderful hand!!!

And the dear old fellow would paw the ground.

While you were slippin' your arm around

The back of the sofa, carelessly there.

And tryin' to act like you didn't know where.

In the course of time saucer and cup, That arm of yours would be finishin' up.

Oh, we've been there, and there was not much light.

For Sunday was Sunday and always beau night.

Your horse would whinny—softly cursin' these trips—

But he didn't know you were presin' her life.

And he had no way to even guess That she was saying that wonderful "Yes."

But he surely did know you were tryin' your hand

At stretchin' the night like a rubber band

Into two or three times its normal length.

And wastin' his patience as well as his strength.

Well, those days are gone, and the "rig" that was real

Has long been replaced by the automobile.

These outies now are speedy and light

But Sunday's still Sunday and always beau night.

A BOY AND HIS DOG

A boy and his dog make a glorious pair; No better friendship is found anywhere. For they talk and they walk and they run and they play. And they have their deep secrets for many a day; And that boy has a comrade who thinks and who feels. Who walks down the road with a dog at his heels. He may go where he will and his dog will be there.

SINICAL SADIE SEES

"The modern young woman" can handle anything on four wheels," says Sinical Sadie. Says there's one in this town can take the corners on two!

A speech should be like a woman's dress—long enough to cover the subject, but short enough to be interesting.

Now you tell one President Mac!

Scene takes place in a garden, and a few bees hives in view, and a good many bees present.

Wives: Run, honey, run!

Bea Victim: Darned, don't call me honey! You'll make 'em despatch.

A man mortgaged his home to buy a car. Then he tried to mortgage the car to get money to build a garage.

"How are you going to buy gas?" curiously inquired the man of whom he asked the loan.

"Well, I'll own a house, a car and a garage. I don't think my dealer would be willing to trust me for the gas."

A Bright Idea

I'm just a poor, weak woman! She whimpered with a sniffle; And he, with great acumen, Replied to her: "Oh, piffle!"

If you feel that way why not wed? "In union, there is strength," he said.

The Gaffer Gives Directions

"You were asking the way to the post office, sir? Well, it's this way: Go down this road for a good braale and take the right turn at the dogs leg. About three long puts ahead you book to the left in a rough stretch that might look as if it were out of bounds. Keep straight ahead until you hit the bunker in front of the farm and slice sharply to the left of the school till you reach the top of the hill for a good roll of about a hundred yards to the bottom, where you ford a water hazard. From there the post office is straight ahead just about a full mammoth shot."

Why He Turned Out

"Why do you turn out for every road hog who comes along?" she asked rather crossly. "The right of way is ours, isn't it?"

"Oh, undoubtedly!" her husband replied calmly. "As for turning out, the reason is plainly suggested in the epitaph which appeared in a newspaper recently:

"Here lies the body of William Jay, Who died maintaining his right of way."

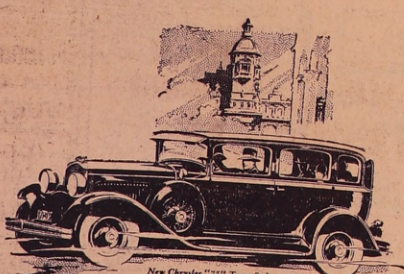

He was right, dead right, as he sped along.

But he's just as dead as if he'd been wrong!"

It has been found, my shoe man tells me that the soles of dry shoes pick up a good deal of grit; this helps to render the soles impervious to wet. More important still to notice is this: never put wet shoes near a fire to dry.

Put trees in them—wooden ones made specially to your last, for preference—and dry them gradually. A good many pairs of shoes are ruined every year from ignorance of this point. Another point is: Don't use too much polish. On the other hand, don't use too little.

RHEUMATIC PAINS DUE TO THIN BLOOD

Relief Come Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for in rubbing something on the swollen, aching joints is a little relief, and all the while the trouble is becoming more firmly rooted. It is now known that rheumatism is rooted in the blood, and that as the blood gets on the blood becomes further thinned and watery. To get rid of rheumatism, therefore, you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood.

There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of this dreaded trouble. One of these, Mrs. W. F. Tait, McKellar, Ont., who says: "I am one of the willing ones to tell you the great benefit I received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After being in bed for seven weeks suffering untold agony with inflammatory rheumatism, relief finally came through the use of this medicine. I could not move in bed only as they lifted me, and I could only sleep when opiates were given me. The medical treatment I was taking seemed of no avail. Then I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and soon I began to get relief. After taking six or eight boxes the rheumatism was banished and I have never felt better in my life. It is several years since this happened and I have had no return of the trouble since. I may add that I recommended the pills to two of my friends who were suffering with rheumatism and the pills were equally effective in both cases."

Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for all aches, rheumatism, neuralgia, indigestion or nervousness. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Where can you find the largest assortment of envelopes and letter paper of every kind and quality at very low prices? It is reported that The James Texts or Ltd. Front St. is the right place—follow the crowd. 15 7 9

RECREATION BOWLING. The Motor League had the alleys in the early part of the evening last night with the Ford Motors and Riggs Garage each taking four points from the Hudson-Essex and City Battery respectively, all the teams rolling fairly good scores. Box the former game, Morton and Bruen were the leading bowlers and for the latter game C. Mott and T. Law led the way.

The Bankers and Sons of Jacob had a merry old battle when the Bankers won the first and second game, but with the Sons of Jacob coming back strong in the first game, Morton winning this game but overcoming the 200 point lead to get an extra pin for the total score. B. Safe and Lang rolling the highest scores for their respective teams.

The Big Four Major League were in action also last night and some snappy bowling was done in the big dome header, and by virtue of the Kiwanis taking three points from the Hardware and the Ponies winning three points from the Kiwanis, it put the Kiwanis and the Ponies a tie for the first place with 7 points each with the first round of the winter schedule played.

In the game between the Kiwanis and the Hardware the Kiwanis won the first point by 49 pins but lost the second by 5 pins, in the final the Hardware were weakened and with the Kiwanis finishing strong they won out handsomely. Domenico's 726 and D. Tobe's 644 were high scores for their teams.

The Knights got off on the right foot by winning the first game by 2 pins but the Ponies improved as the game progressed and won the second by 37 pins and the final game by 86 pins. P. Braun rolling 738 for the highest three string score of the evening and O'Callaghan rolled the best for the

PARK YOUR GUNS BEFORE SCHOOL HOUR

Kansas City Mo.—Every morning before the local high school opens at Elsmore Kan., the boys go to the principal's office and leave their guns. In the evening the guns are returned to their owners.

It would seem a truce had been signed for school hours and that Elsmore is dangerous grounds. But these are country youths who take care of animal traps on the way to and from school. Leaving their guns with the principal is a convenience.

Almost every lad in the school has five or more traps out. With these he is able to earn his spending money. Several of the more experienced boys make as much as $10 to $15 a week selling wild animal skins. They are saving their money for various pet ambitions, one for college, another for an automobile and another for a good dog.

CLASSY JUNIOR GAME AT LOCAL ARENA TONIGHT

Belleville Kids Ready for Invasion by Charlie Allore's Crowd

According to the latest information received, scores of Trenton hockey fans will be on deck for the game to-night at the Belleville arena, when their pets will mix it with Eddie Thomas' laddies. The reserved seat section has been practically disposed of, while standing room will be at a premium and fans are advised to be on hand early. The Trenton team, stung by the defeat here early this week, are hoping to hand the locals a trimming right at home and thus carry a nice lead to Trenton for the return game on Monday night. There is certainly little to choose from between either of the teams and the Club that gets the breaks will win tonight.

In goal Jeffery probably has a shade over Steenburg, although the latter is a classy boater. "Bud" Davis on the defence for the Trents, faster than either Young or Ethier, and can leave both of them behind. Young will make a noble effort to halt the Trenton invasions tonight. In centre ice Henry Canning will be pitted against the speedy Norm Johnston and there is little advantage on either side. Johnston when he is going nicely is a hard man to stop. Johnny Canning is better than either of the visiting wing men, while Bob Scott, when he is in good form, is a whirlwind. Simpson and Day round out a team that will take some beating and don't overlook this junior engagement if you want to see some real fast action.

Manager Charlie Allore is bringing a strong squad down tonight, and many supporters will no doubt be along. Harry Watson, of Olympic fame, will handle the game which will get under way promptly at 8.15.

ther Ralston has the strongest dramatic role of her screen career in Paramount's "The Case of Lena Smith," while Josef von Sternberg directed and which the Belle theatre will feature Monday.

This star, known as "Paramount's gorgeous blonde," is the most elated person in Hollywood for being given the leading role in this tragic romance of a Hungarian peasant girl, and also for the opportunity to work under the direction of Josef von Sternberg, who has produced four consecutive successes for Paramount within the last year and a half.

In the vivid holiday costume of the peasant girl, Esther Ralston has dropped her dancing pumps for red leather boots, her tight-fitting evening gowns for fifteen petticoats, and her diamond necklaces for black and rose head shawls. In the Prater, the Coney Island of Vienna, where she goes for adventure, Miss Ralston wears this interesting costume.

MADOC DEFEAT MAXIMITES 6-3

Teams Played Fast Game in New Arena; Locals Started Badly

Belleville Maximize Battery Hockey team were defeated by the Madoc Trent Valley League team last night in Madoc's new arena by a score of 6-3. It was a fast game, and after the first period the play was even, the Maximites giving the homesters plenty to worry about. The village of Madoc have a new arena of which the citizens may be justly proud. The building cost in the neighborhood of $10,000 and was completed only this week. It is of wood and steel construction with a framework is covered with sheet metal. The management presented a fine sheet of ice for the teams last night although it was inclined to be sticky and puck-carrying was difficult. A fair crowd was on hand despite the fact that it was only an exhibition game and they were not disappointed if they hoped to witness a fast game. The locals, after giving the home team a 3 point lead settled away and played good hockey.

The Madocers have a nice team and although they are not doing too well in the Trent Valley League they have several boys who have the earmarks of becoming good hockeyists. Three of them are graduates of the High School team while the remainder of veterans from other seasons. "Buck" Hulin late of Stirling is guarding the twine while John "Sunfish" Anderson, late of Trenton is playing on the defence. Jimmy Watson, editor of the Madoc Review patrols right wing while Tom Rupert teams up on the defence with Anderson. "Pudge" Moon, another old timer is still going strong while Cavriery and sole of the younger players round out a smart aggregation.

Six weeks ago a start was made on the rink and a squad of men lost no time in erecting. In the meantime the Madoc team played all their games away from home. Dufraneau, little Frenchman from Montreal, played one of his best games for the Belleville team last night. "Al" Wardhaugh also turned in a good game and was going nicely around mid-ice. Bernie Brown scored one goal and was travelling better than at any time this year. McGuire was in his usual good form on the wing while Jack Arnott on the defence made some dangerous thrusts. The only accident occurred in the last period when Hedger was injured when he was thrown on his shoulder. Lorne Cooke, manager of the Maximites referred.

Belleville line-up—Goal, Curry; defence, Arnott, Hedger, Centre, Durand; wings, Wardhaugh and McGuire; subs, Sauve, Doyle and Brown.

SCHOOL TEAMS BATTLE TO TIE IN THE FINALS

King George School team and that of Queen Victoria school met for the first of home and home games last night at Simpson's rink.

Neither team seemed to have much over the other and the ice being heavy with snow made it pretty hard going. Before half of the first period had lapsed Q. V. S. boys had two goals packed away, but before the end of the period K. G. S. had tied the score. K. G. S. then took the lead of 3-2 for the major part of the game, but could not hold it during final minutes of the period.

The game was handled in splendid manner by Mr. Wells, of the Prince of Wales staff and in accordance with O. H. A. rules.

The first two periods were of the real hockey type while the last inclined to savagery and when checked closely by the referee drew boys from some onlookers and members on the ice. Mr. Wells knows the game perhaps better than any one on the ice or anyone looking on, as he had played O. H. A. for several seasons, and after kindly consenting to handle the game and being totally neutral it did not show sportsmanship in the least to be hooded and pursued to Station Street by a mob, hurling threats and large chunks of snow at him. This will kill school hockey in short order. Surely it is the aim of our inter-school games to raise the morale of the boys, not lower it.

In future the school leagues should be conducted in like manner to that used by the K. V. League with rigid rules so that any such rowdism is not this team's discipline during the game and afterwards fill dispersed.

allowed to burst out. Until then the teacher who accompanies each team should be held wholly responsible for this team's discipline during the game and afterwards fill dispersed.

This evening your true friends
Have all gathered here

Now wish you good cheer.

Just both whistle and sing
It will make the clouds vanish
And much brightness bring.

A kind, trusting wife,
And then he will love you
The rest of his life.

ORIGIN OF GYPSY
FROM PERSIAN KING

According to Sir George A. Grierson, master of 179 languages and recent recipient of the Order of Merit from the hands of King George, Europe is indebted to a teetotal king of Persia of A.D. 500 for gypsies. Many hundreds of them are still to be found in Great Britain. They are in the opinion of this authority, descendants of the Doms, lowcaste Indians with a reputation for thieving.

At one time they thrived in Syria, but when it was conquered they moved on to Roumania, where the descendants of the Doms (the gypsies) spread over Europe.

ARENA COMPANY BUYS CITY PROPERTY

Two Members Of Train Crew Killed In Wreck Near Bracebridge

TWO RAILWAYMEN MEET DEATH IN FREIGHT WRECK

Brakeman and Fireman Still Buried Beneath The Debris

35 BELOW ZERO

Trains From North Country Delayed By Bad Spill At Bracebridge

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 20.—Two members of the crew of a Canadian National freight train were killed and another seriously injured when the train was derailed at mid night at Falkenburg, four miles north of here.

The men who lost their lives were Herbert Hurrell, fireman, and Harry Hill, brakeman, both of Allandale. Engineer McInnes lies in Bracebridge Memorial Hospital with serious injuries, including broken legs. It is reported that the bodies of the fireman and brakeman are still under the wreckage.

The rescue work is seriously hampered by the fact that the temperature is 35 below zero.

The cause of the derailment is not yet known, but is presumed to have been the severe weather.

Traffic interruptions due to the wreck delayed the express from North Bay which should have arrived in Toronto at seven o'clock this morning and it has not yet reached Allandale. A local was made up from Barrie and passengers from there and intermediate points arrived in Toronto at noon today.

LEADERS CLASH ON PEACE PACT

Bennett Says Treaties Alone Will Not End Wars

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—There is no royal road to peace, but there are many paths which lead in that direction, and the Briand-Kellogg pact is one of these paths.

In this sentence Premier Mackenzie King defined, for the benefit of the house of commons to-day, the treaty for the renunciation of war signed at Paris last summer. On that occasion the prime minister affixed his signature to the treaty as Canada's representative. To-day he moved that the house of commons register its approval of the treaty.

The senate of Canada has already ratified the pact. After a discussion which occupied a large part of the afternoon and evening, adjournment of the senate was moved by C. H. Cahan, Conservative member for St. Lawrence-St. George.

Mr. King sketched briefly the history of the treaty, which he said, has now been accepted by 63 nations. Its fundamental origin was "to be found in a feeling of revolt against war on the part of all nations which have had to do with war in the recent past."

The treaty did not pretend to establish machinery for the prevention of war, but it called forth from the nations of the world a solemn renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy.

CITY DISPOSES OF MARKET AREA TO ARENA COMPANY

Council Split On Question Of Selling Greatrix Property

SALE PRICE $6,000

New Artificial Ice Arena Will Face Market Square

Belleville's new artificial ice arena will be erected on the site occupied by the city weigh scales, the Canadian warehouse, and the Greatrix property.

At last night's meeting of the City Council, which was featured by some sharp discussion, the City Fathers passed a recommendation to sell the area to the Belleville Arena Company, for the sum of $6,000 cash.

The following recommendation, which was introduced by Alderman Walter Patterson, was passed by a vote of 7-5.

"That the City Council accept the proposition of the Belleville Arena Company, the Company to pay the city $6,000 in cash for the property required known as the Greatrix property, and the Pinnacle street property, City to reserve the right to use that portion of land approximately forty feet by two hundred and fifty feet between the building and the Pinnacle street line, the City to take care of the moving of the weigh scales building, the Arena Company to take care of all local improvements."

The following were in favor of the recommendation: Ald. Patterson, Tice, Hyde, Hill, Wessman, Walker, Wotten and Mayor Greenleaf. The following voted against it: Ald. Woodley, French, Kinneer, Rollins and Reid.

It was explained that none of the members were opposed to the building of a rink, but some of them were not in favor of disposing of the Greatrix property which had been originally acquired for the extension of the market.

Those voting against the recommendation, submitted an amendment as follows:

"That a donation of $5,000 be given the Belleville Arena Company for the purchase of property for rink purposes. That a recommendation of fixed assessment at $10,000 made to succeeding Councils."

The vote taken on the amendment resulted the same as for the original recommendation.

Presented Petition

Messrs. Sandford R. Burrows and Chas. Dolan, Directors of the Belleville Arena Company, addressed the Council in their open session as well as in committee.

Mr. Hume is trying to do something for Belleville, said Mr. Burrows, "and he expects the City to do for some co-operation." The speaker said he had taken a petition out among the chief tax payers on Front and Bridge Streets to get their opinion on the matter of building the arena on the civic property.

"We were refused but twice and the majority of men appeared to be in favor of the city disposing of the property. Judging from the replies I would assume that if the question was submitted to the people, it would receive their sanction."

GOVT. CAUTIONS MEXICAN PRESS

Newspapers Publish Stories Which Raise Criticism

Mexico City, Feb. 20.—President Emilio Portes Gil, through the acting secretary of the interior, warned the Mexican press today that it had overstepped the bounds of government's tolerance. A further offense it was said, would be severely punished.

A specific act held against three leading newspapers was the publication yesterday morning of a statement of Bishop Miguel De La Mora of San Luis Potosi, in which the bishop denied that the Catholic clergy had anything to do with the subversive movements in Jarisco, or with such acts of violence as bombing the presidential train on February 10.

RAISE PENALTY FOR INFRACOCTIONS OF LIQUOR LAWS

Violators Must Pay $10,000 Or Spend 5 Years In Prison

Washington, Feb. 20.—The senate, after an avalanche of oratory, passed the Jones (R. Wash.) bill late yesterday afternoon by a vote of 63 to 18. The anti-saloon league expects to railroad it through the house without trouble. Under it the maximum penalties for dry law offenders are raised to $10,000 fine and five years in jail.

"My life as a senator is about to expire," said Bruce of Maryland, uncompromising foe of Volstead, just as the vote opened. "I wish with my dying breath to pronounce a curse upon this bill. It is but another step in the march toward tyranny. It violates every principle of criminal jurisprudence. It is a most illogical, tyrannical and monstrous bill."

But the ultra-dry Jones had the votes and the whip hand had been cracked. The bill allows judges to impose the five-year term and $10,000 fine upon even a casual offender who sells a glass of beer to a neighbor though Jones insisted that the aim was to reach the big bootlegger and the serious offender, the bill actually makes no distinction.

PANIC FOLLOWS SUBWAY BLAZE

Fifteen Still In Hospitals None Were Seriously Injured

New York, N.Y., Feb. 20.—Fifteen persons were still in hospitals today recovering from smoke and gas inhalation, bruises, contusions and other injuries received when they were trapped with hundreds of others in a seven-car Jersey bound local train in the Hudson tube last night. None are in serious condition it was said, and all are expected to live.

New York, N.Y., Feb. 20.—Fifty persons were injured, four men and two women seriously, and 200 passengers were affected by smoke and fumes last night, when fire broke out in the first car of a New Jersey-bound seven-car Hudson tube train, 1,000 feet west of the Christopher street station, in Manhattan.

The injured included Alfred Leichtenburg, 32, a security salesman of 114 Lincoln Street, Passaic, N.Y. He was taken to Bellevue hospital, where his condition was described as critical from inhalation of smoke and fumes.

Alfred Rudolph, 36, of 33 Van Cleave street, Clifton, N.Y., also in Bellevue hospital, suffering from smoke inhalation. Condition not serious.

Panic-stricken passengers trampled one another in attempting to get off the stalled and smoke-filled train. Most of them reached the Christopher street station through another train, that was joined to the rear of the stalled train.

FLOODED AREAS SUFFERING FROM THE BITTER COLD

Inundated Sections Of Central Europe Hit Hard By Frost

SOLDIERS ASSIST Crimean Peninsula Is Cut Off From The Outside World

London, Feb. 20.—A renewal of the bitter cold in Central Europe, today postponed thaws which were rapidly developing most dangerous flood situations. The Danube and its tributaries were over their banks and had caused widespread damage. The rivers in Greece were at the flood stage and many villages were isolated.

Meanwhile the new cold wave was sweeping Macedonia and the flood cutters were hard put for shelter from the continuing heavy snowfalls. Aeroplanes were in use to take food to the outlying districts where Turkish and Greek soldiers were co-operating to relieve the situation. Slight rises in temperatures in some parts of Europe were accompanied by heavy snowfalls, and in the northern areas, particularly the Baltic Region. The ice jams were worse than ever.

England's thaw was cut short with the rising easterly wind and renewal of the frost. The cold, however, was less intense than last week.

A rare phenomenon of the ice was seen in the neighborhood of Siwa oasis in Egypt, where the rain froze on the ground as it fell.

The Crimean Peninsula lay under fifteen feet of snow with all railroad service and communication disrupted.

RENEW INTEREST IN RAIL STOCKS

Call Money Drops To Six Per Cent On Wall Street

New York, Feb. 20.—A revival of activity and strength in the railroad share, based on the filing of the new merger plans by the Baltimore and Ohio and Van Sweringen systems and the increase in freight car loadings featured the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market.

Call money renewed at six half percent and dropped to six and stiffening in rates is looked for in banking circles tomorrow. Time money and commercial paper rates continued firm.

Texas and Pacific and Western Pacific common and preferred, each of which advanced about three half points, led the rally in the railroad group. Alchison, New York Central, Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley, Chicago Great Western, preferred, Missouri Kansas, Texas and Pittsburg and West Virginia all sold two to three points higher.

Concurrent strength of Packard motors, which ran up nearly eight points to 137 1/2 and Nash, which climbed more than three points, revived reports of merger of these two companies.

Wright Aero was again the leader of the high priced specialties scoring thirteen points, Abraham and Straus and International Silver each climbed 11 points and Internat. Paper, Chicago Great Western, preferred, Missouri Kansas, American and Foreign Power, Case Threshing, Commercial Solvents and Western Union sold five to ten points higher.

TRADE WITH NEWFOUND- LAND

Possibility of closer relations in trade and otherwise with Newfoundland are apparently to be realized from the reports that describe the negotiations that have been carried on by Premier King and Sir Richard Squires. Nothing very important is mentioned, but better mail facilities, parcel post and freight transportation, and trade arrangements that it is stated will require a revision of the Newfoundland tariff, cannot be put into force without promoting a still higher degree of intimacy and good feeling between the two countries. Newfoundland brings the considerable amount of $12,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, but in return we purchase less than half a million dollars worth from Newfoundland. Sir Richard Squires is anxious to preserve the Canadian trade and to increase it, but he naturally remarks that if we do not want it, there are other countries that would be glad of the business. There is a hint in what has been said by Sir Richard of an entirely new conception of the relations of the two countries, and this is perhaps the most satisfactory aspect of the situation. There has been an embarrassing lack of cordiality on the part of both governments, and were this dissipated and a new sentiment created there is no reason why relations between the business men of both countries should not contribute to a better understanding politically and socially. There is nothing that the United States can offer our island neighbor which we cannot equally well present from our own stocks and stores. The Newfoundlanders have shown themselves to be proud and sensitive and we must show them consideration if we desire to cultivate their friendship and find advantage in expanding trade relations. Premier King has apparently found the way to conciliate the Newfoundland government and that is so much done in negotiations which hitherto have not proven very fruitful.

EARTH AND MARS

A few weeks Mars was at its nearest distance from the earth, and efforts were made to communicate with the inhabitants, if there are any. One man, over whom a good deal of fun was made, tried to send radio messages, but got no answers, though he professes to have himself received several messages from a certain Martian lady. The planet was not very close—a matter of some fifty-four million miles way at its nearest approach to the earth; but the scientists were busy at work spying out, through their powerful telescopes, whatever there was to be seen. The Dominion observatory, among others, trained its telescope on Mars and made careful observations. The result has now been summarized in a government publication, and the report makes very interesting reading. No attempt is made to determine the question as to whether or not there is life resembling that of human beings on the planet, but it is stated that conditions there are such as to support such life, so that it is not impossible that it exists in some form or other. Next to the existence or non-existence of intelligent beings on Mars, is the discussion about the famous "canals." As to these it is stated that "some observers even experienced ones, are unable to see them at all," but there is no doubt of the building until its navy can see to their reality, because they have been described as the world's greatest.

been photographed. They are, however, believed to be not canals at all, but a network of vegetation. It is explained that the use of the word "canal" is due to a misinterpretation from the Italian. Besides these so-called "canals" there are large patches of what is thought to be desert land, "whose reddish yellow color gives Mars its characteristically ruddy hue." There are seasons on Mars—a spring time, when fresh green color prevails, and autumn and winter, with a "brownish chocolate" color. White caps of snow and ice surround the poles; the general temperature of Mars is thought to be comparable with that of the earth though perhaps a little colder.

This is about all the astronomers can tell us, and though it is most interesting, it does not amount to very much, after all. But this is a comparatively new planet, and it is this all we can find out about it, what possibility is there of probing into the secret of the infinitely remote stars? All that can be done at present is to form some idea of their approximate distance and size. Of course, there is no setting a limit to the advance of science, but it is not at all probable that we on the earth will ever know very much about this infinite miracle of a universe in which we live. Hundreds of years are required for the light of some stars to reach our eyes, though light travels at the rate of about 186,000 miles a second. One thing the astronomers have succeeded in doing is to impress us all with the absolute insignificance of man and even of the little world which he inhabits. It is good to think on these things; it is a sure for conceit and an antidote to pettiness. One develops a feeling—almost of contempt for mundane trivialities, when contemplating the immensities by which we are surrounded. It is said that some astronomers, studying the heavens night after night, develop a mentality which makes them indifferent even to the thought of death. Whether that is so or not, it would do none of us any harm to lift our minds from the earth now and again and think about this infinitely larger universe of which we are, in a most mysterious way, an infinitesimal part.

NO NAVAL RACE FOR BRITAIN

Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador at Washington, recently announced that Great Britain would initiate efforts to bring about further limitations of naval armaments among the principal naval powers of the world. Britain has already delivered an answer to the United States naval program which is characteristic of the attitude taken by her since close of the war. On the very day when the United States government body was accepting a plan for the building of 15 new cruisers as part of its big navy program, it was announced in Parliament that the British program already below what has been planned for two years previous, was to be curtailed further. The estimates had called for construction of three cruisers as compared to fifteen by the United States, but only one of these is to be built.

These things should be an effect, answer to those in the United States who are fearful that Britain will engage in a naval building war with their country. As The Sentinel-Review has pointed out on previous occasions, this attitude of mind fails to take into account the main characteristic of the British people of today. No matter what may have been the hopes and aspirations of great Imperialists in the past, there is today in Britain no thought of other conquests. Rather is there an overwhelming desire for world peace and for relief from the tremendous burdens entailed in maintenance of a huge naval force.

Britain, at least, is sincere in her desire to limit naval armaments to the minimum required for elementary measures of safety for her far-flung dominions, and is practicing that kind of limitation. The United States, on the other hand, evidently feels that Britain is still a little ahead, and cannot resist the temptation to build until its navy can see to their reality, because they have been described as the world's greatest.

HOPES TO BEAUTIFY GROUNDS OF SCHOOLS

London, Ont. (By Canadian Press)
— Beautification of school grounds is one of the plans Mrs. J. I. A.
Hunt, chairman of the Board of education, hopes to launch this year after the building programme is settled. I have several improvements which I want to inaugurate in the London School system. She felt all schools, and particularly those on provincial highways should be made as attractive as possible in appearance. She referred to the Normal School with its spacious lawns, small firs and flower gardens as an example of what she wished to see within one year, but I would like to have a start made this spring. For instance, there is a great scope out at the Sir Adam Beck Collegiate for a landscape gardener so that tourists leaving the city would have a lasting impression of beauty," she said.

What her other schemes are the chairman did not divulge, but she said that she has several matters to place before the Board when the building problem is finally solved.

REGINA TO HOLD FOLK FESTIVAL

C. P. R. Will Stage Similar Event to that Held in Winnipeg

Montreal.—Another step in the establishing of folk song, dance and handicraft festivals in the attitude life of the Prairies has been taken with the announcement by J. M.
Gibson, general publicity agent, Canadian Pacific Railway, from his office here today that a festival along the lines of the one that had so great a success at Winnipeg last year, will be given by Regina, March 29 to 31 next. Eighteen racial groups will be represented, including the four that make up the British Isles, while from Old Canada there will be a French-Canadian section, and the Department of Indian Affairs is arranging an exhibit of the handicrafts of the Indians from the Prairies.

In addition to English, Irish, Welsh and Scotch, French-Canadian and Indians, there will be new Canadians from Hungary, Czechoslovakia,
the Ukraine, Serbia, Roumania, Sweden, Iceland, Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland and Germany. A series of brilliantly colored national costumes will present an unforgettable picture; folk dances from nearly a score of different cultures will form a whole of "dancing, yet studied movement, and music, both of such a standard will be of such a standard as to set a high mark for future festivals.

The great West-Canadian folk song, folk dance and handicraft festival to be held at Regina will be under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the musical features have been organized in co-operation with the Conservatory of Music of Regina College. It has the support of the Government of Saskatchewan, whose Premier, Hon. J.
G. Gardiner, suggested that this year it be held in Regina. In this connection, W. M. Graham, Indian Commissioner, Department of Indian Affairs, Saskatchewan, is arranging to have provided an Indian section, where women's work, demonstrating native industry, will be left for the festival from the Saskatchewan Government collection. Further, the Canadian Handicrafts Guild, through its Regina committee, is arranging a general exhibition of handicraft work collected from all over Canada, but emphasizing the handicrafts of the people of the West.

Special guest artists from the east of Canada will include Poul Bai, Danish baritone, whose rendering of Viking songs at the recent Vancouver Sea Festival will be remembered, and Charles Marchand, French-Canadian folk singer and leader of the Bytown Troubadours, an aggregation known all over Canada and the United States. The Regina College of Music will give English folk dancing, while Miss Jean Gould of Regina, and her pupils will present the Scotch and Welsh varieties. Irish dances will be given by two Irish champions. In this way the British Isles will be covered. The Serbian national dance, the "Kola" will be performed by twenty new Canadians of Regina and a German mixed choir will sing under the leadership of J.
W. Hermann, also of Regina. Men and women representatives of the other racial groups will give national folk dances and will show handicraft work either in the finished state or in process of being made.

Concerts in connection with the festival will be given at the Hotel Saskatchewan and in the Drake Music Hall of the Regina College.

LADY ASTOR HELPS RELIEVE MONOTONY

London, Eng. (By Canadian Press).
—Among the diversions which relieve members of the House of Commons from the effects of a strenuous session the dress of the women members occupies a prominent place.
Lady Astor who usually appears dressed in sombre black or in black and white recently startled the house by appearing in a bright red dress and red hat.

She was greeted with such a roar of merry laughter that her cheeks became as red as her dress. One member shouted "Another recruit for the Reds."
Until Lady Astor's adoption of red Miss Ellen Wilkinson provided the brightest dash of colour in the House. She often wore a dress of vivid green which combined with her red hair made her a conspicuous figure.

THE BULLETIN BOARD

Mainly About People You Know

CARICATURE WELL DONE

The whip of the conservative party in the Ontario Legislature "Bully" Ireland, of Trenton, was caricatured by the genial pen of G. Saponikoff, Toronto Daily Star, and his picture appeared on the front page of the Toronto Daily Star last night. The caricature is particularly well done and brings out the inherent good humour of the man, while that quizzical look so often seen on "Bully's" face is revealed.

SIXTEEN BELOW

Spring appeared far, far away last night and today, Belleville suffered the return of a cold snap, and a really cold snap at that. The mercury dropped right down to sixteen degrees below zero and the warmest point that could be reached was ten degrees above zero. The mercury dropped rapidly last night, as at noon yesterday it was sixteen degrees above zero.

STUCK BY PUCK

Mr. F. Bush, well-known in this city, had the misfortune to have his face badly lashed last night while playing hockey. A puck struck him on the side of the face, inflicting a nasty wound. He was able to report to work this morning.

PLAYED ANOTHER TIE

Albert College and the High School battled out a thirty minute overtime game last night to 0-0 tie. The game was the replay of a match on Monday, when the two teams tied 2-2. A third game will be played tomorrow afternoon. If the High School win, they will tie the league up and have to play yet another game.

ORATORICAL CONTEST

An oratorical contest will be staged by the senior school of the Collegiate on Friday night of this week in the Collegiate auditorium. Besides this, there will be presented a one-act play by one of the classes.

ALERT CLASS MET

The Alert, Bible Class of Holloway Street Church met at the parsonage, 44 Hillside Street, last evening with a good attendance. It was decided to hold a St. Patrick's concert on Friday, March 19. A social hour was spent and refreshments were served. A heavy vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Wright for her hospitality.

WEST HAS A NEW SYMPHONY BAND

Winnipeg Man. Feb. (By C. P.)—The third prairie symphony orchestra got under way this month when the newly formed Calgary orchestra under the direction of Gregori Garbovitsky, presented its first program in that city. Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony, perhaps the best known in all the range of major program music, was presented with great success remarks the Manitoba Free Press.

Calgary, Edmonton and Regina all now have symphony orchestras, the Edmonton body having been in existence for a good many years. Calgary had a well-trained and balanced orchestra before the war, but it was disbanded at that time and not reformed until a few weeks ago. Its revival is one token of the West's recovery from the abnormal conditions of the war and reconstruction period.

Such orchestras are expensive luxuries to form and keep up, though no one will deny that they are well worth while. The Free Press comments that it is a matter of deep regret to Winnipeg music lovers that the orchestra, which performed so well a few seasons ago under the baton of Hugh Ross, has been allowed to slip into limbo.

Wayne Casement, of Gary, Ill., 19 year old leader of gang of bandits, was sentenced to 21 years in penitentiary.

other property on which an option was secured was quoted at a high figure. "We want to do something for the younger element, to give them some form of amusement and Mr. Sims has certainly been commended for his act."

"The stockholders don't expect to get one cent of dividends," he said, "and the Directors feel that the City Council should assist us."

Willing to Make Grant
Ald. W. A. Woodley, in explaining the question to the ratepayers who were present to the Council chamber stated that the increased assessment this year would be $170,000, this would make $3,689 more available this year than last. The assessed value on the east Pinnacle street property on which an option was taken by the Company is $7,000. The City Corporation want a fixed assessment of $10,000. We might make a donation of $5,000 to the rink and retain the present rate of 45-6-10 mills. "I secured this information for the taxpayers in order that they may understand the proposition thoroughly."

It was rumored this morning that an injunction will be served against the building of the arena on the city property, by a group of local ratepayers. The plans will be drawn up immediately and work on the new rink will start shortly. It is planned to have the arena facing east, on the market square and will run southerly to the Dan Boyd property. The following petition was presented to the Council:

We, the undersigned, knowing that a good covered rink is necessary for the advancement of Belleville, and for the general amusement of all, would like to see the City do its share towards the erection of same by donating the property known as the Greathart property, to the rink as the city's share in promoting same. TRUE PICTURE OF NEWSPAPER LIFE

Escape Of Convicted Slayer Of Interest To Theatre Patrons

Prominently displayed on the front page of newspapers on the North American continent last night was a news item to the effect that five prisoners had saved their way out of prison in Columbus, Ohio. They were incarcerated in the Ohio penitentiary. One of these convicts was Pat McDermott, the gangster who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Don Mellett, courageous Canton, Ohio, newspaper owner and editor who was warring against the underworld of Canton and the western states.

This is of peculiar interest at the present time, for the picture being shown at the theatre at present, "The Freedom of the Press" is based on the Canton murder, taking as its plot the killing of John Ballard, played by Henry B. Walthall, owner of the "Free Press" in an American city.

The staff of the Intelligencer were guests of the Belle theatre last night, and the film is undoubtedly a true picture of newspaper life.

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 20.—Three of the convicts who saved their way to freedom through the bars of Ohio State Penitentiary yesterday were captured and returned to solitary confinement early today, less than twenty-four hours after their escape. They were Pat McDermott, Canton slayer; Mike Jacko, Cleveland murderer and Joe Rosso, Cleveland robber.

Long rifles and tomahawks. A story of the early West. The romance of a romantic figure among the pioneers. A picture of love in the frontier saloons and the plumed tepees of the Indians. A chapter from the life of Kit Carson, the Indian, the Indian of a thousand tales, the idol of a million souls. Forayed by a dauntless champion of the West as it was, Fred Thompson.

BELLE THEATRE

All comedy arises from incongruity and the greater the contrast between the incongruous objects or persons the greater is the humor.

This is the theory of Edward Sutherland, the young motion picture director or best known for his hilarious comedies with Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, including "Behind the Front" and "We're in the Navy Now."

Sutherland directed Belle Daniels in her newest Paramount comedy, "What a Night!" and this picture will be shown at the Belle Theatre for three days, starting tomorrow.

"What a Night!" is about a fight between a newspaper editor and a crooked politician. In the Suburban explained, "and into this situation of pure melodrama we injected a girl who is completely incongruous."

"We played the melodramatic story 'straight', or in other words, seriously. We started our story in just the same way that any newspaper or underworld melodrama would be started."

"Then, we introduced Miss Daniels. Belle is a beautiful child, but dumb; willing but awkward; eager but not too bright. Before long the busy city room of the newspaper is frantic in trying to escape the office pest. In this serious, hard-working, hecticly energetic environment, the slow-thinking girl is certainly incongruous. Her mistakes and her very appearance in this background are funny. The entire picture is played in the same way."

THE JOYS OF DISHWASHING

There really are a goodly number of women who find dishwashing a pleasure. Mostly, it's true, because they find pleasure in making dirty things clean and sparkling, writes Hannah Wing.

Here is the formula of those of us who look on the brighter side of dishwashing.

Clean as you cook, or wash as you go. Step by step in preparing the meal, wash the dishes that are being used. Leave the kitchen clean and tidy when you go to the meal. It will make a big difference in your state of mind when you come out to wash the dishes.

Don't fill the sink with pots and pans. Leave these last ones soaking in the range. Then the sink will be nice and empty when you begin.

Get a large tray if you haven't a service wagon and clear the table with one trip to the dining-room.

And do by yourself one of those broad, rubber plate scrapers. Scape every dish off with this and stack the dishes in an orderly array, which means in the order of washing or stacking in the dishwasher. The job's half done then. Right here a good word should be said for the new garbage can, those in which the cover lifts with a foot pedal; in some the container comes up even higher so there's no stooping and you can use both hands. We use paper bags in ours, and there's no messy garbage can. The little under the sink strainer can be handiest for plate scraping.

Use plenty of soap if you wash by hand and a little water softener if the water is very hard. If you use a dishwasher, reverse the process and use a little soap and plenty of water softener, adding one teaspoonful of soap flakes and the water softener first. We use three to four table-spoonfuls of water softener. In the machine you need a fine suds that will spray easily. Many manufacturers have a dishwashing powder for this very reason.

Nothing makes dishwashing so pleasant as a good suds, so the thing to do is to keep a good suds until the dishes are done. If you wash by hand, change the water and start fresh when it gets to the point where the suds go down at least add more soap. Never let it get greasy!

A dish mop also saves the hands, and a metal sponge ball is a fine thing for the obstinate things that stick. Both must be kept clean, washed, shaken and dried.

Nothing is as important as the tightness of the dishwasher, but next to that is quick disposal of the business of drying. And the first step is to get a good drainer—there are many to choose from in different sizes and shapes to fit almost any space. You may rinse by plunging the dishes into hot water and then draining, or by spraying with very hot water, or pouring hot water over them or draining direct from the hot suds.

MENTAL PROCESSES OF MEN AND WOMEN

Women are more interested in persons and men are more interested in material things—houses, money, in the bank, better and bigger job, investments, golf clubs. This according to Dr. F. A. Moses, professor of psychology at George Washington University, who has just completed a series of psychological tests on men and women aimed to point out various sex differences.

He discovers that women are mentally a bit more developed than men, that women excel in matters of social tact and in accuracy of observation of human behavior.

Men, on the other hand, have a greater variety of interests, women specializing on the personal; men, on the impersonal and material.

He points out that women commit suicide mainly for love, and men over business matters.

No one whether he knows anything about psychology or not, can argue with these findings, if he has observed men and women at all. This fact of woman's interest in the world of personal human emotions, and man's in the material and impersonal, makes one wonder that there isn't more human misery than there is from very sex misunderstanding.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

To prevent dates from sticking to the fingers when they are being sliced or cut into bits, butter the fingers occasionally.

Red ants may be exterminated by washing every crevice of the room and cupboards with a strong solution of alum water. It will not injure the polish of the woodwork.

To remove black specks from silver-ware a paste made of whitening (free from grit) and olive oil; lightly polish with old silk cloth. If specks are obstinate smear them with a paste, and leave it on for some time.

If you make crullers or doughnuts, and like to have them sugared, try the trick of putting some powdered sugar into a perfectly clean paper bag, and then putting in one cruller after another and shaking it about to make it evenly covered with sugar.

WHAT'S NEW (From A Woman's Standpoint)

Skirt fullness achieved by flared tiers and pleated effects are stressed in evening frocks at Palm Beach.

There are two favorite trends ensembles for spring: The coat and skirt of tweed, with a blouse of light jersey or silk usually in contrasting color, and the ensemble, which was a sheer tweed frock with a matching coat—of the two the latter being more fashionable.

Jewels used to give color touches to the frocks are stressed in recent cables from Paris announcing the recent openings and luxuriously matched for the same color detail on the frock. Red is particularly mentioned from the light coral tones to rich lipstick hues.

A New York editor remarks: "In a family may be defined as a group of persons living together who individually, collectively, continuously and catastrophically get on another's nerves, but who cannot afford to live apart."

Barbara Cortland, the London novelist, has a house in which jade green prevails; for there are jade green panels in the drawing room, the bedroom has a ceiling of the same color, while beneath it stands a four-poster Renaissance bed of flaming gold and an orange bath-room is an unusual feature of the house.

Paris sees wood jewelry as an important, newcomer. It is understood that a famous milliner is going to use wood motifs as hat ornaments, while necklaces and bracelets of wood are said to be in preparation.

Despite news that locks will not be short, smart New York is continuing to have their clipped, and the young Frenchman who cuts Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt's hair says that after all, long or short, fashion does not enter into the matter; it is a question of individuality and Mrs. Van derbilt's new hair is parted on the left side, waved a bit over each ear and cut to taper to a point at the nape of the neck, while a swirl completes the effect.

The Love Myth By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 12 THREE WOMEN

Betty bought her fur coat in the fall. She did more than that. She took over Gertrude's furnished apartment. Long, she'd got herself a contract for a song and dance number at the Polly, a flourishing night club.

Gertrude's show was on the road, and Gertrude's husband was hanging around the booking agencies, when he was not hanging around pool rooms. He and Betty had split up when the road-house season ended. It wasn't Betty's fault, but the fault of the diamond-studded gentleman who'd been out scouting for talent for his cabaret.

He'd said, when he called her over to his table, after her act:

"You're all right, but the other half of your show is a wet smack. Tie a can to him and team up with me and I'll put you right."

He named the figure. "Is it a go?"

She nodded.

"How about the flat tire?" He jerked his head in the direction of Joe. "Husband, or boy friend?"

"Neither.... But it wouldn't make any difference, anyway."

"Atta girl, That's the way to take 'em!" He reached out to pat her hand.

"When do I start work?" she demanded sharply, putting her hands beyond his reach so unostentatiously that it looked like a natural gesture.

He told her. "I'll be there with bells on!" She rose and sauntered over to Joe.

"I'm quitting. See you again some time."

She left him gaping. Gratitude? Betty didn't know the meaning of the word. Gertrude, when she heard about it, was rather sharp, but Betty only shrugged.

"I'm sick of being grateful. I had to be so grateful to Julian that I began to feel like a yellow cur that somebody'd given a bone. I may let your Joe down, but he'll borrow money from me just the same."

There was no denying this statement, so Gertrude departed for the road and left half a pound of sugar and a dry loaf of bread behind in her larder, just to show that there were no hard feelings.

Betty's act went over well, and she took to night life like a duck to water. It was paradise to her, after her quiet winter of domesticity. She loved the lights and the dazzling jazz and the smoke and perfume-laden air and the fumes of bad liquor and the alcoholic applause that greeted her songs and dances. She didn't mind staying up until five in the morning. It was pleasant to be out of bed at seven-thirty and burning some toast and boiling some coffee for a festive and I'm polite solely because I'm a gentleman-type of husband.

In the afternoons she shopped. With her increased salary, it didn't have to be the window-shopping any more. She dropped in for tea at places where the profession gathered and bathed her soul in gossip. She dined in her apartment on delicious food, that she might have more to put on her back. There was always time to take in a movie before she had to go to the club and make up for the evening performance. All in all, it was a life she loved. But she wasn't content to stop there. She was waiting for her chance waiting for a theatrical manager to say to one of his corps of assistants: "That's a cute little trick at the Polly. Get her down and see if we can't use her in this new revue. It hasn't happened yet. But it would!"

She was in the midst of her star dance one night when her gaze happened to light on a couple entering the golden-rope circle of ring-side tables. She recognized Norman Kent, a tall and second glance told her that the stunning-looking girl with the Titian hair was the lady of his heart, also, she thought, with a grin the lady of her own husband's heart.

Quite without malice, she nevertheless, formed a naughty little resolve. When her dance was ended and she had taken several encores and the orchestra had swung into a tango, she strolled casually over to Normans' table and said:

"Lo, Norman. How's the boy?"

He stood up, flushing.

"How do you do?" He took Betty's hand in a stunted way that made her grin.

She knew just what a predicament he was in. Because she was his best friend's wife he felt that he must introduce her to Lucinda, and because she was outwardly only a little night-club dancer, he really couldn't. Not without explanations that she and his loyalty to Julian wouldn't let him make explanations, thought Betty didn't know this.

"You didn't expect to see me here, did you?" she laughed. "Not doing an act, anyway?"

"No, no, I didn't," stammered Norman, aware that Lucinda was regarding him with a little frown.

Norman swallowed, took the plunge turned to Lucinda. "Will you permit me to present a little friend of much talent, Betty—Betty—" he stammered.

"Turner," she put in brightly, seeming not to notice his confusion. "I use the same old name."

Lucinda bowed graciously. She was always gracious, always poised, but her eyes were slightly puzzled as they rested on Norman. She really failed to understand him at that moment.

"Heard from Julian lately?" Betty was asking, and Lucinda looked at her with interest. So this tawdry little creature knew Julian also?

Norman said hastily: "Oh, yes. He seems happy in Hawaii."

Betty said unexpectedly: "Well, he deserves it. He's a prince."

Lucinda, rather liked that. It showed that the girl had judgment, in spite of that terrible costume. Betty didn't suspect that Lucinda didn't know that Julian was married else the imp of perversity might have kept her there, making things uncomfortable for Norman. As it was, she soon tired of the game and put out her little hand.

"So long, I must go to my dressing room and take off a few beads. That's my change for my next act."

She bobbed her head to Lucinda. "Enchanted!" she murmured, with ludicrous affection.

Lucinda was smiling rather vexedly as Norman, red to his ears, resumed his seat.

"What a funny girl! How did you happen to know her?"

Norman said evasively: "She's—she's an old acquaintance. A good sort, really. I— you didn't mind my presenting her, did you? She'd have felt rather hurt."

"She's a friend of Julian's, too?"

"Yes," answered Norman steadily. Lucinda sighed. "What strange playmates men pick! And how little one knows of the other side of the lives of our best friends."

"Oh, I say, Lucinda, it's nothing like that. It's—"

She reached over and patted his hand. "Don't look so abject! I'm not suggested anything dreadful. I'm just amused and amazed, as always at human nature."

This is the advice of leading doctors: "Discard makeshift sanitary napkins—don't risk good health."

MANY mental and physical troubles of women may be traced to inadequate sanitary protection. Peace of mind, physical comfort, can only come through using proper sanitary napkins.

Kotex is advised unanimously by modern doctors. It is most comfortable to wear, it fits like a garment. Cellulocotton absorbent wadding is the perfect absorbent for this purpose. And it deodorizes by a special process.

"COLLEGIATE CHATTER"

By Helen Jones

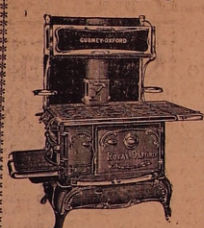

Although only two days have passed since the students of B.C.I. yesterday busy writing various examinations some papers have already been marked and handed back. There isn't any time to forget them. However it is better I suppose to learn the results as soon as possible in order that the blow may not be too hard. Let us forget examinations for the time being and hope that the next set will be a long way off.

The hockey match between Albert College and B.C.I. yesterday at the school in the arena to determine the winner by breaking the 2-2 tie between the two teams resulted in another tie. Neither team gained a goal and another game will probably have to be played. The game was full of suspense.

The next open meeting of the Literary has been postponed until Friday evening of this week. This meeting as you know is to be the Senior Oratorical contest. The winner of this contest takes part in the district oratorical contest and the winner of that goes to Toronto and the final winner speaks for the Dominion of Canada. This meeting will prove interesting and entertaining. Besides the oratorical contest one or two stunts have been prepared and there will be several musical numbers. The admission will be 15 cents for children and students and 25 cents for adults. This is a very reasonable price and the meeting will be worth twice as much.

The annual high school play will be given this year in about three weeks. The name of the play is "The Intimate Strangers." This is a comedy in three acts. It is the story of a young man who encounters some difficulties in determining a girl's age. He says in the play that he despises the modern youth and very narrowly escapes the clutches of his friend's niece. The humorous light is thrown in by the story master and Johnnie. There are only two characters in the play and the parts have not been assigned. Be sure to watch for the cast and the date of the performance. Seats will very probably be reserved.

BULK OF SEED CONTAMINATED

Sprawl of Weeds is Explained by Province, Wide Survey

Apparently one-third of the farmers in Ontario are actually sowing weeds. While Government officials, seed men and the newspapers from one end of the Province to the other are issuing warnings against the weed menace and reporting that the crop are steadily deteriorating on account of this menace, over thirty per cent of our farmers are sowing weeds at the rate of over 7,000 to the acre each spring. Thus these weeds and grasses are sowing grain, clover and grasses but according to the Seed Drill Survey conducted by officials of the Dominion Seed Branch and Ontario Department of Agriculture last year, they are infesting the land with weeds at such a rate that it will take a lifetime to bring them under control. Last Spring local officials collected samples of seed from the farmers' seed bins, actually working on the land. These were sent to the Dominion Seed Branch for analysis. "Of the samples taken," now reports District Inspector W. J. W. Lennox "32 per cent were found to be rejected on account of weed seeds and, therefore, considered unfit to be classed as seed for sowing purposes in Canada, and 4 per cent were found to be rejected on account of low germination. The remainder were divided among Grades 1, 2 and 3, with slightly more in Grade 3 than the other two." As there is practically nothing of lower purity than No. 2 seed sold through regular channels, seedmen discouraging the purchase of No. 3, this means that the bulk of the farmers in Ontario are using something far inferior to the commercial article. Seed grading No. 3 contains up to 6,800 weed seeds per acre, in the case of Oats, sown at the rate of 2 bushels, points out Mr. Lennox, which means that the 32 per cent of seed which was rejected will contain even a greater quantity of weeds. In the case of Clover, No. 3 may contain as high as 500 weed seeds per bushel, and where the seed was rejected, as much of it would have been had it been analyzed. The weed seed content often runs up into the thousands per bushel, according to actual figures from the analysts at Toronto, and also Professor J. E. Howitt, of Ontario Agricultural College. Mr. Lennox found that a large part of the seed sown in Ontario, as revealed by this survey, was home grown and untested and it is believed that a large portion of the No. 3 and the "rejected" came from this source, as only tested and graded seed is sold through the regular channels. It is necessary he writes "that those who sow home-grown seed exercise more care in cleaning and grading, if the most earnest attempt is to be made in the control of weeds. That there is some indifference on the part of growers in this respect is proved by the fact that 4 per cent of the seed samples reported taken from grain uncleaned and 33 per cent from seed which has not been tested for germination or titles of weed seeds contained therein. Furthermore, an examination of the many samples revealed the fact that while some attempt at cleaning had been made, it was unsatisfactory as there remained still a large percentage of light, immature and shrunken seeds and many weed seeds which could be removed easily with suitable machinery properly operated. In many cases, the grower may not be able to identify weed seeds, particularly in Clover, Alfalfa and Grasses but in this connection he has a service provided by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Seed Branch Laboratories, where his samples are received, analyzed, graded and reported at nominal cost. In fact, there is no charge made for the first three reported to any individual or firm.

Pure seed points out Mr. Lennox, is grown pure and not manufactured. Where it is badly contaminated with weeds, it can only be cleaned up at appalling loss. This expert urges that where fields are being grown for seed farmers should go through the same and remove by hand any particular bad weed which is there in limited quantities and always be on the look out for a new weed which can easily be eradicated if attacked as soon as it is introduced. It is claimed by many that the seed produced in Ontario today is more contaminated with weed seeds than previously" states Mr. Lennox, "and that if this condition does not improve we cannot hope to maintain the high position which we have held for years in the markets of the world."

Mr. Lennox concludes his report of the Seed Survey with a word of caution in regard to seed mixtures, particularly Oats and Barley. A proper mixture of these two grains, he points out, makes a good feed proposition, but he stresses the fact that the mixture should be made up each Spring of clean grain of kinds and in the proportions recommended by the Experimental Stations or else it may soon deteriorate into one of too much of one grain or the other and a lot

For turning seed, the following varieties are those recommended for eastern conditions: Banham Club Root Resistant, Dittmar's, Corning, Hall's Westbury and Best of All.

Increased returns to the producers must come very largely through their efforts in lowering the unit cost of production, and one of the most important factors in doing this is use of good clean seed of those varieties best suited to the district or province in which one is operating. The Seed Board is doing all it can to aid farmers in this work, by interesting various communities in putting in up-to-date reeling machines and it is to the interest of all farmers living within a reasonable distance of these machines to make the proper use of them. Annuals Give Best Display

Last From July Until the Frost Comes in the Fall

Annals to give a display through the entire season, from about July 1 to frost, the material for beds or borders that give the most display for the least trouble. There have been many queries as to annuals for all-season beds and borders by people living in the north who did not wish to spend money for perennials or shrubs which they might have to leave behind them.

There is a list of annuals that bloom continually once they start until frost. Some of the best are: French marigolds, nasturtiums, annual galliardias, petunias, scabiosa, if seeds are kept picked, salvias, ten-weeks stock, verbena and zinnias.

Any of these annuals may be used to fill a bed or border with a certainty of a sheet of color all during the summer months. They may be planted either in beds of a single color or mixed or in a selected variety of colors. Sown outdoors by May 1 and either transplanted or transplanted they begin blooming by July 1 and increase in beauty as the season progresses.

The French marigolds, the tall Jose phine being one of the finest, and coming in either dwarf or tall varieties, achieve their most brilliant colors in the cool days of fall.

The petunias of the small flowering border type, such as Rosy Morn, give the most solid sheets of bloom

HOOVER'S PLANS REMAIN SECRET

U. S. President Has Not Revealed His Policies

Washington, Feb. 19.—Not since the election of General Grant has any man entered the White House so widely known, and yet so little known to the people as Herbert Hoover. Some comparatively obscure Mr. Hoover, Arthur and Coolidge have suddenly become President. How little they knew men who had always been active in the background and could be trusted to run to type. In the case of Grant it happened that he belonged to no political party had only once in his life taken the trouble to vote and could not as well have accepted the Democratic as the Republican nomination. It was evident that the people intended to make him President whether he ran on one party ticket or the other, or upon a ticket of his own. His name was a household word, not only throughout the country but throughout the world. Everyone had in his own mind a picture of General Grant and there was a composite picture of "the silent soldier" that the people-at-large made for themselves. It was not until Grant had actually been inaugurated that the politicians and the people realized how little they knew about his views on any important subject, or how little able they were to forecast the policy of his administration. He was a shy man with no taste for public speaking and no aptitude for social converse. He talked freely to intimates, but was almost tongue-tied in the company of casual friends and acquaintances.

Had Mr. Hoover been elected in 1920 instead of 1928, the parallel between himself and General Grant would have been complete. There was at that time a powerful, popular demand for a return to the policies of the President. Mr. Hoover's election as President of the Pch political party was a strong demand to capitalize this popular demand by giving him the presidential nomination. Like Grant, he belonged to neither political party and had on only one occasion been sufficiently interested to cast a vote in any election. He had served in high office under President Wilson without giving any offense to Republicans, just as he has since served in high office under Presidents Harding and Coolidge without giving offense to Democrats. Indeed his whole public life has been free from any flavor of partisanship.

Now that the election is over and Mr. Hoover is soon to be inaugurated, one is struck not so much by the divergent views as to what will be the policy of his administration as by the fact that these "views" are based upon guesswork and conjecture. Mr. Hoover is not a politician, he is a man of confidence, but they do not betray his confidence. He has friends and acquaintances, but they apparently have no more idea of what is passing in his mind than did the friends and acquaintances of General Grant on the eve of his accession. There is a composite picture in the public mind of Herbert Hoover feeding the starving people of Europe, of Herbert Hoover bringing food and shelter to the victims in the Mississippi flood, of Herbert Hoover as an engineer piercing mountains and bridging rivers in remote quarters of the globe, of Herbert Hoover as a masterful organizer, but they do not betray his confidence. School Marm Tardy All For The Want of an Omnibus Wheel

Even the mechanical inventions of man are not infallible, and as every motorist knows tires will go flat even on the best regulated buses; but some of the teachers have taken exception to the imputation of tardiness on their parts at nine o'clock in the morning, when the fault really lay with the means of conveyance. The alarm clock was not to blame, and these pedagogues had met the bus on scheduled time, having done so, the rest lay with Providence and the efficiency of the bus. Failure on the part of this conveyance could surely not be attributed to any fault of the teachers and this is quite reasonably explained in the following letter:

To the Editor of The Intelligencer:

Dear Sir:- Reference having been made in your paper of last Saturday to teachers not being at school at 8:45 a.m., would you kindly publish the following reasons for same.

The Rawson bus of the East Hill had broken down and the West Hill bus will become the flagship of Rear-Admiral H. W. Parker, C. B., C.M.G. in succession to the Frohisher, which will remain in Squadron as an ordinary ship.

Some time will elapse before H.M.S. London reaches Malta, and a proposal is afoot that she shall make a visit to the Port of London, and thus give the inhabitants of the great city an opportunity of beholding the vessel which is maintaining the direct association of London City with the Royal Navy.

H.M.S. London will be the possessor of a remarkable collection of plate and pictures that have come to her from city sources. Lord Ebbisham, during whose Lord Mayoralty the London was launched by Lady Ebbisham, is giving her quite a gallery of old naval prints which illustrate past London events in her history. Besides these there descends to her from the old battleship London to which they were presented in 1905-06, a silver model of the White Tower of the Tower of London and a pair of silver dishes with the City dragon wrought on them. These were given by the then Lord Mayor, Sir John Pountney, and the citizens of London in 1906. The model of the White Tower, with its four silver dolphin supports, took a year to make.

There is also a silver challenge shield for annual competition amongst guns, crews of the ship, and three silver loving cups, copies of those belonging to the Mercers' Company and given by the Company itself in commemoration of the fact that it took the lead in building the old warship, Loyall London, in 1665. There is also a ship's bell, which is modelled upon one of the famous Bow Bells, and swings in silver brackets.

H.M.S. London is of 10,000 tons, armed with eight 8-inch guns, being one of the latest vessels built up to the requirements of the Washington Treaty.

WOMEN HELD LIABLE IN DIVORCE ACTION

Capetown, South Africa, (By Canadian Press). - In South Africa a woman co-respondent in a divorce action may be held liable for the costs of the action, according to a judgment recently delivered in the Supreme Court. In making an order for costs against a woman a divorce action brought by the wife, the judge said that if it was wrong for a man to commit adultery with another man's wife it was wrong for a woman to commit adultery with another woman's husband. He held that under the law of the Netherlands, which is in force in South Africa, the woman could be penalized by being required to pay costs.

OSHAWA SHAMROCKS PLAY HERE TONIGHT

OSHAWA SHAMROCKS ARE VISITORS HERE FOR FIRST GAME IN SECOND ROUND WITH BELLEVILLE JUNIORS

Belleville Expects To Have Substantial Lead For Return Game

SEATS SOLD OUT
Motor City Team Reputed To Be Fast And Tricky

The Colts are hosts this evening to Oshawa Shamrocks, and any Belleville fan who thinks that they are not a smart little team, need only to look up the Shamrock record and they will find that Belleville will have everything its own way tonight. By the decisive manner in which Oshawa trimmed Peterborough on Monday and Wednesday of this week winning the round by two to one, and the last game in Whitby by six to nothing, the Shamrocks showed that they have a team to be feared, and although we have all kinds of confidence in the Colts, we would just like to point out that too much over-confidence sometimes ruins a good little hockey team.

One day's rest between games seems hardly enough for the kids, especially in view of the fact that they have played six games in the last fourteen days. The Trenton series was one of the hardest series, the Colts have been in, and any team which get out of this group knows they have been in a battle before and do it. Then to turn around and defeat the powerful and heavy Queen's team was a feat which, in our opinion, gave the lads a good claim for a rest of a least two days. The O. H. A. apparently sees it differently, however, and the return game in the Oshawa series will be played in Whitby this Friday night.

All the Belleville players came out of the last Queen's fracas in good condition, although most of them were suffering from bumps and bruises laid on by the heavy studs. The kids gave back plenty, however, and none of them figured that they got the worst of the deal. What the Belleville lads lack in size and weight they make up in hockey brains.

Jimmy Ethier and Ab Young are two outstanding defence men in junior ranks at the present time, and if they play again tonight like they did against Queen's, the Oshawa player that gets through the defence for a shot at McKinnon will be doing well. Young has been playing good hockey all winter, but Ethier has only struck his stride in the last three games. He is playing good now, however, and is playing the hockey that he is capable of.

Bob Scott, Jack Canning and Henry Canning, the regular forward line have dashed the hopes of two of the strongest teams in Eastern Ontario by the way they work around the nets. Trenton, after a hard series, was put out when Scott scored three goals in their play-off game, and again in the first game against Queen's at Kingston, again came through with Belleville's only goal. Scott scored another Wednesday night, and Henry Canning came through with the last goal which gave Belleville the group on a wonderful play. Fred Day, the hard skating and working substitute, made a hero of himself by rapping home the first Belleville goal, and Ethier got the other one.

Belleville fans are looking for, at least two goals of a lead to take to Whitby, where the game will be played Friday night, the Oshawa rink having been burned down last year, but even though they do not have a lead at all, the fans who have been watching them all season will not be disappointed, for they know that the Colts fight their hard, even when they are behind. It is expected that a large crowd of Belleville fans will make the trip to Whitby with the team, and the rink should be packed to the doors to-night. Ernie Wortley, of Toronto, is slated to handle the bell, and although he gave none too good a satisfaction in one of the Trenton games, perhaps his eyesight will have been improved by this time.

The Ladies Junior League game resulted in three points out of four from Beavers "A". Beavers "A" were hard capped with two John Does. The Ontario bowled consistently in all three games and on the last did the Beavers topple them in good style. When they took their only point with 714. Gladys Knott with 192 single, and 474 for three string led the Beavers while J. Fordyce with 226 single and 492 three string was the Ontario best hitter.

In the Men's Junior League the Trenton team failed to put in an appearance.

Children Fight Eye Strain

They never complain even when their sight is away below par. They cannot be expected to know about such things. It is the parents' duty to be informed about the children's eyes. Nothing should be taken for granted, because eyes that see perfectly may not do so really. Thousands of children OVERCOME their visual defects much to their harm. Parents should note the above.

LOCAL YOUTH'S WRESTLING FAME

John Wallbridge Made Game Effort To Win His Bout

Here is what the Kingston Whistler has to say about Johnny Wallbridge, well known boy athlete of Queen's University: "In the 133 lb class, Wallbridge of Queen's, won from Harkness of Varsity. Harkness proved a stronger man, and looked the part, but Wallbridge hopped at him and twisted his head around, but couldn't keep the shoulders down. In the second round Harkness applied a headlock that looked like a certain fall, but by a masterful effort Wallbridge wriggled out, and then remained the aggressor, and took the bout. It was a remarkable bit of work on the part of the Queen's man."

The Recreation Alleys will send a pick team of bowlers to the Third Annual Five Pin Dominion Championship Tournament to be held at Garry's Central Recreation Club at Toronto, from Mar. 2nd to the 9th.

The local management hasn't picked a full team yet, but with the number of good bowlers that are available here it shouldn't be hard to pick a team who could give an account of themselves on any alleys.

FRANKFORD WON BY LONE GOAL

Defeat Campbellford After Ninety Minutes Of Hockey

Frankford, February 20.—After struggling gamely for ninety minutes Campbellford went down to defeat in one of the hardest fought hockey battles that has ever been witnessed in the Trent Valley League. More than three hundred strong, the Campbellford players and rooters invaded the town. Full of enthusiasm and with high hopes, the visitors swarmed the rink and did their best to cheer their players on to victory. Not till the last five minutes and almost the very last minute did their hopes vanish into thin air and they accepted defeat with as much sportsmanship as would have been the case had the tables been reversed.

Joe Legault was the hero of the hour when he scored the winning goal just at the end of the first half of the last overtime period. All through the game he was an outstanding player on his home team's line-up. Every player was up to the mark, and had Benny Bowen not kept his eagle eye on the rubber and kept between it and his net, Frankford would not be as well off as they are. In every period he was called upon to stop more shots than Irwin in the visitors' net. For Campbellford, every player was a star, and the team as a whole turned in an excellent game of hockey. In spite of the fact that Ingram heavily checked all evening, he was not once penalized for rough play. In the last half of the last overtime period, Bill Blue was struck in the face with the puck, when Ramon shot unexpectedly, and had to be carried off the ice with his face cut and bleeding. He was right up in the Frankford territory, and the home team players were quick to drop their sticks and carry the injured man off the ice and summon medical aid. Police finished the game in Blue's place.

As a refresher, Barrett came in for considerable razzing from both sides during the first part of the game. He had a habit of warning the players and keeping them on the ice when it was obvious to the fans that an offence had been committed. In spite of the rough hockey penalties were few. In the last stages of the play, he became more strict, and held the play well under control, penalizing players for any offence and making the game more like the class of hockey it is supposed to be.

CIACOS, Y'S MEN ARE RETURNED EASY WINNERS

City Hockey League Is Nearing Completion; Play-Offs Next Week

Both games in the City League were easily won last night. In the first tilt on the ice, the Point Anne crowd disposed of the Imperial Oil and snowed themselves a place in the playoffs. The score was 4-1 and the Point Anne team had the edge throughout. Don Roe, manager of the Imperials, had a weakened line-up but the boys put up a scrappy battle. They trotted out a new player in the person of G. Scott who made a favorable impression. Frank Goyer was the best for Point Anne while Colling turned in a stellar two periods, and at usual collected his share of the laurels. Jack Rooney who had turned in a hard game the night before trotted out and made a favorable showing. "Army" Armstrong played nicely in centre while Frank Symons was playing well. Stratton in goal turned aside a number of hard shots Heaney in goal, for the Corbyville crew was bombarded with shots. The Y's men lined up as follows: Goal Stratton, defence, Rooney, Drew and Strachan; centre, Armstrong; Wings, Davidson and Symons; subs, Bryant and Scott.

It is likely that another double-header will be played on Thursday night while the play-offs will start next week. In B group the Belleville Hard war and Y's men are ready for the play-offs while the C group has the Imperial Oil and Maxmatics are still fighting it out for second place. These two teams will probably meet on Thursday night. At the present time the Maxmatics have the edge on the Marvelbushes.

Oshawa Times Scribe's Version of Bowmanville Maroons Game

Here is what the Oshawa Times has to say about the Bowmanville Intermediate game:
Bowmanville Intermediates handed Belleville a trimming on Monday night to the tune of 3-1, winning the round 6-3. This is the first time Bowmanville Intermediates have won the group let alone the second round. The game was fast, but Bowmanville had the edge on the play throughout. McGuire scored Belleville's only goal in the second period while Osborne broke the "Shinny" Moose scored for the locals. Bowmanville forced the play from the beginning and certainly out-skated and out-checked the visitors in the first period.

In the first period the locals peppered Curry with some hard shots, but he seemed to have a few loose shoes about him. The play was all in Belleville's territory in this period. Rooney's fine checking held the Edgerites' scoreless in the first frame.

In the second period Belleville seemed to wake up and began to get in some hard shots at James, but with no avail. After about 5 minutes play McGuire surprised the locals by slipping the puck by James for the first goal of the game. This pepped up the local "streetie" Osborne flipped one in during a scramble around the Belleville net, tying up the score 1-1.

In the last period the locals came out determined to score and bombard Curry. Dutch Osborne broke the tie by scoring on a nice shot from left wing. In this period the penalties became more frequent and at one time Bowmanville only had two men out with 3 men up. Belleville failed to score. With two minutes to go, Shinny Moose flipped one in at a crosstown in front of the Belleville nets.

The stars for Bowmanville were Denham, H. Osborne and McMullen. For Belleville, Rooney, Green and Schenkel.

Bowmanville has been drawn to play Whitby in the next round. There was a celebration after the game in which many of the spectators paraded the front street, working off some of their surplus energy. The winners of Bowmanville and Whitby will likely have a crack at the Willowdale team which Oshawa failed to put out.

Speakers Tell of Settlement Of British Boys In Canada

London, Ont. — Plans for the settlement of British boys in Canada, under joint auspices of Dominion, Provincial and British Governments, were outlined in a series of lectures given to the London Canadian Club by Robert J. C. Stead, Director of Publicity of the Federal Department of Immigration and Colonization. The plans not only call for a period of training, but also for a number of the provinces make provision for the establishment of the boy settler on a farm of his own when his period of training is completed.

The speaker pointed out that large numbers of British boys, many of them from excellent homes and with good cultural backgrounds, are each year reaching the point where they must decide what course in life they are to follow. In many cases this course will call for migration to some other land, and Canada is desirous of obtaining the major share of that migration, as she already obtains the major share of general British immigration. The value of the British boy migrant to Canada has long been established by the experience of the Juvenile Branch of the Department of Immigration and Colonization.

Between 1926 and 1927, 127 British boy migrants were sent to Canada, approximately 85,000 children. The juveniles fit readily into Canadian life and by the time they attain manhood are to all intents and purposes Canadians.

The new plan which is to secure for Canada a larger share of the growing boys of the Mother Country provides for the selection of the boys in the United Kingdom by Dominion officials and representatives of the province in which they will settle. Having been found suitable from all points of view, boys between the ages of fifteen and twenty, who will undertake to engage in farm work for a period of three years, are brought to Canada free of all transportation charges, their fares being paid by the British and Canadian Governments.

The boys come forward in parties and go at once to the distribution farm maintained as an adjunct to the Boy Settlement Plan in each of the provinces co-operating in Ontario. The distribution centre is Vimy Ridge Farm, close to the city of Guelph, in New Brunswick a distribution farm is located at Lower Gagetown; in Nova Scotia at the Agricultural College at Truro; in Manitoba the Manitoba Agricultural College is utilized for this purpose, and in Saskatchewan the Agricultural College at Saskatoon. Boys from Quebec and Eastern Ontario may move under the auspices of the British Immigration and Colonization Association, which has headquarters in Montreal.

The Province of Alberta is not participating in the general reception and distributing farm scheme, but has a scheme for providing a months free training for young men from the United Kingdom, who are later placed in selected farm homes for the Land Settlement Branch of the Immigration Department. Negotiations looking toward an agreement for the settlement of British boys in British Columbia are under way but have not yet been completed.

After the boys have arrived at the distribution centre, they are with as little delay as possible, distributed among farmers of the province who have made application for boys of this class. All farm homes must be approved for this purpose as suitable homes in which to place a boy. The minimum wage is $10 a month, but this is regarded as a minimum only; boys are paid larger sums as their earning power increases.

When the boy has obtained a practical knowledge of farm work and livestock, has become twenty-one years of age, and has saved up the sum of $500, the Dominion, Provincial and British Governments under a joint agreement will grant him a loan of $2,500 for the purchase of a farm of his own. The saving of $500 is required as evidence of the boy's industry and thrift. The loan of $2,500 is to be repaid over a period of twenty years with interest at five per cent. The provinces which so far have agreed to participate in the boy settlement scheme are Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario and Manitoba. As yet arrangements have not been completed with the other provinces.

KING'S REPORT STIRS LEADING BRITISH PRESS

Failure of Conference to Notify Dominions is Surprise

London, Feb. 22. (C. P. Cable).—"Political circles were astonished to learn from the press of Premier MacKenzie King that Canada was not informed of the progress of the Anglo-French naval negotiations last summer," says the Chronicle today. "In fact, the Canadian Prime Minister had to admit he only heard of the result of these negotiations after formal notification had been made to the foreign governments."

"Commander Bellairs (Conservative member for Maidstone) is asking Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery on Monday for further information and why the government did not adhere to the decision of the last imperial conference to communicate to the dominions the progress of the conference between Britain and another country."

"Premier King's announcement comes as a bolt from the blue and adds one more chapter to that volume of diplomatic blunders of which the government is responsible," the Chronicle declares.

Small Army Plane Attempts Flight

The first model of the P-12 army pursuit plane, the "Pan American" in which Capt. Ira C. Baker (inset) the pilot of the famous "Question Mark" when it made its record breaking flight, will attempt a "dawn to dusk" flight from Brownsville, Texas to France Field in the Panama Canal zone. The distance is about 2000 miles. The ship has a wingspread of only 23 feet and measures not more than seven yards from nose to tail.

CITY MOURNS LOSS OF ANOTHER LOYAL AND OUTSTANDING CITIZEN

CALL INTELLIGENCER FOR HOCKEY SCORES

While the local Junior A. H. A. team have a five-goal lead for the return game with Oshawa tonight there is still a great deal of interest attached to the affair for a period-by-period bulletin of the game and fans may learn the results by calling either 1348 or 36. The response the last time when the Juniors played in Kingston was so spontaneous that this paper deemed it advisable to arrange the same service for the fans tonight. Interested parties are asked to refrain from calling before 8:40 as the results of the first period will not be known until that time. Calls will be answered until 11:00 p.m.

Belleville Curlers May Entertain Picton Members Next Week

Today the city was mourning the loss of one of its finest citizens, in the person of Thomas J. P. Power. The flags in the city are at half-mast in memory of a fine man, a noble hearted citizen and one of the Builders of Belleville.

As evidence of Mr. Power's popularity with all the commercial travelers, those who have made a practice for years of staying at the Queen's Hotel when they visited Belleville, are erecting to his memory a bronze memorial tablet, which will be placed in the annex to the hotel, which is now being erected. "Flowers last but a day, they come today and are gone tomorrow," one traveler said today, "so we have decided to have a bronze tablet placed to his memory, something that will last forever. Mr. Power was our best friend."

Early this morning Bandmaster Zealey, leader of the Argyle Light Infantry Band, called at the hotel. Mr. Zealey was connected with the famous "Kilties Band" that toured the world and one of Mr. Power's best friends.

This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Ryan and son, arrived in Belleville from Chicago. Mrs. Ryan was Mr. Power's only daughter. Miss Maude Power, who has been visiting in Chicago, also arrived in the city today.

The funeral will be held on Sunday. The Kiwanis Club will attend in a body, as will the City Council and the Parks Board of which Mr. Power was Chairman.

CURLERS BATTLE FOR "GUM" CUP

Local Rink Doing Exceedingly Well at Toronto Bonspiel

R. J. Wray's rink of Belleville curlers who are competing in the Bonspiel at Toronto were eliminated from the Rye-Birks competition yesterday by Mr. Jacob's rink of Winnipeg. The Winnipeg rink had a close call as the final score was 12 to 11 and the Belleville curlers went down fighting.

Today at noon the Belleville rink will rock up with a Shelbourne team and they are counting on winning to stay in the Wrigley Competition. It is understood that they have defeated their games in the Seiberling Trophy. The Belleville rink is made up of E. Gartley B. L. Hyman, W. Belair and R. J. Wray, skip.

KATES' BODY IS FOUND IN SAND

Remains of Young Picton Salesman Finally Located in West

Gull Lake, Sask., Feb. 22.—Police detachments returned here today with what is now thought to be the remains of David Kates who is alleged to have been murdered and buried in the sand dunes north of here last summer.

UNITED FARMERS OFFICIAL ARRAIGNED

Saskatoon, Sask., Feb. 22.—Alex Brown, until recently manager of the Trading Department of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, was committed to trial here yesterday following the preliminary trial in police court on a charge of stealing $5,000 worth of coal from the United Farmers by conversion.

BRIGHT SUNSHINE GREET THE KING

His Majesty Will Have to Spend Weeks at Coast, Home

Bognor, Sussex, (Canadian Press Cable)—Feb. 22.—It was officially stated at Craigview House today that the King had passed a good night.

Another day of brilliant sunshine, with sky blue and unclouded greeted His Majesty today.

The Daily Mail suggested today that the King, as soon as he is considered "safe" will leave Bognor for Sandringham, although it may be many weeks before it is advisable for him to undertake the journey.

His Majesty spent several hours before an open window yesterday at Craigview House the bright sun shining all day.

RETURN MEETING DEFINITELY OFF

New York, Feb. 22.—The expected return meeting between Percy Williams Olympic sprint champion and his conqueror, Jack Elder, of Notre Dame has vanished into thin air, so far as the Indoor Championships are concerned. The Notre Dame officials refuse to let Elder return east for another race and Williams at Toronto said he had definitely decided not to compete.

Canine's Affection for Dead Pal Tugs Heart-Strings of Passers-by

One animal's affection for another was indicated in an incident noted by pedestrians on one of the busy streets of the West Side yesterday afternoon. A little black spaniel dog had been struck by a motor car and although not killed outright was relieved of its misery by one of the City policemen, and then placed in a citizen's lawn until the city men came to take him away. Many other dogs passed by with averted heads until finally a small white terrier, evidently a playmate of the dead spaniel, came on the scene.

Sniffs and licks and other gestures of canine affection bringing no response from his dead friend, the terrier apparently gave up all hope of playing with the police who were taking the dead dog to the pound. The terrier proceeded to bury his dead comrade in the deep snow and worked industriously with this end in view until his purpose was successful. Then with a final parting look at the mound of snow he proceeded on his way.

COMMITTEE ON WAR PAYMENTS REFUSE PLANS

Find Basis For Determination of German Reparations

Paris, Feb. 22.—A Committee on German war reparations failed today to accept the plan of procedure which was evolved by the sub-committee of five. So many suggestions for changes were made that the sub-committee was instructed to resume its labors and report again to the full committee next Monday morning of foreign affairs at Angora today on the request of the Associated Press.

Paris, Feb. 22.—The avenue of attack for the main problems of Reparations settlement seems to have been discovered.

Working since the first part of the week, the sub-committee of five has found a basis for possible determination of how many and how much the German Reparations payments will be.

The sub-committee's plan, it is understood, involves a roundabout procedure in which the idea of a grand total is subordinate to that of the size of annuities themselves.

FORMER PASTOR TO PREACH HERE

Rev. N. S. McKechnie of Leamington to Speak at Baptist Church

Members of the Baptist church are looking forward to a reunion with their former pastor, Rev. N. S. McKechnie on the occasion of their church anniversary next Sunday. The Rev. Mr. McKechnie, B.A., B.Th., is a graduate of McMaster University in both Arts and Theology and has pursued a fruitful ministry in several important churches. He is now the pastor of the splendid church at Leamington with a new church property, which is one of the best in Ontario, west of Toronto.

Reared in Woodstock College in which he was later instructor, he has all his life been familiar with the Baptist teaching and leadership of the Baptist denomination. During a residence of over four years in Belleville he left a most wholesome impression upon the church and city. There were many additions to the church during his pastorate. He represented the Belleville church at the Baptist World Alliance at Stockholm, Sweden. He was also president of the B.Y.P.U. convention of Quebec and Ontario, the largest convention of its kind in Canada.

During his pastorate the salary was increased twice. Extensive renovations of the church involving a large outlay were undertaken and successfully completed. He was beloved by his congregation, and highly and deservedly esteemed as a citizen. Broad and generous in his outlook and sympathy, he took an active part in promoting the best interests of the city and contributed toward the success of the many phases of city life.

His return visit will be appreciated.

OLD COMPANY'S LEHIGH HARD COAL ALBERT CO. THE F. S. ANDERSON CO. Sole Distributors for Belleville

WE NEED THE RINK

Whenever an improvement is suggested for the city there is a class of citizen ready to raise a wall of objection. Probably Belleville is no worse in this respect than other cities, but we surely have our full share, as witness the strenuous opposition to the new collegiate, the paving of Station Street, and similar projects. And now that Belleville has an opportunity to secure a real rink to form a centre for winter sports activities, the same "anvil chorus" is tuning up.

Through the open-handed generosity of an ex-Belleville boy who has made good, the long cherished plan for a suitable rink is coming to fruition. This man, who is bearing the bulk of the expense, and expecting to make no profit, has asked that his name be withheld as he is not courting publicity, but his identity is really no secret. He is anxious only to be of some service to the city where he spent his youth.

The opposition to the plan seems to be based solely on the fact that the city is selling to the Rink Company a piece of land which was originally secured with the idea that it might be useful if it were found necessary to extend the market area. But a rink in which good clean sport can be fostered and healthy exercise secured by our growing youngsters is surely a thing to be desired and if no space is needed for the market there will be no difficulty in securing it. The price of six thousand dollars which the Rink Company are paying for the land, is a very reasonable price, so that no particular favor is being shown to the men who, with their own money, wholeheartedly promoting the welfare of the city.

Experience has shown that in cities the size of Belleville a rink is not a gold mine, and the men going into this proposition are not planning to make big dividends. It is possible that with careful management and good luck, the rink will pay its expenses and perhaps a fair rate of interest on the money invested. The main idea however, is to provide clean winter sports for the growing youngsters and to let Belleville take its old-time place on the hockey map of the province, which incidentally will be a great advertisement for the city.

The general body of citizens will pay little attention to the kickers and grouches who are ready at ways to oppose any move made by those who really wish Belleville to grow. The rink is assured and all that is required is that the citizens of Belleville get behind and make it a success. The ex-Belleville boy spoken of above has guaranteed $3,000 as the surety of the public spirit in this city to make the subscription of the balance required a foregone conclusion. Next year Belleville will have a real rink which will be a source of pride to the city and a benefit to all classes of our people.

MAY HOLD MARATHON SWIM IN VANCOUVER

Chicago, Feb. 22.—Vancouver, British Columbia, is under serious consideration for the next $50,000 Wrigley Marathon swim. PICTON PHOTOGRAPHER BURNED TO DEATH IN DISASTROUS FIRE

Charred Remains of William F. Johnson Found in Debris

HEAVY LOSSES

Flames Started in Ward's Clothing Store and Spread Rapidly

Entering his burning studio to rescue some valuable papers, William F. Johnson, 72, photographer of Picton, Ontario was burned to death early this morning. His charred remains were found in a side room at six o'clock this morning, the body badly dismembered, one leg and one arm having been burned off while the rest was spared by good recognition.

Johnson, who had been a resident of Picton for thirty-five years, was well-known and the news of his death has cast a gloom over the town as well as Prince Edward County, where he made many friends.

Starting at one o'clock this morning from unknown origin in the general finishing shop conducted by Ernest Ward the fire spread rapidly and although the fire brigade fought valiantly they could not confine the blaze. Although the ward between the Ward store and the Johnson Photograph Studio was said to be fire proof the flames ate their way into the latter premises.

Mr. Johnson who lived over his store was soon aroused and he made his way to the street. Before the fire had assumed serious proportions he started in to recover some valuable papers returned through the front door. Despite the persuasions of friends that he refrain from entering again, he paid no heed and ran around to a side-door, flung it open and went in. It was the last seen of him alive.

FIND NO TRACE OF ORVAL SHAW

Police Believe "Skunks Misery" Will be Captured in Few Days

Lindsay, Feb. 22.—Inspector W. Stringer of Toronto, who has been in charge of the posse of Provincial Police searching for Orval Shaw in Hallowell district, returned to Lindsay yesterday accompanied by Provincial Constable Wetherell. They are not giving out very much information relative to the search for the elusive fly breaker, but it is understood that they have absolutely no clue as to his whereabouts. It is now believed that Shaw has left the district. There are many wild-eyed rumors in circulation relative to the prisoner having been seen at different points, but these have all been punctured.

The authorities in Victoria County believe that it is only a matter of days before Shaw will be captured. They point out that he cannot remain long in hiding because of a lack of food. The whole countryside is aware of the fact that the police are searching for him and once he makes an appeal for food at some farm house it is regarded that the authorities will be apprised and his arrest effected.

EMPIRE'S TRADE IS EXPANDING

London, Feb. 22.—(By George Hamilton staff Correspondent of the Canadian Press).—The British Colonial Empire has now an area of 2,000,000 square miles, a population of 50,000,000 and a rapidly expanding trade of $2,500,000,000 a year. These figures are brought out in the memorandum issued by the Colonial Office today. They refer to all territories under control of that office, the British possessions scattered in all parts of the world.

His wife and daughter were notified of the disaster early this morning and arrived at Picton this afternoon.

Meanwhile the flames were consuming the building and it was folly for any of the eye-witnesses to go in. The building which was owned by Mr. Johnson is today a complete loss together with practically all of the contents. Whether the place is covered by insurance has not been revealed. Searchers this morning were able to enter the place this morning at six o'clock and amid the debris in one of the rooms was found the charred remains. They were immediately removed to the local mortuary where they were placed in a sealed casket. Burial will take place at Picton on Monday.

Mr. Johnson, although married, had lived alone above his shop for some time, his wife and only daughter, Bessie, residing in Toronto where the latter conducted a music studio. His wife was formerly Miss Flannigan of Bloomfield.

The building a brick structure, was completely gutted and for a time the business section on Main street was threatened. When the glass windows of the Ward store were shattered, the flames were able to get in, with the hose the smoke belched forth in clouds. It is presumed that an overheated stove or defective wiring were the cause of the blaze.

The victim of the fire was a member of the Picton United Church and was a regular attendant there. He was a member of the Masonic Order under the auspices of which the funeral will be held on Monday. He was the only member of his family, a younger brother having died in his youth. He was born on what was known as the "Harpur place," a mile from Picton on the highway. After learning the photography trade he set up in business in Picton, Ontario, but later returned to Picton.

EASTERN STATES ARE SNOW BOUND

New York, Feb. 22.—After a belated winter, the eastern portion of the United States today was flourishing out of the worst snowstorm of the season. A storm sweeping in on the northwest wind, spread a thick covering of snow from Maine to the Carolinas and westward to the Mississippi Valley.

Deaths of 12 persons, injury to several others and numerous minor accidents were attributed to the snow and cold.

NEED OF AIRPORT

The announcement that definite arrangements have been made for the establishment of an airport in Kingston, brings to the forefront the need of Oshawa in this direction. With air routes multiplying, and the use of the aeroplane for mail services and for commercial purposes growing at a tremendous rate, the city which is to keep in the forefront of progress in these modern days cannot afford to overlook the steps which are necessary to have a part in the development of aviation.

The time is coming, and it is rapidly drawing nearer, when aviation will play a much greater part than at present in commerce, when air lines will be in existence in every part of Canada.
 Naturally, these air lines will only make use of those facilities which are provided for them.

Just as good harbors attract vessels to them, so cities with suitable flying fields will attract the traffic of aircraft. Unless Oshawa wishes to be left off the air map, it must without much delay, give some very serious consideration to this problem. It must develop an air-consciousness which will impel it to make some action to ensure that in this important branch of modern transport, the city will have its fair share of the traffic, and will be in a position of leadership which will give it an opportunity of benefitting by every new development. — Oshawa Times.

WORTHY CITIZEN GONE

"In the midst of life we are in death." Once again the community has suffered the loss of a splendid outstanding business man and citizen in the person of Thomas J. P. Power. It was with startling suddenness that Mr. Power was taken from this life and it was a distinct shock to his legion of friends in this city and district to learn that he had succumbed.
 Tom Power's death removes another link in the chain of citizens who have watched this city grow from a comparative village to a thriving agricultural centre. Born within a few miles of Belleville, Mr. Power spent the greater part of his fifty-eight years within the shadow of the city hall.
 Mr. Power was a leading light in the building up of this community and his interest in civic enterprises was one of his chief characteristics. Seemingly he possessed the happy faculty of making friends and his admirers are not confined to this city but people in every clime will learn of his passing with the same feeling of regret. Mr. Power's career, while cut short, was one of activity and from boyhood he has travelled in every continent the world over.

The city has never received such great publicity as that which resulted from the world tour of the famous Belleville Kittie's band, which was managed by Mr. Power. This organization attracted widespread attention and their reputation even caught the eye of the late King Edward Seventh, who requested the band for a concert at Sandringham House. Mr. Power had a great love for the opera and while manager of Griffin's Theatre here he was successful in booking the leading companies and individuals. Tom Power was a friend to all and travelling men found the welcome sign over the door of his hotel. It was a second home to them and in Mr. Power they found a man trustworthy and kind.

 Belleville loses a true and loyal citizen in the passing of Thomas J. P. Power.

CHICAGO'S WAR

Within the past few days an American magazine of wide circulation gave the concluding instalment of a tale of gunmen and gangsters. The finale was the summary and lawless killing of four gangsters, trapped in a shed, the starting point of trucks used in illegal liquor traffic. The men who trapped them were also gunmen and gangsters who rushed up in a motor, bearing machine guns. The trapped men went down before the bombardment, before they realised what was happening.

The background of the story told how killers and killed alike had been former associates, whose interests eventually fell apart through greed and intrigue.

It was a gruesome story in which defiance of the law, the dictates of humanity, the essential loyalties of man to his fellows were set at naught.
 It really seemed an improbable account fantastic in its portrayal of gang life of a large city. Yet it bore an air of truth despite the avowal that it was a work of imagination.

The latest sinister exploit of killing the famous Moran gang in Chicago reveals a veritable similarity to the fictional account. Seven men were slain in the same manner, "mowed down with machine guns and auto-matics." Truth has exceeded fiction. In both cases "a liquor garage" was the place selected for the bloody operation.
 The rival Chicago gang men, murderers and murderers, had been former associates. A gangster Napoleon, whose name is suggested, had come into existence to dispute "Boss" Moran's sway in Chicago gangland.

One variant of the fictional from the factual story gives to the Chicago attackers a police uniform as a disguise.
 Here fact led fiction in a highly decorative fashion. Fiction led to the reader's speculation the action of authority after the killing. The action of the Chicago authorities remains for our observation. It should attract keen attention. Chicago's gangland methods have reached a notable climax. The Chicago police are challenged in unmistakable and flagrant manner. Here before, Chicago police have taken the ground that the more gunmen slew each other, the better for Chicago.
 Will that theory, so strange to British law, prevail after such wholesale murder is committed?

PASSING YEARS (From the Intelligencer of This Day 30 Years Ago)

Mrs. John Morton, Charles Street, met with a painful and serious accident this morning, when she fell down the stairway which was quite dark.

A party of young people from "away back" invaded our city last night. A couple of sleepy nags reluctantly drew a creaky wagon with a hayrack on it.
 In the wagon were squatted a variety of both sexes, their outer covering being a plentiful supply of hay and straw. Their chief amusement seemed to be to throw wisps of straw and hay at each other.

Mr. H. Bull, residing on Mohr St., was proceeding from his residence to the barn, when he fell and dislocated his shoulder.

Mr. C. Daly, who resides near the G. T. R. station, on Monday night lost a number of valuable fowls. A thief effected an entrance by drawing a staple.

"Ah takes nothin'," gloomily re-

OLD, FASHIONED REMEDIES

Who caught a cold
 In days of old,
 With remedies was plied.
 Old ladies gray
 Dropped in to say
 What surely should be tried.
 About the bed
 They stood and said:
 "Tis inflammation pure,
 Rub goose grease warm
 Upon his form
 If you'd effect a cure."

All winter long
 With goose grease strong
 They rubbed my back and chest
 They'd nightly toil
 With camphor oil;
 And terror-stricken lest
 The dreaded croup
 Should make me whoop
 They'd also brew for me
 A sticky mass
 Which filled a glass,
 Well-known as flaxseed tea.

Decotions vile
 Of camomile
 I was compelled to take,
 While senna brown
 I swallowed down
 That stubborn cold to break.
 They brewed a dish
 Of licorice
 And tar and glycerine
 And, if they failed,
 I was assailed
 With lard and kerosene.

All winter long
 Of camphor strong
 An odor I possessed,
 To school or play
 I went my way

With goose grease on my chest,
 Nor can I tell
 What made me well.
 Was I by flaxseed cured?
 Or did I thrive
 And stay alive
 Despite the woes endured?

RAIL TERMINALS URGENT MATTER

Minister Feels National Highway Might Reduce Earning Power

Ottawa, February 21.—The railway terminals situation in Montreal must be faced, "and faced in a rather large way in the very near future," Hon.
 Charles A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, informed the House of Commons this afternoon. The minister was speaking during continued debate on the resolution of D. F. Kellner (U.F.A., Althabaska), which calls upon the Government to consider making a further federal grant for the next five years' highway construction. Mr.
 Dunning drew attention to the fact that Canada was the owner of a large railway transportation system, and that its needs must be considered when large expenditures from the federal Treasury on highways were contemplated. He did not want himself placed on record as being opposed to the construction of a national highway.

"But I do say, we must always have regard to our over two-billion-dollar investment on railways in providing for the development progressively over period of years of a form of transport ation which will tend to reduce possibility of our railways earning their own way," warned the minister.

Mr. Dunning stressed the point that the provinces themselves prefer increased subsidies to grants which are earmarked for some specific purpose, such as highway construction. They were opposed to Government grants with strings attached.

Later debate was productive of an amendment from A. M. Carmichael (Progressive, Kinkora) which favored the construction of a national highway from coast to coast as soon as possible.

The majority of speeches favored federal aid in the construction of highways. The advantages which would accrue to the Dominion through increased tourist traffic, and the additions to the Federal Treasury because of the purchase of more motor cars, were mentioned as arguments for the resolution.

Both amendment and resolution were, however, still before the House at the six o'clock adjournment. The House does not sit tonight.

SHAMROCKS HOPE TO OVERCOME FIVE GOAL LEAD

Here's how the Oshawa Times scribe saw Wednesday night's game here with the Shamrocks:

The Belleville fans turned out en masse last night to see their pals, the Juniors defeat the Oshawa Shamrocks by long, lucky shooting. The game at the end of the game stood six to one for the Belleville and no less than three of these were long fluke goals that flopped into the net from half way. It was not all luck, however, as every player on the Belleville team made skate and stick handle in a brilliant manner and they did just that at all times. Swift, tongue-like pike-checks is another art that these Colts have to add to their bag of tricks and they demonstrated their ability by checking in close to break up many of Shamrocks' combination rushes at the start.

The Belleville goal tender was unusually slow at clearing and Shamrocks were able to do well to have taken longer shots and followed in rather than trying to split the defence.

Rowden and Lortie were outstanding for the whole game but Lortie did not seem to be able to get his shot under control and missed the net on many of his rushes.

Oshawa forward line all played an even game but did not by any means play the hockey they are capable of and will all have to work like demons on Friday to overcome the five goal lead. With a larger ice surface and any breaks at all on the Shamrocks will do just that on Friday night.

Going on the ice with instructions to check Scott the Belleville sniper, Shamrocks must have forgotten for this reputed "Quinte goal getter" ran his average up plenty, scoring five of the six goals by Belleville. Ethier and J.
 Canning were the other two home town boys that predominated.

IMPROVING NICELY

Mr. John Keene of Thurlow, who was thrown out of his buggy a few days ago when his horse became frightened and unmanageable, is recovering rapidly, although still suffering from shock. Mr. and Mrs. Keene were proceeding along the 2nd concession of Thurlow when a truck came up behind them and frightened the horse. The animal jumped, for the ditch, throwing the two occupants out. Mr. Keene sustained several deep cuts on the head, but his wife fortunately escaped with minor bruises.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. Sills, 8 Bridge St., to surprise and celebrate their thirty-third wedding anniversary. IN MEMORIAM

ANGELL—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Arthur George Angell, who departed this life February 22, 1928. The animal jumped, for the ditch, throwing the two occupants out. Mr. Keene sustained several deep cuts on the head, but his wife fortunately escaped with minor bruises.

You were a loving father
A husband kind and true,
A better father never lived.
His equal they were few.

We that are left with a heartache,
With only memories sweet,
Silently pray that some day,
United in heaven we meet.
Sadly missed by his loving wife and family.

IN MEMORIAM

SYMONS—In loving memory of our dear mother and father who passed away eight years ago.
We can not forget them we loved them too well.
For memory to fade from our lives like a dream,
But lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
Friends who see us smile might think the wound is healed,
But little they know of the heart aches concealed.
We wonder if you know the hours we've spent,
The lonely aching endless hours since you went and left us here to mourn.
The tears we've shed the constant need of you, and missing you always we wonder if you know.
Sadly missed by sons and daughters.

STIRLING DEFEAT CAMPBELL ORD

"Bill" Whitty's Boys Put Up Merry Battle in T. V. League

Stirling defeated Campbellford in a Trent Valley League fixture in the former town last night by a score of 3-1. It was an exceptionally fast game and the homesters were the best on the night's play and deserved the verdict. Over one thousand people jammed every corner of the Stirling rink and the interest was at fever heat. Wallace, Stirling's right-hand man scored two goals for his team while Ingram accounted for the other. Tweed had clinched first place in the League while Stirling and Frankford are waging a merry battle for second position. At the present time Stirling are one-half game ahead of Frankford. The latter town play at Tweed Friday and at Stirling on Monday and the results of these two games will decide a winner to meet Tweed for the championship. Stirling's line-up last night was as follows: goal Morton def. Ingram, J. Ackers; centre David; wings Wallace and Parnell, subs McGie and Hoard.

BOWMANVILLE TIED WHITBY 1-1

Whitby, Ont. Feb. 22.—Whitby intermediates played a 1-1 tie with Bowmanville in the first game of the third round series in the O.H.A. intermediate play-offs, witnessed by a large crowd at Burns' arena, here tonight. The teams were evenly matched and it was a hard fought battle every inch of it. A dizzy pace was maintained but play was clean and referee Eric Parks handed out but three penalties. The return game will be played at Bowmanville next Monday.

The visitors secured a lead early in the 1st period when Osborne and Cameron combined to go through the local defence, Cameron scoring from close in. No more goals were scored against Whitby, however, due to the sterling exhibition of Haves in goal.

Neither team counted in the second frame although the locals forced play and Sleightholm made several nice rushes from his position on the defence only to be frustrated by James, the smart Bowmanville goaltender.

Whitby's goal came within the last minutes of play, Atkinson beating James with a hard shot from left wing after he had grabbed a loose puck behind the visitors' blue line. Teams: Bowmanville—Goal, James; defence, Dunsmuir and H. Osborne; centre, E. Osborne; wings, MacMullen and Cameron; subs, Moise and Dundie.

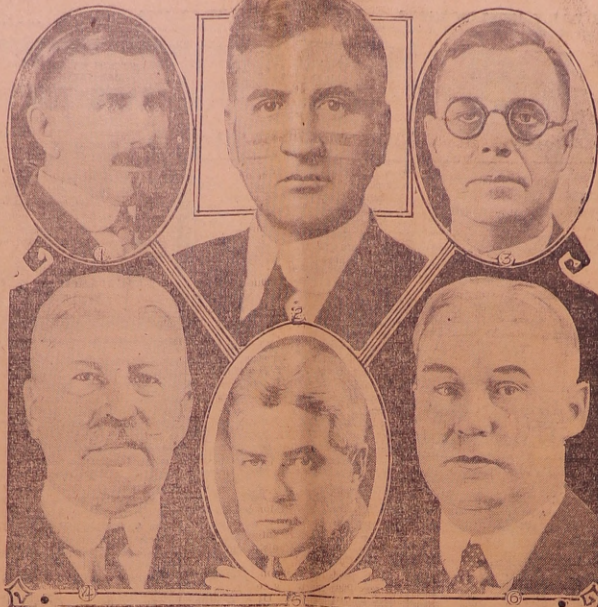

Whitby—Goal, Haves; defence, Sleightholm and Hall; centre, Smith; wings, Rice and Atkinson; subs, Bradley and Bundy.
Referee—Ernie Parkes, Toronto.

3 RINKS BATTLE TODAY'S MARKET

Commercial Travellers Will Eret Tablet in Annex

The semi-finals for the curling club trophy will be played tonight between two rinks that are evenly-matched. These rinks are skipped by two veterans, C. J. Symons and T. J. Hurley. The finals between the victors of tonight's game and J. A. Kerr's rink will be played on Monday night of next week. J. A. Kerr's rink has not been defeated this season and are the only segregation in the club that have had every man out for every game and have not lost a game, which is something of which they may well be proud.

The management is trying to arrange two games here on Tuesday next, afternoon and evening, with the Picton Club. The Picton curlers are splendid entertainers and the locals have always been anxious to have a game with them.

NO EVIDENCE OF CONSPIRACY IN McPHERSON CASE

Charge of Inducing Judge to Accept Money Dropped

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 22.—The County Grand Jury investigating the charges of official corruption in Los Angeles, reported last night that no evidence had been uncovered to indicate that Anne Semple McPherson, Evangelist, had paid money to induce the former District Attorney Asa Keyes to drop the conspiracy case against her.

The Grand Jury, report on the McPherson case suggested, however, that "other bodies may develop further evidence which may warrant action by future grand juries."

This presumably referred to the impeachment proceedings in the state legislature against Premier Judge Carlos S. Hardy, charged with misadventure in office. Hardy admitted receiving $2500 for Mrs. McPherson, which she says was a "gift". His impeachment trial may include the charges the original McPherson conspiracy case.

ALBERT COLLEGE WINS THE ROUND

Defeat Belleville Collegiate 4 to 3 Last Night at Arena

Albert College at last succeeded in defeating their Belleville Collegiate rivals last night at the Arena by the score of 4 to 3, giving Albert the group championship by one goal. Some rather disgraceful scenes marred an otherwise good hockey match, and both teams can be blamed for the trouble. Yull, husky defence man of the College team, was apparently looking for trouble all the time as from the start of the game he commenced to lay on the hickory, and use his weight in any way possible. Referee Ken Colling tried hard to keep these two teams of fighting cocks in their places, but they finally broke away from his control and a free-for-all in which several of the players received black eyes and cuts started. The Albert College goalie was hurt the worst of any of them, as he received a bad cut over the head.

City police were at last called to quell the battle, and after the game was all over Yull and another Albert player were taken to the Station where they spent an uncomfortable half hour talking things over with the Chief. They were later allowed to go.

Three teams have played since this winter without either having the advantage, and apparently both had decided last night that the question would be settled once and for all. Both teams were on edge, and the regrettable features of the game can be blamed on over eagerness to win out. Albert will now go into the next group, the winners of which have not yet been decided.

Just For The Feminine Reader

PUNISHMENT FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Quite a controversy has arisen concerning corporal punishment in schools, and of course there are two sides to every question, and it is interesting to hear the arguments advanced by the teachers and by the parents. Nevertheless the responsibility really lies with the parents during the years when its character is most firmly moulded, and when impressions count for most. Too many parents shirk their responsibilities in regard to their children's upbringing. In a number of cases they are too lax to exert themselves to enforce discipline for the youthful minds are able to comprehend the law that in the social order of the universe there are certain prohibitions, which must be observed. Of these lessons taught in childhood perhaps none is so important as that of self-control. The basis of all violation of law is the lack of self-control. Too many parents send their children to school with the idea that the teacher should correct their mistakes in regard to their children's upbringing. If the children are not amenable to discipline, the teachers are criticized when the defect is easily traceable to the home training. There should be on the home training. There should be the proper training given in the home to pre-school children. But when the occasion arises the good judgment of the teacher and principal should be the deciding factor where it is deemed necessary as a last stand to strap a pupil. In any event, for the sake of the preservation of order in the schoolroom, the parents should uphold the teachers.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

No Puckering
When putting ruffles, lace or anything else you want eased onto your dress, always put the thing you want eased towards you. Otherwise it will pucker.

Scattered Raisins
When making raisin cake or cookies, pour hot water over the raisins first and let them scatter them through the cake dough. This prevents their sinking to the bottom. Dredging with flour before putting into the cake has the same result.

Stamped Press
When steaming the children's school trousers, get out all the spots, then sponge with a cloth wrung out of clear water, fold the creases carefully while they are still damp and spread over papers laid on the radiator. They will dry beautifully, all creases as if steam pressed.

Air Moistens
For the dry, steam heated room, a decorative way to introduce air moistness is to keep a squat little kettle, copper or brass teapot, or kettle on the radiator full of water. Every room should have a fern, too, if possible.

WHAT'S NEW (From A Woman's Standpoint)

Myrtle leaves to crown the bridesmaid seem to be a popular fashion at present, since it was started at the Mayville-Court Bernadotte wedding in New York and the myrtle leaves need not be green; they may be of silver or gold or in any color.

Among Norman Hartnett's spring models at his Paris showing was "The North Pole" fashioned of white organdie with double ruffles edging the flounces, and another outstanding dress termed "Josephine" was developed in yellow satin, and sponsors the high Empire waistline.

There is no doubt of the fact that small leather trimmings are extremely important in the season and they seem to find their greatest bid for popularity in the fact that they can be used to bring the note of color to a dark hat and yet be in perfect harmony with the costume.

At the recent wedding of Miss Barbara Grosvenor to Viscount Dunbar the grown-up bridesmaids wore Tudor-period frocks of peach-colored velvet, with scalloped skirts eight yards wide, and wreaths of golden corn, and the little girls were similarly dressed, but in a lighter shade of the velvet, with the boys in velvet suits to match.

There are as many fancy woolen weaves as there are designers in this branch of textiles and many novelties have been created from the familiar tweeds. Therefore soft woolen undergarments and tweeds in fancy weaves have made sports costumes full of possibilities for expressing individuality.

"No. 3" is a familiar term to seasoned travellers to Western Canada in winter time. It is the designation for the popular trans-continental train operated by the Canadian Pacific which leaves Toronto daily at 9:00 p.m. With modern high grade equipment consisting of compartment observation car, standard sleepers and dining car, and manned by crews trained in efficiency and courtesy, the discriminating traveller knows that his journey will be conspicuously lacking in any of the annoyances sometimes associated with travel.

For those to whom expense is a consideration, No. 3 carries a tourist sleeper, comfortable and fully equipped, with a porter in charge and with facilities for preparing meals. When mapping out your trip, be sure the route is Canadian Pacific; your local agent will welcome the opportunity to cater to your requirements.

CHAPTER 35 WINGS OF CHANCE

Betty's chance came when she least expected it. It came, in fact, at a time when things seemed dull and even her optimism flagged.

It was a rainy night, and the Folly clientele had remained at home. At any rate, there wasn't much of a crowd, and not a spending crowd at all. The fact lowered the spirits of more than the proprietor. Betty, in particular, always needed the stimulus of noise that passed for gaiety, and rosydism that passed for excitement. Moreover, she and several sister acts had just been informed by the gloomy proprietor that the club would be closed some time.

"Gosh, I always play in rotten luck!" thought Betty. "If I'd stuck to Joe, I'd be out on the road with a three-day vaudeville turn. Which had been the dubious prize that Gert's spouse had drawn."

As the evening wore on and her act won only perfunctory applause, her gloom increased so that she almost failed to recognize an old friend at one of the tables. He was alone, miraculously, and he beckoned her over. She slumped into the chair that a waiter wanted back for her and surveyed him apathetically.

"Why the gloom?" he asked. "You look about as joyful as a comedian at his fourth wedding."

"The dump is closing. I gotta get out and look for a job."

His eyes narrowed. "I've a hunch you won't have to look very far, thank me."

"Windily mean?"

He leaned toward her confidentially and lowered his voice.

"I'm booked in the Feldmann revue—see? Well, the old man signed up Marcella, that Spanish dame that does the song and dance, but she's had a fit of temperance, 'cause she can't have a million pet dogs in her dressing room, and called it off. There's a gap in the show as wide as the Grand Canyon, and the opening's tomorrow night. The old man's tearing his hair, but there ain't a hope on the horizon at this season with all the good ones already under contract. It's got to be some one unknown, some one who can't be a chance of coming across with something awfully and knocking 'em cold. Being mother's fair-haired boy, I thought of you!"

"Thanks," said Betty briefly. "I like that some one should say that."

"You bet that way? I was playing on Broadway when you were only a program-boy in a burlesque house on the coast."

He grinned sheepishly. "No need to get snooty when I'm trying to do you a good turn. I tell you I thought of you right away, and I went to the old man and I says: 'See here, Feldmann—he knows I got good ideas, and I saw it in the very act for you. She's at the Folly and she's a wow.' And he says, right off, trusting my judgment and knowing I know what I'm talking about, he says: 'Tell her to come down and talk to me at nine tomorrow morning.'"

Betty looked at him wearily. She didn't place an ounce of stock in this patent-leather haired juvenile, who claimed to be on such terms with one of the biggest producers in the game. She rose and yawned.

"I don't think I'll waste any sleep getting up for that nine o'clock appointment. Thanks just the same. So long."

"You'll be sorry, if you don't," he warned her.

She laughed at that, but all the same the story haunted her the rest of the evening. There might, after all, be a shred of truth in the story that the temperamental Marcella had quit and the revue was out a feature.

When she made her entrance for the second performance of the evening, she saw a big man sitting at an oblique table with a couple of male companions. Feldmann himself!

Lassitude dropped from Betty like the scarlet cloak she wore before she went into her song and dance. She put every ounce of pep she possessed into her work, and she was like a living flame. If Julian could have seen her then, he could not have been made to believe that this vivid, grateful, lithe creature was the languid, fretful girl who had loomed about his apartment all winter and spring.

She roused the sluggish audience and took more encores than she'd taken on the best night the Folly ever had. Her final tribute, which was dearer to her than all the American Beauties that were subsequently handed over the footlights in the years to come, was the visiting-card of the great Feldmann brought to her by a page in the cubicle in which she dwelt. Scrawled across it was the sentence that danced before her eyes:

"Come to my office at nine tomorrow morning."

"And fifteen minutes ago I was heaving because I didn't have a contract with this joint—it having expired on me!" she murmured. "And if I had one now, I'd be so mad I'd be chewing it."

She knew that Feldmann would give her a chance. And he did. Which proves that the gods decided to smile for awhile on little Betty. Just long enough to make her cocky.

She signed with Feldmann three days later, after a triumphant first-night performance. Her act went over with a bang, and the audience almost forgot that it had been promised the dream-eyed Spanish songstress.

A month later she was installed in an overly-luxurious apartment, with a personal maid and a Peke. Feldmann's shows always went over and always ran the same choice to withdraw them so her salary, though not munificent as theatrical salaries go, was assured.

And there was plenty of credit in the world for a head-line of Feldmann's. If something went wrong with Betty, it might be well to save for the inevitable rainy day, she ignored the warning.

Lucinda saw Betty's picture in the paper one Sunday, as she idled over a late breakfast. She made a slight move of disgust, she recognized the piquant features of the girl who, at the Folly, had claimed friendship with Norman and Julian.

Julian saw the same picture in Hawaii a few weeks later. He was lounging in a comfortable wicker chair on the cool, shady veranda with Cornelia and Ned. He read, with a wry twist of his handsome mouth, the caption under the picture: "Broadway's Newest Star—Betty Turner—Whose songs and dances have proved the hit of The Newest Feldmann Revue."

So Betty had arrived! He hoped she was happy. He wished her luck. Later he saw Cornelia gravely regarding the same picture and, though totally ignorant of her growing regard for him, he wondered, half-humorously, what she would say, how shocked she would be, if he confessed that he was the husband of this butterfly.

"COLLEGIATE CHATTER"

By Helen Jones

The most difficult part in writing a composition is to obtain an opening sentence which will attract attention and a closing paragraph which will be so effective that the reader may forget the defects between it and the title. Thus with most matters the difficulty arises in getting started and the rest looks after itself. Such was the case too with our regular morning assemblies. At first only a few ventured in but for the last two days or more we have had almost the whole student body in attendance. Yesterday morning every student in the two fifth forms was present except two. It is very probable that other forms may have turned out in a body. If so, why not tell us?

Of course you are remembering the open meeting of the Literary society tonight at 8:00 o'clock. The admission is 15 cents for students and children and 25 cents for adults. There are only three Senior students speaking so you cannot possibly get weary. There will be a stunt put on by the fifth form boys under the guidance of Miss Billings. This alone is worth seeing. Miss Florence Harbour, one of our present student body will sing a solo and Catherine Smith also a student.

CROP ROTATION AND ROOT ROT

It is a well known fact that better crop yields are obtained by a proper change of crops. The moisture, till and fertility are improved, and stronger plants are produced. At least a part of the improved fertility is associated with the increased activity of the soil inhabiting fungi and bacteria, resulting from the change of crop or cultural practice.

In most soils there are literally millions of these microscopic plants. Some times several millions may be found in a single gram of soil. The numbers and kind of these tiny plants depend directly on the amount and kind of food, and conditions for their growth in the soil. Certain plants favor the development of some kinds of soil more than others. When root parts or other plant remains are added to the soil, the fungi and bacteria quickly multiply on this material reducing it to plant food. At the same time the activity of these affects other potential plant food in the soil, and which, with out this influence would remain unavailable. Unfortunately some of these soil inhabiting fungi and bacteria may attack both living and dead root parts of some plants. The fungi that cause root rot of wheat is able to do this. Therefore, when wheat follows wheat for a term of years, there is an accumulation of the root rotting fungi until the amount becomes so great that much loss may occur. On the other hand, oats, flax and the legumes are not appreciably attacked by the fungi which attack the roots of wheat. With a crop of any of these the root rotting fungi will decrease so that wheat may again be grown with comparatively slight loss.

From extensive surveys, made by the Dominion Plant Pathology Laboratories, it is clear that nearly more than a trace of root rot occurs where wheat follows breaking of the virgin-

EXECUTIVE MEETING OF KINGSTON MISSIONARY SOCIETY CONVE

Mrs. Diana Strickland, of London, England, explorer and big game hunter, says the bobbed heads of today have everything in common with fashions of the primitive jungle dwellers and so classes many of today's ballroom dances. Mrs. Strickland wears her coiffure in a new and novel manner, the rolled braid being worn over one ear and other ear being exposed. One ear-ring helps the other along. Mrs. Strickland is at present in Africa where she is hunting for pygmy elephants. In her opinion it is an African interesting roughing it in an African jungle than attending teas and bridges at home.

sod. However, there is a marked increase of the severity of root-rot on the second, third and fourth crops. The reason for this has not yet been determined experimentally, but there is the possibility that the introduction of wheat debris into the soil is an important factor. Of course, there are many cases where severe root rot fails to develop and this may be due to certain soil or other climatic factors. Where spring wheat follows wheat, successively on old cultivated land the root rot tends to become more severe. The effect of the time of plowing on the development of root rot has not been determined. There is good evidence that stubbling in a crop or the inclusion of a large amount of wheat stubble will greatly favor the severity. But summerfallow, or a crop of oats, will undoubtedly, reduce the root-rot on the following crop of wheat. But so Phail, Cor Secy, Kingston, reported that with a transfer of three or four acres from this Presbyterian during the year, the membership for the year stands at 404 an increase of 25 over last year.

In certain parts of Western Canada, where the root rot is a menace, a good crop rotation will be very helpful in checking the root rot. In fact this is the only method at present available.

Plans Of Presbyterian Are Made At Meeting Here

An executive meeting of the Kingston Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society Presbyterian Church in Canada, was held in Belleville on Feb. 19th, at the home of Mrs. Geo. A. Reid, Queen Street. Delegates were present from Kingston, Trenton, Stirling, Madoc and Belleville.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. H. Duff, President, Kingston, and the minutes were recorded by Miss E. L. Mowat, Sec. Secy, Kingston.

Plans were made for an itinerary of the Presbyterian by the Field Secy Miss P. B. Lamont during the first three weeks of April. This is a new venture on behalf of Miss Lamont in her desire to extend the work of missions so it is hoped that her efforts will meet with a hearty response throughout the Presbyterian. The following Committee was appointed to arrange for Miss Lamont's tour—Mrs. Geo. A. Reid, Belleville; Mrs. Jenkins, Madoc; Mrs. H. Rollins, Stirling; and Mrs. S. B. Rollins, Trenton.

The President reported having been successful in securing Mrs. (Dr.) Ross, Ottawa, an outstanding speaker on behalf of W.M.S. work to speak on Mission work in British Guiana at the Presbyterian in Madoc, the latter part of May. Illustrative slides will accompany this lecture.

The question of an allocation for each Auxiliary was then discussed but it was decided that it was in the best interest of the course to merely ask each auxiliary to strive to increase their savings of last year. It was strongly urged that all auxiliaries send their money promptly to the Presbyterian Treasurer. It was pointed out that while the auxiliary was reaping only 3 per cent, 7 per cent was being paid out for money to carry on the year's work. While the expense money of the Women's Missionary Society is not supposed to exceed 1-1/4 per cent of all missionary savings, this expense last year reached only 1 per cent. Still greater curtailment of expense was urged and in view of this the abolishment of one or two minor secretaries was favorably considered.

A resolution from the Executive of the Kingston Presbyterian is to be sent to the Provincial to the effect that the office of General Interest Secy might be abolished and her duties devolved upon one of the vice presidents.

Reports from the Department Secretaries were then received. Mrs. MacPhail, Cor Secy, Kingston, reported that with a transfer of three or four acres from this Presbyterian during the year, the membership for the year stands at 404 an increase of 25 over last year.

Mrs. Jenkins Mission Band Society, Madoc, reported 9 Mission Bands with an enrollment of 226 members. Mrs. Gothard, Supply Secy, Trenton, reported having sent away supplies to the value of $4.70.

Mrs. Bell, Home Helpers Secy, Belleville reported much active work having been done in her department of the work during the year.

Mrs. A. B. Fargy, Welcome and Welfare Secy, Stirling, gave a very extensive report of the work among the sick and shut-ins and among our new comers. She pointed out that many calls were received during the year to assist in the location of our stranger friends in order that a hand of welcome may be extended to them.

The Library Secy, Mrs. Leishman, Kingston, reported a continued appreciation of the work being done in sending literature to the mining camps.

The following appointments were then made: Delegates to Presbytery, Mrs. Duff, Kingston; Mrs. Morrice and Mrs. Geo. A. Reid, Belleville.

Delegate to Provincial meeting at Hamilton, Mrs. MacPhail, Kingston.

Substitute for President: at Hamilton, Mrs. (Rev.) D. A. MacKenzie, Burnbrae.

Substitute for President at Council at Ottawa, Mrs. Bain, Gananoque.

Little Theatre Movement Aided By The Hart House Theatre

Toronto, Ont. (By C.P.)—Hart House Theatre has done much for the Little Theatre movement in Canada—perhaps it is not a little theatre at all, but the very best of its kind, sprung from humble things, for through the munificence of the Massey family, it came full-fledged into dramatic life as part of the conception of Hart House itself, that beautiful quadrangle of buildings that is the heart and core of Toronto University student life. Throughout the 10 years or so of its existence Vincent Massey has been chairman of the Syndics of Hart House Theatre, and it may be presumed that not even his absence in Washington embassy has slackened his controlling hand.

As is proper with little theatres, it has seen a good deal of experimentation, and it may be hazardous that it has not reached its full development and of a certain it has no established for itself a dramatic tradition apt to become cramping and stereotyped. This season, the bill of fare is

Better Days-Better Ways

MAN'S ingenuity has turned the dreams of yesterday into realities of to-day.

A marked contribution to modern progress has been made by Life Insurance. Among the advantages it affords is that it enables a person to "create an estate immediately and pay for it later."

For example: If you desire a $25,000 estate you can guarantee it by depositing 2% per year. (Age 33, London Life Jubilee Annual Dividend Policy). Even if you lived to make only one deposit the London Life would deliver to your heirs the entire $25,000.

Thus Life insurance makes it possible for you to set up an estate sufficient to provide a life income for your wife—a fund for your later years—a monthly cheque if you are disabled—or money for whatever other needs you may have.

The benefits of life insurance can be secured only while you are in good health. For this reason the agent is your friend when he advises you to take life insurance NOW.

QUEEN ADMIRES C.N.L. EXHIBIT AT FAIR

London, Eng. (By Canadian Press).—"That is very pretty," commented Her Majesty the Queen, as she paused to examine an illuminated picture of Jasper Park, which forms part of the display of the Canadian National Railways shown at the British Industries Fair.

Her Majesty was accompanied by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, during her visit to the fair, she was interested in the displays of the Canadian exhibitors and appeared to pay particular attention to the section devoted to the National Canadian Railways.

Jasper Park is the largest preserve and wild life sanctuary in North America and within its confines are contained many beautiful scenes of mountain, forest, lake and stream. These have been widely pictured and a selection of these pictures have been placed on view at the fair.

A giant swing on a falling water spout from the third floor of a warehouse into the river below was the dangerous feat required of Bebe Daniels in her new starring picture for Paramount. "What a Night!" the Belle Theatre attraction for today and Saturday. In fact it is this nocturnal adventure that inspires the titles of the production. To film the scene a three-story warehouse and a river were built and created at the Hollywood studios. Los Angeles and Southern California being notoriously lacking of flowing streams.

Young Ambassador, Here Before, Will Take Up Farming in Canada

Montreal, February. - Frederick Thomas Mace, of 5240 Old Kent Road, London, has decided to come to Canada to take up farming and has been booked by the Colonization Department of the Canadian National Railways at London to travel under the ten pound rate. Mr. Mace will leave on the "Andana," Cunard liner, on March 16th and having landed in Canada proceed to Winnipeg and will be placed from that point.

Mr. Mace is twenty and a half years old and was one of the young scholars who came to Canada with "The Young Ambassadors," and since his return from the tour has been engaged as Cost Clerk in London. He was educated at the Westminster City School, London and he studied and completed the correspondence course in Canadian farming which is conducted by the overseas offices of the Canadian National Railways.

Mace was one of a party of six young Ambassadors who made a special tour to a pioneer's home just out of Edmonton. The owner of this farm was an Englishman who went out to Canada with his wife and two children under the 3,000 Families Scheme in 1924. When he reached Canada, he had only a few pounds in his pocket. After four years, this man has paid 500 pounds off the total purchase price of 1200 pounds and lived and kept his family entirely on the sale of poultry and produce of his garden. The proceeds of his crops went to the repayment of the loan.

What Mace heard and saw fired his ambition and he decided then and there to himself become a Canadian farmer when the opportunity offered. It was due entirely to his visit to this pioneer farm home, that the decision was made, for it indicated to him more clearly than did visits to Agricultural Colleges and model farms in other parts of Canada what could be done provided an emigrant had determination and the grit to stick it.

The name of the farmer in the Edmonton district to whom we have referred is: Albert Boshier, a native of Wokingham, whose farm is 20 miles from Edmonton and consists of 159 acres, 85 of which are under cultivation. Formerly he was employed as a Grocer's assistant in Wales.

COMPETENT WAITERS IN THE MINORITY

London, Eng. (By Canadian Press.) Hotel managers in different parts of this country and in Northern Ireland are complaining that they have difficulty in securing really competent waiters. In view of the "campaign" just launched for encouraging a "Come to Britain" move ment among tourists from other parts of the world, this shortage is particularly unfortunate. Englishmen are not naturally adapted for such a calling, which is considered by many of a menial character, although a first class waiter needs several qualities of the higher sort, and can earn good money. Undoubtedly the present shortage in waiters has been brought about in part, at least by the refusal of the Home Office to allow aliens to accept salaried positions here. The hotels of London in pre-war days were filled with waiters from continental countries.

At Belleville Players Came Through First Game In Good Shape

Belleville's Junior O. H. A. team, have what appears to be an easy task before them tonight when they stack up against the Oshawa Shamrocks in the second game of the second round. Unless the Colts are beaten by six or more goals tonight, they will go into the third round, as they defeated the Shamrocks on the Belleville ice 6 to 1 last Wednesday night.

Belleville is playing last fast hockey at the present time, and were clearly a far better team than the Shamrocks on Wednesday night's play. Tonight is a different night, however, and the green clad boys from the Motor City may step out and trim the Colts to a frazzle. Don't bet any money that they will, though.

At the present time there are twelve teams in the running for Junior O. H. A. honors, and by this time next week the list will have been cut to a little less than half that number. Niagara Falls put out Port Colborne by a large score last

Sportogram's

To-night's night.

The Colts left this afternoon on the 2:50 train at full strength to take on the Oshawa Shamrocks in Whitby, and if they let the Green-shirts overcome their five-goal lead, most of them say they aren't coming back.

But from the Shamrocks showing here Wednesday night, the Colts will win right on the Whitby ice. The Oshawa team compared the Wednesday game to the Milkman's Horse—they called it a Nightmare.

Leveque, Shamrocks' goalie, was rated as "one of the best in the game at the present time" by the Oshawa Times Sports writer. Wonder what he thought after the game?

And we wonder what Leveque thought after Bob Scott had rifled a few of his shots in at him. None too pleasant thoughts, we'll bet.

There is no doubt that the Shamrocks have played better games than they did against the Colts, but when a team has had to put away two hard teams like Trenton and Queens and then stacks up against a team like the Shamrocks, which to tell the truth looked weaker than any team Belleville has played this year, it stands to reason that they would run wild. And they did.

To those who cannot make the trip to Whitby tonight, phone either on 36 or 1248 for complete returns on the game. This service has been given at every out of town hockey game this year, and that it is appreciated is shown by the number of calls received at this office every night an out of town game is played.

This Belleville Junior outfit must be a smart team. They walked into Oshawa Shamrocks last night in the Quins. Town and grabbed a lead of five goals. Belleville played a smart passing game and had the Oshawa defence at their mercy. Belleville may surprise some of the experts and win the Junior champion ship.—Petersboro Examiner.

We got a letter from Charley this morning. No not Charley Horse either. C. C. Pyle has forwarded an entry blank with all the information and lots of other stuff, necessary to enter his big Burton Derby which will start westward from New York on Sunday, March 31.

Local aspirants, if there are any, must consider a number of things. The item of prime importance being an entry fee of $300. If this does not discourage the enthusiastic amateur there are a number of other clauses that will command his serious attention. He is competing at his own risk and a permanent case of flat feet will not be a case of legal action against the Pyle Company or rather corporation as it is called in the entry form.

First prize is $25,000 with $10,000 to be second place and $5,000 for third place.

There are twelve other prizes on the list from $350 down to $700 which is the only outstanding new feature of the event. Cash and Carry's new race should put to rest the rumor that he dropped money on the last cross country lap. He would hardly be fool enough to try it again after losing once.

Critics who recall the old days when hockey players had to be real "he men," with every one being called upon to play the full sixty minutes without relief, claim that Percy Leveque was one of the best goalies that ever donned a pad.

Even the baseball critics admit it, judging by the following from a recent issue of the Baseball Magazine, by W. D. Shovel:
"The guardian of the net must be extremely skeptical of any ruse to pull him out of his goal. He must be the personification of coolness; indeed, he must be almost entirely devoid of nerves—that would seem to be his slogan. It is a fact that the greatest goalies take their responsibilities with the greatest nonchalance. Percy Leveque and Georges Vezina, the famous Wagner of hockey, are generally conceded to have been the greatest goal-tenders of all time."

"Bob" Scott seems to be the "King Pin" of the Belleville junior team, playing brilliant hockey all season and having a reputation as a sharp shooting goal getter. The Shamrock juniors will step out on the ice with full instructions to check him closely until they find out how good he really is.—Oshawa Times.

I wonder if they've found out yet?

PLAY-OFF GAMES MOOTED BETWEEN VARIOUS CITIES

Attempt Being Made To Organize Association Among Ontario City Leagues

If present plans materialize it is more than likely that an interprovincial play-off will take place this year between the many youth and commercial and Industrial Leagues in Ontario and Quebec. So many requests have been made from time to time, and suggestions given that an association be formed to conduct such a play-off, that the Toronto Hockey League at a recent meeting of the executive committee, went thoroughly into the question and decided to endorse such a plan. With over 70 business clubs in its league, the T. H. L. has probably more clubs of this kind than any other league or association in the country. It was felt by the executive that even if it was not possible to arrange a play-off for all series, that an effort should be made to arrange inter-city games for at least the major and possibly the senior divisions of the league.

Jack Turner, the A. A. U. of C. governor, and secretary, Frank D. Smith, were endorsed as a committee to take the necessary steps to see if such an association could be formed, as if enough interest is shown a meeting will be called in the near future to formulate plans, with this idea in view.

With commercial and industrial leagues now operating in many cities such as Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, London, Kitchener, Brantford, Windsor and many other places, it was felt that some wonderful competition would result, and the keenest of rivalry. If such an association could be formed.

Any league either in any of these cities mentioned or any others who might be interested are requested to communicate at once with Frank D. Smith, Room 214, Manning Chambers, Toronto. No time should be lost by any league that is interested, as owing to the lateness of the season, an early meeting will be necessary to arrange such a play-off this year.

By popular consent—the smoke of pleasure.

ROCHESTER IN CANPRO LEAGUE

Franchise Promised At Meeting of Executive—Will Build New Rink

London, Ont., Feb. 22.—The interests behind the Buffalo Hockey Club struck an optimistic note at the meeting of the Canpro held here yesterday, when, after a summary of the situation in Rochester, N.Y., they asked and were given an option on a franchise for that city. T. Taber, of the Buffalo Club, painted Rochester, which is only 60 miles from Buffalo, in such glowing tints as a prospective hockey centre and offered such convincing and business-like arguments for its inclusion in the wheel that no opposition was offered, especially after the Buffalo men promised to have an arena erected by August 1, if the franchise is finally taken up.

The play-offs will follow the plan announced last year of four teams being allowed in and the first and third place clubs meeting in semi-finals while a survivor was being determined between the second and fourth place teams. The semi-finals will be two games out of three, while the finals will be the best three out of five games. Percentage divisions have been left to the president to determine.

Gene Fraser, representing Niagara Falls, reiterated his claim on Dutch Cain, the player whom President Calder ruled was the property of the Toronto Leafs, and who was loaned by the Toronto Club to Buffalo. The Canpro governors decided that Cain was the property of Niagara Falls in the light of the new evidence produced by Fraser, and will ask President Calder to reconsider the case.

The League also ruled that the Niagara Falls Club must pay London the $500 for Paddon and Markie and that Starkings, who was included in the deal, but who refused to report, reverts as the property of the local club.

Referee troubles in the Canpro during the present campaign were discussed at some length, and although nothing will be done this season the League is likely to adopt a new policy next year in the appointment of officials.

Brien Says—Prosecutors Under Liquor Act Were Dropped

BECK MONUMENT

Acting Premier States Old Age Pensions Will Be Working Shortly

Toronto, Mar. 6.—Violent verbal clashes between members of the public accounts committee of the Ontario legislature featured the session of the committee called this morning to hear the evidence of P. C. Brien, former Provincial police officer, at Kitchener, Ont. Brien had been called on as a witness on the motion of W. E. N. Sinclair, leader of the Liberal opposition. There were several heated arguments between the members in regard to the evidence.

Brien testified that while he was attached to the force at Kitchener, prosecutions under the liquor control act had been delayed or dropped on the orders of superior officers. He said that when he was dismissed from the force, no reason was given him other than that he was indebted to one Gordon Brown, who had been convicted for keeping liquor for sale. Brien admitted, however, that he had been in debt in Brockville, Hamilton and Kitchener, and had been sued. His superior officers had remanded him for the debt.

DANDURAND CLAIMS GRIEVANCES MINORITY SHOULD BE SUBMITTED TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL

Come To Grips On Question After Long Talks Behind Scene

COUNCIL ADJOURNS

Look For Agreement On Adhesion Of U. S. To World Court

Geneva, Mar. 6.—(By George Hamilton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Senator Raoul Dandurand of Canada today laid before the Council of the League of Nations his scheme providing that grievances of the minority of people throughout the world should be submitted to the league council instead of the committee of three.

The council came to grips with the minority question after the long talks behind the scenes and after sitting half an hour. Immediately an item was called Senator Dandurand took the floor. He said that in submitting his proposals to the council he had been actuated by the scenes of justice and a desire to do his duty towards the League of Nations.

After the council had listened to Gustave Stresemann, Chancellor of Germany, it adjourned until four o'clock this afternoon.

Geneva, Mar. 6.—A reaction of those here in possession of the formula of Eilhu Root, veteran United States statesman, for adhesion of the United States to the "World Court" is extremely favorable.

The spokesman of one of the great powers represented on the committee or the revision of the world court statutes said that it was a practical proposal as a basis of discussion and he believed there was little doubt that the agreement would be reached.

CANADIAN CLUB LIST TWO MORE GIFTED SPEAKERS

Mrs. Thorburn To Speak On Thursday and Arthur Lismer on Friday

The Women's Canadian Club have been fortunate in procuring two outstanding speakers to address their meetings this week. Unfortunately the only dates procurable were Thursday and Friday of this week, but rather than miss the opportunity of hearing this subject in a most interesting manner and others interested would attend both nights.

Thursday night Mrs. Thorburn of Ottawa will address an open meeting of the Club. This is open for all interested in this subject which will be the "Peace Tower" in the Hall of Fame. It is a subject of wide interest and particularly so to teachers and pupils of the schools, and others interested in the history of Canada, which of course includes all public spirited citizens.

Mrs. Thorburn deals with this subject in a most interesting manner and those who have been privileged to hear her commend her highly.

Mr. Arthur Lismer is the speaker on Friday night and his appearance here culminates a series of unsuccessful efforts to procure his services here as a lecturer, but since the Club has been finally successful, due to the extension of the term of his lecture, it is one will miss this opportunity to hear Mr. Lismer's lecture on "Canadian Art: its history and development to the present day."

In the jail this morning the Manards were picked out from a number of men as the men wanted by the Montreal police.

An application will be made to the Attorney General department of Ontario through the Attorney General of Quebec for their extradition to the eastern province and the more serious charge.

"You have a building here of which you may well be proud and it is one of the finest and most up-to-date I have ever visited." He paid a stirring compliment to the Principal P. C. TODAY'S THOUGHT THE ARENA AGAIN!

A number of ratepayers are up in arms over the City Council's proposal to dispose of that area known as the Greatrix property, south of the market square, to the Belleville Arena Company. Undoubtedly, there is some justification for their opposition. It must be admitted that the original plan was to extend the market south to take care of the overflow. The ratepayers feel that this should not be sold and their opinion is shared by some of the dissenting members of the Council. Some of the aldermen even favor a grant toward the erection of the arena on another location rather than see this land taken up by the auditorium. A petition has been circulated to this effect and many ratepayers are signing the document. Whether all those affixing their signatures are cognizant of its meaning is a question and one man was distinctly heard to remark: "I don't know and I don't care where the arena will be placed, but I sign my name to any petition that is placed before me." That, in itself is a very lackadaisical attitude to assume. The Council often act on a petition after noting the number of names that have been affixed.

On the other hand Belleville needs a new arena and needs it badly! When the agitation was started for a new Collegiate there was a strong opposition in some quarters. Canvass the ratepayers today and you will find that few if any of them regret that the magnificent structure was added to Belleville's beauty. The same applies to the Station Street pavement and other local improvements. The City now has an opportunity to secure a new covered arena at practically no cost to the municipality. The men behind the scheme and one of them in particular, the sponsor of the movement, is honestly endeavoring to do something for his native city. Architectural beauty is a desired asset to any city and an imposing new covered arena would obviously add to the distinctiveness of the downtown district. The directors have not allied themselves in a money making scheme. They have affirmed, and there are few who will dispute them, that they do not expect one red cent back from their investment.

When will our market grow and increase to that extent that additional space is required. With the influx of the chain store movement busy housewives are making use of the telephone to supply the week's provisions. Belleville is a rural centre and undoubtedly the farmers contribute largely to the revenue derived by the local merchants, but when will the attendance increase to that extent that more space is required? There is a property on the north side of the square that is available and there is little doubt that it could be purchased for a reasonable sum for market space.

The wall has gone up time and again that young people are drifting from our Canadian centres to those of that great land to the south. Why? Because in many instances there is little or nothing in the form of amusement to keep them here and youth invariably turns to some form of sport or recreation. How many cities in the province of Ontario are without a fine, up-to-date arena? Belleville is one of them and for the past fifteen years, the city has been denied behind the times in this respect.

The directors of the rink have promised that the arena will be available for an indoor market. It is can be turned to scores of uses, the annual Kixing Carnival, a parking centre, boxing, seed fairs and innumerable other purposes. The City Council are playing football with the question now, after having passed a motion to dispose of it, and although there is every reason to believe that the majority are in favor, there is an apparent undercurrent to block the move. Those opposed to it had their inning last Monday when they refused to suspend the rules in order that Alderman Walker could introduce his motion. The next meeting will probably result in some warm discussion on the matter.

A "MOTOR-TUBE"

In connection with the suggested channel tunnel, connecting France and England, a new development of much interest is being discussed. Not only do the plans provide for a train service between the two countries, but the latest idea is to have a "motor-tube" also, enabling motorists to drive their cars to and fro between the Mother Country and the continent of Europe. The proposal has gone so far that arguments are being advanced regarding the advisability of changing the English rule of the road so that there would be no confusion on emerging from the tunnel. On the continent traffic keeps to the right, while in the British Isles it keeps to the left. It is thought to be too much to ask of any driver to suddenly change his habits on arriving on British soil. The construction of such a "tube" would undoubtedly stimulate tourist traffic very greatly, and advocates of the right hand rule are seizing the opportunity to strengthen their propaganda. It is suggested that when the tunnel is opened—for it is taken for granted that it will be some day in the not too remote future—the right hand rule be universally brought into force.

SPEEDY JUSTICE

Undoubtedly, the action of the Grand Jury is disposing of the Henley case at the Spring Assizes, yesterday, in short order, will be the subject of commendation in every quarter. This youngster, tormented by his brother, was merely the victim of circumstances and it would have been doing the boy a grave injustice to send him to a reformatory or any institution where he might have been thrown into contact with young criminals and he would have emerged as a wayward youth bent on seeking a living by some underhand method. He did not realize the terrible crime that he was committing when he shot his brother and in mental torment and anguish, he has probably suffered more than if despatched to a school of correction or a reformatory. A boys' school is maintained at Bowmanville by the Kwanians of this province and here the lad would be given an opportunity to study or learn a trade in order that he may go out into the world, prepared for his stormy ways. Hon. Justice Loe's remarks to the boy and the jury should not be taken as a grain of salt and undoubtedly they will receive the consideration that is due. Instead of recommending the youth he encouraged him to take part in sports in order to prepare himself for the battle of life. Young Henley, yet in public school, has a whole life ahead of him and he has plenty of time to make amends for the deed. He will not be branded as a criminal, after this experience, and with a little kindly advice will develop into a shining example of Canadian manhood.

THE RIGHT CURSE

Chief Newhall of Peterboro has issued a warning that motorists and irresponsible drivers who splash through the city streets drenching pedestrians will be prosecuted. This form of nuisance is not confined to Peterboro as the same careless, thoughtless individual graces our fair city. Only recently we noted a young lady standing at the curb, a victim of one of these boorish drivers who crashed through the mud and slime throwing water in all directions. From a pedestrian's point of view it would hurt the feelings of few if Chief of Police Kidd would adopt the same stern measures here. The Editor of the Peterboro Examiner says:

"Already there are many complaints from citizens who have received an unexpected shower bath of dirty water because of some driver who splashed through a puddle with no consideration for anybody else."

The same trouble has been caused every spring and by much the same people, the class of driver that has been responsible for most of the traffic regulations and restrictions.

Appealing to the common sense or courtesy of such drivers is merely a waste of time; the only cure indicated in their case is a police court appearance and a levy that will make them realize that it is profitable to have a thought for others.

It will be remembered that last year several Toronto drivers of this type who drenched pedestrians were fined for careless driving—and the same policy should be adopted here as the only sure way of dealing with the situation.

A TRIBUTE TO COOLIDGE

The New York Times, although Democratic in its sympathies, has a laudatory message for Mr. Calvin Coolidge on his retirement from the presidency. It gives him due credit for hard but unpretentious service, for talent, not as a politician in the lower sense, but that in "the higher ranges of political insight and manipulation he is a master." But this is not all, and we reproduce the tribute of the great metropolitan newspaper as an example of fine and impartial appreciation: "The best remains to be said. It is of the deep impress made by President Coolidge's rugged integrity. This was like a rock in 1924. While the country was left shuddering and ashamed by revelations of corruption under President Harding, it turned with relief and confidence to the unchallenged simplicity and purity of the life which both official and private, was going on in the White House. Mr. Coolidge had such a shield in his demonstrated character that political arrows fell from it blunted and broken. And how greatly he was helped in all this by the charm and unaffected kindness of the First Lady in the White House it is needless to say, for the whole nation has been a gratified witness of it. The two will now turn to their Massachusetts home, not amid wild acclaim, but with solid and enduring evidence of public affection and gratitude."

WHEN SPRING COMES

When Spring comes over the hills again
 I'll be waiting on tiptoe
 For the glint of gold and warm, sweet rains
 Coaxing the flowers to grow.
 I'll climb to the top of the highest hill
 And stretch like the growing flowers,
 Till, drenched with gold, I'll recapture youth
 In the warmth of springtime hours.
 When Spring comes over the hill again
 And the sap begins to stir,
 Till the maple-buds are red in the rain
 And the robins come home to her;
 Then joy will flow in the heart of man.
 Like sap in the growing tree,
 And the rapture of many a bygone Spring
 Will be crossing the hills to me
 When Spring comes over the hills again
 With her tresses of sunlit gold,
 And beneath her feet where the snow has lain
 The little green leaves unfold,
 The earth shall wake from her slumbering dream
 An heart in her brown breast throbs,
 When Spring comes over the hills again
 To waken the sleeping sod

Mr. Frank W. Knox, of Trenton, has been re-engaged as purser on the steamer North King, for the season of 1929.

Mrs. McKinley who went to the White House an invalid can be considered such no longer. Her improvement in health has been remarkable.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

She: "I can only be a—"
 He: "Don't say it. It won't do. I have five sisters already, and, to tell the truth, they are not favourably disposed towards you. They think of you as you would be the mistake of my life."

She: "Oh, indeed? I'll show them. We'll be married just as soon as I can get ready."

A Jew and an Irishman were on board a ship bound for Ireland.
 Irishman (catching sight of his fatherland): Hurrah for Ireland!
 Jew (cried): Hurrah, hell.
 Irishman: That's right. Every man for his own country.

Jane: What's the difference between a girl and a horse?
 Dick: I don't know.
 Jane: I'll bet you have some great dates.

"I met a girl last night who had never been necked."
 "Gosh, introduce me to her. I'd like to meet a girl like that myself!"
 "Well, she isn't like that now."

"I'd go through hell for my wife!"
 "That's nothing. I've gone through it with mine."

She: If you don't leave this room immediately, I'll call the whole police department to put you out."

The Brute: My love, it would take the whole fire department to put me out.

"And then the engine died and the plane started on a tail spin for earth."

"Didn't you lose your head?"
 "Not for a minute! When I saw the plane start to fall I ran for the nearest house."

Lady Passenger: Could I see the captain?

First Mate: He's forward, Miss.
 Lady Passenger: I'm not afraid. I've been out with college boys.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Newa despatches inform us that "Lindy" and his sweetheart go sky-larking in spite of the fact that the one eagle has one arm in a sling. His fiancée operates the gears while Co. Chas. is chief pilot. The good old fashioned way when the blushing avian tossed the reins over the dash and with the crack of the whip sent Dobbin skidding up the country road is fast disappearing. Our forefathers would be given a rude shock were they to see the newest forms of courtship. The crash was probably due to his first experience of back-seat driving.

Latest theory on the strange disappearance of the two bootleggers in Lake Ontario is hi-jackers. We were laboring under the impression that these things existed only in Chicago. Forms soon will have all the modern pretties of sport including gang wars right here in the village.

"Billy" Nugent, our esteemed County Clerk and Good Roads President, is the latest member to blossom forth as a broadcaster, and his pleasant voice floated over the air the other evening following his election as head of the Roads Association. He took over the "mic" and did the job in splendid fashion. Congratulations to him on his election as head of one of Ontario's leading bodies.

Old-timers' forecasts of a floodless Spring were punctured when boat-builders reported over three feet of water in the harbor boat sheds. However, we are still behind the O. T.'s and if Mother Moira doesn't rise up in a fit of passion it will be a relief to many souls who have been awakened by a cake of ice seeking entrance at the front door. Page the Thermit expert.

Kingsford and Peterboro have organized for the ball season but there hasn't been so much as a ripple in the local headquarters. With the ball season two months away, it's high time for some ready action. Clear the decks.

HAS A LOCK OF NAPOLEON'S HAIR

Halifax Man Proved Possession of Hair of "Little Corporal"

Halifax, N. S., March—James Taylor of Halifax is the possessor of a lock of hair believed to have adorned the head of Napoleon Bonaparte. The relic apparently was obtained in the first place by Edward Fryatt, formerly a porter at the naval dockyard here who served aboard several British Men-of-war, including the Northumberland which took Napoleon to exile on St. Helena. Taylor became owner of the lock after the death of Mrs. Jane M. Roome, a daughter of Fryatt.

There is substantial evidence that Fryatt did obtain the relic from Bonaparte himself. The hair is affixed to a card containing two seals made according to a written inscription, from the hill of the French emperor's sword. The inscription reads: "Lock of hair of the Emperor Napoleon I, obtained by Mr. Edward Fryatt of H. M. S. Northumberland, conveying the emperor to the Island of St. Helena, August 1815. Seals attached to the hair of the Emperor Napoleon I, emperor of France, valued at $1000."

Fryatt's record in the Royal Navy as revealed by Admiralty authorities at Dartmouth, Eng., confirmed that he served on several British war vessels concluding with the Northumberland from May 1815 until 1819.

Taylor, executor of Mrs. Roome's estate, found the lock of hair enclosed in a glass case, along with a miniature oil painting of Napoleon. The seals were quite evidently made many years ago, but the inscription is as plain as when written. Over the Napoleon heraldic design with the crown and eagle are the words: "Napoleon Imperator Et Roi." The picture of the Emperor, showing the head and shoulders is apparently the work of an amateur, but the likeness is unmistakable.

SERVED 40 YEARS ON MURDER CHARGE

Boston, Mass., (By Canadian Press)—Jesse Harding Pomeroy, for 54

years a prisoner behind the walls of Charlestown State Prison, thinks he has found a loophole in verdict and sentence, which kept him in solitary confinement forty years.

Since the days in the now misty past when Gov. Rice commuted the death sentence which had been imposed upon him at the age of 14 for the slaying of Horace Millan, Pomeroy has appealed to every Governor of the commonwealth for a pardon, but now he will take his plea to the courts.

Pomeroy probably has served one of the longest sentences in history and it is believed here that his 40 years in solitary confinement are without parallel in the records of criminal jurisprudence.

BILL AMENDING THE N. S. FISHERIES ACT

Halifax, N. S., (By Canadian Press)—The bill amending the Fisheries Act, introduced in the House of Commons by Hon. P. J. A. Caudin, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and given first reading on February 14th, is of serious interest to the Maritime Provinces, providing as it does that a trawler not registered as a British ship in Canada and not owned by a Canadian, or a Canadian Company, may not operate to or from a Canadian port.

The Bill also provides that no one shall leave a Canadian point to fish for lobsters either inside or outside Canadian territorial waters, unless he has a license, costing twenty-five cents from the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. This is now a provision of the regulations, and its effectiveness would be assured if it were made by Statute. Only one license would be issued to an individual to fish for lobsters in not more than one district during the year.

Mr. Caudin introduced another measure making statutory the season for lobster and smelt fishing.

PREMONITION OF HUSBAND'S FATE FELT BY WOMAN

Mrs. Alfred Wheat Has Fears For Her Husband's Safety

Hamilton, March 6.—Three times in the last two days strange premonitions have visited Mrs. Alfred Wheat, wife of the "cooker" and handyman on Ben Kerr's Pollock, which is believed to have been lost on Lake Ontario en route from Presque Point to Rochester, N.Y.

When a reporter conveyed the news to her tonight at the humble cottage which Wheat and his family occupied at 70 Dunbrum street S. she said: "I have been fearful of bad news since yesterday. All day long I looked for Alf as he promised to come home the first Sunday he could. At dinner a strange feeling came over me and I remarked it to the children, wondering is something had happened to their daddy. Then last night an almost overpowering desire to go to church crept me. It was so unusual for I haven't been to church since baby was christened. I lay awake most of the night worrying and had just dropped to sleep about five o'clock when I awoke with a start thinking I had heard the phone ring. I was sure it rang and when I answered I had one had called."

Mrs. J. B. "Ben" Kerr, 339 Bay St. N., first began to feel uneasy about her husband on Saturday. Early Sunday morning John Beebe and Alan Cowdy, who for Cokoburg to make enquiries. They chartered a seaplane and searched in vain over the lake for the speed boat.

A boat is to be despatched to search every possible haven that might shelter the men.

The Pollock was a fast motor cruiser which he built especially for speed trips on the lake and is equipped with 105 horsepower engine.

PRISONERS HELD AT PETERBORO ALLEGED SLAYERS

Montreal, March 6.—Five witnesses yesterday afternoon positively identified pictures of Norman and Lawrence Menard, who are being held in Peterboro, Ont., on a charge of highway robbery while armed, as those of the two men who executed the several hold-ups here recently culminating in the fatal shooting of Earl Durham in the office of the Charcoal Supply Co. of Quebec, Ltd., 309 St. Ferdinand street, one week ago yesterday.

The prisoners were captured near Peterboro by the Ontario provincial police after they had been chased by a C.P.R. constabulary on the O.P. Ont. After the arrest the G.P.R. investigation department officials had the descriptions sent to Montreal and these were turned over to the local detective office. Yesterday morning the C.P.R. detectives received photographs of the two men and these were also given to Inspector Lemire.

During the afternoon, Sergeant-Detectives Ennis, Therrien, Francoeur and Captain of Detectives Thivierge made a tour of the various places victimized recently by the two hold-up-men, whose descriptions were always the same and showed the photographs of the five victims.

The first place visited was the Harte Pharmacy, 358 Notre Dame street west, where J. A. Harte, owner of the store, identified the pictures of the two men who held him up and robbed his cash drawer some weeks ago.

Substantial overruns have been made during the past year, plans were approved for extending the work. Mr. Fairbairn also spoke on the same subject and made a strong appeal for its support.

At the evening meeting which was a public one addresses were delivered by Mrs. George Reid on the work of the W.M.S.; by Rev. Mr. Nicoll on home missions; by Dr. MacTavish on the great Formosan missionary; Rev. Dr. G. L. MacKay and by Dr. Seymour on the Presbyterian Church in Australia.

Rev. T. G. Marshall reported on Religious Education. There has been a substantial increase in the number of S. S. scholars but a slight decrease in the cradle roll. Y.P.S. are increasing their contributions through their numbers are not increasing.

Two overtures to the Assembly were adopted. One asking for the establishment of a weekly newspaper and the other requesting that all theological professors be made eligible for seats in all the courts of the Church.

SHAWA LOSE TO YOUNG RANGERS

Toronto, Mar. 6.—When hockey's mythical honors are being distributed, Young Rangers must be awarded the championship for pluck and determination, as last night at the Arena Gardens they gave another display of sheer grit to come from behind and defeat Oshawa by 3 to 2 after 20 minutes of overtime play. The old goal was enough to give them the round and the right to play the Oshawa in the O.H.A. junior semi-finals as the score was deadlocked at two at in the first game of the series, but the lone-goal margin was only secured after one of the most gruelling efforts and is a tribute to that fight which changes defeat into victory.

The Rangers' record for the season is studied with Garrison finishes from the time they pulled out their goaler for an extra forward to tie the group play-offs, and then battle through two extra games to dispose of West Toronto, but last night was the climax when their bluff was exposed by the Rangers who overcame a two goal deficit and then win out in the overtime. Minutes were flying fast and Oshawa seemed sure, of holding its margin, but the Rangers' rugged band dug in with double determination and the two goals gained by the Shamrocks were wiped out, the crying point coming late in the third period when Don Smille staggered through the defence and pushed the puck into the corner of the goal.

What the game lacked in high-class hockey it more than made up in excitement, for there was seldom an idle second. The Shamrocks staged a spurt for two tallies and then the game settled down into a tense, even test, with Oshawa trying to protect its advantage and Rangers fighting to whittle it down. Oshawa apparently forgot that the best defensive is an offensive, for they concentrated too much on holding their lead, shooting the puck the length of the ice in the last period in a vain effort to halt the Rangers' final stampede.

The Rev. A. C. Stewart of Acton was nominated for the moderatorship of the synod and Rev. Dr. D. R. Drummond of Hamilton for the Moderatorship of the General Assembly.

The following were appointed as commissioners to the General Assembly which meets in Ottawa in June: Rev. Messrs. Irvine, Desrosiers; Nicoll, Trenton and Cameron Pittsburgh and elders from Foxboro, Trenton and Wilton.

GEO. DELINE TO ENLARGE STORE Great Increase in Tire Business Calls For New Quarters
r to its growing list of up to date business buildings when the plans of Mr. George Deline, local Firestone Tire Distributor have materialized.
Mr. Deline announced yesterday that he had completed negotiations for the purchase of the property of the Gospel Alliance Missionary Tabernacle on Front Street adjoining the store now occupied by the Firestone Distributor and planned to commence almost immediately the work of razing the church.
In place will be a new addition, modern in every way, and which will form an attractive sales and display headquarters for the Quinte Vulcanizing. The total expenditure for the addition will exceed $20,000.
During the past year or two, the tire business of this energetic organization has been extended rapidly with the result that a greatly increased display space became necessary. Mr. Deline has, in point of Sales volume, become one of the leading Firestone dealers in Eastern Ontario, and the new building will fitly display the large stock carried by the firm.
Bids for electrifying 1,375 miles of roads have been invited by the Spanish government.

CHANGE BREAD TO CAKE
Here's the magic recipe:
Cut slices of day-old white bread 3-4 inch thick. Trim off crusts. Cut each slice into strips 3-4 inch wide by 2 inches long.
Spread these strips on all sides with Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk, covering bread well.
Roll strips in dry shredded cocoanut, broken very fine. Place in pan and brown very delicately on all sides under low gas flame, or toast on a fork over coal.
Delicious little cocoanut cakes result—made from bread. Taste just like Angel Food cake.
Try them! This and dozens of other magic recipes are found in the Eagle Brand Cook Book "New Magic in the Kitchen." Write for your free copy to The Borden Co., Dept. A 140 St. Paul St. W., Montreal, mentioning this paper.

A MENTAL HOUSECLEANING IN LENT

I like the idea of forty days of abstinence from something I do not need but which has got to be so much a part of my somewhat cluttered life that I fancy the doing without will be real hardship.

Take if you wish, the religious signification from Lent, consider it instead as a period in which one may do a bit of mental house cleaning, going over the assortment of likes and dislikes, or prejudices, whims, aspirations, hopes, fears, taken on within the last year.

Luxuries some of these are, in the sense of being superfluous to welfare or growth or actual happiness. Prejudices usually are superfluous, fears always are and I know that I, at least, can move more quickly and smoothly if I throw overboard all of my dislikes.

Something to give up for Lent here, something which burdens the thought and keeps it from reaching scintillations.

There are others, more tangible objects which even if they do not impede progress, do nothing toward furthering it. Extravagances, things acquired principally through the lust for spending which pile up and drop into dust and decay before they possibly can be used.

Also such small things as the extra elaborate dessert lathered with whipped cream and dripping with syrup and indigestible as lead and outrageously expensive—why not put this aside? Now is a good time to start.

We, all of us surround ourselves with dozens and dozens of useless, superfluous objects, things which we do not want actually but which long habit insists we must have.

CARE OF WASHABLE GLOVES

Washable suedes and leathers are the latest thing in gloves. Gloves are being worn more commonly than formerly. Once they were a badge of aristocracy. Now everybody's doing it. Gloves not only protect the hands from the elements and give a look of gentility, but they protect the hands from picking up all kinds of germs in public places. They help to keep the hands clean. But the gloves must themselves be kept clean or they will soon become unsightly and will impair their soil to the hands.

Wash the gloves on your hands, use plenty of warm soap-suds. Rinse them well and turn them wrong-side out, washing the inside of the glove with care. To preserve the glossy sheen, add a teaspoonful of glycerine and a little soap to the last rinse water.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Apple Sauce
If you put apples through a food chopper when you want to make apple sauce hurriedly, it saves time and trouble. The same is true when making pear-butter or any other preserves.

Patching Scratches
If your wallpaper gets scratched, carefully apply some moistened scrapings from one of the matching left over paper. Use a sharp knife to scrape off the scraps. When dry the scratch will be covered.

Head Protectors
If children sleep in a draughty room, tie a strip of ticking, cretonne or other firmly woven fabric across the head of their iron bed and tuck it under the mattress. This keeps the wind from blowing down their necks and protects their heads.

WHAT'S NEW (From A Woman's Standpoint)

The formal evening wrap of winter is giving way to the more casual type for wear under the southern moon. The Casino coat, seen in transparent, velvet, metal more, stiff satin, taffeta and taffeta-back velvet, reaches just to the knee—a graceful length to wear with long, flattery skirts.

For the person who would like the convenience of a globe but has not the space to accommodate one, the fitting solution is a new globe printed on cloth, with a ferrule like an umbrella, so that it can be raised and hung up, or folded away in a cupboard when not in use.

Millinery is taking a winged course to smart popularity, this season, for one of fashion's newest triumphs, is the little winged turban—a hat which accords with the new idea of concentrating interest at the back and sides of the head.

A youthful version of the ensemble might with more sophisticated detail serve as a smart grown-up costume. The dress of pale blue gabardine has a collar of crisp white organdy and two large pearl buttons and a skirt with three godets. It is worn with a yoked coat of tan tawny made on the same flaring lines.

Sleeveless frocks for the more formal daytime functions is now quite the thing. The sleeveless dress is as smart with or without its matching banana blouse, it may be correctly worn for the cocktail hour or dinner.

FASHIONS SLOWLY CHANGING IN FOOD

(London, Eng. By Canadian Press)
—Fashions change in foods as well as in clothing, according to newly compiled figures. People are eating less bread and less meat as the years go by and if the present trend keeps on it may have serious consequences for the British farmer. Each Englishman in 1928 ate 40 pounds less bread than each Englishman in 1880. There are signs that the good old roast beef which was the pride of England for centuries is giving way to fruits and vegetables as a staple article of diet.

Statistical studies show that the consumption of wheat rose steadily during the Victorian years. As civilization in Europe was held to date from the beginning of grain farming about 2,000 B.C. so the eating of bread was taken as a symbol of a cultured people. But it was either a false symbol or civilization is on the road back to barbarism. The slump in bread consumption began just before the war and has continued since

CHAPTER 45

BENEATH THE SURFACE

Betty was lying on a couch in the elaborate drawing-room of her hotel suite. The late afternoon sunlight came in through the handsome silk-and-lace curtains at the windows. The place was filled with roses—trifles from the magazine editors. It was also filled to overflowing with Betty's personal possessions—pictures and bric-a-brac of every description. It represented her idea of displaying her success. She was a woman who liked it, but she thought it was the thing to do, so she did it. She was doing lots of things these days, because she thought they were the thing to do. Imitating Lucinda was one of them. Sanderson, her companionist, liked Betty's little salon. He considered it the last word in elegance, which gives all adequate picture of the soul of Mr. Sanderson. He was even then using the piano and arranging himself into a fur coat. Betty's generosity in the matter of some photograph contracts that they had made together had enabled him to purchase the fur coat, but that had been a month ago and he had already forgotten to be grateful and was trying to dissuade her from a charity performance that would earn them publicity, but no monetary return. But Betty had been obstinate and he was a trifle sulky.

"It's like this, Sandy," she sighed. "I've been up against it myself so often that I've got real superstitious. If I don't do something for these poor kids, my luck's likely to leave me."

"If you don't do things for yourself, instead of wasting your time and talent on some grubby charity, your job's likely to leave you. And mine, too," he remarked sullenly.

Betty sighed again and smoothed the lace of her very elaborate negligee. She lifted a slim bare arm and fingered some roses that stood beside her couch. "Out of the corner of her eye she watched him."

"You won't stay for tea?" she asked wistfully.

"No!"

Betty shrugged and touched a bell. "Tea for two, Heloise."

"Don't just say, 'I wasn't staying?'" demanded Sanderson.

"I heard you... I'm having a caller."

"Hollo!" he sneered. "You're wasting your time, baby. He's nuts over your beautiful red-haired friend."

Betty eyed her companionist thoughtfully.

"Lucinda is beautiful, isn't she?"

"Like a dream," he was too enthusiastic.

"I must tell her that when she comes this afternoon," murmured Betty.

Sanderson stopped, half-way to the door. "Is it she that's coming?"

Betty nodded, slowly pulling to pieces an American Beauty rose. Sanderson hesitated, had the grace to look slightly embarrassed, then squared his shoulders.

"If that's the case, I think I'll stay for tea. I promised Miss Banning to play that new composition of mine for her. Now's as good a time as any."

"But a minute ago, you said you wouldn't stay," Betty reminded him, in a curious little voice that made him look at her quickly.

He slid out of the fur coat and came over to her couch and chuckled her under the chin.

"I was jealous. I thought you had a man coming. That Rolfie... I don't like him. I don't trust him."

Betty knew he was lying, somehow, and the pathos of it was that she didn't care. It was good to hear him say that he was jealous, even if it wasn't true.

The sunshine faded, and the maid switched on the light. Betty was on an exquisitely appointed tea-cart, on which reposed too many sandwiches and too many and too rich cakes.

When Lucinda arrived, having walked briskly over the chill air, there was color in her cheeks and a sparkle in her eyes. She looked more like the girl whom Julian Marston had met at an ice-rink so long ago than she had in many a day.

She kissed Betty almost affectionately, and said:

"How's the child? Why weren't you out getting some fresh air, lazy?"

"Sandy and I were practicing," Betty yawned. "Good, it's all work in this world! If it isn't a matinee, it's working up new stuff. I wish we'd taken another season in vaudeville instead of singing up with Feldmann again, even if we have about every good spot in the show."

"How about the world-tour?" Lucinda asked, seating herself behind the tea-table, as she always did in Betty's apartment.

"It's gone over all right," Betty seemed strangely unreluctant. "I'm off as soon as Feldmann's season closes."

"You'll like that, won't you?" Lucinda said to Sanderson, as she handed him his tea.

He laughed. "Oh I'm not going."

"No, going?" she echoed. "Her glance flew to Betty, questioningly."

"Sandy isn't too sure of my ability to swing my stuff outside of America."

Said Betty, with assumed carelessness, "He won't take a chance. He doesn't want to be 'tranded'."

"It would be as much as my reputation is worth to allow myself to be buried in the provinces," Sanderson explained virtuously. "And, if I were a black mark against me all my life."

"If you only have one black mark, you're lucky," remarked Lucinda dryly, as she poured her own tea.

To her surprise, Betty flew to Sanderson's defense.

"Sandy's right, singing and dancing, as I do, I can generally turn up something, even if I do come a cropper with one act. But it's different with a high-paid accompanist. I think he's wise to stay behind. Feldmann will use him—at least, I'm to persuade him to."

"I like that!" declared Sanderson in the tone of one who very obviously didn't like it at all. "As if you'd have to persuade him! As if my work didn't stand on its own merit!"

Lucinda tactfully interposed in what looked like a painful moment between temperamental singer and temperamental accompanist by asking Sanderson if he would play his new composition, as he had promised. He assented with alacrity and seated himself at the piano.

He said softly: "I have called this composition of mine: 'Lament To A Passing Love.' It is dedicated to an unknown."

His gaze passed briefly over Betty and came to rest on Lucinda, sitting with the lamp on her magnificent hair. It seemed to convey a significant message. He began to play. Lucinda watched him idly.

But Betty watched Lucinda. And not idly!

EASY DIVORCE IS NOT IMPROVEMENT

(Toronto, Ont. —(By Canadian Press)
—One of the feminine reactions to the recent vote on a divorce court for Ontario is given in the following editorial by "Bride Broker" in the Mail and Empire:

"That the consensus of opinion in this country is evidently against the principle of divorce is all to the good. The vote in the house of commons on the measure, which for its object the granting of a divorce court to Ontario, seems to have proved this. Easy divorce, as we see it, clearly does not improve the situation. A glance at the condition of things across the line, with its divorces and remarriages ad id, will convince us of that."

"At the same time we must admit that we are unalterably opposed to the present state of things in this province. It is all very well to say that expense is no bar to the poor woman whose husband may starve her and her children, and beat and misuse her in unprintable ways."

"There seems no reason at all why Ontario should not have the authority vested in some of the other provinces. We are quite as capable of producing judges qualified to act in such a court as any other portion of the dominion. It appears to us that the house of commons, responding to the fine sentiments of 'marriage - is - the - keystone of the home and the bulwark of the nation' ordered by one member in 'action' endorsed by the measure, became slightly confused between principle and practice."

ORGANIZE SOCIETY TO PRESERVE FOLKLORE

(Stockholm, Sweden. (By Canadian Press))

A unique state institution, organized to preserve and to further the study of the waning treasures of folklore, dialects and place-names of Sweden, will be created by the Government with the assent of the Riksdag. The annual cost of this institution will amount to 342,000 kronor, but considering that the Swedish State has previously granted various sums for this purpose, the net increase does not amount to more than 31,000 kronor. The organization will be divided into the three departments of folklore, of dialects and of place-names with eminent experts as directors. The salaried directors, with the title of professors, will be four and their assistant directors three. The collecting of the primary material is to be made by university students or others after due preparation and examination.

THE PHENOMENAL PROGRESS OF NICKEL, A BRITISH EMPIRE METAL

A. E. Tomlinson Writes of Wonderful Resources Of This Country

(By A. E. TOMLINSON.)

In a community of the vast extent of the British Empire it is natural that there should be a wonderful richness and variety of natural resources. In several raw materials for instance, the Empire can claim it not an absolute monopoly at least an overwhelming preponderance of production. Nickel is a case in point. The Sudbury district of Ontario, Canada, produces more than 80 per cent of the total world output of nickel, a figure which promises to improve to fifty per cent in the not very distant future.

There is a great deal of romance in the rise of this Empire metal, as it may now truly be called. Two events have directed public attention to its importance. The first was the surprising development of the rich Frood mine, whose lower levels revealed a totally unexpected richness of nickel-copper ores; the second was the recent amalgamation of the two leading nickel companies, the International Nickel and the Mond Nickel, to form the International Nickel Company of Canada, whose capital at current market prices is in the neighborhood of £200,000,000.

Part of the romance lies in the phenomenal advance of nickel from a minor to a foremost place in the world of modern metals.

Less than fifty years ago the world consumption of nickel was no more than 900 tons. By 1922 this had risen to nearly 15,000 by 1923 to 25,000. From 1926 there was a tremendous jump and today the world is consuming at not less a rate than 50,000 tons of nickel a year.

Moreover, there is no immediate stop to this amazing expansion in sight. In fact, new uses are discovered almost daily.

ed almost faster than the metal can be produced. This advance is due to the fact that nickel is preeminently the metal of modern man. It is the metal of the age of electricity, of armoured ships, of high pressure and high temperature processes. Every day reveals new and important uses for this once neglected metal for its many alloys.

Today a complete account of the diverse uses of nickel and its alloys in modern industrial processes—engineering, chemistry, transport and so on—would fill volume. More-over, once metallurgists began to think in terms of nickel not only did they achieve great advances, but they also revealed tremendous untapped potentialities for the future.

There are several processes of obtaining pure or nearly pure nickel, the best known of which are the Mond and the electrolytic. Both these processes are the product of modern scientific research and invention, and they could go more have been conceived by primitive or mediaeval man than could the modern uses and rapid development of nickel.

The pure metal which render nickel so invaluable in modern industrial processes are its toughness, its resistance to corrosion from air, water, alkalis and dilute acids, its fairly high electrical resistance and above all the ease with which it forms alloys with other metals, particularly steel.

The metal itself is used for such highly modern purposes as sparking plugs, radio apparatus, vacuum cleaners and electrical equipment. It is also in demand for cooking and household utensils which have a hard, smooth appearance, are easily cleaned and are virtually indestructible.

The pure metal has been employed as a substitute for silver in the coinage of several nations, though at alloy, copper nickel, has been even more widely used for this purpose. More than 21,000 tons of copper nickel coins have been minted and put into circulation throughout the world since the war.

An even stronger and harder metal than simple nickel steel is produced by adding to it a small proportion of chromium. Vast quantities of this type of steel were formerly used in manufacturing armour-plate, guns, gun-shields and armour plating projectiles and it was this use that first brought nickel into prominence in modern metallurgy. With the nation turning towards peace and reduction of armaments, however, intensive research was focussed on discovering new uses for nickel and its alloys and this has been so successful that, as has been said, the demand for the metal is greater than ever today and still expanding.

Stainless steels largely owe both their invention and their usefulness to nickel, and these steels are not merely employed in cutlery, dental plates and so on but are finding increasing use in the highly important high temperature processes of 20th century chemical and industrial practice. Alloys of nickel with iron are also finding extensive modern uses in foundry practice and other channels and are enabling chemical engineers and inventors to solve thermal problems which have baffled them for years.

Lastly, finely divided nickel is employed as a "catalyst" in that modern chemical process known as catalysis. A catalyst is a substance which enables a chemical action to take place without itself actually taking part in it, and the subject is will largely an unexplored one with tremendous potentialities for the future in the whole field of synthetic industry. Nickel as a catalyst is employed, for instance, in petroleum refining and the synthesis of various oils and fats.

We have not even touched on a score of the other uses of nickel, including its use in electroplating and in storage cells for electrical batteries, but we have certainly shown that nickel is essentially a metal of modern progress.

With Canada now occupying such a preponderant position in the production of this highly important metal it is difficult to realise that as late as 40 years ago, the main source of nickel was a remote island in the Southern Pacific, New Caledonia, once used as a French convict settlement. The present flourishing nickel district of Sudbury, Ontario, was at that time still largely wilderness, bearing little signs of the industrialization which was to come so swiftly. Copper deposits were being mined but the presence of nickel was little more than suspected. Till a lucky accident revealed the possibility of the vast riches hidden underground.

In the early eighties of last century whilst a railroad was being driven through the district a cutting in the rock exposed rich ore deposits. Copper, however, was the great objective of the searchers at that time, and it was not until some years later that nickel, the metal which has now made the region famous, was found to be present in large quantities. Even then it was only discovered because the copper smelters found it so difficult to deal with nickel containing ore and this led to further investigation.

This element of accidental discovery and romance was present also in the origin of the wonderful refining process on which the fortunes of the Mond Nickel Company have been founded. Dr. Ludwig Mond, the world famous chemist and industrialist, was conducting experiments at his great chemical works in Cheshire, with a view to obviating breakdown in certain nickel valves. From these experiments he made the totally unexpected discovery of nickel carbonyl, the gas which is formed when finely divided metallic nickel is brought into contact with carbon monoxide at a certain temperature. Dr. Mond, being a man of great vision and tremendous energy, persevered with his experiments until finally he evolved from this accidental discovery the complete process of refining nickel from its ores, which bears his name and on which a great industry has been founded.

The story is a great romance of industry in general and of imperial industry in particular. From the chance discovery made in Britain a great Empire industry has been established, but only through the enduring faith of its inventor and through years of struggle against seemingly insuperable obstacles.

The romance of the rise of this amazing Empire metal typifies the wonderful Empire of the building up of the whole Empire. It is a romance in which luck and chance and un-failing courage play their varying parts; in it we see curiously combined both the widest vision and imagination and also the inevitable petty selfishness which puts obstacles in the path of pioneers everywhere. Through endurance at last comes success, and the corner-stone of the romance is completed with the consummation of the great nickel merger which places in Canada and in Imperial hands control of world supplies of a metal which is as vital in times of war as it is useful in the industries of peace.

ADMIRAL SIR E. SEYMOUR DEAD

Came From One of Most Noted Families in All England

London, March 5.—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Edward Hobart Seymour, the last survivor of the original 12 members of the Order of Merit instituted at the coronation of King Edward VII, died yesterday at the age of 83 years. He was on the active navy list for well over half a century, his family having supplied naval officers since the days of the Tudors. Sir Edward rendered particularly notable service in the Boxer Rebellion when he commanded a force drawn from eight nations.

Sir Edward entered the Royal navy in 1852, and served in the Black Sea, Crimean War bombardment of Odessa, Sebastopol and Kimbert, 1853; the China War and the capture of Canton in 1857, the Egyptian War, of 1882, and then as commander-in-chief of the naval aide-de-camp to the King for some years.

The family from which Sir Edward sprang is one of the most noted in England, being headed by the Duke of Somerset and having settled in Monmouthshire in the 13th century. Titles in the family were created from time to time, the fourth baronet, Sir Edward, being speaker of the House of Commons from 1672 to 1679. Lord Hugh Seymour, who died in 1801, was distinguished naval officer and his son, Sir George Francis Seymour, who died in 1870 served under Nelson and became Admiral of the Fleet. Sir Michael Seymour, from an Irish branch of the family, was in command of the China station during the war of 1857.

CITY LEAGUE SEMI-FINALS PLAYED TO-NIGHT

SEMI-FINALS IN THE CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE PLAYED ARENA TONIGHT

Hardware and Y's Men to Meet in Eight O'clock Fixture

VETERAN PLAYERS
Point Anne and Imperial Oil Mix It In Nine O'clock Game

The semi-finals in the Belleville City Hockey League will be played at Thomas' arena tonight. The City League games have been drawing fine crowds and the patrons have not been disappointed in the brand of hockey supplied. Four of the fastest aggregations in the city will hook up tonight. In the first game at eight o'clock the Belleville Hardware will meet the highly touted Y's Men's Club. Last Friday night the Hardware slipped a win over the Y's by a score of 2-1 but the Y's Men will be out to make amends for this defeat tonight. The latter have won the City Finals in the two preceding seasons and are out to win the silverware again this season. The Y's have been making their debut in City League hockey have had their eye on the LeMay trophy ever since the opening of the season. Whether "Daw" Whalen will play is a matter of conjecture but his presence on the ice will certainly help the Hardware cause considerably. Whalen is a sweet hockey player and he will give the Service Club boys no amount of trouble. The Hardware have some veteran hockeyists in the persons of Sunny Symons, Ted Whalen and Bill Canning. Whalen in his day was one of the shiftest players in these parts and he is almost as cunning as ever. Symons patrols the right boards like a veteran and Canning makes a fine defense man. The nets are guarded by Scott who played for the Y's Men last year.

The Y's Men are well fortified with Bob Scott in centre, Harry Drew and Strachan on defence and Frank Symons and Armstrong on the wings. With these players the Campbell street squad will give a good account of themselves.

The second encounter on the program will see the Point Anne squad hook up with the Imperial Oil. These two teams have been running neck and neck in the matter of victories. "Huck" McGuire is the chief goal-getter for the Marvabes while Alex Weir has been garnering counters at a tremendous rate all year. The Imperials have Tom Jeffery in goal while the Point are equally fortified with Cole Canning. The first game will start promptly at eight with Frechette in charge.

LORD KNARESBOROUGH DEAD
London, March 6.—Lord Knaresborough, first holder of a title created in 1065, died last night at the age of 78 years. He was Liberal member of parliament for Knaresborough in 1886, 88, and Handsforth, Staffordshire, 1892-1906.

HOW BABE RUTH VIEWS THE RACE

Bambino is in Good Condition and Looks For Real Year

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—With his good club laid aside and his vacation over, Babe Ruth turned his thoughts to baseball today, as he joined the world champion New York Yankees for his first workout of the season.

"I believe we'll win again," said Ruth, "Washington and Detroit are the only teams who look better to me, and I don't think either of them has improved enough to beat us. I can't see that the Athletics, who gave us the most trouble last year, are any stronger; neither are the Browns."

"The White Sox should do better, and the Indians will show a rebuilt club. I can't see any reason why we shouldn't do as well as last season."

Herb Pennock, Waite Hoyt, Tom Zachary and Bob Meusel were expected to arrive to-day. Zachary is a holdout, but Huggins expects him to sign without any trouble.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 6.—Rabbi Maranville is almost certain to play shortstop for the Boston Braves this season as a result of Dr. Eddie Farrell's refusal to accept the terms offered him by President-Manager Emil Fuchs. Farrell, however, turned the proposition down and announced he would return to Binghamton, N.Y., to continue his practice as a dentist.

FINALS IN BAY OF QUINTE LOOP HERE THURSDAY

Local Maximize Battery Will Tango With Trenton Juniors

Local hockey fans will get a glimpse of two fast teams in action tomorrow night when the local Maximize Battery squad will tango with the Trenton Juniors for the championship of the Bay of Quinte League and the Bert Cann Cup at Thomas' Arena. The Maximize have cut quite a figure in their first year on the blades advanced to the finals in the Quinte circuit by trouncing Trenton the other evening, tying up the loop and needs attaining a sudden-death game for the honor. The Trenton team, handled by Charlie Allure is practically unbeatable. Trenton Junior outfit which gave the Belleville Juniors such a thrilling battle before succumbing, Norm Johnston smart little centre man will be along as will Steenburg, the goalie. Beale, Hutchinson and Fillion who have been named as the Trenton's main line will be the Trenton's main line. This looks like a formidable aggregation.

The Maximize, however, will be prepared to meet the Trenton and Manager Lorne Cook will throw his strongest team over the boards in an effort to bring home at least one championship to Belleville. Curry will be guarding the twine with Jack Rooney and Jack Arnold teaming up in front of him. The forward line will be composed of Johnny Hibbard and the Canning twins Henry and Jack. With this trio going good Steenburg will have his hands full. The alternates will be chosen from Bert Houston who has been travelling at a fast clip lately. "Huck" McGuire, of the Imperial Oil and Intermediate team, and Alex Weir, the smart right-winger of the Point Anne team. This team looks good enough to dispose of anything Trenton can produce and fans will at least get an eye-full of hockey by travelling over to Thomas' Arena tomorrow night at 8:15.

In Houston, McGuire and Alex Weir, the locals will have two complete front lines.

It is altogether likely that "Stub" Barrett will handle the bell.

NEW FLYWEIGHT IS ON HORIZON

Emile Plodner Scored a Knockout Over World's Champion

There is a new flyweight champion in the offing! At Paris, France, on Saturday, Frankie Genaro, recognized as champion by the National Boxing association, was knocked out in the first round by Emile Plodner, the sensational French boxer.

As Plodner already holds a decision over Izzy Schwartz, recognized as champion by the New York state boxing commission, there appears to be no great reason why the French lad should not be looked upon as king of the class, but he will come to America shortly to demonstrate that his victory on Saturday was no fluke.

Genaro tried to carry the fight at the first tap of the gong, but he landed only two blows when Plodner landed a right to the jaw and followed with a stiff punch below the heart, and the American lad went to the canvas to be counted out. Genaro's manager claimed a foul, but it was not allowed.

While Genaro was meeting with defeat in France Fidel la Barba, flyweight champion by the National Boxing association in Australia, where he met and defeated Billy Grimes, gaining the decision after 15 rounds. The battle was an interesting affair, according to despatches, the Australian clinching at every opportunity.

As Toronto appears to be the Mecca of flyweight battles at the present time Plodner will no doubt appear there in the near future.

MARMORA SPORTSMEN TALK OVER THE CONSTRUCTION OF NEW RINK

Last Year Teams Play in T. V. L. Without Covered Rink

COMMITTEES FORMED
Arena Would Also Serve Deloro as Amusement Place

Marmora, March 6.—Initial steps in the erection of a covered rink at Marmora were taken at a well attended and enthusiastic meeting held at the Council Chamber on Thursday evening.

Dr. H. Crawford, elected to the chair, said that it was the question of the hour as to whether Marmora and Deloro conjointly would lag behind other villages in the matter of a rink. Personally he was strongly in favor of the project and he further remarked that good sport was a good foundation for the coming man. He then called upon F. R. Wells, manager of the Marmora hockey team, for outlines as to how similar projects had been carried out in neighboring villages.

In his opening remarks this speaker reminded his hearers that when with J. A. Shannon he had attended the Trent Valley League's annual meeting last fall, both Marmora and Marmora representatives were informed that this season would be last for their teams to enter the League's competition with the open rink. Mr. Wells then said that the Tweed management had offered to visit Marmora and assist in the project, and Marmora had since then offered similar assistance. Having considered the dimensions and designs of the other rink, Mr. Wells mentioned to him that a rink 200 feet by 90 feet was the most desirable for the village. In conclusion, the speaker remarked that if the rink was not got after now it would never be obtained.

Various members of the audience having expressed in favor of the project, the chairman called for advice opinions without result.

The matter then put to a vote, carried with a large majority.

The chairman's suggestion that the company be named the Marmora and Deloro Arena Company, met with unanimous approval.

Nomination of officers was then called for. T. W. Rhind was appointed secretary, two men. Officers were then elected as follows:

Hon. President: S. B. Wright; president, Dr. H. Crawford; secretary, treasurer, T. W. Rhind; provisional committee, H. R. Hickey, R. A. Elliott, J. Finnegan, J. Bell, F. N. Mallet, A. H. Connor, F. R. Wells, H. W. Sabine, A. Burridge, H. R. Pearce, R. E. Bouter, G. B. Ainsworth, F. P. F. B. Johnston, J. A. Shannon, L. Hughes, J. F. Baker, and W. Barlow.

Several sites being offered for the rink, the selection will be deferred till the appointment of the Board of directors at a later date by the shareholders. After adjournment the committee met and drew up canvassing committees.

Sixteen Clubs Now in Training in Southern Ball Parks

Spring and American league clubs 198, including four second team games. Many of the games are inter-league contests.

Still Several Holdouts
Several major league clubs are still bothered with holdouts, two of the most serious being the Wander brothers, who are demanding $35,000 before joining the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Paul, who was voted the most valuable player in the National league in 1927, is said to be demanding $20,000. Lloyd $15,000.

Two other prominent holdouts are Danny Vance and Doug Wrennery, Brooklyn's star pitchers. Vance is demanding $25,000. He drew $20,000 last season. McWeeney has arrived at Clearwater, Florida, to talk terms with Uncle Wilbert Robinson, but has not signed.

Goose Goslin, American league batting champion, is causing Clark Griffith considerable worry because he has not signed.

Among the other unsigned players are Max Bishop, Athletics' second baseman; Sam Jones, Washington pitcher; Val Plench, Hugh McMullen, Jackie May and Charley Dresden, of the Cincinnati Reds; Tom Zachary, of the Yankees; Eddie Farrell, Joe Dugan and George Harper, of the Boston Braves.

necting with the Terrill greenhouses there, is heard in Chicago where he had gone for medical treatment. A wife survives, along with two brothers, Alfred G. of Calgary, and John E. of Lethbridge, Alberta.

National league clubs have 208 exhibition games scheduled this day.

Prince Edward County Awarded First Prize at Annual Seed Fair

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY'S TEAM CHOSEN WINNERS

Judging of exhibits was well under way at the third annual seed fair this morning, while many teams from the surrounding country were practising the pitching of horseshoes, ready for the first round of the contest, one of the big features of the fair, at two o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Mason spoke for about an hour, taking as his subject a matter that is of vital interest to agriculturists throughout entire Hastings county.

OVER $6,000.00 IN CARS AND PLAN TO ROUT OTHER PRIZES FREE IN GREAT ARMY MARCHING CONTEST OPEN TO EVERYBODY ON REBEL CITY

Intelligencer's Campaign Guarantees that Every Active Contestant will Win a Prize or Cash Commission—Read Details on Page Four.

It is a pleasure to the Management of the Daily Intelligencer, to announce today, the inauguration of a great prize distribution competition in which the choice of high grade motor cars and other valuable prizes will be awarded to those who enter the contest and secure pre-paid subscriptions to The Daily Intelligencer.

Every paid subscription secured by a candidate or paid by a subscriber, will count votes for the candidate whom the subscriber wishes to help.

Another purpose the contest serves, will be to discover who are the most ambitious, persevering men and women in the field covered by The Daily Intelligencer. It costs nothing to enter the competition, The Daily Intelligencer furnishes the valuable cars and other prizes, while those who enroll in the campaign and compete for the prizes, furnish the subscription collections. It is only a spare time proposition, and it will be an easy matter for you to secure one of the free autos or one of the other big awards during the next few weeks.

Keeping the Dollars at Home.

If a number of solicitors were to be sent out to cover The Daily Intelligencer territory, the cost would run into thousands of dollars.

We are going to give the public a chance to earn the money. This big contest is going to make a lot more noise than would a corps of solicitors working in the ordinary way; but there is nothing like having some pleasure along with business. The old hay-making party got the hay cut, and everybody had a good time. It was a far better idea than to hire a dozen hay-makers. The same applies to The Daily Intelligencer Contest. We are out for a big subscription list and we are going to have no end of pleasure before the contest is over.

The Idea in a Nut Shell

The prizes are to be given to the candidates securing the greatest amount of votes at the close of the competition. Votes may be secured two ways, first by clipping the Free Voting Coupon, which will appear in The Daily Intelligencer, secondly, by securing subscriptions to The Daily Intelligencer, of course the latter is by far the quicker way to secure votes.

"Fairness" Motto of Contest

THIS CONTEST WILL BE CONDUCTED IN A FAIR AND IMPARTIAL MANNER. We cannot promise that you will win a car; but we can promise that everyone will receive a SQUARE DEAL. WE ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEE THAT NO FAVORITISM WILL BE SHOWN TO ANYONE. Little Billy Brown, from Wellington, from Stirling, or from any town in the district, will have just as good a chance of winning a car as anyone residing in Belleville. Girls can win as well as boys, women will have the same chance as men. A SQUARE DEAL AND NO FAVORITES. That's the idea governing this contest, and under these conditions, YOUR chance of winning an auto is as good as that of the other fellow.

Early Start Counts Most

Here is where you can get the only advantage you will be able to get throughout the entire contest. An early start is half the battle in a short campaign of this kind. So get busy now. Take a few minutes and make out a list of your friends. It will surprise you how soon you will have an army of workers ready to save the free voting coupon and assist you in getting subscriptions.

It requires no experience to sell The Daily Intelligencer. The Daily Intelligencer is a well-known news medium, and every person in the district is a prospective subscriber.

Cash Offer.

If you are one of the big prize winners and already have a car and would prefer taking cash, you will have the option of taking a certain amount of cash in place of one of the cars, amount to be made known when prizes are announced. Then, if you are a young girl or young man, as well as some of the other ones who could earn a cash prize in The Daily Intelligencer Contest, sufficient to start them in a very nice little business, or when added to that small, but treasured bank account, which you perhaps have been saving up for years, would just be the one important last step to a very successful and pleasant career. Enroll your name in the Daily Intelligencer Automobile Contest now, don't wait, make your start today. Telephone 1249, or call at the Campaign Office, 287 Front Street, for full particulars.

CONSERVATION OF FISH STRESSED BY GOVERNMENT

Minister of Game and Fisheries Answers Opposition Query

Toronto, Mar. 15.—"We haven't got to the stage in Ontario where we have to impose licenses on the fishermen among our own people," Hon. Charles McCrea, minister of Game and Fisheries, told the committee on game and fisheries, meeting at the legislature this morning. The reply followed question from a Liberal member.

The Provincial minister of Game and Fisheries insisted that the main objection was fish conservation that the bass should be permitted to end its spawning period. "We should not permit the taking of any game fish in any district when spawning is not completed," said the minister. "And the question facing the government is either fish conservation with results, or batting away at the whole thing."

THOUSAND LIVES IMPERILLED AS LASHING FLOOD WATERS FORCE THEM TO MAROONED HOUSE-TOPS

Tells Lurid Tale

Almost naked, smeared with mud, bruised and exhausted, Claude Bissell, 10-year-old witness of the Writ child contracting firm $3,000 hold-up in Toronto, staggered into the Leslie Hydro station on March 13, unfolding a harrowing tale of abduction and intimidation. Bissell declares, he was forced at the point of revolvers into a car outside his home, driven through red streets, stripped of his clothes, ill-treated, threatened with death if he "squaled" and finally thrown from the running motor car on the lonely roads of North Toronto.

BOY'S STORY MAY BE A FRAME-UP

Toronto Police Inclined to Doubt Tale of Kidnapping

Toronto, March 15.—Was Claude Bissell, payroll robbery witness, kidnaped by thugs, or was his story to police a hoax born of youthful love of sensationalism and publicity?

Instead of being stripped and beaten did he strip himself, spatter himself with mud, wear the dressing "off an operation wound on his shoulder, and simulate an appearance of deadly fright so convincingly as to deceive a township constable?

City police are doubting the authenticity of the story as related by young Bissell and, having questioned the lad, are not known to be taking any further action. It is denied authoritative that Bissell previously had applied for police protection.

Chief Draper flatly refuses to speak on the matter and yesterday with considerable impatience, declined to be questioned on it at all.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN FLYING INSTRUCTOR

H. M. Free, of Campbellford, who is to be the instructor for the Kingston Flying Club, comes to this city with a magnificent flying record and a reputation of never having experienced a serious "crash" during his many years of experience.

He is an ex-Squadron Leader of the Royal Air Force and did splendid service during the Great War, while in his arm to Canada he was an instructor at Camp Rathbun, Deseronto, for some time where he was considered one of the most efficient officers on the instructional staff.

PICTON DOCTOR IS READY FOR HIS GOLF

Pictou, March 15.—A very pleasing event took place, when, on behalf of the club members, Judge McLean presented Dr. P. T. Knight, who is soon to leave town, with a handsome golf bag with a set of golf clubs and golf balls.

Dr. Knight, an enthusiastic golfer as well as a cutter and it was therefore fitting that the presentation should also include a broom gaily decorated with ribbons, a feature of the occasion being a touch of good fellowship characteristic of good sportsmanship.

GRADUATES PRESENT PAINTING

Kingston, Mar. 15.—The gift of a very fine painting has been made to Ban Hall by the Queen's University graduates of 1927, Miss Charlotte Whitten was largely responsible for the presentation.

National Guardsmen Rush to Stricken Area in Army Transports

TORRENT OF RAIN

Village Streets Resemble Dashing Streams; Reinforce Levees

Troy, Alabama, March 15.—Two companies of Alabama National Guardsmen arrived here from Montgomery early today enroute to the flood-ravaged City of Elba to aid in the rescue for a thousand residents who are reported to have taken refuge in the house tops and in attics. A fifty-two mile journey from Montgomery was negotiated by a fleet of army trucks in nine hours. The rain was falling in torrents.

The fate of the Elba residents, fifty miles south of here was uncertain this morning as every rescue party attempting to enter the flooded town was turned back. The flood waters flowed through the streets of the village with such force that it defied the operation of the frail river crafts available.

In Mississippi Area

Most of the lesser streams are getting back to normal after a three-day rampage but the reports of the water sweeping through the levees and the threatened break had spread consternation among some of those living near the Mississippi.

Many communities in Nebraska, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and Illinois were still suffering today from effects of the spring freshets of the last few days, but believe the same set, as the tributaries were not expected to cause much further trouble.

The Mississippi on the other hand, was threatening to break through the levees on the Illinois side north of Burlington, Iowa, the inhabitants of Gulf port, the village of a hundred, have moved to higher ground while large crews attempted to reinforce the levee.

35 Persons Rescued

Troy, Ala., Mar. 15.—Thirty-five persons were rescued this morning from the tops and the roofs in the Big Creek settlement, on the banks of Big Creek, a courier reported upon arrival here. Many of the persons rescued were women and children.

Montgomery, Ala., Mar. 15.—Alabama national guardsmen had succeeded in rescuing thirty-seven persons, mostly women and children from the inundated regions around Elba, governor Bibb Graves was advised today.

CHURCH CHIMES BEING INSTALLED

Choir Practicing Faithfully for Program of Easter Music

It was announced officially today by Bridge St. Church authorities that the new organ chimes which are at present being installed in the Church will be ready for use on Easter Sunday morning. This will be welcome news to those in this city who appreciate good music, as these chimes will fill a long felt need in church music, the first to be installed in any church in Belleville.

The chimes will be a fine addition also to the music for the Lenten Cantata which the Bridge St. Church choir, under the direction of Prof. Anglin, is preparing for the evening of Easter Sunday. The Cantata is "Seven Last Words of Christ" and the choir has been practicing faithfully for several weeks.

CHILD SWALLOWS OPEN SAFETY PIN

Cobalt, Ont.—The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William Findlay was rushed to Toronto last night for medical treatment after an x-ray revealed the location of an open safety pin the child had swallowed earlier in the day.

The baby a year old, in some manner unfastened a pin from his clothing while lying in a cot and it lodged in his throat before the mother noticed his plight.

"COLLEGIATE CHATTER"

By Helen Jones

To begin with the "high school play" as the annual play given by the old Belleville High School was called may I say that it is progressing rapidly and from now on all the practice will be merely to put the finishing touches on Mr. Greenleaf is managing the scenery and Mr. Howard, the lighting so that the stage setting will be the best possible. Last Wednesday evening the cast practised for three hours more or less and with the practice tomorrow will have it in fine shape.

The play is quite humorous and you will certainly enjoy it if you come to see it. It is being acted on Thursday and Friday of next week, March 21 and 22 at 8 p.m. The general admission is 35c but as there are only a few such seats it would be better to purchase either a 50c or 75c reserved seat and be sure of a place though you were to come at 2.15 p.m. The tickets which you purchase from students of the Collegiate and Vocational School who have them to sell are to be exchanged at Lattimer's and Lavay's drug store for a definite reserved seat ticket according to the plan which will be held forth there this Monday.

Examinations will be held shortly after Easter. They will consist of all the departmental subjects. The examinations will follow the order of the departmental ones, the time table of which is posted on the bulletin board outside the office. These will be two and one-half hour examinations and we should judge from that that they will cover all the work taken up to that time.

Mr. Ross Hunter who has been authorized to take charge of the training of the Glee Club spoke to the pupils for a few moments at opening exercises Wednesday morning. Yesterday some students had their voices tested in order to be classified as to their type of voice. The Glee Club will surely thrive now.

The following are the characters in the play, in Monday's column there will be a short sketch of each: Mr. Ames—Alan Sprague. Station Master—Douglas Smith.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

London County Council,

The County Hall,
Westminster Bridge, S.E.1.

The Editor
The Intelligencer
Belleville, Ont.
Canada.

February 28, 1929

Sir:—
This is the first time, I believe, that the Chairman of the London County Council, acting in conjunction with the Lord Mayor of London, has invited the support of the Press overseas in making known an appeal to those of its readers who are of London descent or are kindly disposed towards London problems.

One of these problems is the provision of hospital accommodations for nearly half a million people, who will have moved out of London and will have been housed in Essex on the north bank of the Thames. About four square miles of this Thames-side area

EXAMINATION OF BOY SCOUTS IN FIRST AID WORK

Third Belleville Troop Obtain 6th Place in Provincial Standing

First Aid Examination for the Junior Wallace Nesbitt Competition: Scoutmaster James Varley of the Third Belleville Troop in receipt of a letter from the St. John Ambulance Association giving a report of their standing in the Junior Wallace Nesbitt Cup Competition for the Province of Ontario as follows:

No. 1—Scout Jack Embury, 22 out of a possible 32.
No. 2—Scout P. L. Fred Churchill, 32 out of a possible 32.
No. 3—Scout Geo. Pepper, 35½ out of a possible 48.
No. 4—Scout Geo. Nuhn, 42½ out of a possible 49.

Team work test, 36 out of a possible 74.
The Third Belleville Boy Scout Team, the only team representing Belleville in this competition, obtained sixth place in the Province of Ontario, with 170½ points out of a possible 235.

This team has been competing for this cup for four years. The first year coming twelfth, the second year tenth the third year eighth, and the fourth year, sixth.

To make the competition more difficult in 1927 the St. John Ambulance Association demanded that the boys must hold the Junior St. John Ambulance Certificate to become eligible to compete for the Cup. Dr. Tennant was the local examiner to qualify the boys for their Certificates.

The trainers of the team were Mr. R. Wensley, Librarian of the C.N.R. and James Varley, Scoutmaster of the Third Belleville Troop, both holders of Senior St. John Ambulance Certificates.

This is very creditable to Belleville considering that there were upwards of one hundred teams competing for the Cup.

contains the Becontree estate, where there is being developed a housing scheme of greater magnitude than has ever before been attempted in the history of civil government.

The population of this vast "dormitory" has no hospital. The nearest is at Ilford, and this hospital, which has less than seventy beds, is inadequate for the needs of that borough alone. Further provision is imperative.

The Lord Mayor of London and myself are therefore appealing for contributions in order that a new general hospital might be erected. The new hospital, by gracious consent of the King, will be named "King George Hospital." His Majesty's personal interest was actively evinced up to the date of his illness, and an Appeal Fund was inaugurated by donations of £50 from His Majesty and of £50 from Her Majesty the Queen.

There will be among the King's subjects overseas many who wish to give practical expression to their thankfulness that His Majesty has emerged from a great crisis. In London we lay great stress upon the maintenance of the voluntary hospital system, and I would like to suggest to your readers that King George Hospital might be remembered by those to whom London has given hospitality and comfort and accord with its Imperial traditions and responsibilities.

Contributions for King George Hospital can be sent to London to the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, E.C.4, to me at the County Hall, S.E.1, or to the Honorary Treasurer, the Hon. Charles Rhys, M.P., 10, Downing Street, S.W.1.

I am sir
Yours very truly
CECIL LEVITA,
Chairman of the London County Council.

WEDDINGS

HEDGER—CRONK

A pretty wedding took place at the Portsmouth Anglican Church parsonage recently when Ethel May Cronk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Cronk, of Portsmouth, was united in marriage to Walter James Hedger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hedger, of Belleville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Smart, of Portsmouth Anglican Church. The attendants were, Miss Helen Saunders and Mr. James Beach, both of Kingston. The young couple spent a short honeymoon and returned to Belleville where they will make their future home.

SINCLAIR'SGIRLS MAKE GOOD ATHLETIC MARK

Stella Melchoir Led Field in Target Throw at Y. M. C. A.

For the next few weeks the programme of the Business Girls' Gym Class will include each night two athletic events, either track or field. Last night saw the commencement of this programme when the first two events were run off. These consisted of a fifty yard dash on the track and a target throw.

The target throw was won by Laura Melchoir who made 86 out of a possible 120. J. Croft was second with 70 points and L. Mallory third with 68 points. Two members of the class made the same time in the 50 yd. dash both Stella Melchoir and Jean Croft covering this distance on the small indoor track in 17 1-5 seconds. S. Melchoir and L. Mallory did the distance in 17 3-5. Although this is slow time for 50 yards on a straight away, it is nevertheless very fair time for a small track requiring two and a quarter laps for the distance.

CITY AGREES TO INDIGENT BILL

Will Receive Applications for Market Lessee; Grant to Band

There were five recommendations in Civic Committee last night and mention was made of the rink question, which appears to have been quiet the past few days.

It was recommended that the city pay to the Belleville General Hospital Board the sum of $6000 to cover all indigent accounts up to and including December 31st, 1928, to be paid in three equal payments of $2000 each, the first of which is to be paid on April 1st, 1929, the 2nd on April 1st, 1930, and the 3rd on April 1st, 1931. Interest at the rate of 1-1/2% on all balance after the first payment.

It was also recommended that the request of the Argol Light Infantry be granted for $100 per month for six months for the band. Said request to be from March 1st, 1929 and that the band furnish the city with not less than eight concerts during the summer of 1929.

It was recommended that in future all meat tickets furnished to any applicant be given by the Chief of Police and that Mr. L. Green be informed of this effect.

It was recommended that the Clerk advertise for applications for the post office clerk to take charge of and collect the tolls of the city market from April 1st, 1929. Termination of agreement to be at option of the council.

WHY WE DO IT.

Why We Do It!

The object of this distribution of prizes is two-fold—to secure prepaid subscriptions to The Intelligencer and at the same time to afford our friends and readers an unparalleled opportunity to profit, and in a big way, through their spare time during the next few weeks.

So it is a plan that works both ways, and to the ultimate good of all concerned. It is by far a better plan than to bring in outside salesmen. By offering these awards to The Intelligencer's readers, the money that would otherwise be paid to outsiders will remain in Belleville and surrounding districts. In order to gain our objective quickly and advantageously the most valuable and attractive list of prizes ever offered by a local newspaper in this section of the country has been made ready for distribution among those who participate most heartily.

Ambition and energy are the only requisites for success.

The plan adopted is the fairest and most impartial conceivable. Every prize will be won by the straightforward subscriptions secured in a bona-fide manner.

Let it be fully understood at the very outset that it is not a beauty contest but a strictly legitimate and competitive competition for enterprising men and women, and boys and girls and one in which no element of chance enters. One feature of this competition is the fact that there will be no losers in the race. All who fail to win prizes will be paid a liberal cash commission.

It requires no experience to sell The Intelligencer, everyone in Belleville and the surrounding districts knows this paper.

Both new and renewal subscriptions count for the candidates, no matter where obtained within the Belleville INTELLIGENCER'S field. Get busy right away. Send in your name, Don't let time mark against your chances for success. Those who start early have the best chance of winning the big prizes.

BOUVERT ISLAND A MERE ICEBERG
Turns out it is not an Island After All, But Icefield in the Sea

London.-"A year ago the peace of the world was shattered by the news that Norway was claiming an island 15,000 miles south of the Cape of Good Hope which Great Britain maintained was hers," says the Daily Telegraph. It continues: "Last November we breathed again. With wanted magnanimity our Foreign Office waived all any British claim to Bouvert Island. And now comes the news that it is not an island at all but an iceberg. The magnanimity of the Foreign Office thus appears less than the original estimate, though its wisdom shines brighter than ever."

"But we take this iceberg story with every kind of suspicion, though even if true it would not be unique of its kind. Many mythical islands have been put on maps. In the far Antarctic Sir James Ross charted one by the name of 'Doubtful Island' because he could not make out whether it was land or an iceberg. It turned out to be mere ice. These remote lonely southern seas provided navigators with many imaginary landfalls."

"Close to Bouvert Island itself another has been reported, and named by the name of 'Thimpoon'. Captain Norris in 1825 saw a second island to the northeast and a cluster of others. But nobody else can find them. Shall we believe Bouvert Island a myth or an iceberg? It cannot be. In 1898 a German oceanographic expedition landed. They reported it a volcanic cone 3,000 feet high, coming down to the sea in steep cliffs pentagonal in shape and five miles across. How can it have come an iceberg? How do these tales of the sea get told?"

ABORIGINES ARE RAPIDLY DYING OUT

Sydney, Australia (By C.P.).-The aborigines of the northern and central regions of Australia where the drought has persisted for seven years, are said to be dying rapidly of starvation.

Members of the Victorian Anthropological Society familiar with the afflicted country and its inhabitants say that it is the immediate duty of the Government to send succor to the blacks and it is probable that some form of assistance will be given. Bags of flour, they say should be sent and it is suggested that large numbers of the natives should be brought to permanent water.

The Commonwealth Government reserved an area of 65,000 square miles on the boundary of South Australia and West Australia for a sort of "happy hunting grounds" for the blacks. Cattle were brought in but the continued drought has decimated the number of cattle as well as of the human inhabitants.

Several years ago there were many cattle stations in the area now stricken but the drought, forced the stock men to move to other districts less seriously affected. The black population which was in part supported by the industry were left in abandoned territory with their chief source of revenue gone.

News of the Movies

REGENCY THEATRE
Bob Steele, marvel athlete, now appearing in "Lightning Speed" has the laugh on critics who predicted many years ago that he was due to slow up. "He's going too fast-he'll burn out."

He's heard on every side but in trial recently conducted, Bob broke his previous records in every track and field event scheduled.

Now at the Regent

BELLE THEATRE
George Bancroft is the Wall Street financier in his latest Paramount production now playing at the Belle theatre for a three days' engagement.

Bancroft has one of the best roles of his entire career in this new picture. He is by nature force and dynamic power, gives his latest characterization a treatment that holds one in complete suspense throughout the running of the film. Bancroft alone could essay such a role.

The story is an original one prepared for the star by Doris Anderson, Paramount writer.

Rowland V. Lee, who recently directed Gary Cooper and Fay Wray in "The First Kiss," directed the star in his latest picture. Lee is noted for his knowledge of dramatic values.

Nancy Carroll and Arthur Rankin have the ingenious and juvenile leads respectively, with Baeleanova and Paul Lukas supporting Bancroft in the more dramatic moments.

NEXT PRESIDENT OF GERMAN EXTRACATION

New York, N.Y. (By Canadian Press).-President-elect Herbert Hoover is the lenial descendant of an American colonial who migrated from Germany in 1740, the American Herald Society in New York has discovered.

The lineage of President Coolidge's successor is clearly defined from that date on, genealogists have found.

It is estimated that of the Benedictine order there have been 40 popes, 200 cardinals, 4 emperors and 46 kings.

The London papers of 1749 carried an advertisement to the effect that the advertiser would jump into a quart bottle at the Taymarket Theatre. The theatre was packed-and the pick-pockets reaped a rich harvest.

ABD EL KRIM LIVES IN LUXURY NOW

"John Bull takes consolation in the unique constitution of the British Empire, built to withstand all the shocks and strains of divergent nationalities, languages, religions, climates and traditions.

"Already it includes a league of nations within an empire, surely a constitutional organism unmatched in all history. It is constantly changing, constantly evolving into new and surprising forms. It is as elastic as rubber, hard as steel and indestructible as rock.

"Is it any wonder then, that the British Empire does not crack?" John Bull's ship cleaves the seven seas proudly, although now and then the waves slap against its sides and gusts of wind whistle across the decks.

"It came safely through the greatest hurricane of history ten years ago. Why be frightened at a few puffs of storm clouds on the horizon of empire?"

CENTRAL LEAGUE BASEBALL PROSPECTS GOOD

BASEBALL POT STARTS BOILING AS PLAYERS ANNOUNCE CHANGES OF RESIDENCE TO ASSOCIATION

Peterboro Club Has Four New Players, Deloro Two More

'HOOT' GIBSON ON LIST

Most Central League Clubs Have Strengthened Their Teams

And again we have before us the annual list of baseball players—some of them just "would be" players, if the truth be known, but nevertheless they shall be called ball players, who wish to seek greener fields than those in which they have been pasturing for the past season or so.

Prominent in the list, and of special interest to Belleville readers, are the names of several who are contemplating the move to Peterboro, which reminds us of the number who so suddenly took an interest in the C.B.A.A. last season, and who were in the list of those who went to the names of Anselmo and Comoli, or some thing such as that, and also they did not stay long. The Peterboro team is not going so far south for their material, if the list is to be believed, for we see that Lambert Collins has decided to cast in his lot with Peterboro instead of Deloro this year. And make no mistake about it, Peterboro has grabbed off a nice ball player there.

We don't know much about three others who have been passed on, such as Fred Hickey from Renfrew, John Marchant from Smith's Falls, and Roy Smith from Ottawa City, but they must be good or they wouldn't be going to Peterboro. But these players must all forward their reason for the change of residence to the C.B.A.A., which may mean that their reasons will not be good enough for that august body.

In case you don't notice it from the list, how many players who are moving to Toronto are asked to forward their reasons for changing? Take a look over the list, and there you will see the reason why the boys in the "sticks" call Toronto "Hawg Town."

Harold Buck is now in Deloro and will likely play there, and he should be a big help, as he was one of Kingston's heaviest hitters last year. Lawrence Joyce has also moved, but he has deserted the Poles for Toronto. R. C. Jack, better known as "Von Jack," has left Deloro and will be seen in a Bridgeburg uniform this summer. Percy "Hoot" Gibson is the only Belleville player who has notified the secretary of his change of residence, and he will likely be with one of the Toronto teams this summer. Apparently by Oshawa is satisfied with the players they have there now, for Russell J. Wells is the only player to have changed his residence, and he comes from the Queen City. So all in all the Central League again looks to be in for a good season, and Belleville will be right in the thick of the fight all summer.

The following list of players have notified the Secretary of C.B.A.A. regarding their change of residence prior to Feb. 15, 1929, the final date for accepting applications for change of residence.

Harold Buck, Kingston to Deloro; Lambert Collins, Deloro to Peterboro; Fred Hickey, Renfrew to Peterboro; Roy Smith, Ottawa City to Peterboro; John Marchant, Smith's Falls to Peterboro; Thomas Boucher, New Haven, Conn., to Oshawa; Russell J. Wells, Toronto, to Oshawa; Lawrence Pearson, Guelph to Toronto to Guelph; Earl Cook, Stouffville to Toronto; P. E. Gibson, Belleville to Toronto; H. B. P. Moore, Walkerton to Toronto; J. J. O'Neill, Oshawa to Toronto; Gerald Nevins, Midland to New Toronto; Albert Yarnell, Welland to Mimico; G. Sloan, Timmins to Creighton Mines; H. Vallin, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; P. T. Hackett, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; Harry Cowden, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; E. G. Fitzjohn, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; John S. Murray, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; H. Rothwell, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; Joseph Chisholm, McIntyre Mine to Creighton Mines; Adolphe Boulay, Timmins to Sudbury; John Deste-fano, Detroit to Capreol; A. A. McIntee, Beachville to Burlington; Albert Peet, Oakville to Burlington; Frank E. A. May, Port Dalhousie, Hamilton; H. C. Jack, Deloro to Bridgeburg; Edgar Mellanby, H. Milton, to Bridgeburg; Gordon Bradshaw, Brantford to Galt; S. M. Pickering, Brantford to Galt; A. Watts, St. Thomas to Galt; C. J. Warde, Kitchener to Guelph; James Forrester, Merriton to Guelph; R. L. Reemer, London to Ingersoll; Arthur G. George, Oshawa to Ingersoll; C. E. Hatfield, Detroit to Ingersoll; Thomas; P. S. Croft, Picton to Shedd; Gordon Manchester, Leamington to Chatham; Charles R. Yeazel, Leamington to Windsor; Andrew McGuire, London to Windsor; Harold Peterson, Kingston to Windsor; Lloyd Arnold, Timmins to Sandwich; L. Griffin, Chatham to Leamington.

Note: Players marked "X" are requested to forward full information regarding their change of residence.

DESERONTO BEWAILS LACK OF LIFE THERE

Deseronto sport was never at such a low ebb. Not having any rink, there hasn't been a game of hockey here this winter. All the folks are doing is to put in the time by sitting around at a game of rummy or an occasional round at poker, and with the coming of Spring, there is nothing to indicate that there will be any sport here during the coming summer. Belleville junior hockey team was put out by Oshawa who in turn lost to Young Rangers of Toronto. It is a difficult task for country team to hold its own against Toronto and its hand picked hockey carvers coached by professionals who have no place in amateur sport—Deseronto Post.

JACK DEMPSEY IS STILL MAIN FIGURE

Miami Beach, Fla. (CP)—The main figure in the boxing business, if not the success of the whole heavyweight programme for 1929, is Jack Dempsey, around the dynamic figure of the one-time man mauler, Jack Dempsey. The fight crowd that came here for the Stribling-Sharkey show left apparently more interested in whether Dempsey will fight again this year, than in what will happen next to either of the principles of the melodrama of Miami Beach.

Dempsey would like to fight once more; first, because he loves the cutting game; second, because it would afford him a chance to regain heavy weight championship recognition and retire at least $500,000 richer. Jack admits all this. The reasons are positive in favor of a comeback but it is a question whether he will be sufficient.

If Dempsey does not return to the ring, it is entirely conceivable that the final test for number one ranking position among the heavyweights for 1929 may involve two foreign slugs

SHAUGHNESSY TO BE ARGO COACH

Former McGill Mentor to Look After Toronto Rugby Team

Ted Reeve in the Toronto Telegram says:

"Frank Shaughnessy, alias Shag, the man who once gave that 'What's the Matter with Old McGill?' rising infection, is going to coach the Argonaut Big Four football team this fall. At least that is the latest bulletin, straight from the clubhouse of the popular Double Blue club. 'Shag' of the Big Red team is going to break into the Interprovincial, thus following the footsteps of Billie Hughes, who went from Queen's to M. A. A. for no good reason.

"It is going to be a labor of love with Mr. Shaughnessy, so they say, as he is merely accepting the post as an honorarium. He could not get through an entire autumn without lining up some football lumber into formats or working out picture puzzles with the aid of some given numbers.

"Shaughnessy should create an added drive to the Argos and centralize their forces as the business magazines would say with the collegiates who have fallen with city team owing to the fact that they were too much on the theory and not enough on the thump. Diagrams for neatness and despatch may work with the collegiates who have their long afternoons on the campus but the after supper stories with the picknickers of the working classes are necessarily short and sudden.

"But Shag was never one to go in to a two-hour discourse upon the whiffiness of what went brief and blistering bark would serve the purpose just as well. If he just takes his Argonaut hobby to heart and forgets his unwelcome missionary work in the rules from the U. S. game (where they have so many over) all will be well. His name, prestige and strong personality will add a fair of fight to the local twelve and an added stir of excitement all down the Interprovincial front."

A Paulino-Schmeling match would lack nothing in color and interest even though it would be embarrassing evidence of a lack of home-bred talent for the main fistic argument.

PLAY-OFF DATES IN NATIONAL HOCKEY LEAGUE ARE ANNOUNCED

Toronto and Detroit Will Open Their Series At Auto City

Montreal, March 15.—Dates for the play-off series leading up to the Stanley cup finals were announced here tonight by Frank Calder, president of the National Hockey League, through the Canadian Press. These dates are contingent upon the first three teams of the Canadian and American divisions of the league finishing in the order in which they stand at present.

At that, all play-off places have been cinched, with the possible exception of second place in the American division by the New York Rangers. The Detroit Cougars, in third place, are but two points behind the New Yorkers and have one more game to play. The Rangers have two more games to play, and if they lose both, Detroit wins its last game the teams will be tied for second place, with the Cougars probably getting the call for second place owing to their better goal averages.

Boston Gets First Two Games

Boston and Canadians, as leaders of their respective divisions, will meet in a best three-out-of-five game series, the winners to enter the cup. The first two games of this series will be played at Boston, 01 March 19 and 21, with the third at Montreal on March 23. If fourth and fifth games are necessary they will be played at Montreal on March 26 and 28.

In the meantime the other four teams that earned play-off positions will be scrambling for the right to meet the winners of the Boston-Canadians series in the cup finals.

The New York Americans and the teams in their respective divisions, will play a two-game series, total goals on the round to come at New York on March 19 and 21. At the same time the Detroit Cougars and the Toronto Maple Leafs, third-place teams in their respective divisions, will stage similar two-game series, with the first game at Detroit on March 19 and the second game in Toronto on March 21. In case of a tie in either of these series the team having completed the best record during the regular scheduled season will be declared the winner.

The Second Series

The winners of the New York series and the winners of the Detroit-Toronto series will then meet in a best two-out-of-three game series for the Stanley cup. The winners of the first game of these semi-final jousts will be played at New York, March 24, with the second game at either Detroit or Toronto on March 26. If a tie or a draw is necessary it will be played on March 28, the venue to be decided at the time.

The winner of this semi-final series will then clash with either Canadians or Boston in the Stanley cup semi-finals. The first game of which will probably be played on March 30.

ENLARGE PLANS FOR LOYALIST DOINGS

Deseronto, March 14.—At the recent meeting of the United Empire Loyalist Committee the following resolutions were passed:

The secretary was requested to endeavour to obtain the services of a stunt aviator for the celebration. Resolved that the Town Council be requested to issue a proclamation urging the citizens to paint and clean up for the celebration.

Resolved that E. G. Metcalfe be a member of the program committee. Meeting of the program committee and Masonic representatives took into consideration the proposal to invite the Maroon Grand Lodge to lay a cornerstone of the memorial to the U. E. Loyalists.

The mayor, president and several members of the committee attended the meeting of the Loyalists at the meeting of the Loyalists at the Council House Monday night. It was resolved that Wednesday, June 19, be allotted to the Mohawks as their day. Recent correspondence indicates that the Commissioner of National Parks will erect a cairn for the Mohawks.

Kisbey, Sask., March 17.—Ambrose Hugo, 50, was found hanged in his garage south of Kisbey this morning. He leaves a wife and six children.

CONDITIONS DO NOT SUIT JACK DEMPSEY

New York, March 15.—William Harrison Dempsey, boxing promoter, discussed his future today with both the executive committee of the Madison Square Garden corporation and Humbert J. Fugazy, metropolitan rival of the organization. Tex Rickard built. After the day of debate the former heavyweight champion was but little closer to definite plans for the future.

Dempsey said that the garden proposition, which would include the former fighter in the organization as a vice-president in charge of boxing at a yearly salary, could be viewed only as a basis for future negotiations. He has no idea whether these will take place, although he plans further discussion with William F. Carey, vice-president and guiding hand in the corporation's affairs.

The offer of Fugazy, made on a cash basis, was unsatisfactory, he said, but will be revised and submitted to him at a later date. "I have three propositions in mind," Dempsey said, "one of my own, one from the garden and the third from Fugazy. There are many details to be ironed out before I can really sit down and consider any of them."

Dempsey said he would leave for Detroit within a day or so on business. He said he plans to buy an airplane there.

COAST HOCKEY MOGUL PASSES SUDDENLY

Tacoma, Wash., Mar. 14.—Pete Muldoon, Seattle, hockey promoter and widely known Pacific northwest sportsman died suddenly this afternoon while driving to Tacoma from Seattle. He was accompanied at the time by Hugh Caldwell, former Mayor of Seattle, and Nate Drumman, Seattle boxing promoter.

The three men were laughing and chatting in their automobile when it was seen that Mr. Muldoon's face was purple and he was evidencing other signs of distress. The machine was driven up to a curb but he died before an ambulance could reach the spot. Muldoon's real name was L. M. Tracy. The name Muldoon, his friends explained had been assumed for euphony in sports. He was 47 years of age and leaves a widow in Seattle.

Pete Muldoon was manager of the Chi Leas Black Hawks during the season of 1926-27.

MILLER HUGGINS MUST BE SHOWN ARMS ARE OKAY

New York, March 14.—Miller Huggins, is a firm believer of that old wheeze—"Never take anything for granted in baseball."

The mite manager of the New York Yankees who would qualify as an optimist has been told that the sore arms of Herb Pennock, Wiley Moore and Tony Lazzeri will be as good as over this season but he wants to be shown.

"You can't tell about ailments of ball players," he says. "The come all at once, and they go away all at once. I have been told—and hope the information is true—that these fellows will be able to play their best this year but I am not going to think they have recovered completely from their injuries until they show me in spring training camp."

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Prayer moves the Hand

GETTING PAST GRANDPA

Toronto has been making a valiant effort to get away from its village status. Some of the biggest men in the city with admirable self-negation got together and have proposed a plan for the city of the province. Immediately all the village fathers assembled to block the idea, just as they did thirty-odd years ago when it was proposed to have a square in front of the city hall at a cost of $20,000 a year for a term of ten years. The proposed site of that square is worth millions of dollars today. The new plan is to have several circles and wide thoroughfares cut in the downtown area to give access to the railway depot and lead to the Queen's Park. The same cry that was raised a generation ago is raised again by the undeveloped sons of backward sires—somebody might be benefited. The wider conception of the general benefit and the advantage of the city as a whole is quite forgotten. The new plan would raise Toronto to something like the status of a Metropolitan city, and the cost as estimated by the financial gentlemen who have taken the matter in hand, would be covered by the resale of property to be expropriated. This has been done in a great many cities and always with profit, but the village fathers of Toronto recognize no precedents outside of Cabbage Town. The proposals may be referred to the citizens at the next election, and it will be a matter of satisfaction to the province if those who reside in the provincial capital will undertake to make Toronto a little worthy of the great province of Ontario.

IMMIGRANT BOYS

Much has been written recently about boy immigrants working on Canadian farms. There is fairly general agreement that no form of settlement is more to be desired than that of young Britishers who come to Canada, free from the prejudices of their elders, prepared to adapt themselves to the ways of the Dominion and anxious to succeed in the country they have chosen for their new home. Both the British Government and the Canadian authorities are assisting in a practical way in the promotion of this movement, convinced of its merits. The scheme under which a boy is sent out here and given a preliminary period of training in Canada before being placed on the farm at a minimum wage of $10 a month, is meeting with much favor. The provinces are co-operating with the Dominion and Imperial Governments to good purpose, and not the least valuable feature of the plan is the loan privilege, whereby the farm land, brought out from the Old Country under this scheme, is enabled on attaining his majority, to borrow the sum of $2,500 to set up farming on his own account, providing he has saved the sum of $500. The Farmers' Advocate, in warmly endorsing the project, appeals to farmers to deal sympathetically with the boys who come to them under these arrangements. They are asked to remember the vagaries of youth and to consider the handicaps under which a young person labors in a strange land, where customs, conditions and mannerisms are entirely different. It takes time for a young fellow, newly arrived in this country, to master the details of his work and adapt himself to his surroundings. This plea is backed up in an understanding letter written to the Advocate by a Halton county correspondent, who sympathetically describes the feeling of one of these young men, when he "realizes he has burnt his boats behind him." It requires a high degree of courage and initiative to embark on the course taken, and such a boy given proper encouragement and treated with understanding is almost certain to fulfill expectations. If he gives any cause for irritation, it arises from experience and difference of customs rather than wilful conduct. "Let us be kind and honest with our immigrant boys," concludes this correspondent; "take an interest in their work and their pleasure. An immigrant's life is often made or marred during his first year in the dominions. The hired man of today is our neighbor of tomorrow. Thus by our example and influence we strengthen or weaken the morals of Canada."

PRINCE'S CANADIAN HOME

The Prince of Wales has expressed the hope that he can visit Canada again before long, though it is added that he will not be able to come this year. The King's convalescence no doubt precludes any prolonged absence of the Heir Apparent upon whom now devolve many functions usually performed by His Majesty. When the Prince does find the time, he will be welcomed by every class of the population in all parts of the Dominion, for Canadians everywhere feel that he belongs to them as much as to the heart of the Empire. They have a proprietary interest in His Royal Highness.

And the Prince in turn has a proprietary interest in this part of the Empire. In addition to being its future King he boasts a home of his own to come to when he arrives. Nearly ten years have elapsed since he delighted Canadians on all sides by stating that he had bought land and gone into a ranching business in the Province of Alberta. It was in his farewell speech to the Prairie Provinces at Winnipeg on October 10, 1919 that he made the announcement. He said that the atmosphere of Western Canada appealed to him intensely; that the free, vigorous hopeful spirit of Westerners not only inspired him, but made him feel happy and at home. "I think," he concluded, "that the western spirit is very catching; anyhow, I know I have caught it. I want to feel I have a home in the west and to the little help I can in the development of the whole country. With this end in view, I have made arrangements to purchase a small ranch in Alberta."

The small ranch turned out to be the somewhat famous Beddingfield Run, 25 miles west of High River in Alberta. The scenery is said to have reminded him of the Royal Estate at Balmoral, Scotland, though it is probable that he was chiefly influenced by his liking for the free, open life of the plains and foothills and for the ranchers and cowboys whom he met at Mr. George Lane's "Bar U" ranch which he was visiting when he first took the notion to buy the adjoining place. Ever since then the "B.P." ranch has been visited by many Canadians who are proud of the fact that their Prince Charming has a personal stake in the country, and that the future Sovereign of the world-wide British Empire is assisting in a very practical way by the importation of pure-bred live stock to develop a vitally important native industry. When the writer of this article saw the ranch, it included a fine herd of short horn cattle, an excellent lot of Percheron horses, some thoroughbred running horses, and a good sized flock of Shropshire sheep. Ranchers and breeders who have come from afar to visit the Royal Farm, have declared that the Prince made a good bargain when Professor Carlyle, his present farm manager, bought it for him. The place consists of 4,000 acres of freehold and leasehold, and the animals which the Prince imports come from the Royal Farms and Studs in Great Britain. The farm buildings built of logs and plain lumber, lie in the lowland or river bottom, from which rise on all sides the rounded foothills stretching away to the snow-capped Rocky Mountains only a few miles distant. The ranch is one of the most picturesquely situated in Alberta, and good fishing and shooting abound in the neighborhood. The Prince and the row-boys get on famously together when he is "in residence," and he would like to ride with them much oftener and longer than his increasing public duties permit.—Ottawa Journal.

PASSING YEARS (From the Intelligencer of This Day 30 Years Ago)

Hon. J. F. Wood, M.P., for Brockville, and ex-Controller of Inland Revenue, was found dead in bed this morning in his room at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto.

Mr. J. J. Gattahore, Provincial Y. M. C. A. treasurer, called at the rooms here yesterday.

Mr. Fred G. Cox, Managing Director of the Imperial Assurance Company son of Geo. A. Cox, was in the city today.

Mrs. McLean, Miss Holden, Mrs. MacKay and Mrs. Little, attended the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society at Kingston today.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

"What we want is a candidate who isn't too radical nor yet too conservative; in short, a middle of the road man."

"Then Jumpkins is the man to nominate. He's been a bus driver for years."

Farmer (to tax-driver): "How much will you charge to take me and my wife to New Street Station?"

Taxi-driver: Ten shillings, sir.

Farmer: And how much to take me alone?

Taxi-driver: The same, sir, ten shillings.

Farmer: There, dear! You see how much you're worth.

"I hear you are going to California with your husband, Jane," said Mrs. Jones to her maid, who was leaving to get married. "Aren't you nervous about the long voyage?"

"Well, mum," was Jane's reply, "that's his look-out. I belong to him now, and if anything happens to me, it'll be his loss, not mine."

Lady Customer: I really must complain about the eggs I've had from you, Mr. Brown. They've been perfectly disgusting.

Grover: Very sorry, madam; I'll complain to the man who supplies them. Museum 99,202, please."

Punch.

He was a cautious young man and a firm believer in eugenics, but when he met the doctor's lovely daughter he fell in love with her, and family three discretion to the winds and asked her to marry him.

She accepted him and he was in the seventh heaven in the evening.

Next morning however, his natural caution returned, and he called upon the father.

WHITE TREES

The stark white nakedness of sycamores

Carved on the gray

Of this dark day.

And on my mind,

Will be as unforgettable as light

To one struck blind.

As unbearable as chiseled print

Three trees will stand

To light the land.

Year after year.

Others will come and love them as I do,

And I not here.

When I am dead—these trees will still shine on.

The earth will give them power to live;

Oh, surely I

Shall have as much white, silent strength as they

To reach the sky.

WIDER POWER IN SELLING SITES IS GIVEN TOWNS

Amending of Bonus Act Is Supported by Provincial Govt.

Toronto, Mar. 14.—New legislation to amend the bonus act which will give smaller municipalities of Ontario wider powers in selling land to prospective industries was indicated when the Bills of the City of Ottawa and the town of Cobourg came before the private bill committee of the legislature this morning. Both bills marked the power to acquire lands for prospective industries which is contrary to the present bonus act. The bills were read over and attorney General Price said instructions would be given to amend the existing legislation to safeguard the smaller municipalities and yet grant them powers to expropriate lands for industrial sites. At the present time, he said, there was a discrimination in favor of the larger centres.

FOUR OCCUPANTS THROWN IN RIVER

Port Hope Men Had Narrow Escape When Car Crashed Bridge

Port Hope, Ont., March 14.—Four men had a narrow escape last night when a touring car in which they were riding crashed through the guard rail of a bridge near the outskirts of the town, and plunged into the Ganaraska River. Ernest Pultord, Tony and Charles Caneille were hurled from the car as it plunged into the water but W. Roberts was pinned beneath the machine and it was only after a heroic struggle in the swirling waters by John Fayle, who, hearing the cry for help, jumped from the bridge into the water, that he was rescued. He secured a rope around Roberts, who was then pulled to shore in an exhausted condition. His rescuer was also in a weakened condition. Roberts was rushed to the hospital, where he is reported to be recovering from cold and exposure. None of the others felt any ill effects from their unseasonable plunge.

LATEST METHOD TO CHANGE YOUR LIFE AND LUCK

Use of Psychology Revealed as System to Greater Happiness

While the system of psycho-analysis developed by Freud and Jung has been employed chiefly in revealing people's suppressed complexes and unrealized desires, it remained for Miss Webster and Miss Mary Alden Hopkins to make it the basis of a scientific method by which the misfits, failures or only the moderately successful may correct their handicaps and radically change their fortune for the better. The method of "How to change your luck" outlined by Misses Webster and Hopkins in the April issue of "The Red Book Magazine," is a sample as a paper game, but it is based on the authentic discoveries of the great Austrian psycho-analysts, under whom both these young women studied for a number of years. Misses Webster and Hopkins are regarded as the leading authorities writing in a popular way on psycho-analysis in America today.

The system they have evolved, by which dissatisfied people may make more money, realize their ambitions and find happiness, is the first practical adaptation of the Freudian psychology for a constructive and material improvement of fortune.

"If you do not like the fate that has been allotted you, take it back and get another," write Misses Webster and Hopkins. "When a man has poor eyesight he buys glasses. A woman turns straight hair into curly at will. No parent would think of letting a baby remain bowlegged. Yet these same people will hang onto a job they do not like, live in places they hate, accept ungenial companionship, or stay engaged indefinitely and lay the blame on destiny. Few there are who need be the slaves of Fate. Fate is a bully that goes around before a bold onslaught."

"There are two ways of getting around Fate. You can modify your reaction to circumstances, or change the circumstances themselves. Some physical infirmities must be cured; some burdens must be carried; some responsibilities must be accepted. In cases like these where the circumstances actually cannot be altered, you can change your fate by changing your attitude. Everyone knows people who have triumphed in spite of tremendous handicaps. They changed their emotional reaction to the circumstances."

"But the philosophy of resignation has been overdone. Making the best of things may be a camouflage for finding to exert oneself. The universe is in a state of flux. Nature is never two days alike; kittens become cats, babies grow up; and in the midst of all this transformation, mankind tries to hold things stationary. He encases himself in habit for protection. He is afraid to change when change would benefit him. He excuses himself from adventuring on the ground that he will injure some one, not realizing that it is as hard to do harm as to do good. At the same time he is hoping in the depths of his heart that an earthquake, a fire, a tidal wave or some other act of God will effect his release. He doesn't care how much his loved ones suffer, so long as they can't blame him for it. Need we point out that 'him' means 'her' also?"

"The following suggestions for controlling your destiny are not ultimate solutions of your problem but rather promptings intended to start you thinking for yourself."

To find the defects which you must correct for a betterment of conditions, you must answer five questions in five different groups. By combining the numbers of the groups in which the majority of answers are affirmative, you get a "key" which indicates how you should go about changing your destiny.

The questions asked in group two are:

"Do you feel free to come late to meals if you choose? Is this a pretty good world? Do you usually follow your own judgement? Are you now living the

DEATH WARRANT WAS CANCELLED

with beneficial effects

"I didn't 'go west' in France, but came home to Canada carrying my death warrant," the doctor declared. "I weighed exactly 120 pounds—not much for a six-footer. Look at me now! 180, and as hard as nails!"

The speaker (name if requested) was a young Canadian who served overseas with the Royal Flying Corps, and returned in 1918 a mere shadow of a man. His uncle, a prominent doctor, suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. After one month's trial, he felt better. He persevered, and in three months was back at his position, healthy and happy.

The best part of the story is his health constipation and the chain of ills that arise from it, permanently and naturally, if eaten regularly. Eat at least two tablespoons daily—in chronic cases at every meal. Only ALL-BRAN can conquer constipation.

sort of life you prefer? Do you usually get what you want?"

In group three:
"Do you have the ideal love is two personalities merged into one? Are other people's affairs more important to you than your own? Are people who want to lead their own lives usually selfish? Need one consult the family when making an important decision which does not involve others? Does a life of sacrifice entitle one to return sacrifices?"

In group five:
"Are you considered critical? Do your loved ones deceive you? Does your frank and fearless tongue make you enemies? Do you think unpopularity is often a sign of unappreciated superiority? Are you amused when people make fools of themselves?"

If your answers in these groups are predominantly affirmative, your key number would be 235, the reading of which would be:

"The reason you do not get everything you want is because you want contradictory things. You want contradictory things. You have conflicts in your heart. You want to be free yet you want to stay in your rut. You are not completely contented with your friends and family and yet you shrink from the unfamiliar. You want to go up the street and down the street at the same moment, as it were and the result is that you only stand still, which is not at all what you wish. The time may come when one of the conflicting emotions gets so much stronger than the other that you will burst from your cell with a yell of a yell. If you wish to save yourself and others great suffering, first reconcile your conflicting wishes or choose one; abandon the other. Then make haste more slowly. It is not necessary to burn down the house to roast the pig. Use two quarts of intelligence to every pint of emotion, for your emotions are strong enough to set the whole mixture to working even when added in small quantities."

By other combinations of groups you can ascertain other impediments to the full realization of your fortune and find suggestions as to how you may overcome them and "master your fate."

ALCOHOL DEATHS ON INCREASE IN U.S.A.

New York, N.Y.—The Women's Christian Temperance Union has issued statistics showing that the death rate from alcoholism in the United States for 1927 was forty in 1,000,000 of population as compared with one in 1,000,000 in 1920.

The announcement said this increase was due to the "refusal to accept the benefits of the prohibition law," and advocated a vigorous educational campaign, especially for young people.

PROS AND CONS MILKING COWS

Milking Machines Do Not Always Prove Successful
on Farm

A number of farms producing certified milk have used the milking machine for some years with splendid success. On the other hand, machines drawn milk from the average farm frequently contains enormous numbers of bacteria. Careful investigation has shown this to be largely the result of improper treatment of the rubber parts where these are not thoroughly washed and sterilized lurking bacteria germs find food and moisture inside the tubes to permit rapid growth, and the milk drawn through at the next milking becomes contaminated.

In the belief that methods recommended for cleansing and sterilizing are often too time-consuming and laborious the Division of Bacteriology, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, has studied the problem of developing simpler yet equally effective methods. Tests have shown the suction method of washing to be quicker, simpler and yet more thorough than the brush method, while chemical methods of sterilizing the rubber parts have compared very favorably with hot water and steam treatments. During the past summer, the relative values of chemical and hot water treatments for sterilizing were compared in a severe test conducted under practical conditions. Over a six week period (July to September), the average bacterial counts obtained by the machines and by careful hand milking were: Hot water treated machine 4,484 per c.c.; Chemically treated machine 4,209 per c.c.; Hand milking 4,276 per c.c. From these figures it is evident that simple methods where properly followed enable the average farmer to produce milk that will compare most favorably with the product of careful hand milking.

Full details of this experiment and of many others conducted in bacteriological studies of milking machines will shortly be published in bulletin form and should prove to be of interest to every milk producer.

EARLY START OF GARDEN NEEDED

This Is A Vital Need of A Successful Garden

One can get the garden off to an early start and also grow those tender plants which require a longer season than our climate allows, by starting many flowers and vegetables indoors.

Supplies for the window box or hanging basket can also be produced in this way. Among the flowers, zinnias, petunias, cosmos, marigolds, in fact, practically anything except poppies, which do not transplant readily, can be started under glass in March or April, and will benefit from being moved around a few times before they are placed in their permanent locations. In the vegetable line, tomatoes, cabbage, head lettuce, cucumbers, melons, and even a few early beets, carrots and corn, can be planted. A box a couple of inches deep with holes bored in the bottom for drainage and filled with sand mixed with a little loam makes the best material for indoor planting. If such material is not available, the nearest green house man will be able to supply some. Moisten the earth, then mark off the rows, which need only be an inch apart, sow the seed and cover the box tightly with a piece of sack or burlap. This covering will hasten germination, and prevent the seed from being washed out. It is best to get the plants started in a warm, dark cellar, and after they have pushed up through the soil, remove the covering and place them in full sunlight, at least a foot away from the glass, if it is single or closer if a storm window has been provided. Make sure that they are protected on nights when the thermometer threatens to go to zero.

When a large quantity of plants is desired, it is advisable to provide a hot bed. This is simply a glass-protected bed placed on a pile of horse manure, which should be fresh and at least eighteen inches deep. The bed should face the south with the glass sloping a few inches that way, so that water will run off, and the sun's rays caught fully, and should not be planted until the manure is heated up and cooled down again to about seventy degrees. In cold weather, water sparingly, and only on bright days. Ventilate a little by raising the sash, and keep this open longer as the weather gets warmer. Plants grown in a hot bed should be transplanted to a cold frame, that is a glass-protected bed without the heating manure underneath, where they are hardened off before transplanted outside.

AUTHOR APPEALS TO IMAGINATION

Montreal, Que. (By the Canadian Press).—The value of imagination in adding color to life and bringing into play the finer qualities of men and women was emphasized by Charles W. Bell, M.P. for West Hamilton, and the charter day luncheon in a speech at the real West Women's Club. Mr. Bell, the title of whose address was announced to be "Our Lost Imagination," maintained that in the matter of fact, money getting age people have lost the imaginative attitude of mind that was once a component part of life. As an indication of this materialistic trend, the lecturer pointed to the modern newspaper, remarking that musical, literary or dramatic events were not accorded place on the first page, as they were in Horace Greeley's time.

Mr. Bell glanced at different periods in the world's history in the relation to the imaginative aspects of life. The parables found in the four Gospels were an appeal to the imagination, and gave to the early Christians a sought to continue form, and color was proportionately the same method of teaching by presenting their lessons in dramatic and pictorial form.

In the "spacious days of Elizabeth," when English ships brought back tangible evidence of countries beyond the seas, and thrilling stories were told of adventure under Drake and Hawkins and Frobenius, men responded with their imagination, and the times were ripe for the geniuses that were to appear.

In the Victorian era, imagination be was given place to regard for "good" and color was proportionately going out of life.

Mr. Bell regretted that, however imagination might be touched in school life and college, there was little opportunity for this faculty to have place in business or professional life today. Out of an atmosphere in which a people lived, things came naturally and irresistibly. A dearth of novelists, or artists, or playwrights could not be charged to the absence of talent so much as to the want of an atmosphere in which talent emerges and develops. The lecturer held that one of the best legacies this generation can leave behind is to have awakened in children an imaginative interest in higher things "and maybe they will not then have to worry so much about things that are not so good."

There are almost 300,000,000 acres of vacant public land in the United States.

A bearded woman was taken by the Russians, in battle, in 1724, and presented to the Czar. Her beard measured one and one half yards.

SCOUT PLANE IS ADDED TO FLEET

"Mike" Sinclair of Leavens Bros. Acquires Small Army Machine

Stanley "Mike" Sinclair of the Leavens Bros. Air Service has purchased a Thomas Morris Scout plane, and arrived at the Leavens aerodrome with it this week. The latest addition to the fleet now operated from this field is a single seater, much similar to the fast war planes now used by Canadian Army flyers.

The new owner expects to have his machine ready to fly in a few weeks, and is busy at the present time assembling it. It is powered with a nine cylinder radial air cooled motor, and is capable of doing upwards of one hundred miles an hour. The new plane is the smallest in this district and was formerly the plane which Captain Dave Harding, of Camp Borden, used when he was organizing his Airways Company, before he left for England.

RUNAWAY GIRL MAILED LETTER FROM THIS CITY

Police Aid Enlisted In Hunt For Dorothy Fox of Michigan

Police of this district are looking for Dorothy Fox, 16 year old girl, of Highland Park, Michigan, who ran away from her home last January. Since then she has not been seen, but on the 15th of February she mailed a letter from Belleville, and for that reason it is thought likely that she may still be in this city.

It has recently come to light that a transport truck driver gave her a ride from Windsor to Toronto, but since that time no trace of her has been found. She is reported as being five feet eight inches tall, and weighing about one hundred and seventy pounds. She has light brown hair, and small, even teeth. There is the possibility that she may be working in a restaurant or a hotel, or even that she may have tried to gain admittance to a convent, as she has often signified her desire to do so.

Anyone getting any trace of this girl should report the matter at once to the nearest Provincial or City Police office.

LITTLE DAMAGE IN CHIMNEY BLAZE

About seven-thirty last night the local fire department was called out to quell a chimney-blaze in the block occupied by the Bank of Commerce, at the corner of Front and Campbell Streets. The water on Front Street and in the downtown district at the time was turned off, due to trouble with one of the mains, but the fire chief had it turned on. The blaze was extinguished with little difficulty. No damage was done.

AMOS MOYSE TO LEAVE THE CITY

The many friends of Mr. Amos Moyses in this city will be sorry to learn that he is leaving Belleville for Oshawa on Monday where he will have charge of one of the departments in the General Motors Plant. They will, however, join in wishing him every success in his new environment.

Mr. Moyses has been connected with the McLaughlin Motor Car Co. in this city for several years, and was rated as one of the best master mechanics in the district. His promotion is well earned and deserved. His fellow workers in the McLaughlin Co. here are tendering him a farewell dinner to-night.

KERR'S WIFE TO VIEW REMAINS FOUND ON SHORE

No Identification For Segments of Body Washed Up By Waves

In conversation with Dr. Dure of Brimhill corner, this afternoon, the Intelligencer was informed that there was nothing new in connection with the finding of an unidentified man's body along the lake shore yesterday. Dr. Dewar presided last night at the preliminary inquest held last night, and it was adjourned indefinitely, as there was no one present to identify the remains.

Several of Mr. Ben Kerr's friends were scheduled to arrive in Brighton this afternoon and if they identify the remains as those of Mr. Kerr the inquest will be proceeded with. One theory which has been advanced since the finding of the body is that the gasoline launch Pollywog in some unknown manner blew up which would account for parts of the body being torn off. At the time of going to press this afternoon, the Hamilton people had not arrived to identify the remains.

Smythe of Wellington, who addressed the meeting on Monday night, Rev. W. H. Clarke of Shannonville, who was the speaker on Tuesday night, and Rev. Dr. Bishop, who gave the address "Last evening.

These speakers all brought timely and inspiring messages suited to the Easter season. The service of song each evening was led by Mr. E. A. Ridley, while solos were rendered by Mrs. Houston, Miss Colclough, and Mr. F. W. Sprague. On the evening of Good Friday the closing service of the series will be held, when Rev. CHIMES RECITAL ON SUNDAY EVE

Donated To Bridge Street Church By Miss J. A.
Smith

The work of installing the new Cathedral Chimes in Bridge St. Church organ was completed yesterday and the new chimes are now ready for use in the Easter Sunday services. These chimes were made by the Deegan Company of Chicago, which is famous as a maker of chimes. They operate in exactly the same manner as the chimes in a tower and are much the same with the exception of size.

Miss J. A. Smith, of Rochester, N.Y., is the donor of the chimes, she having given them in memory of her father and mother, the late Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, who were former residents of Belleville and were actively connected with Bridge St. Church. Miss Smith will be present on Sunday to receive the recognition of the congregation for her gift.

The chimes are twenty-five in number and are built into the left side of the organ. They are operated by a hammer which strikes the piece of metal tubing when the organist plays Mr. V. P. Hunt, organist, will give a recital at the end of the Sunday evening service, in which the capabilities of the chimes will be tested and enjoyed. A number of vocal selections Mr. Hunt has announced that he will play the following gems: Sunset and Evening Bells, by Federle; In a Monastery Garden, by Ketybell; Lead Kindly Light (Dykes) Lemare, Les Cloches de Ste Marie, by Lacey; Fantasy on Church Chimes, by Harris and Distant Chimes, by Shackley.

GENERAL STORE TOTALLY BURNED AT SHANNONVILLE

Heavy Loss In Early Morning Blaze; Origin
Unknown

Awakened from her slumbers by the reflection of flames on the wall of her bedroom, Mrs. William J. Murphy, of Shannonville, gave the alarm which probably saved the better part of the village from complete destruction at three o'clock this morning. With the aid of a transport truck which was passing, sounding its siren until all those in the vicinity were awakened, a large crowd of willing workers soon congregated at the scene of the fire, a store owned by William J. Murphy, which had been closed for the past year and a half.

Bucket brigades were formed from two different wells, but it was soon evident that nothing could save the store, as the flames had gained too much headway before being discovered, so the workers concentrated on saving the buildings in the near vicinity, the closest of which was the Murphy home. A small addition to the store was torn down by the fire fighters so that the flames would have a wider gap to jump and this strategic move is probably what saved the house from the flames. Although a catty wind was blowing and sparks fell on roofs of houses a quarter of a mile away, the inhabitants were watching and promptly squelched these miniature blazes.

In conversation with Mr. Murphy this morning, the Intelligencer was informed that only part of the building was insured, and that the loss would be heavy. It is estimated that the loss on the building and stock which was completely destroyed, would amount to twelve and fifteen thousand dollars.

Mr. Murphy's was a general store and he had been preparing to reopen it this summer. For this reason he had laid in boots, shoes and clothing, and these were totally ruined. He was absent at the time of the fire, being in Adolphus on business, but arrived home early this morning after a phone message had been sent him. Mr. Murphy declared that there was no fire in either of the stores that he owned and was at a loss to explain how the blaze originated.

Hudson Cook, of Shannonville, was also a loser by the fire, as he had a quantity of lumber stored in the storehouse at the rear of the general store. This building was not covered by insurance, nor was its contents. Luckily a barn farther in the rear was saved, as it contained a thesaurus outfit belonging to Mr. Murphy. He was non-committal as to whether or not he would build again.

Samuel Curry Recipient of Many Congratulations
Today

Celebrating his eighty-third birthday, over twenty years of which have been spent in Belleville, Mr. Samuel Curry, 44 Victoria Avenue is today receiving the congratulations of his many friends on having attained another milestone. He was born in Murray Township, when that section was almost solid Irish and his book of reminiscences glimmers with many stirring tales of the early days. He spent some time in the State of Michigan, but returned to Canada after a short stay. Mr. Curry is a keen lover of horse-flesh and is one of the most ardent devotees of the turf in the city. He is a regular at the races at all of the tracks in the province and until the last year or two he acted as a judge at the races here. WOODLEY'S

NATIONALS WON FROM POINT ANNE

Close Game In Indoor League At Armouries Last Night

Point Anne's Softball team suffered its first defeat for some time at the hands of the C.N.R. team at the Armouries last night. The redoubtable Sonny Green, star of the Pointers, did not show the form that has carried the Pointers through the championship after championship, but this was easily explained as the game last night was the first he has pitched this year. His opponent last night on the mound, Earl Evey, overshadowed him by quite a little, while the rest of the C.N.R. team hit when hits meant runs. The final score was 4 to 3.

This game was an exhibition game arranged as a starter for the Men's League which will commence next week. There are four teams entered, the Alewife, C. N. R. Point Anne and Corbyville. This assures the fans of some fast games this spring, and will point Anne not making a runaway of the league, interest should be sustained until the last.

Evey and Moxan will be the C.N.R. battery, while Green as usual, will pitch for the Point. Johnson, who was last year with the Nationals, will deliver his southpaw plants up for the Alewife this year, while it is not yet known who will throw 'em over for the Corbyville clan.

BELLE THEATRE

Thrilling adventure, exotic romances, picturesque scenes and characters, and a stirring story of love and revolt were all found in one picture when Universal's gripping production, "The Foreign Legion," opened at the Belle Theatre today.

Not for a long time has an audience here seen a picture that equalled "The Foreign Legion" in any of the above features. None will soon forget the horror of the iron discipline the fateful situations into which the hero is thrown or the remarkable character which causes his downfall—a ravishing beauty-blond, but bloodied and deadly.

Two of the sequences remain in the mind especially because of their realism and beauty. One of them is the sand storm on the desert, catching the soldiers, of the Foreign Legion unawares. The other is the trial scene in the courtroom. For these two sequences alone, the picture is worth going to see.

Norman Kerry and Lewis Stone, two of the best known actors on the screen, undoubtedly do the finest work of their long and successful careers, in the starring roles. Kerry as Richard the unfortunate victim of circumstances, and Stone as his unknown father, Colonel Destin have opportunities for acting that rarely come in other pictures. Needless to say, both of these skillful players make the most of them.

The supporting cast is also good. Mary Nolan as the unprincipled blonde and June Marlowe as the girl-soldier appear to great advantage. Miss Nolan, a former Follies beauty, received her screen training in Germany, which partially explains her success in this exotic role. Craufurd Kent and Walter Perry also do good work.

Thousands of persons have read "The Red Hinge," by I. A. R. Wyle, from which "The Foreign Legion" was adapted. The full flavor of the book has been retained in the film version.

PROF. DUXBURY HIGHLY PLEASING IN TWO NUMBERS

Large Audience at Tabernacle Church Heard English Entertainer

A packed church last night heard
Professor John Duxbury, of London, Eng., perhaps the world's best reciter, render two selections at Tabernacle Church. These were the first of his never before heard in Belleville.
Professor Duxbury made his audience seem to live in the story, his mimicry of the different characters was truly wonderful and his engaging personality drew him round after round of spontaneous applause.

His two selections last night were
"The Chimes," and the "Banquet on the Styx." There are few who have not read Charles Dickens' immortal story of the chimes, of Toby Veck, of Meg, of Richard, of how the marriage of the last two appeared to be broken off after it had been set for New-Year's Day and how everything turned out all right after all. Toby Veck is now immortal, made so by Dickens, as so many of the characters of the author's famous stories are, and it needed a real artist to portray the man. Professor Duxbury, who filled Massey Hall in Toronto, was able to do so.

The second recital, the "Banquet on the Styx," was entirely different. It was decidedly unique in a way and had to be heard to be appreciated.
The river Styx, as is well known, is a river that crosses between earth and Hades, with Charon as boatman.
Some souls enjoy a banquet on the banks of this gruesome river.
Professor Duxbury will give another recital at the church this evening, as well as a special one this afternoon.

rious sports amphitheatre in the lic because it was thought that the auditorium could not be used by the public. This matter was cleared up last afternoon at a special meeting of the entire Board of Education when a standing Auditorium committee, with G. A. C. Weir as chairman, as he is the chairman of the Collegiate Committee, was appointed.

The question of cost was decided also yesterday afternoon. $100 will be the maximum fee charged to outside parties renting the large room, while $35.00 will be charged to city organizations. All applications for rental of the auditorium will be referred to this special committee, which will decide the price to be charged for the use of the last Board meeting it was found out that nearly a ton of coal was needed to heat the auditorium the Sunday night that Archdeacon Fleming spoke there. Added to this, of course, is the cost of lighting and depreciation. The special committee will be composed of
G. A. C. Weir, chairman; Arthur Jones, H. Ackerman, E. J. Butler and Colonel W. N. Zenton.

KIDNEY TROUBLE

In kidney trouble there is generally a pain in the back which may extend around to the front. This pain may be sharp at times and of short duration and again it may be more constant and dull causing the patient considerable pain only when he or she stoops or straightens up. The patient feels weak and does not rest well at night owing to the fact that the blood stream is not properly cleansed as it passes through the kidneys.

(Chiropractors) relieve kidney trouble by removing the cause.

WATER SUPPLY OF OLD LONDON

Difficulties of Bygone Days Are Recalled in Recent Article

In the history of the water supply of cities there is much of interest, and with the present lavish supply of water for domestic purposes it is difficult to realize the conditions of life in London when it was mainly dependent on springs and wells. Pumping from the river, more for cleansing the streets and for protection against fire than for drinking, came in in the sixteenth century, the most important installation being the pumps built by Peter Morrice in 1582 and worked by water wheels in one of the arches of old London Bridge. Other pumping plants were erected at various spots between Chelsea and Wapping, and one of these was described by Mr. Rhys Jenkin in a paper entitled "A Chapter in the History of the Water Supply of London," read before the Wewomen Society of January 23, in which he gave particulars of the work of Sir Edward Ford. Born in 1605 and educated at Oxford, Ford became a Royalist soldier, defended Chichester and Arundel Castle, but was imprisoned in the Tower, and for a time was an exile in France. He married a sister of Ireton, son-in-law of Cromwell, and, accepting the altered conditions, he became reconciled to Cromwell, and in 1653 received a patent for pumping machinery. This patent is one of about a dozen of its kind granted by the Protector, and it is the only one of its kind which is to be found in the Public Record Office. Mr. Jenkin gave extracts from the patent, which conferred protection for fourteen years, and owing to the observations of an intelligent foreigner, Monsieur de Moncouys, who left accounts of his travels, he was able to give a sketch of the machine, which was erected in a tower on a spot where the Temple Station now stands. There were four suction pumps arranged in series driven by levers and rods worked by a horizontal cam-wheel turned by horses. Old prints of London show the tower, which however, because it annoyed Queen Henrietta Maria, was ordered to be taken down by Charles II, and Ford's pumping gear was re-erected nearer Charing Cross. Ford later on turned his attention to coming farthings.—Engineering (London).

LABOR TO BUY AND PUBLISH PAPERS

London.—That British labor "co-operative" movement is embarking on newspaper production is announced to night. The National Co-operative Publishing Society has acquired Reynolds' Sunday Illustrated News from Lord Dalsiel for $750,000.

The Labor Daily Herald in an editorial tomorrow will welcome the purchase as showing "the definite awakening of British workers for the need of their own press," and draws attention to "the apparent decision of Lord Rothemere to advise his millions of readers to vote Liberal in the hope of preventing the country from returning a Labor majority."

The Daily Mail, Lord Rothemere's most influential newspaper, tomorrow will say: "The only sure way of keeping out the Socialists (Laborites) is in union of the two anti-Socialist parties under Lloyd George and Stanley Baldwin, and this combination of Liberals and Conservatives would have our heartiest support."

LIZZIES RETAIN LEAD IN FINALS OVER 'Y' BOYS

Toronto Team On Long End of Score Here Last Night

Belleville Y.M.C.A. Juniors are facing a slight deficit for the return game with Toronto Elizabeths which will be played on the Central Y.M.C.A. floor on Saturday night. The Lizzies emerged on the long end of a 32-29 count in a hard-fought game before a large crowd on the local court last night. It was a nip and tuck battle with the grounds team maintaining a well-balanced outfit and show the results of first-rate coaching in their cohesion and style. The Toronto team have as their mentor Bob Abate, one of the best-known coaches in the province. He has always turned out smart teams and his Juniors are still much in the running while the Intermediates were out after a hectic battle with Windsor Grads.

Last night's game was fast and the gallery were ticked with the brand of ball supplied by the youngsters.

The Lizzies set a very fast pace for A. Walter's kiddies and they were forced to travel in order to keep within striking distance of the red shirts. They have played better basketball than they did last night but they faced a heavy checking aggression and their efforts at combination were often frustrated after a hectic battle with Windsor Grads.

Eisen was the big scoring ace for the Jewish boys and he caged nearly half of the points secured by his team. He is fast and tricky under the hoops and was a hard man to watch. Pearson bagged ten points and gave Eisen a chase in point-scoring. Elongated Pearson was the leader for the 30 cuts, hanging up sixteen points which is a nice showing in the face of the hard checking and speedy visiting squad. Chadwick was a valuable man at right guard and although he had the fastest man on the floor to check he clung to him like a leech.

The locals go to Toronto with a three point handicap but they will be there fighting from the drop of the hat. They will be playing before a strange crowd but with a few breaks they may bring home the bacon. The first half ended 20-18 for the Lizzies. J. Rose of Queen's University Senior team handled the game last night and gave complete satisfaction.

BATTLESHIPS AND PLANES TO FIGHT

London.—In an action lasting three hours, Britain's finest fighting ships exercising in the Mediterranean today were pitted against nearly a hundred of the most modern torpedo and light aircraft. It was the greatest air attack ever staged at sea, and in the opinion of many observers the honors were with the aircraft.

Over twenty torpedoes were launched

ed from aircraft as they swooped down towards the speeding warships. Many reached their mark, but how many aircraft were adjudged destroyed before the missiles are known only to the referees.

The battle was so realistic that many of the officers who had served in war time experienced the same thrills as if the torpedoes were racing towards them were live weapons.

At one time eleven huge capital ships were enveloped by aircraft which were so low that they were able to rain bullets, point-blank, along the warship's bridges, fire control stations and other nerve centres. Aircraft carrier Argus, it is disclosed, was one of the engaged, and successfully launched the flights of aircraft with machine-like precision while travelling at full speed.

HALIFAX MADE HUB OF PLANS

Gigantic Scheme to Make City Distributing Point For U. S. Imports

Halifax, N.S. — The article published recently in the London Daily Express, stating that United States British and German railroad and shipping magnates were considering a scheme to make Halifax a distributing centre for imports into the United States, and to develop the port of Galway, Ireland, as a receiving depot for Europe, created great interest here. The proposal is designed to establish a faster steamship service across the Atlantic than existing, and cheapening the present service. Galway is 340 miles nearer than Liverpool to Halifax.

Col. James Fitzmaurice, of the trans-Atlantic plane Bremen, has resigned as head of the Irish Free State Air Force to devote himself to the plan.

"It is solely due to this development that I resigned my position," he said in the Daily Express. "When I was in America the railway directors of the middle west discussed the development of faster transportation routes. They pointed out to me that Halifax was the natural outlet for the great manufacturing districts of Detroit, Chicago and Cleveland, and the granaries of Canada, but what was gained one way was more than lost another."

"Though the train journey to New York is longer, the journey from that port to Europe is much faster than from Halifax, yet the distance between the Canadian port and Ireland is very much shorter. The difficulty was that at this end we were slow, and I was commissioned to draw up a scheme."

"I spent six months on my plan, and I have selected February 1st as the date for the opening of the four landing piers. There, ships can come alongside the quay at all states of the tide, but we shall have to spend one and a half million dollars in making sidings for railways and building piers to accommodate the liners."

"It is proposed to electrify the railways from Galway to Dublin and Simerus. We will have vessels at Dublin onto which we will run the trains as they arrive from Galway, and the crossing will be made to Liverpool."

"Not only will Canada and Ireland benefit by the scheme, but so also will the great industrial centres of the north of England, Sheffield, Bradford and Manchester will be able to ship their goods to America faster and cheaper than they have been doing hitherto. It is the intention also to carry on the service to Germany and eastern European countries."

The Canadian Pacific Railway, said Col. Fitzmaurice, was very much interested in the project.

A number of shipping magnates had approved the scheme, he said, and were ready to co-operate because they believed they would be able to make a great saving on capital outlay owing to the fact that port charges would be less at Galway and Halifax than at the larger port. Two days' sailing, or more than 1,000 pounds, could also be saved on each trip, the Colonel believed.

LITTLE KINGSTON

We all enjoyed very much a social evening at the school house on the evening of March 18th. A good Irish program was given, followed by a geography match between our school and Salem in which Salem school were the winners. Then everyone was asked to inspect the various supplies for the school. The boys have been taking up manual training and have gained a grant from the government which they have used to purchase a very fine outfit of carpenter tools and they have some splendid work to show. One of the boys was asked to demonstrate the work and quickly sawed out a perfectly formed giraffe. Two of the boys won prizes for their bird houses at Picton poultry show and have just received their checks. The girls have also received a grant for domestic science work, they have served hot lunches all winter and have a very fine display of aluminum ware and a lovely cabinet cupboard, they are also embroidering aprons and vest worn that night showed splendid work by beginners. The school also has a dandy new library, a first aid medicine cabinet and the Babcock outfit for testing milk. Last fall they planted two beds of tulip bulbs and are now digging trenches for cement walks and a new play ground equipment is planned for this summer. The little ones also displayed some fine work in that winning "Mr. Bowdler" deserves great credit for his interest in improving the school. No wonder children are so anxious to attend school now-a-days when they have such interesting surroundings.

Mr. Gunyie, of Brighton, is making his headquarters at Frank Hickerson's while selling fertilizer in this locality. Miss Ruth Hamilton, of Concession, spent the week end with Miss Olive May.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Bush attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Charles Lauder at Mountain View on Tuesday.

HOCKEY SHOWN TO BE HONEST

So Says Sports Editor of Buffalo Evening News

Bob Stedler, sports editor of the Buffalo Evening News, has the following to say regarding the honesty of professional hockey:

"Reflecting upon the final week of play in the Canpro Hockey League, of which Buffalo is a member, the fans must have been impressed with one outstanding fact—the honesty of the game. It was demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that the boys playing the game in that circuit are beyond suspicion."

"The situation which presented itself was a real test as to the sincerity of the players. Buffalo had a chance to get into the play-offs, which would have meant much money for the players. Detroit, Windsor and Toronto were certain of qualifying. The question was whether or not Buffalo or Kitchener could land the other place."

"Windsor came here with nothing to lose. In fact, there was really much to gain if Buffalo won its place in the play-offs instead of Kitchener, for the Buffalo game undoubtedly would be decided at Kitchener, and consequently the players would get a bigger share. If there had been any doubt about the honesty of the game, Windsor could have lost to Buffalo, enabling Buffalo to make the play-offs, and Windsor would not have suffered. But Windsor played the game squarely and won, regardless of the fact that victory over the Buffalo meant a direct loss in money to every player on the Windsor team."

"Although Buffalo's ambition, and the hope of the fans who have been pulling for the Fort Erie arena combination, was not attained, there is tremendous satisfaction in the outcome, for it puts the game on the same basis as baseball. It will do much to increase the growing popularity of the fascinating winter sport in this section."

NEWS FROM THE TRAINING CAMPS

Going into the last week in the training camp the situation is now too alluring so far as the Philadelphia Athletics are concerned.

The regular pitchers are going none too well, the make-up of the infield is none too certain, and on top of that Geo. Earnshaw, right-handed pitcher, will not be in shape for several weeks. Earnshaw is still in Hot Springs under going treatment for an injured back.

Bill Hunnefeld is to get a chance at shortstop in Bill Gissell's place for the White Sox.

Gissell, who cost the White Sox $123,000 in 1921, has been a disappointment this spring in fielding and hitting.

Manager Bucky Harris calls the 1922 edition of the Cubs the "greatest" ball club I have ever seen placed on a field.

Just a season too late came the St. Louis Cardinals' decisive triumph, 14 to 8, over the world-champion Yankees yesterday, but, according to Red Bird followers, it had an overwhelming effect on the morale of the October losers for the coming campaign.

CLEGHORN RESIGNS AS PIRATE'S COACH

Montreal, Mar. 28.—For the first time in many years, Odie Cleghorn is not connected with professional hockey.

The Beau Brummel of the sport, who for many seasons has been player and then lately manager, on Saturday mailed his resignation to Benny Leonard as pilot of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Whether he has any other hockey job in view or not was not learned, but the position at the Smoky City is now open and no matter what they do on receipt of his letter, he refuses to have anything more to do with that outfit, he declares.

Should the Pittsburgh franchise be sold or transferred to another city, there is nothing which would hold Odie to the club—he has severed his connection with Pittsburgh entirely. There is a rumor that he may join one of the Canadian clubs next season acting as bench manager and coach, but whether this refers to Montreal or Toronto is not known. Once before there was a campaign against Cecil Hart, the name of Odie Cleghorn was freely mentioned as his successor, but nothing came of it.

A lightning flash takes about one-seventh of a second to complete itself.

NEW GROWTH IN WESTERN MINING

Operating Conditions Are Changed by Minister of Interior

Ottawa, Ont. (By Canadian Press)—The recent remarkable progress made in mining development on Dominion lands in Western Canada, particularly in the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, has attracted national-wide attention. The Department of the Interior in order to encourage and foster the future healthy growth of the mining industry in that part of the Dominion has kept in constant touch with the rapidly changing situation and has by regulations and close supervision taken measures to protect the interests of both the industry and the public.

New quartz mining regulations, which contain provisions for the improvement of prospecting and operating conditions, have been drafted by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, and passed by Order in Council to go into effect April 1, 1922. The major changes that have been made in the old ordinances have been for the purpose of bringing the new regulations abreast of present conditions and of securing uniformity by correlating federal and provincial enactments.

The new regulations provide that every person and organization engaged in mining activity on Dominion lands must hold a miner's certificate. Such a certificate entitles the holder to stake and record three claims for himself and three claims for each of two other licensees or nine claims in all (a total of about 450 acres) in each mining division. In the Northwest Territories double this number—that is, to say eighteen claims—may be staked and recorded. All claims must be marked by four legal posts and as soon after as reasonably possible, metal tags supplied by the Department of the Interior must be attached to the posts.

Before a lease can be issued to a licensee, two hundred days work must be done on the claim during a period of five years or less. Provision is also made so that if desirable, improvement work may be started as soon as the legal posts are in place.

At least forty days work must be done in each year. When two hundred days work has been performed, the claim surveyed, discovery established, certain other requirements complied with and accepted the record owner will be entitled to obtain a certificate for improvements and upon payment of the monthly rental and fee, he will be entitled to a lease for a period of twenty-one years, without further payment of rental. Renewal for an additional period of like duration is subject to rental. All assignments or options, after the issue of a lease, must be filed with the Minister of the Interior and in the case of a conditional assignment its acceptance and registration is at the discretion of the Minister.

Considerable change has been made in the clause covering the collection of royalty. Instead of royalty being paid at the rate of two and a half per cent on the value of the sales of the products of the location, as at present provided the new regulations require that the payment be made on the profits of the mine in excess of $10,000 during any calendar year. This royalty is fixed at three per cent of the annual profits over $10,000 and up to $100,000, five per cent of the excess over $100,000 and up to $500,000.

Certain other major changes have been made as to fractions by which the Minister may lease such small areas to adjoining holders and also as to joining partnerships, operations, inspection, schedule of fees, and a provision for claims located and not yet recorded at the time of the coming into effect of the new regulations. In the latter it is provided that any person who may have staked a mineral claim or claims as nearly in accordance with the provisions of the late regulations as circumstances would admit, and who may have submitted applications for entry thereon within the prescribed time but who, for any reason, may not have received such entry, may be granted entry under the new regulations.

The prospecting and mining of the mineral areas on Dominion lands in the West have taken place under careful scrutiny of the Minister of the Interior, and the new Dominion Mining Regulations embody the most effective and progressive provisions of administration and operation in keeping with the advance of mining development in Western Canada.

TOURIST BOATS IN BIG MERGER

EVERY 3000 MILES change your grease!

3000 Miles → 3000 Miles → 3000 Miles

THE first thing about lubrication is to realize that changing the grease in your transmission and differential is just as important as changing your oil. Changing your oil regularly will take you only half way along the road to correct lubrication—changing your grease will complete the trip.

Eliminate imperfect lubrication and you eliminate 75% to 80% of the cause of repair bills. Worn out grease means imperfect lubrication and the safest precaution is to have your grease changed regularly every 3000 miles. Don't forget that "One pound of fresh grease added to 4 pounds of worn grease, equals 5 pounds of old grease."

When you change be sure you get WHIZ GEAR GREASE—for WHIZ GREASE is all pure lubricant.

RECOGNIZE BRAVERY OF COAST GUARDS

Boston, Mass.—Praise for the seamanship and work of the United States Coast Guard during conditions of extreme difficulty was given at the Navy Yard in Charleston when two chests of silver were presented to the Coast cutters Tampa and Mojave, in recognition of the assistance given by these vessels to the British steamer Silver Maple when she was helpless nearly 1000 miles east of Boston.

Receiving the S.O.S. from the vessel in a storm, the two cutters raced to her aid and took her in tow to Bermuda. The owners of the vessel wished to make monetary reward for the crews and officers of the cutters, but this could not be allowed, and instead the chests of silver were given.

Lined up on the quarter deck of the Tampa, naval, Coast Guard, shipping and city representatives heard the work of the coast-guardmen praised at every move. Collector of the Port W. W. Lufkin declared it was a blessing to hear and see such a demonstration at a time when everyone seemed interested in throwing bricks at the Coast Guard.

The first presentation took place on the Tampa, with Commander Thomas M. Molloy, skipper of the vessel, accepting on behalf of the officers and crew.

The services on the Tampa were followed by similar services on the Mojave, with Cecil M. Cabett, skipper of the cutter, accepting.

Although the Silver Line was not able to make a donation of money directly to the men of the two cutters, it had made a contribution to the League of Coast Guard Women for use in the relief work of the organization.

Mrs. Eugene G. Blake, wife of the commandant of this Coast Guard district, also announced that the line has promised the league an annual gift of $50.

ENTIRE VILLAGE AUCTIONED OFF

London (By Canadian Press) A fragment of Merrie England of medieval, as represented by the village of West Wycombe, in Buckinghamshire, is to be preserved for posterity.

The village, with its old-world associations, its timbered cottages, and its quaint reminders of a course of life now long since departed for ever, is to come under the auctioneer's hammer almost at once. The village is situated on the main Oxford road, and has a population of some 3000. An appeal for funds to assist in the preservation of the village is being issued by the Royal Society of Arts.

Paris, Mar. 27.—The Government today entered a bill in the Chambers of Deputies providing the annual pension of a hundred thousand francs (about four thousand dollars) for Madame Poch, widow of the Marshall. The bill provides that after her death it would be divided among the grandchildren until they attain their majority.

Thomas Flanagan Spots Nickel

Back in 1888 the steel for Canada's first transcontinental railway line was slowly creeping across northwestern Ontario. Thomas Flanagan, a blacksmith, noticed that certain parts of the earth along the right-of-way near Sudbury were of a reddish color. This led to the discovery of copper ores. Trouble in working the ore resulted in a laboratory test being made and to the mine owner's surprise the old spirit—nickel is an old German name for the evil spirit that had bothered the early Saxon miners—was discovered hidden in the copper ore. This troublesome nickel in the ore proved to be more valuable than the copper and today Sudbury nickel is known and used the world over.

One use of nickel that touches daily life closely is in an alloy with zinc and copper for the contact springs inside telephones. When a telephone user lifts the receiver off the hook these springs make contact and complete the path to the operator's signal lamp. In the large piece above we see a group of men at work in a cupola of the International Nickel Co. at Sudbury. The young lady, at the right in the Northern Electric factory at Montreal, is inspecting telephone apparatus parts which have been plated with nickel for protection against rust.

HOUSECLEANING TIME

Now that housecleaning time is fast approaching, with its thrice-annual and heavy lifting, it is perhaps advisable to suggest some hints to help alleviate the drudgery associated with this annual spring uproot. If one room at a time is attempted and completed the same day, much confusion is avoided.

Quite often it is the brush that is to blame for the unsatisfactory floor finish. You cannot get good results with poor tools or materials, so when you are painting the floor use the best materials and the proper brushes—this is real economy.

If you have casters on heavy furniture and linoleum on the floor take the precaution to place a piece of old carpet under the furniture when moving it, to prevent the casters from cutting into the linoleum. Glass or metal shoes are preferable to casters on linoleum floors, but even with these it is wise to use the liner of carpet.

Light weight rugs, such as the rug can be washed like any other heavy colored material, the chief precaution being to rinse thoroughly, as this brings out the colors and prevents that gray look which, some times have.

Turning the hose on the rug will do the rinsing most effectively and with the least labor.

PLANNING A CHILD'S EASTER PARTY

For the Easter breakfast party an Easter egg hunt, the table's decoration is all important. At each place should be some appropriate Easter trifle—an egg, of course, and a little bunny paste board basket or some other container for the little ones to put their newly-found eggs into.

If one wants to take the trouble which is often very much worth while little crepe paper bunny costumes can be made for each child, or children costumes at any other appropriate Easter one.

Decorative crepe paper, of course, plays a large part in one's table decorations. There are new Easter patterns that bring into the party all the

CHANG CENTERS CITY

Chefco, Shantung, China, March 27. —Marshall Chang Young Chang entered this city at eight o'clock this morning and practically without hindrance from its national defenders took control. The British sloop Cornwall and the United States cruiser Trenton moved in shore to a position near the foreign quarters to meet any emergency which might arise.

Lucinda gazed in amazement at the apparition that had burst, unannounced, into her room.

It was Florence Thorpe, showing every sign of a hasty and careless toilette. Her face was pale and haggard. She quavered.

"Lucinda! What have you done?" Lucinda's astonishment turned to alarm. She supposed that the nervous explosion that had threatened the unhappy Florence for so long had now become a fact. She said nothing.

"Sit down and tell me what's happened to you?"

"To me?" demanded Florence shrilly. "It's you that I'm worrying about! I just read it in the papers and I came as quickly as I could."

"Read what?" demanded Lucinda, bewilderedly.

Florence stared. She sat down and straightened her hat.

"Your engagement to that awful Rolfe."

TO PICK BEST WORLD TYPIST

International Contest Will be Held in Toronto This Year

New York, N.Y.—Toronto, Canada, is the place and September 28th is the date of this year's International Typing Contest, at which keyboard speedsters from every quarter of the globe vie annually for world typing honors. J. N. Kinnahan, contest manager, announced here today.

That the 1929 touch-system sweepstakes are to be the first staged outside the United States in 25 years constitutes a compliment to the two Canadian lasses who won world titles at the 23rd International Contest last September in Sacramento, California.

They are Irma Wright, of Toronto, who outtyped the fastest non-professionals the United States could produce in capturing the international amateur title and Wilma McBride, of Calgary, Alta., who won the world's novice crown against state champions from every commonwealth in the union, and from various provinces of Canada.

Albert Tangora, world's champion, George L. Hostfield, whose crown he lifted at Sacramento, and Anna Safer of Jacksonville, Fla., United States school novice champion, are among the 75 select of typing speed whom Toronto will see in action at historic Massey Hall.

Tangora won the open title at 132 net words a minute for an hour; Miss Wright attained the amateur sceptre and the cup donated by Governor C. C. Young of California, by tapping out 116 net words a minute for a half hour; Miss McBride annexed the world's school title at 87 words a minute for a quarter-hour, and Miss Safer achieved the United States school title and the coveted Governor Alfred E. Smith Trophy at 82 net words a minute for a quarter of an hour.

This year the Young and Smith trophies and the thousand dollar bronze plaque for the open contest will again be among the numerous prizes open to competition. School contests are already under way in many states to choose the champions who are to compete for the international novice title at Toronto in the fall.

CHRISTOPHER ROBIN

Little boy kneels at the foot of his bed. Droops on the little hands, little gold head.

Hush! Hush! Whisper who dares. Christopher Robin is saying his prayers.

God bless Mummy! I know that's right; Wasn't it fun in the bath tonight. The cold's so cold and the hot's so hot. Oh! God bless Daddy—I quite forgot.

If I open my fingers a little bit more I can see Nanny's dressing gown on the door; It's a beautiful blue, but it hasn't a hood. Oh! God bless Nanny and make her good.

Mine has a hood, and I lie in bed And pull the hood right over my head; And I shut my eyes and I curl up small And nobody knows that I'm there at all.

Oh! thank you God, for a lovely day, And what was the other I had to say? I said "Bless Daddy," so what can it be? Oh! now I remember it, God bless me.

THE INEVITABLE REVOLT

Lucinda gazed in amazement at the apparition that had burst, unannounced, into her room.

It was Florence Thorpe, showing every sign of a hasty and careless toilette. Her face was pale and haggard. She quavered.

"Lucinda! What have you done?" Lucinda's astonishment turned to alarm. She supposed that the nervous explosion that had threatened the unhappy Florence for so long had now become a fact. She said nothing.

WHAT TO DO FOR YOUR BABY'S COLD

When the cold is in Baby's head you can make his breathing easier by putting a few drops of liquid albolene in his nostrils several times daily. But to throw off the cold completely keep him warm and make his bowels move freely. For this purpose, doctors advise Fletcher's Castoria, because it acts as quickly as castor oil and doesn't gripe or sicken. Millions of mothers know how easily Castoria soothes crying, fretful babies and how quickly it helps them to sleep. It relieves those common ailments, etc. To protect you from imitations, the Fletcher signature is on every bottle of genuine Castoria.

Fluence flung the offending gloves from her with violence. "Not to congratulate you!—To beg you, on my knees it need be, not to do it! Not to throw away your life and every chance for happiness! Not to make an eternal slave of yourself!"

Lucinda suddenly began to laugh. If there was the faintest edge of hysteria in her mirth, it was not surprising. She had a hundred many emotions in the past 24 hours. Farewell to Julian and love! Engaging herself to Rolfe, whom she barely tolerated! And now Florence, suggesting that she go on her knees! That was the last straw. The picture of the languid, careless Florence, allowing her sense of drama to get the better of her to such an extent threatened to upset Lucinda's composure.

She giggled: "Oh, please don't darling! In the first place, your skirts are too tight."

Florence flung her a disgruntled glance. Then she began to search for her handkerchief and found she had forgotten it in her haste.

"If you knew how I simply flung on my clothes and rushed over! I must look a fright," Lucinda confessed. "I don't know how I can ever thank you. Twombly Thorpe always said that Florence would stop to powder her nose before shaking hands with the Devil on judgement day."

"You could look better," remarked Lucinda critically. "What was the picture of the languid, careless Florence, allowing her sense of drama to get the better of her to such an extent threatened to upset Lucinda's composure."

"But my word, it's not you who are marrying Aaron Rolfe!"

"It's the same thing!" declared Florence. "It's just as bad as if you were marrying Twombly Thorpe. Worse, in one respect, because Rolfe's not really old, and he'll live a long time. Better in another, because, at least, whatever Rolfe's got, he hasn't got you."

"You're certainly sweetly encouraging," murmured Lucinda. Florence brushed aside the sarcasm. "How did it happen? Were you out of your senses?"

"I think I'd only just come into them," said Lucinda bitterly. "For the time being, in nearly five years, I saw clearly through a silly fog of my own creation."

"Where was Julian Marston?" demanded Florence. "How did he let you do such a thing?"

"Julian was with me. He helped me into it."

"What do you mean?" Lucinda sank back on her pillows. "We've been friends nearly all our lives. Florence, and we'll likely continue to be, but, if we both live to be a hundred, that's one thing I'll never tell you."

Florence shrugged, too intent on the picture of her visit to be offended, it seemed. "Of course it's just a mistake. You can't go through with it."

"But I am going through with it. Nothing can stop me now!" Florence uttered a little cry. "I must stop you!—Oh, Lucinda look at me! You know how unhappy I am. You see how unhappy I am. I have nothing in the world to live for. I hate my life. I hate my husband. I hate myself. Once I thought, as you do now, that money would make up for everything. I lost. But it didn't. It can't! It only makes you more miserable, because it seems to promise you everything in the world, and then taunts you with the one thing it can't buy—happiness. And love!"

Lucinda was unmoved. That's all very well, but love always doesn't always mean happiness. You are just as unhappy without money as with it. It only you feel it less, and you've a damned sight more chance of correcting it, if you've got the money. I haven't found life so wonderful since I've been working to earn a living."

"You had your freedom and you could have had love, if you wanted it. I haven't even freedom and love is denied me."

"Nonsense! Since when has Twombly Thorpe turned jailer? And since when have you shrunk from a flirtation?"

"That's not love," protested Florence hotly. "Oh, Lucinda, you can't now how it stifles the soul of you to be married to a man you detest, or only just tolerate, because he gives you money to buy things. You think I'm hard and flippant. Everybody thinks that. Well, what made me that way? I wasn't like that as a young girl. I was like that when I loved Nicky Jordan—Marriage with Twombly has done it, and I'm getting worse every day. Things that used to shock me don't—any more. You'd be horrified if I told you some of the things I've done in sheer desperation in order to get against my claims. Even your friendship couldn't stand the strain—and you'd be just like me, after awhile if you marry Rolfe."

Lucinda signed wearily. "Oh, Florence cut out the dramatic! I'm not the first of your friends to follow in your footsteps and make a rich and loveless match. Why the fireworks for me?"

"Because I care more about you than the rest. And because we've all more or less mixed up in this catastrophe?"

"I like the way you refer to my engagement," laughed Lucinda, a trifle sadly. "Catastrophe indeed."

"I wasn't referring entirely to that," said Florence darkly.

"Proceed, Lady MacBeth!" yawned Lucinda. "You might as well get it out of your system. Then, you can wait while I dress and I'll go home with you and wait for you to dress properly. After that, we'll go somewhere for luncheon and celebrate."

"I'm not going home—ever again!" Florence threw her bomb neatly. It left Lucinda gasping. She sat up in bed. "Have you gone crazy?"

"Listen," Florence leaned forward. "This morning, before I read that announcement in the newspaper, I got a wire from Twombly. He said he'd finished his cure at the sanatorium and was on his way home. Everything that has been brewing for weeks seemed to come to a head all at once. I knew I couldn't go on any longer. I must be free. It's the only way to save my soul. Oh, you and other people laugh and say I'm going about it in a queer way. You and society will damn me, but I'll know that I'm being honest with myself at last. I'll know that I'm done with sham and pretense and subterfuge and hypocrisy. Look at me. Understand what I've done and you'll see yourself doing the identical thing."

Lucinda did look at her, now really alarmed. "For Heaven's sake, what have you done?"

Baseball and Bowling All Stars

Visitors were first ushered to the Bowling Alley where two League games were in operation, the Bellevue and Mayflowers being hooked up in the Women's League, and the Y's Men and Semi Centenials in the Men's Senior League.

Swimming Tank

The next attraction was the Swimming Tank where boys from ten years of age upwards gave a very fine demonstration of their ability to swim and dive.

Main Floor

On the Main Floor, Ping Pong, Checkers, Crokinole, and other games were being played by young and older men. The Ace High orchestra under Reg Brookhous furnished a delightful programme of music while in the Library to the east, the wives of Directors poured tea and served light refreshments. The room was very bright and cozy as arranged and decorated by the ladies, and a cherry fire burned in the grate. Among those serving under the direction of Mrs. George Ostrom were Mrs. Harry Ackerman, Mrs. Dr. Bishop, Mrs. Charles Hanna, Mrs. Fred B. Smith, Mrs. Newt. Thompson, Mrs. Robert Brown, Mrs. Norman Edwards, Mrs. J. E. Short, Mrs. B. F. Jennings, Mrs. J. B. Findlay, Mrs. M. C. Duff, Mrs. Howard Clarke, Mrs. George F. Cole.

Gymnasium

In the Gymnasium boys' groups were active in team and group games and calisthenics, while seniors later gave an exhibition of horizontal bar, work on the horse and nut work. This was followed by the City Industrial Championship game in basketball, the American Optical Team captained by Army Armstrong noising out the C.N.R. directed by Vernon Weir by one point; score 23-28 for the championship honors.

Second Floor

On the second floor in the main Auditorium a lantern was used and many interesting slides thrown on the screen while the beautiful combination Radio and Gramophone loaned for the occasion by Bonter's Radio Den furnished a splendid program of music and incidentally the broadcast of the big hockey game in Toronto. In the adjoining rooms, the boys' auditorium and boys' game rooms, groups were busy with their games, reading material, etc.

Dormitories

Many of the visitors were surprised at the neat and comfortable equipment on the dormitory floor where a large number of single rooms provide happy rooming facilities for young men. In addition to the comfortable sittingrooms on this floor, are large washrooms with hot and cold water, shower baths, etc.

After touring the building, friends were ushered to the Library where the smiling ladies made everyone feel quite happy and at home, as they partook of light refreshments and chatted over their tea or coffee.

During the evening the following well-known citizens were noticed among the visitors: Mayor Harry Greenleaf, Mr. John Elliott, Chairman Board of Education; Magistrate Mikel, Ex-Mayor Morley Duff, Charlie Hanna, Ex-M.P. Owen Horley, Manager of Chamber of Commerce.

Dormitories

Many of the visitors were surprised at the neat and comfortable equipment on the dormitory floor where a large number of single rooms provide happy rooming facilities for young men. In addition to the comfortable sittingrooms on this floor, are large washrooms with hot and cold water, shower baths, etc.

After touring the building, friends were ushered to the Library where the smiling ladies made everyone feel quite happy and at home, as they partook of light refreshments and chatted over their tea or coffee.

During the evening the following well-known citizens were noticed among the visitors: Mayor Harry Greenleaf, Mr. John Elliott, Chairman Board of Education; Magistrate Mikel, Ex-Mayor Morley Duff, Charlie Hanna, Ex-M.P. Owen Horley, Manager of Chamber of Commerce.

Watch your growing children

WATCH the health of your growing children! See that they have the health and energy necessary for their school work and play. For growing children—particularly girls—a rich supply of red blood is essential. Languor, nervousness, depression, feeble appetite or pallor indicate anemia.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enrich the blood, prevent anemia and build healthy bone and tissue. Thousands of mothers have proved this. "My twelve-year-old girl," writes Mrs. Robert Devitt of Brougham, Ontario, "became so pale, so ill and nervous that I had to take her out of school. I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for her and she gained in weight and strength. She is now the picture of health."

LIVING LONGER

A large insurance company, with more than 18,000 policyholders, keeps accurate records of the cause of death, because only by such records can the company definitely provide for the future. Recently, it released the figures for 1928, which contain several factors of great significance in relation to public health. The expectancy of life among wage-earners in 1928 was 46.43 years. Thus, the charts show, the life expectancy of the industrial population has gained 9.79 years during the 16-year period as contrasted with the gain of only 6.06 years for the general population. This, we think it will be admitted, is a reflection to a considerable extent of the increased attention being given to industrial hygiene and industrial health. During 1928, the death rates from typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria and conditions associated with childbirth were lower than ever before. On the other hand, the rates for heart disease, rose, as did those for cancer. Of greatest importance, perhaps, further testimony to the boon that our own Dr. Banting gave the world—was the decline in deaths for diabetes up to the age of 45 years. People are now dying of diseases of advanced age, rather than the infectious diseases which carried off men early in the past. And medical science is continually reviewing the starting point of that period which we call advanced age. A few weeks ago an Edinburgh scientist told a gathering of his fellows that there would come a time when medical science had beaten every ailment that besets mankind—a time when death would be conquered and men would live forever and a day. Whether this would be a desirable attainment, from an economical point of view is something else again.

COMPENSATION ACT

It was something to be taken for granted that as the wheels of industry accelerated there would be an increase in the number of industrial accidents. But to be told that there were 80,000 working people in Ontario whose injuries qualified them for the ministrations of the compensation board last year is laying it on a "bit too thick." Not only was there a marked increase in the number of accidents, but the graph of accidents having fatal termination rose sharply, 533 being killed in 1928 as compared with 429 in the previous year. Here is what the members of the compensation commission say: "In spite of any explanations, the fact remains that the number of accidents is steadily increasing and both employer and employee should put forth every endeavor to avoid all accidents which can be avoided by greater care in the kind of machines and guards supplied and in operation of plants generally." Most of these accidents we think examination of the records will reveal, were what are known as "production accidents." In most plants, production is on a piece-work basis—so much money for so much work accomplished. As the tempo increases, so also does the probability of mishap. The books of the compensation board reveal that, as in the previous year, August was the worst month for accidents. The explanation of this would seem to be that the hottest month of the year begets a lassitude that makes for carelessness. It is pointed out, too, that there were unmistakable indications of increasing prosperity. The number of employers in the province shrank from 24,700 in 1927 to 23,685 at the end of 1928, but the total payroll of the province, increased approximately $1,000,000 the total distribution to the injured or dependents of the victims of fatalities being $7,067,946. The cost to employers of maintaining the Workmen's Compensation Act is increasing at such a rate "it emphasizes the absolute necessity of lessening as far as possible the increase in accidents," the report sets forth.

AS TO HORN-BLOWING

Certain newspapers now insist upon telling their readers in detail how each story of importance is obtained. One learns just how the reporter proceeded to the scene, arriving earlier than his rival, and obtained "exclusive" information, interviews or pictures. An evening paper in Toronto frequently publishes photos of its reporters. In a series of articles now appearing, from a member of its staff, his picture adorns each and every one.

The tendency to exalt the messenger rather than the message runs to curious lengths. The public has been offered quite long accounts of reporters' journeys. No longer ago than the Drocourt wreck, a despatch to one Toronto paper contained the assurance that its representative was the only newspaper man on the scene, yet on the previous day the rival paper had solemnly announced the its representative was or would be first at the scene.

'Mostly, the "horn-blowing" is done in the newspaper office, and not by the reporter, but there is one distinguished exception in Toronto at the present time, whose use of the pronoun "I" is so profuse that the members of the Press Gallery in the Legislature—ordinarily a very tolerant body—the other day printed a burlesque of one of his interviews.

A Toronto evening paper on Saturday published a despatch of some 18 lines about Commander Byrd. Above it were six lines explaining that publication rights were reserved throughout the world, yet it is extremely doubtful if its news value would have induced any other paper to copy it.

It is not only papers of provincial circulation who proclaim their own merits. One of the smaller dailies last week pointed to publication of reports of the Drocourt wreck and the death of Marshal Foch on the same day as proof of enterprise. Yet it published only the reports furnished by the Canadian Press—precisely the same as its contemporaries—and contributed nothing whatever toward gathering the stories or promptness of their transmission.

Simcoe Reformer—one of the best weeklies—falls victim for once to this form of ego, and advises its readers that "weird and conflicting stories were sent to the daily papers concerning the McCoy murder," and that "the Reformer's representative was the only reporter actually on the scene during the morning," etc.

More than 70 years ago, the dailies of Upper Canada used to boast when a mail brought them Old Country journals ahead of their contemporaries, and they were thus able to clip and publish "exclusively" the belated news from Europe. Human nature has not changed, but self-advertising is now achieved upon such a scale in the journalistic world that a reaction would seem overdue. Otherwise, we will be asked to read the life story of the telegraph operator who handled an important despatch, and be entertained by a picture of the printer who set it. Indeed, either would be fully as justifiable, on grounds of efficiency, as some of the blurbs about special writers.

One does not attempt to invoke modesty in this day and age. It may be equally in vain to urge charity, without which all else is "sounding brass." But mature reflection might convince some newspaper managers that the public, while valuing accuracy, promptness and completeness in a news story, doesn't care very much whether the reporter who got it went in a parlor car or a wheelbarrow. — Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

MEETING LIFE WITH A LAUGH

It requires courage and daring
 To laugh in the face of fear,
 For only the heart courageous
 Can smile when days are drear;
 It requires a trustful spirit
 To laugh when the way is long,
 And only the gayly confident
 Can solace the road with song.

Impulsive may be the laughter
 That rings on the vibrant air—
 A tonic to heart and spirit
 Long-burdened with toil and care
 And courageous too is the laughter
 That is borne on the wind afar,
 And the hope of hope is rekindled
 To shine like a beckoning star.

A hero is he who faces
 With laughter and courage strong
 The conflict that e'er is waging Between the right and the wrong
 And ever and ever onward,
 The echoes of laughter roll,
 And fall in life's evening quiet
 Like chimes on the weary soul.

GERMAN CRIMINALS REAL BUSINESSMEN

Berlin, Germany. (By Canadian Press).—Criminal organization in Germany has reached a high state of perfection. There are numerous "crime clubs" in which for a small initiation and monthly dues members are provided with tools and disguises for the commission of any "job" they may have in hand. Money is advanced for railway fares and the services of a competent lawyer are provided. Information is also kept on file of the idiosyncrasies of individual night watchmen and policemen. Members of the clubs are enrolled under false names, usually English names, and are governed in their relations with one another by a strict set of rules, infraction of which is punished in some cases with death. The greatest crime is stealing from a fellow member or knowingly getting the better of him in any way. To bear witness against him in court is a serious offense. There are some 25 of these clubs, according to the annual police report, all affiliated with four central organizations known as the "four rings."

One of the organizations, the "Ever True Athletic Club" recently appeared in the open when two of its members were tried for murder as a result of deaths in a street fight. It was alleged "Ever-True" attacked members of the Carpenters' Guild with whom they have long been at enmity. The "Ever-True" are regarded as "Crackers-out" with travelling shows. The carpenters take a keen delight in starting rows at

A FREE MUFFIN TIN SATURDAY

To make even better known the well known lines produced by the Kellogg Company of Canada, local dealers in Kellogg products - and these include: practical, all grocers - are offering a free muffin tin on Saturday of this week with every purchase of 2 packages of Kellogg's All-Brans, or with a purchase of any other two Kellogg products, provided a package of All-Brans be included in the order. Ask your grocer about it on Saturday, the offer is for one day only. And don't forget to ask about Kellogg's newest product: "Pop Bran Flakes."

Hot with honey or maple syrup for supper, with fresh or stewed fruit for breakfast, or in place of tea for dinner. They are always a treat. With a glass of milk at bedtime they form the best kind of a bedtime snack. And they are most healthful. Doctors and dietitians recommend them; doctors prescribed them; best cooks win glowing encomiums with bran muffins.

All-Brans is recognized by both the professional and the lay person as a health food. Its value lies in the fact that the mineral as well as the fiber of the wheat covering is retained. The process of manufacture adds flavor and cooks the bran so that it is palatable.

How Kellogg's All-Brans is Made: Cooking - Clean bran is put into rotary cookers, mixed with the famous Kellogg's All-Brans (made from malt, sugar and salt) and cooked under steam pressure.

Drying - The cooked bran drops by gravity into a rotary drier from which it is drawn by air into the scalper, where all lumps are removed.

Shredding - The bran goes from the scalper into the shredders. Each shred consists of two grooved rolls which press against each other with a pressure so great that it unites the bran flakes, cutting them into long shreds.

Testing - The shredded bran is conveyed on belts to huge flight elevators, travelling back and forth, dropping from one flight to another until they pass through the ovens - a distance of about 600 feet, which requires about thirty minutes.

Packing - The toasted bran is cooled as it is carried by conveyors back to the top floor of the factory. From here it is fed by gravity into the cartons which have been lined with wax paper bags.

LIVE COUNTRY CORRESPONDENTS DECIDED ASSET TO ANY PAPER

Valuable Points in Writing
News Told by C. A.
Jettinger

(By Carl A. Jettinger)
(This material, copyrighted 1921, 1922 and 1928, by Carl Alois Jettinger and R. T. Porte, and reprinted here by permission of the author and publisher, is from a sixty-four page booklet published by the Porte Publishing Company of Salt Lake City, Utah.)

Most newspapers print news letters from the neighboring villages and towns and surrounding agricultural districts. The writers of these letters are usually called country correspondents.

The work of the country correspondent is not only interesting, but instructive. It teaches him how to spell, how to punctuate, how to avoid errors in grammar, in fact, how to use the English language correctly. It develops the powers of perception as nothing else will.

The country correspondent usually receives no remuneration for his services, except a free copy of the paper he writes for. If he is at all ambitious he can well afford to do this work, not only because of educational features, but because of the distinction it will earn him. The editor of a newspaper enjoys a peculiar prominence in his community. The country correspondent, being in reality the news editor of the paper for his territory, enjoys the same prominence in that territory. He does this even if his paper is one of those who do not publish the names of their country correspondents, as the people of nearly every locality know who writes the items from their territory.

Usually the country correspondent begins work under a handicap. Most editors are so busy that the only instructions they give a correspondent are: "Get all the news you can. We can use a column a week. Send it so it reaches our office by Tuesday noon. Write on only one side of the paper."

Lack of more definite instructions places the embryo correspondent in about the same position as would be that of a boy desiring to become a machinist. If he were put into a machine shop and told to "get busy" and then left to do the things he surmised ought to be done, he would be presumed they should be done.

Before beginning to write for a newspaper the new correspondent should have the following information:

The territory he is to write from and its boundaries.

How often he is to write.

When his news letters should reach the editor.

How much space the paper can give him.

Whether his news is to be sent by telephone, and if so, what is the latest possible moment at which the paper can use it.

This information should be obtained from the editor in person, if possible.

After you have begun to write for the paper, visit the editor occasionally and have a chat with him. It will add interest to your work and assist you in doing it.

If, when beginning to write the news for a paper, you find it difficult to get items, or to write them after you have gotten them, do not become discouraged. Do the best you can and keep plugging away. Diligent study of this book, and a little practice, will soon enable you to secure and write all the news from your territory that your paper would care to print.

If you are a correspondent, watch the changes the editor makes in your items, and which errors in grammar and spelling he corrects. It is not worth while worrying about the mistakes you have made—but try to remember them and not make them again.

The better the correspondent is known, the more prominence he gains in his community, the better will be his work. If the paper for which you write is one of those which does not publish the names of their correspondents with their items, make known your identity when interviewing people who may give you items and help you with suggestions. It will be a great help to you and place you in a position to make friends for yourself and for the paper you write for.

If you become acquainted with other correspondents for the paper or with correspondents for other papers, keep on good terms with them. Very often they can be of assistance to you.

Regarding Matter a Newspaper Wants

Publishing a newspaper is primarily a business undertaking. To be successful a newspaper must yield a fair income to its owner in return for the labor spent upon it and the capital invested. Not only that, it must furnish the means for buying new machinery, and so forth, to keep its equipment up to date.

A newspaper that does not earn enough to enable its publishers to meet obligations with reasonable promptness, and to support themselves and their families in a style befitting their station in life, is a failure. Such a paper can have but little standing in its community and but little influence for the betterment of the community and of mankind.

To become a successful business undertaking, a newspaper must, first of all, have the good will of its subscribers and advertisers, and of the public in general. To gain their confidence and support it must publish such reading matter as the public wants to read, and this reading matter must be written in a style that meets with the likes and avoids the dislikes of the public.

The successful merchant studies the wants of his community and buys his stock with the view of putting himself in position to supply these wants, giving consideration to prevailing styles, season, quality and local preference. The people buy what best suits their individual requirements and taste. They do this just as much with newspapers as with

THE "ROBOT" of food Conservation

ROBOT—(Pronounced RO-BO) a name given to mechanical servants, usually made in human form. Named after one of the early inventors, M. Robot, of France.

KELVINATOR is the electrical wizard of food safeguarding. Without care or fuss, it takes care of the perishable foods for a family or an institution, keeping everything at the scientifically-correct temperature of between 40 and 50 degrees.

This means foods perfectly kept for days. Meats, fruits, vegetables, are conserved fresh, germ-free, vitamin-rich, and most palatable, at a cost that is negligible.

Today is the electrical age—Kelvinator is THE electric refrigeration. It costs much less than $300 for the smaller size and may be purchased out of income if you prefer.

You will enjoy looking over the beautiful models at the Kelvinator dealer's, and there is no obligation to buy.

Do you know why
McLaughlin-Buick rides so much more comfortably than other cars?

Here are three important reasons

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK'S famous cantilever springs—the most expensive type of springs employed on any car in the world, coupled with the famous McLaughlin-Buick torque tube drive—are designed solely for comfort, not for transmission of power, and provide the maximum degree of riding-restfulness.

McLaughlin-Buick's Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers... front and rear... absorb the jars and jolts of the roughest roads, thus adding still further to the buoyancy of McLaughlin-Buick travel.

And McLaughlin-Buick's deep soft seat-cushions, together with the lounging spaciousness of McLaughlin-Buick interiors, provide unequalled riding luxury for every passenger.

McLaughlin-Buick offers the highest standard of motoring comfort ever attained; and this is one vital reason why more motorists drive McLaughlin-Buicks than any other fine car.

dry goods, clothing, furniture or any not thing else.

In some lines of business—dry goods, millinery and clothing, for instance—styles change rapidly and frequently. Such is not the case in the newspaper business. But even newspaper styles change. This can readily be seen by a comparison of papers printed fifty, or even twenty-five years ago, with present day papers. Fifty years ago the readers of newspapers mainly wanted, editorials and similar matter; now they want news.

To succeed at the present time, a newspaper must print as much news as possible, and it must print news of the kind the majority of its readers are interested in; and this news must be written in a style that appeals to the majority of the readers of the paper. News should be written in fairly good English.

He who aspires to become a successful newspaper correspondent or news editor must learn to write the matter he writes from the viewpoint of the average person in his community; and he must write it in such a way that the majority of the people in that neighborhood will be pleased to read it. This holds good whether the particular item and style appeals to the individual taste of the writer or not. He must write what the people want, whether it is what he likes or

This does not mean that he need be dishonest in his articles; that he must not write things that might offend, because that would make enemies for the correspondent and for the paper. It means, furthermore, that he must not write things that do not interest the majority of readers in the neighborhood, because that would be waste of labor on his part, and, if the paper printed them, it would result in the waste of more time, effort and material.

The correspondent and news editor must not only refrain from writing about things that are of little or no interest to the majority of the readers of the newspaper; he must also be careful not to devote too much attention to one class of news. In a broad sense, the news letter sent from each neighborhood is a newspaper for the neighborhood. People of all kinds are interested in what is happening there. For this reason whoever reports this to a newspaper must guard against having but one kind of news predominate in his news letters. There may be some weeks when there is more church news or more school news than any other kind. When this happens, the correspondent should tell about it. But happenings in the vicinity will not always mostly concern churches and schools or any other one thing. There are other kinds of news than that of church or school, must at times predominate. As a rule a news letter is the most interesting when it contains a wide variety of news.

PRaise CANADIAN LIQUOR SYSTEM

Boston.—The Canadian and Swedish systems for controlling the sale and manufacture of liquor were praised at a Common Cause Forum, held here at Franklin Union Hall.

F. G. R. Gordon, one of the speakers, declared prohibition could never be successfully enforced in the United States. Rum smuggling and home manufacture of intoxicants were rapid ly on the increase, he said, asserting it was time a saner system was adopted. Mr. Gordon quoted statistics to show that both Canada and Sweden have developed effective methods of control, which he said have resulted in marked decreases in drunkenness, crime and the consumption of hard liquors, be the consumption of increased Governmental revenue, which has been used for charitable welfare promotion.

Texas boys, Trail Rangers and Explorers, of the C.S.E.T. Groups of Presbyterian Baptist Churches held their annual boys' services in that city Sunday.

TIPS ON CARE OF YOUR WATCH

One of these days, when you think about it, take that watch of yours in to John Rowntree, on Bridge St. West, and have him give it a thorough cleaning. According to Mr. Rowntree, a watch is one of the most neglected of a man's possessions and yet he wonders why it sometimes fails to keep perfect time and possibly stops.

A watch should be cleaned regularly—at least once a year—to ensure its perfect running, and a good cleaning costs comparatively little and may be worth a whole lot of money to you. Take that watch into Rowntree's Store, and have him give it a thorough cleaning.

LINKS NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA BY MOTOR

Shrieking sirens of a motorcade police escort and congratulations from Acting Mayor McKee of New York greeted a little Italian race driver and aviator at the conclusion of the first successful automobile trip linking North and South America.

Jose Mario Barone, Pan American trail blazer, who left Rio de Janeiro more than two years ago in a 1922 Studebaker Light Six touring car, arrived in New York, March 1. Nearly 20,000 miles of plain mountain, jungle and desert, lay behind Barone as he drove along Broadway to meet the welcoming committee at the City Hall, where he was presented by Judge Francis Mancuso of the Italian Historical Society, Count Roberti, Italian Vice Consul, and Paul Vaccarello, chairman of the reception committee.

The intercontinental trip from Rio de Janeiro to New York by automobile has tempted many dare devil drivers from Latin America, according to Barone, who states that more than two score cars have started north, with New York as their objective—and failed. Yet Barone and his battered Studebaker, which had seen more than 100,000 miles of "stunt" driving before the start of this journey came through.

They came through, despite avalanches, fever, and the vicissitudes of a long trail which cost the lives of three mechanics who had thrown in their lot with this adventurous little Italian at various stages of the journey.

DEFECTIVE EYE NOT DISEASED

Defect Simply Indicates Shape or Construction Incorrect

As we use the term here, defective eyesight has nothing to do with disease—for the eye, usually, is quite healthy effective sight means that the eye itself is incorrect in shape or construction.

When the eyeball is too long or too short, or has some other defect in its construction, the light rays do not meet at an exact point on the retina. It is then that the eye muscles begin to be used.

By acting upon the eye-lens, they alter the focus, or slightly change its effect upon the light rays, bringing them to a point on the retina and thereby giving distinct vision at once.

Thus it happens that clear vision is often possible even when the eyes are defective. The eye muscles enable one to adapt the eye to unfavorable circumstances, but these delicate muscles were never intended to be used continuously, and though many people do unconsciously see everything with the tip of the eye muscles, they do so by means of a great strain.

The serious effect of this strain is felt mainly outside the eyes, and the pain and ill health which result are generally attributed to all causes but the right one.

An expert examination of your eyes will quickly reveal their true condition and enable us to determine whether you see naturally—or at the expense of the nervous energy directing your eye muscles.

Have Edwards, Eye Specialists, make an examination now.

INCREASE IN CAR LOADINGS ON C. N. R.

Moncton, N.B.—Since the first of the year there has been an increase in carloading for the Atlantic region of the C.N.R. of 3100 cars over the same period last year. This forms a very good index as to the economic conditions of the Maritimes. Numerous large works have been undertaken, including pulp and paper mills, and additions to Hydro electric plants. The cold storage facilities at Halifax are rapidly nearing completion and when completed will bring Halifax in line with the most modern ports on the Atlantic seaboard. A cold and dry storage warehouse is also under construction at Moncton and this should prove a very valuable addition to the facilities for the handling of products requiring this class of storage.

Altogether the prospects look very bright for the continuance of the betterment in the economic condition of the Maritime provinces. Various mining developments are under way and there has been considerable increase in capital investments both for new buildings and for additions to existing plants.

The appearance of artificial silk is always improved after washing if it is ironed. This removes any creases and brings out the sheen of the material, but the iron must not be too hot, or the threads will be damaged.To prevent cheese getting mouldy, wash it in a cloth that has been dip-

World's Seed Congress

The year 1932 seems a long way ahead, but the First World Seed Congress which is to be held in that year that preparations have already been inaugurated. All the wheat producing countries in the world, it is expected, will be represented, and all aspects of the cultivation of seeds will be discussed in a country which has itself a gigantic exposition of the power, economic, social and industrial, which lies in the ear of corn. The development of Canada's harvest is one of the great romances of the world and the result of the coming congress will assuredly be to prove that the story is not yet ended.

AN EASTER DINNER

Strawberry Mousse

Whip 2 cups heavy cream, until solid, add gradually 1 cup powdered sugar and fold in 2 cups mashed strawberries, add a few grains salt.
Turn mixture into a mould, filling mould to overflowing. Cover with a buttered paper, buttered side up, adjust cover, pack in ice and salt and stand five hours.

Rice Delight

Mix 1 cup boiled rice with 1 cup sugar. Drain canned sliced pineapple from the liquor and cut in small pieces (there should be 1 cup); add to rice with 1-4 teaspoon salt, mix well and fold in 1 cup heavy cream, sweetened, flavored and whipped until stiff. Chill and serve in cold glasses. Garnish with strips pineapple rolled in finely chopped mint leaves.

Minted Pineapple

Wash a bunch of mint and boil it in one and a half cups of water for fifteen minutes. Drain off the water and measure one cup. Add two cups of sugar and cook twenty minutes, then add green vegetable coloring to obtain the right shade of green. Place sliced canned pineapple in this syrup and let stand over night. This affords a delightful variation for salads and desserts.

Creamed Cheese Balls on Toast

Pimento, — or plain cheese if you prefer—cut in small balls with a potato-cutter and dropped into your favorite thick cream sauce. Makes a savory luncheon-dish when served on thin slices of hot toast. If anything has happened to your ball potato-cutter the cream sauce will be diced. Do not let the cream sauce boil after the cheese is added.

Cheese, Date, and Banana Salad

Fill the hollows of pitted dates with a generous amount of a mild spreading cheese. Arrange 5 of them in little grooves that you have cut with a spoon, on the flat surface of a banana which has been split lengthwise.
Place on lettuce and serve with mayonnaise into which you have stirred some finely chopped nuts.

Sets Style

This lovely New York girl, now appearing in George White's famous "Scandals," has plenty of personality.
Not only has she won Broadway's admiration for the cleverness of her acting and dancing, but she has literally "set the style" for Fifth Avenue by the way she dresses her hair.

"Girls in my position must do everything to keep their appearance pleasing," says Miss Manners. "But I lead such a busy life that I can only use the simplest methods. I know I have discovered the easiest way of doing my hair. It's so popular now here in New York. It keeps my hair so early manageable that I can dress it any way I want and it stays in place wonderfully.
All I do is put a little Dandereine on my brush every time I use it. My hair was dull and dry before I started using Dandereine. Now it's so bright and sparkling and so soft and fluffy that every one compliments me. Dandereine soothes my scalp and keeps away any traces of dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp cool. I don't need to use shampoo half as often as I used to."

Dandereine quickly removes that oily film from the hair; brings out its natural color; makes it fairly sparkle. It keeps your hair soft and easily manageable while you're letting it grow to the new length. It helps stop dandruff.
It is delightfully fragrant; isn't oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles. Over five million used a year.

A CREED

There is a destiny that makes us brothers:
None goes his way alone:
All that we send into the lives of others
Comes back into our own.

I care not what his temples or his creeds
One thing holds firm and fast—
That into his faithful heart of days and deeds
The soul of a man is cast.

JUST IN PASSING

Another Tradition Shattered.

Christopher Columbus did not discover America. At least that is the conclusion at which Dr. Gann, F.R.
G.S., has arrived, after much research relative to the subject. The learned traveller's conclusions are that obviously America was discovered ages before the arrival of Columbus, as its large and widely distributed aboriginal population indicates the general belief, being that the first immigrants to the New World arrived from North-Eastern Asia, by way of the Behring Straits, during a period long before the advent of Columbus. The most probable localities whence these Asiatic wanderers came are said to be Cambodia, Java, or Ceylon. All these countries have been visited by Dr. Gann, with a view of inspecting the ancient cities, and drawing his own inferences as to their resemblance to the ruined cities of Central America.

His impression and convictions on the subject have been published by Dr. Gann, and they form very interesting reading. Investigations lead to the belief that in the early centuries here reached the shores of Central America a small band of "Asiatic" immigrants, and that they left behind them traces of their Asiatic influence. The whole subject is most interesting, and the ordinary reader who is complex to the ordinary reader but if the eminent geographer's views are correct the history of America will need to be re-written.

BIBLE SOCIETY WAS FOUNDED IN TAVERN

Toronto, Ont., C.P.—A century and a quarter ago at the London Tavern, in Bishopsgate Street, London, one of the greatest organizations in the world came into being. The 125th anniversary of the British and Foreign Bible Society is being celebrated at this year the world over. The work that the Bible Society has done in these intervening years is something that cannot be measured in terms of dollars and cents, nor can it be viewed in its fullness with the perspective of time. The Globe says: "Its value to the world is beyond the mind of man adequate to appreciate, or the tongue of man to sing its praise. Like the needle of the compass, it remains ever true to its one fundamental purpose, which is to give the Scriptures without note or comment to all the people of the world."

"The reversal of the curse of Babel has been the task of this great society, and right well it has succeeded. It is owing to its efforts that today we over 600 different versions of the Scriptures are being published, and that men and women who speak the various languages and dialects may read the Word of God in their own tongue. It is worthy of note in this connection that the first foreign translation made was for Canada, a Mohawk-English Gospel of St. John. This was translated by Captain Norton, Chief of the Six Nations Indians in Upper Canada.
As a contribution to the peace, stability and well-being of nations and of the world, the work of the society has done is incalculable."

INVESTIGATE SINKING

Washington, D.C., Mar. 28.—Attorney General Mitchell said today that the Department of Justice was investigating the sinking of the Canadian schooner "In Alone" by the coast guard cutter, but only because the Department would have to handle any prosecution against the members of "In Alone."

Some Helpful Hints
For Busy Housewives

When putting on ruffles, lace or any thing else you want eased onto a dress, always hold the thing you want eased towards you. Otherwise it will pucker.

When making raisin cake or cookies, pour hot water over the raisins first and drain and scatter them through the cake dough. This prevents their sinking to the bottom.
Dredging with flour before putting in to the cake has the same result.

When spongeing the children's school trousers, get out all the spots, then sponge with a cloth wrung out of clear water, fold the creases carefully while they are still damp and spread over papers laid on the radiator. They will dry beautifully, all creased as if steam pressed.

For the dry, steam heated room,
a decorative way to introduce air moist-ness is to keep a squat little pewter copper or brass tea pot or kettle on the radiator full of water. Every room should have a fern too, if possible.

Ferns stay fresh and green and grow luxuriously if one remembers to give them a bit of castor oil every now and then, a taste of cold tea or a drink of cold coffee. A semi-weekly bath under the bathroom shower comes near giving them the freshness of a day in the spring rain.

KINDNESS

(From "The Christian Science Monitor")

Kindness holds peoples and nations together in the bonds of friendship;
indeed, it may be said to be the universal language; for while an individual may not understand another's speech, an act of kindness is always understood. In its true meaning, kindness is love expressed as courtesy, brotherliness, thoughtfulness and consideration for others, all of which qualities express the spirit of the Golden Rule given by Christ Jesus: "As ye would that men would do to you, do ye also to them likewise."

The spirit of brotherly love, or kindness, is being "thied abroad in our hearts" and thereby the result of abundant thought a divine influence tending to draw and hold together nations and individuals in a closer bond of union.
When many are working together towards a common purpose, each one helping the other, the high goal is more easily attained.

Heads of business concerns and their employees are beginning to realize that a prosperous and harmonious organization is the result of abundant kindness, and that the rule of kindness, and the organization they build is more nearly perfect when pervaded by that spirit of loving co-operation depicted by Isaiah: "They helped one his neighbor; and every one said to his brother, Be of good courage. So the carpenter encouraged the goldsmith, and he that smoothened with the hammer him that smote the anvil."

FOLK-DANCING IS A HELP TO POISE

London, (C.P.)—Old-fashioned country dances have an enthusiastic champion in Douglas Kennedy. "The physical effect of country dancing is like the result of intensive walking over hilly country—it gives a springy step and a clear eye and the head is carried high while the shoulders swing free," he says.

While in the United States he said he found all the women in a mad search for poise. From his experience he found folk-dancing was one of the surest ways of obtaining poise and the form of folk-dancing most suitable to women was the country dance.
For this one had to be slim and to have shapely ankles. To understand the mental effect, he said, one only need ed to compare the faces of those dancing modern ballroom dances and those who danced country dances. The speaker thought women were more graceful for dancing than men and that dance movement came more naturally to them.

SPINACH IS ONE OF FINEST VEGETABLES

Spinach will be one of the first vegetables harvested in the vegetable garden and if planted at intervals of a couple of weeks, from the time the soil is fit to work until June, will furnish delicious greens for the table until midsummer.

rich soil and must be heavily manured and, like all other vegetables, should be pushed quickly with regular side-dressings of nitrate of soda. The rows should be at least 12 inches apart and where home cultivation is practiced two feet or a yard. If preferred, and the soil is clean, it may be broadcast, but in this case it is harder to keep down the weeds. After the plants are up well, thin to at least eight inches apart and keep the soil cultivated and fertilized.

Bloomsdale savoy leafed is one of the hardiest and is an early variety as well. This, like the Victoria, is wrinkled like Savoy cabbage, succulent and curled. King of Denmark is one of the most valuable of the recent introductions and will keep well in condition for cutting for a week or two after other varieties have gone to seed, although it is not as early as the first two named.
Some of the spinaches after cutting will grow up again and furnish a second crop, but the quality of these is not equal to the others.

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If the name Bayer appears, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it's not! Headaches are dispelled by Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Aspirin—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin;
it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicative Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin denotes Bayer Manufacture, to assure the public against imitations, the Tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

PROTECTION FOR LAWNS

In Peterboro they are organizing the citizens to help protect the lawns which are ruined at this time of year by people cutting across the corners of them to save a few steps. Such a move in Belleville might not be amiss as there are many corner lots where pedestrians walk heedlessly, trampling down the lawn with a carelessness that is due to thoughtlessness rather than malice. It is just a matter of saving a few seconds and this is worthless compared to the value of a nice lawn. The worst sufferers are those who live on corner lots. Not only are the ordinary walkers offenders but often the postman, the news boy and the vendors help to destroy the appearance of a place. They are appealing to those people in Peterboro to instigate the movement to use the pavements rather than the soft grass. Fences disfigure city homes as a rule, warnings are unheeded, and even obstruction in the way of trees and shrubs are disdainfully ignored.

It is a thing we can all practise and as it is really no effort it should not be hard to enlist the foot passengers to an appreciation of this movement. In keeping our designation of "Belleville the Beautiful" let us try to make our lawns as beautiful as possible and help our neighbor to do so too, by protecting his lawn as well as our own.

WHAT'S NEW (From A Woman's Standpoint)

Lace evening coats and daytime jackets are being stressed at the Paris openings.

The blouse contrasting with skirt in fabric and color has made a hit at Palm Beach.

Ezra Pound says: "It is as important for the purpose of thought to keep language efficient as it is in surgery to keep tetanus bacilli out of one's bandages."

The jewelry featured by Premet this season emphasizes pendants of colored crystals with brilliants shown with matching pendant earrings, and twists of pearls and brilliants are also shown.

Both plain and printed chiffons are the vogue for evening wear created with the higher waistline and shirred flounces. Low-placed fullness and cape backs are much seen.

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating.

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sour. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, taste-

Go get a small bottle to try. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. CHAPTER 65

THE PIPE'S PRICE

Florence kept Lucinda waiting several frantic moments, before telling her what had happened.

"What have you done?" cried Lucinda.

Florence leaned back in her chair. "I've left Twombly for good! There is the usual note on my dressing table. It informs him that I have eloped—with Norman Kendall."

"What?" she stammered.

"Norman," reflected Florence, "will be surprised."

Lucinda found her voice. "I'll say he will!" she agreed grimly. "Florence, I've thought for some time you were crazy. Now I know it. You little idiot do you think that Norman will stand for this? Why he—he's the straightest chap that ever lived. He'll come to your rescue, of course, after you've flung yourself shamelessly at his head. But as for taking you in—"

"He can't turn me down, once the die is cast," declared Florence triumphantly. "I'm counting on the fact that he is so chivalrous."

Lucinda stared at her in disgust. "And you'd take that advantage? Florence, be yourself! If you can do that, then you were right about having lost your soul."

"You see—I am an example!"

"Fiddlesticks! You're merely an example of your own willfulness."

Lucinda was ruthless, for she knew that she spoke the truth. And Florence knew that she knew. Florence began to cry, but Lucinda was so disgusted that she couldn't be sympathetic.

She said: "Go wash your face and bath your eyes. I'll get dressed, and we'll pop over to your house and get that letter before it falls into the wrong hands."

"I won't budge a step!" declared Florence stubbornly. "You can argue till you're blue in the face. And I won't be treated like a naughty child, either."

"You'll be treated like a lunatic, if you keep on at this rate," Lucinda responded grimly. "Florence, aren't you ashamed of yourself? You used to have some pride. Are you going to throw yourself at the head of a man who doesn't want you?"

Florence's head went up with a jerk. "How do you know he doesn't want me?"

Lucinda knew that ruthlessness was the best policy, so she said: "How could he? He's in love with me!"

Florence could be ruthless, too. "As I said, I suppose. And, apropos of throwing yourself at a man's head, how about your own conduct with Julian. Don't you know that I know the real reason you're marrying Rafe?"

"It's because you couldn't get Julian. He's gone on the Raeburn girl."

Lucinda slipped into a negligence that lay across the foot of her bed.

"Perhaps you're right, Florence," she said wearily. "Anyway, don't let's quarrel any more than we have to. I'm only trying to save you."

"And I was trying to save you," snapped Florence. "And this is the thanks I get for it."

"The inevitable end of all would-be-good impulses," murmured Lucinda flippantly, and went to turn on the water for her bath.

Florence sniffed at the thought of a little appreciation.

Lucinda came back and slipped her arms around her friend's shoulders. "I am trying to, honey, just as hard as ever I can. I'm trying to help you out of this mess. Now be a good girl and promise me to go straight home and tear up that note before your husband sees it."

"It's too late," gulped Florence. "His train was due at eleven-thirty. It's now half past twelve. He's had an hour to get home and find it."

Lucinda was dismayed. She snatched up the telephone and held it out to Florence.

"Quick! Get your maid and tell her to destroy the note. Maybe it isn't too late. Maybe he hasn't gone to your room yet, or asked for you."

Florence shook her head. "He never fails to go to my room the first thing when he returns. He always hopes to catch me at something, the beast!"

Lucinda set down the telephone frowning. "This is getting serious. I wonder what the next move is?"

"The next move is to telephone Norman," said Florence stubbornly. "I said to my letter that he was why I was leaving Twombly, so Twombly will get in touch with him at once. It might be a good idea to warn Norman."

"Oh, you fool! You fool!" moaned Lucinda. "And poor Norman! To be mixed up in an affair of this sort. It's too distressing!"

"Well, how about me?" demanded Florence resentfully. "You don't think it such an easy and pleasant thing to leave a husband and respectability for another man, when you're not sure that he loves you?"

"You deserve everything that's coming to you!" declared Lucinda. She had almost forgotten her troubles in this new worry. She wondered what she could do to bring Florence to her senses. Ought she to call Julian and ask for advice? Twenty-four hours ago, he would have called him unhesitatingly. Now her pride wouldn't let her.

She called Norman, instead. He must be warned. Twombly Thorpe would be gunning for him. Thorpe was the type that promptly sends a corps of lawyers and detectives to interview the person who is disturbing his content. Lucinda couldn't let Norman innocent and unsuspecting, face the army that Thorpe had at his command.

But Norman wasn't at his office. His stenographer told Lucinda that he had not, presumably for the day. She volunteered the information that a Mr. and Mrs. Raeburn, with Mr. Marston called for him and she understood that they were going out of town.

Lucinda left her telephone number, with the request that he be asked to ring her up, if he came in. She turned back to Florence and said:

"Well, here's a pretty situation! Norman can't be reached, so your dramatic flight to him will have to be postponed."

Florence wept. She was beginning to get uncomfortable, to be aware of her beleaguered appearance, to be a little scared. When she thought of changing into another gown and having a massage to undo the ravages of tears, it was with a sense of shock that she remembered that she no longer had a maid. She hadn't even the price of a maid.

She began to cry harder than ever. She cried most of the day she spent at Lucinda's and the latter tried to soothe her, and was thoroughly irritated by her.

It wasn't until evening that the door bell rang and the maid ushered in a caller.

WOMEN WANT RIGHT TO ENTER CLERGY

London. (By Canadian Press) Equal opportunity for service in the ministry of religion. This is one of the latest planks in the programme of the National Union of Societies for Equal Citizenship. For the first time the annual conference has no resolution before it regarding "votes for women on the same terms as men" for in place of this old slogan there is now an aspiration "to encourage, self-education, independent thinking, and effective action among women voters on all questions concerning their citizenship."

Miss Eleanor Rathbone, speaking of the equal opportunities to be secured for women, mentioned the equal opportunity for service in the ministry of religion. "It is the one great learned profession from which women—with a few exceptions—are still excluded. Whatever our religious views may be we must realise that here is a great department of thought, leadership, and guidance, from which woman is excluded purely on account of her sex."

A resolution was carried expressing grave concern at the serious limitations placed on the medical education of women by their exclusion from nearly all the medical schools in London.

OLD COUNTRY'S UNEMPLOYMENT

General Secretary of Trade Unions Sees No Relief in Sight

Writing in the report of the General Federation of Trade Unions for the fourth quarter of 1928 in England, W. A. Appleton, the general secretary, says that any sensible diminution of our present unemployment does not seem possible until the politicians of all parties pay more attention to the science of economics and less to the art of acquiring and retaining power. It is common knowledge that all parties have put forward palliative proposals, but no party has dared to analyze even its own proposals exhaustively and to set forth the logical consequences of the proposals. The party which does this, which calls to its aid historical and scientific facts, and places on record the conclusions which knowledge and logic indicate, stands, he admits to be very unpopular. All the parties know this, he says, and hesitate. And yet, he declares, until this form of analysis and deduction is pursued, there can be little hope of effective and sustained improvement.

For a disappointingly long time popular orators and orators who wanted to be popular, when speaking of this problem, have talked, Mr. Appleton says, in the sense of complete and universal settlement. Much of this talk has been in his opinion, foolish for there can be no settlement of the unemployment problem, he thinks, which applied to all countries and for all times. "Upon the day we accept this fact," he declares, "and determine to mix our own business and to concentrate upon the evil as it affects our own people, we place ourselves in a position to commence effective attacks upon our own misfortune. This, after all, is as much as the capacities of the wisest of us permit. We may, and do, regret the existence of the evil in other lands, but we possess neither the means nor the authority to undertake its removal in countries outside our own."

With trade revivals, Mr. Appleton thinks, trade unions may hope to recover lost membership—"but not with out effort." "The circumstances, even with any kind of trade revival we are justified in expecting, cannot," he says, "be as favorable to trade union organization as they were at the beginning of the century. Too many of the activities trade unions had developed, and which bound the members to their unions, have been appropriated by the state. Mistakes have been made, too, both in policy and practice, and until other inducements can be offered and confidence restored, the task of the organizer will be a difficult one. With carefully thought-out methods, intelligently and faithfully applied, it need not be a hopeless one."

Mr. Appleton believes that the maintenance of industrial peace will assist in the recovery of membership. "Men and women are tired," he says, "of strife for its own sake. They have learned by experience that the burdens of such strife fall upon the home rather than the platform, and if the unions support peace between employers and employed with the vigor displayed when advocating peace between nations, they will have many interested listeners. Particularly will this be the case amongst those who, engaged in production for export, know that industrial strife is a bad basis for international trade. But—and the but must be strongly emphasized—the peace to be advocated must be a peace of understanding and not of subjection. It must be based upon just and considerable dealings, and no attempt to secure maximum production for minimum and unstable rewards, or at the expense of life or health, can be tolerated. The demand for equity must enter into all schemes of peace, and when schemes of amalgamation or nationalization are put forward they must be examined from the workers' point of view, as well as from the employers'. Co-operation in the development of industry and in the reduction of production costs is imperative; so also is co-operation in the efforts to eliminate risks and strains, to maintain skill, and to ensure regularity of all these matters which will tend to bring peace in industry."

POT HOLES AND THEIR CAUSES

Measurements have been made of the amplitude and periodicity of the vibrations of the ground set up by (1) a falling weight; (2) stationary engines and machines; (3) the passage of a heavy motor vehicle over definite obstacles; (4) the passage of various types of motor vehicles over ordinary roads; and (5) the passage of an electric train.

It was found that the vibrations transmitted varied with the state of consolidation of the ground; and that the presence of a pit 7 ft deep, 13 ft. 6 in. wide and 20 ft. long, between the source of vibration and the instrument caused no appreciable change in the amplitude or frequency of vibration recorded.

Experiments were made to determine the variation in amplitude and frequency of vibrations transmitted, due to the passage of a heavy motor vehicle over definite obstacles, with the distance from the vehicle, due to the effect of tires of different resilience, and with the speed of the vehicle. It was established that the frequency of vibration of a road surface is greatly increased when the load carried places abnormal stress on the rubber tire of a vehicle. Vibrations of considerable amplitude are set up when the wheel drops into a pothole, and particularly when the pothole is immediately preceded by a projection on the road surface as commonly occurs in practice. The frequency of vibration of the road surface set up by the passage of a wheel at a particular speed remains practically constant when the loading of the tire is within the normal. In connection with motor vehicles attributed to want of balance in the driving mechanism of the vehicle was evident in the records obtained. Examples of the records obtained by the passage of electric trains show that the principal vibrations recorded are those due to the passage of the wheels of the train over the rail-joints.

From the observations made it appears that the vertical vibration of a building is substantially the same in both amplitude and frequency as that of the ground immediately beneath the building and around it, as there is no evidence to indicate that the mass of the building has any tendency to damp the vibrations; it also appears that the floors of a building may be identical with those registered on the lower floors.

DUKE OF YORK DANCES 'INCOG'

the influenza nor the marriage epidemics show any sign of abating! The daily round is to inquire for invalids, and then hurry off to a marriage, hoping that none of the decorative bridesmaids will have "fallen out" owing to the nasty microbes which are so strong on the wing this year.

One of the latest victims of the winter plague is Mrs. Wilson-Filmer—the chaperone of Leeds Castle. She has just had a bout of the "flu," and recently went off to the Riviera in order to pay a very short visit to Major and Mrs. Richard Warde at Vila Maryland, Cap Ferrat; so short, in fact, that she is due back in England this week. Mrs. Warde was, of course, the lovely Miss Muriel Wilson—one of the famous beauties of Edwardian days, and married Major Warde some years ago.

don. She was at Lady Astor's small dance, where the Paul Jones figured on the program, and found herself partnered by a tall, fair young man, to whom she remarked:

"I seem to know your face: I'm sure I've met you somewhere. Wasn't it in Leicester?"

"Perhaps it was my brother," came the reply. "Oh, no," countered the girl; "the man I'm thinking of hasn't got a brother! I wonder where it could have been. Do tell me who you are?"

Whereupon the young man explained that he was the Duke of York, much to the confusion of his naive young partner!

RATS RUN RIOT IN PETERBORO

City Park in Liftlock City Is Over-run by the Rodents

While His Worship Mayor Deme is not likely to have occasion to offer a reward for any piper who can do a good job, and while they don't go about fighting the dogs, killing the cats, invading cheese vats or making nests in the city fathers' toppers, still, Peterborough, like Hamelin, of Brown-fame, has a rat situation. It centres chiefly around a pile of debris beneath the eastern extremity of the Hunter Street Bridge, and for the past week has held the attention of school-boys and older folks alike—the latter observing the situation from Sandy MacTavish's now famous baseball perch—on top of the bridge. The kids, though, are of better stuff than they were in Browning's story, for it is not an uncommon sight to see them poking the rats from their holes in the pile of ashes and letting their yeller pups do the rest. Even Wilfred Huycke has considered turning his air-foes loose on the rodents.

"This said that of a bright sunny day one may see three or four of the big fellows (the rats of course) sitting out on the ash heap, and closer observers have noted that, quite up to Hamelin's stock, Peterborough's rate range from great to small, lean to brawny, and brown to tawny. The kids complain that they show no right at all, and that so far as they are concerned, it wouldn't be worth while bringing in a piper.

Hungarian women were given the franchise in 1918 and later lost it. The Great War has been estimated to have cost $55,000,000,000.

NICKEL MINES ONCE SOLD FOR $12,000

Victoria, B.C. (C.P.) - The great In-temperamental Nickel mines in Ontario were once valued at only $12,000 and were sold for that sum, according to Lieut.-Col. Lernox Irving, of Renfrew, Ont., who is now living in Victoria. Back in the eighties a lawyer well-known in the Ottawa Valley, the late John R. Metcalf, acquired what he thought to be a wonderful nickel prospect in Sudbury, recalls Col. Irving. His younger partner in the law firm, however, was not very enthusiastic about his brother's speculative capabilities.

S. J. Ritchie, of New York, heard about the Metcalf mine at Sudbury and hastened to get in touch with J. H. Metcalf, who finally sold the prop-erty to him for $12,000, having been persuaded by his brother that it was not worth keeping for a higher figure. Now that science has developed the uses of nickel the mine has been valued at a billion dollars.

Some years later, according to Col. Irving, a Boston lady was traveling over the transcontinental railway when at luncheon in the dining car when she asked a neighbor: "Would you kindly tell me when we are approaching Sud-bury?" I was told I could see from the car window a hill which is now worth $400,000,000, but I never believed the story."

It's Irresistible in Performance and Appearance

THERE'S something com- pelling in the fresh, orig-inal style of the Oakland Six, Olympic Series. It's smart... modern... dashing. There's new charm... new luxury in Oakland's Bodies by Fisher. But that's not all the story. Oakland Six, Olympic Series, offers performance as irreas-istible as its appearance. Snap and action. Smoothness and silence. Accurately balanced "line of drive," and rubber engine mountings take care of that. And power! Just sit behind the wheel with the open road ahead and let her out! More power there than you'll ever need. More speed than you'll ever want to use. At any price Oakland Six would be a notable car - at Oakland price it's an astonish- ing value. OA-30-3-299

CONSTRUCTIONALISM NEW DEVELOPMENT

New York. - It seems that the latest development in cubist art is something called "constructionalism." It consists in pasting bright colored spoons and any other little bits of wood one happens to have at hand on can-vas decorated with circles and angles and things.

Two pieces of constructionalism ac- cused a prominent place at the thir-teenth annual exhibition of the So- ciety of Independent Artists here. They are by Paul Klee of Princeton, N.J., and his fellow-cubist - not fellow-con-structionist, in this show - admiring-ly predict they'll attract a lot of at- tention before the show closes on March 31. Exhibit A is called "construction superbe." It's a charming little col-lection of pieces of lathe, half a spoon painted white, and a cunning little checker with a black rim and baby blue center, but Exhibit B, known as "construction with a little wheel," will attract more attention, it is believed. This has not only a spoon glued to the canvas, but several interesting little wooden cylinders that probably start- ed life as pill boxes and a black tin wheel off a child's toy, and the wheel can be whirled. The show includes 1,100 paintings and more than 100 pieces of sculpture, shown by 650 exhibitors living in all parts of the United States and also in Tahiti, France, Porto Rico, and the Canal Zone.

LEADEN SKIES POSTPONE EASTER PARADE; CITY CHURCHES THROGGED

Interesting Event Features Service at Bridge Street
CHIMES PRESENTED
Music and Flowers Emphasize Note of Gladness in Observance

Belleville's Easter parade yesterday took its inspiration from the drab skies behind which nigard nature held the sun all day. The damp penetrating chill in the air made winter coats the only comfortable wear while the sustained threat of rain made all but the brave or the very young decide to keep the Easter bonnet for brighter day. Full advantage was taken of the weather's one kind contribution—the absence of snow and most feet were festively shod.

On the whole the men seemed more anxious to "dress up" than the women and the slight of their light tweeds beside the feminine furs spoke volumes for the superiority of masculine hardihood. The motor car—particularly the closed one—was the most popular method of conveyance and roads were filled with motors from the win dows of which the well-bundled occupants gazed out in vain for glimpses of the Easter fashions.

The few flappers who turned a deaf ear to the wintry note in the air, achieved a silhouette which looked strikingly in contrast to the furry bulk of winter coats. Brilliant reds had sounded a raucy defiance of the elements on several of the closely coiffed heads of the younger generation and the warm smart scarves were exceedingly popular. Footwear echoed the gay colors of the few Spring hats that appeared.

Special Easter music in the city churches saw large congregations out for both morning and evening services. The traditional Easter Lilies bestocking the chancel lent an air of the sublime to the impressive services marking the Resurrection of the Christ.

BROCKVILLE BOY HAS FOOT TAKEN OFF

Brockville, Ont., April 1.—Elmer Kelly, aged 14, son of a railway employee, attempted to board a fast freight train as it was entering the Manioba yard here yesterday, slipped and fell under the wheels. His right foot was amputated at the ankle. He is in the General Hospital and is expected to recover.

TOURING CYCLIST SUFFERS INJURY

Gordon Gadsby of Toronto suffered a badly cut lip yesterday afternoon when he was thrown from the back of a motorcycle on which he was riding just at the northern end of the Bay Bridge. The motorcycle was being driven by Thomas Lomax of Toronto, and apparently struck some loose gravel as it emerged from the smooth surface of the bridge. Both riders were thrown from the machine, but Lomax escaped injury. Gadsby was removed to the Belleville Hospital where eight stitches were required to close the wound.

Generous "Flying Start" Offer Made to Candidates in Intelligencer Popular Automobile Contest

Now is the Time in Which Work Will Count Most in Contest for the $1,250 Essex Sedan, the Chevrolet Sedan, the Ford Roadster, and the Many Other Valuable Prizes.

Make a "flying start" for a car—a car you can call your own. Now is the time your work will count most. Every candidate entered in The Intelligencer's Auto Contest, and every one who joins during the next couple of weeks, will gain more votes than they will later on in the contest. A "flying start" of 200,000 EXTRA Votes is allowed on every $10.00 worth of subscriptions, new or old, turned in and up to including April 6th.

These EXTRA Votes are in addition to the regular number of votes given on subscriptions. This will give every candidate and those who contemplate joining, an opportunity to gain an unusual and advantageous start towards winning the $1,250.00 Essex Sedan, or the other, large awards included in the grand prize list in The Intelligencer's Big Auto Contest.

NO LIMIT

There is no limit to the number of extra votes you may earn except your ability to obtain subscriptions. If you turn in $10.00 worth of subscriptions, new or old, or arrearage, you will be entitled to 200,000 EXTRA Votes. These votes count, not only Extra votes towards the winning of the $1,250 Essex Sedan, the Chevrolet, the Ford Roadster and the other prizes, but in addition towards the special $100.00 in extra awards.

Those who fail to take advantage of the extra offer, will lose their best chance to make a "flying start". Every candidate should do his or her best work now, when the result of his efforts count most.

There will be no other time when a candidate can gain as many votes on subscriptions as he or she will during this week.

A live wire salesman always takes advantage of the unusual. This big "flying start" offer certainly is unusual and surely will induce everyone who is now a candidate, in the contest, to hustle and spur on to action those who are thinking of joining.

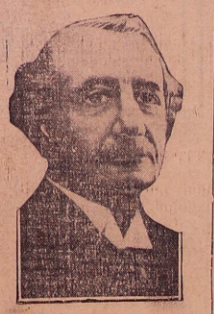

If you are not already a candidate—you had better clip the coupon in today's issue and begin an active campaign for votes and subscriptions while the Big Special Vote Offer is on.

SEE CONTEST PAGE OF THIS ISSUE FOR PARTICULARS OF THE BIG SPECIAL VOTE AND CASH PRIZE OFFER.

APRIL FOOL'S DAY

Custom of Playing Pranks on Innocent Victims Almost Extinct

April 1st, known to glib young boys as April Fool's Day, is now a thing of the past—at least the time for making tricks and wise remarks is supposed to be up at twelve o'clock, noon. All Fools' Day is the correct game for April 1st, but, unfortunately, the dictionary does not know the significance of the term, merely saying that it is a day set aside for the purpose of playing pranks.

TRENTON POLICE INSTRUMENT IN LOCATING GIRL

Chief Bain Directed Father to Gananoque Where She Was Found

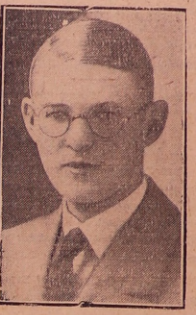

MEMORY LAPSED

Dorothy Fox Unable to Recall Events of Past Ten Weeks

Through the courtesy and assistance of Chief of Police Bain of Trenton, Dorothy Fox, a sixteen-year-old girl of Detroit, Mich., missing for the past ten weeks has been safely restored to her parents. When she disappeared her step-father Mr. George A. Mallick informed the Detroit police who forwarded circulars to the principal cities of Ontario. Her father is managing director of a well-known store and refrigeration concern and he left no stone unturned to return the girl to her mother who was nearly frantic. When no report was received of her, he set out to search the towers himself, but without success.

Finally the first clue that might unravel the web which surrounded her disappearance came through in the form of a letter to her home last week. The details contained in the epistle were brief, her step-father set out and his quest brought him to Trenton last Friday. In her letter she explained that she was living in a small Canadian town noted for its beauty, and also stated that she was living in the business section adjacent to a small creek. She claimed that her memory had failed and she had no recollection of the events which had previously transpired.

The father, Mr. Mallick gave the letter to Chief Bain of Trenton for perusal and the genial Chief advised him to visit Gananoque. At one o'clock in the afternoon he left Trenton and at eight o'clock in the evening he returned with the girl. Pretty little Dorothy could not remember when she left Detroit or how she reached Gananoque. She had secured a position in the east town and was earning her living but was happy to be back with her father who warmly welcomed Chief Bain for his interest in the disappearance of the girl.

Stewart Allan, who is missing following the overturning of the boat on which he was being rowed from a ship to the shore at Tampico, Mexico. Six of the eight occupants of the boat reached shore in safety. Mr. Allan is the son of A. S. Allan, manager of the International Harvester Co. at St. John, New Brunswick.

FIVE CARS LOST IN DISASTROUS FIRE YESTERDAY

Frame Building at Trenton Power House Prey to Flames

Heavy loss was incurred in a disastrous fire early Sunday morning at No. 2 dam, the power house at Trenton. Five motor cars were taken in the blaze and all were a complete loss. The autos were the property of men employed at the power house and they were housed in a frame garage which adjoins the power building. The fire was first discovered shortly after one o'clock and residents were awakened and succeeded in removing two cars before they were damaged to any extent. A call was immediately put in to the Trenton fire department and Chief Goodsell and his assistants visited the place. No apparatus was taken along but a hydraulic pump was placed into service and the flames were confined to the garage. The wooden building was an easy prey to the flames. The loss will reach nearly $2000, a portion of which is covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown, although a probe will be made. It was stated that there was no one in the vicinity for some time previous to the discovery of the fire. It may possibly have been the work of tramps.

WIND AND DRIVING RAIN WREAK DAMAGE IN CITY AND VICINITY

FORMER MADOC LAWYER TO WED

(Special to The Intelligencer)
New York, April 1.—Eric William Cross, 25, a barrister, formerly of Madoc, Ont., and now of Simcoe, Ont., and Miss Annette Jean Nicol, 24, a dietitian of the Bridgeport Hospital, Bridgeport, Conn., were married March 30, in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, by Rev. Canon Brenton. The couple procured a license to wed at the Municipal Building on March 30th.

Mr. Cross was born in Madoc, the son of William and Mary Falls Cross. Miss Nicol, who is the daughter of Thomas and Lillian Higgins Nicol, was born in Paris, Ont.

LEAVENS PLANE IS ABANDONED

Brockville, Ont., April 1.—A Waco Biplane, belonging to Leavens Brothers Air Service of Belleville, which sank on Tuesday last, in the waters of Lamba Pond near New Dublin is still resting on the bottom of the small lake, having resisted all efforts to bring it ashore. The owners have abandoned the salvage work until the ice, in some places still a foot thick, has left the pond.

MRS. NORA FEEHERRY

The death occurred this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. L. P. Hughes, 45 Victoria Ave., of Mrs. Nora Feeherry, who was born in Belleville ninety-two years ago. The deceased lady's husband predeceased her forty-three years ago, and had been living with his daughter for some time past. She is survived by the one daughter, Mrs. L. P. Hughes and five sisters, Miss Margaret Sydney of Belleville, Mrs. J. McLaren and Mrs. A. Wickett of Toronto, Mrs. M. Anderson of Boston and Mrs. D. Newman of Newcastle, Penn. She was a member of St. Michael's Church.

High Winds today did considerable property damage in the city. The wind in Sam Pappas' pool room near Victoria avenue was shattered by the wind and a large tree at the corner of William and Bridge streets was torn up and cast across William street, blocking traffic.

Branches were torn off trees and were crashing down on the streets, endangering pedestrians. Wires on William street and Albert street were down as the result of falling trees. Nobody was hurt by falling branches but several pedestrians reported narrow escapes. On Front street part of the workwood on the roof of Wong's Cafe was torn off while a tin roof on another building farther down the street was also damaged. Workmen were hastily engaged who succeeded in tacking the roofing down again.

William Lane's newstand at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets was blown over but fortunately no one was hurt, although the stock was damaged.

Telephone and telegraph communication with outside points was disrupted and it was impossible to get to Toronto by long distance. It was almost a hazard to venture on the streets this afternoon with branches falling in every direction. Limbs hurled across business streets and motor traffic was paired.

CARS CRASHED; NO ONE INJURED

A car owned and driven by Jack Bush, of Clifton, collided last night with a car driven by John Roach, 95 St. John street, wrecking the Bush car and breaking a front wheel, and setting off the running board, from the car and breaking the front axle. It was alleged that Bush was on the right side of the Cannifton road, just past the paper mills, when the Roach car, driven south, hit him head on. Luckily the occupants of neither car were injured.

WATCH FOR
The play at Bethel Church, "The Coming of Caroline," on Friday, April 12th. Admission 35 and 15c. A.16.11.

Fred Haight, alias Marvin Holley, jailbreaker and alleged Mimico mail car robber, who was killed in Detroit in a gun fight with Detroit detectives is shown with his nineteen-year-old wife, Patricia, who was living with him at Detroit. Haight's career was brought to a close through his alleged attempts on his wife's life. Accusing her of association with other men, he threatened her life. In fear Mrs. Haight ran downstairs for the landlady, and the two then went up to pacify Haight. On their entrance into the room Haight, it is said, produced a revolver and fired a shot at his wife, barely missing her. The landlady and Mrs. Haight fled to the street, calling the police. Haight refused to be taken alive, and a lively gun duel followed between Detroit police and Haight in the darkened room until seven bullets pierced his body.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

The fashion wears out more apparel than the man.

SHAKESPEARE.

A PERSONAL AFFRONT

"A Great Lakes sailor, awaiting execution in the Ohio penitentiary for murder, tells a fellow prisoner that he committed murder because he had a grudge against the world in general.

He had sailed the lakes for nearly 40 years, he said, and in all that time never "got the breaks the other fellows got." Embittered and sullen he had waited his chance to get even;
and when, finally, he got into a quarrel with an associate, he struck him down and hammered his head in, with the real or fancied wrongs that the world had done him.

It would be interesting to know just how many crimes of violence trace back to just some such reason as this.
The number must be large. Even the most law-abiding and self-controlled of men have moments when they feel that the whole universe is in some sort of conspiracy against them. Put that feeling in the under-developed brain of a man who has spent a lifetime without hope, and you have the materials for a terrible outbreak.

As a matter of fact, there are some men who are almost justified in feeling that way. The ordinary mortal brings most of his troubles upon himself; but there is no use denying that now and then the cards do get stacked against a man. The man who spent his childhood in a slum and had to start earning his own living before he had donned long trousers, began under a tremendous handicap; the addition of a few more unfavorable circumstances can easily rob him, forever, of all chance to gain happiness or contentment in his whole life.

Such people, however, are the exception. Most of us have no more right to consider ourselves cheated by the world than we have to take a hurricane as a personal insult from nature.
We are responsible for nearly all of our own difficulties; and if we could once thoroughly digest that fact we would do a good deal less useless grumbling.

There is scriptural authority for believing that the Kingdom of Heaven is within us. That is comforting gospel; but what we do not often realize is that the converse is true, too—the other less beautiful supernatural kingdom is within us also. We can enter into and enjoy the first by our own efforts; and, likewise, we can enter into and suffer in the second, also by our own efforts.

The man who can truly say that the world has been grossly unfair to him is a rarity. Once in a while, to be sure, such a person does turn up—usually in the criminal courts; and when that happens it behooves the rest of us to see that he gets a decent break, for once at least. But most of us are only deceiving ourselves when we think that we have been cheated.
After all, we have a pretty fair degree of control over our own destiny.

IN A LEISURE MOMENT

Recent newspaper stories told with considerable surprise how a young Harvard graduate, the son of a well-to-do Boston investment broker, is just completing his tenth year of solitary reclusion on the island of Tahiti, in the South Seas.

The young man went there after the war. He found daily life in the United States too complicated and im-portunate, so now he lives alone on a South Sea island, doing no work and submitting to no worry—watching," as he says, "the coconuts drop and the bananas grow." He has built a thatched house, and intends to stay there indefinitely.

Probably most of us envy this man secretly. We wouldn't dare admit it. We take the maxima of this hard practical world too much for granted.
We have let ourselves be persuaded that life is wasted unless it is busy;
that the man who "isn't accomplishing anything" cannot be really happy.

But it is quite probable that we are wrong. The real savor of life cannot always be tasted in the midst of activity. It comes better in leisure moments, when mind and body can relax. The everlastingly busy man may think that he is happy, for the simple reason that he does not have time to think about his troubles; but the substance of happiness is apt to elude him.

What are the important things in life, anyway? It is hard to tell; but generally they are not the things that our workday scales consider important. More often they are the little things: things that come in moments of idleness, when it seems as if a distant screen were momentarily drawn aside to permit a glimpse of meaning and beauty behind the ordinary facts of existence.

A man returns from work after dark, puts his auto in his garage and pauses for a moment by the doors to look up into the star-clouded sky and take a deep breath of the spring air; and in that moment there comes to him, deeper and more sure than anything that can be obtained from books or pulpits, the conviction that life is essentially glorious and noble, and that the race lies cradled in an immensity of color and harmony. He knows that it is good to live.

A woman sits on a chair, in an interval of housework, and watches a baby rolling and tumbling across a rug in pursuit of some toy, chuckling and gurgling with babyish delight;
and she knows, with a surety nothing can shake, that the laughter of that child, and the emotions it arouses in her own breast, are worth as much as anything life can possibly bring to her. With that knowledge, she can never again worry about the "meaning of life," she knows what it is.

Those are the important things. It is out of such incidents that most people fashion their underlying hope that goodness and kindness, and not despair and frustration, are at the bottom of things in this world. They are not often to be found in times of activity. They pop up unexpectedly.
The man who has time to be idle occasionally is the man who is most apt to experience them.

OTHER MEN'S THOUGHTS

mist and the pessimist is that when the pessimist sees it he thinks the married?

Second Ditto: I didn't know him at all. I only thought I did.

"Yes, something ought to be undone

Mr. S. Westover of Foxboro on Fri-

PONCE DE LEON.

Juan Ponce de Leon, an Aragonese, spent ten years searching for a Well of Youth, discovering Florida in his travels; he died on his return that his lover had found and that his youth and happiness were over.

Juan and the Spring of Youth
From capes and sounds and islands without name,

Lean, tanned adventurers with gold earrings came,

And, to the grandees sulking round
the throne,

They spoke in the grave courts of Aragon.

And Juan Ponce de Leon, stepping out

Of this rich tapestry, hearing about A hidden Well of Youth, wearied and turned

From fawning, and the fires where peasants burned.

In the vain quest when manhood's years had sped,

Broken and grey, he traced his lonely wake,

Longing for all that he had left behind,

To Spain—and there his boyhood's love lay dead!

And he had spurned, for pride
and roving's sake,

The joy he traversed Florida to find.

DETROIT GUNMAN SHOT BY POLICE

Chicago, Mar. 30.—A nation-wide search was instituted today for Frank Bucke, Detroit gangster. He has been identified as a member of the St. Valentine's Day massacre squad. It was said, man "with a missing front tooth who wore the policeman's uniform," and carried one of the machine guns that killed the seven members of the "Bugs" Moran gang.

TO DEVELOP THE EMPIRE'S TRADE

James Murray Is Enthusiastic About Inter-Empire
Trading

It is only by association that individuals know each other and our friends in another part of the Empire can only associate with us in an exchange of daily newspaper reports on what we are doing and the advertisements in the paper. The Empire knows what we have to do.

It may be argued that a few people are interested in what is occurring in the other parts of the Empire, yet if we desire the United Empire, so frequently urged, we must be satisfied by the very brief reports and despatches sent in the daily press.

The really important work of a United Empire is in the Empire Trade, and by the means of buying and selling, traffic in all commerce.
British products in any part or the other to be sold. The other part of the empire means the British workman. The other number of employed workmen of the whole of the Empire is a strong bond of unity in every way.

A producer of goods for the public about the part of what he makes or grows. It is done by advertising and in many methods it is done by the printers ink in newspapers, magazines, and in circulars. The daily press, however, needs the largest number of readers and prices are given in nearly every issue.

For a knowledge of what any part of the Empire buys may be learned from the advertisements of the daily press that particular part.
To arrange for systematic exchange of the press of the Empire, an exchange of opinions, ideas, and possibilities, might be done by Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, or perhaps the British Empire Press Union might enter into correspondence with all the parts and governments of the Empire.

That the general public may have free access to the daily press issues they may be received from abroad would not the public libraries be a proper and a suitable housing?
Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce, or other similar institutions may join in supporting the Press Exchange by good will, or if desired, by contributions in money.

The wall space for the shelving to hold the regular deliveries—which will be daily, every fortnight, and every month—would be about fifteen feet long and six high. Each space for the weekly ones would be about eight inches deep and fifteen wide.
For monthly ones the space may be thirty inches deep and fifteen wide.
All would be, say fifteen inches deep,
from front to back.

The question arises "What cities would be selected?" If this idea is to be of a real Empire interest, then the Governments of such as it is desired to join should be the authority for selecting cities.

Ends of Empire: 5; Ireland 5;
India 5; Australia 5; New Zealand 4; Canada 4; South Africa 4; British West Indies 4; and others to be selected, say 10. In all, sixty cities.

These may not all join at the commencement, but when the benefits commence to show the difficulty will be how to accept increasing offers.

A year's subscription for the average charge would be about $4.00.
That would not be a very heavy contribution by one paper. May it not be assumed that the Governments would frank their countries issues?

RURAL POWER FOR DELTA

BRITISH MUSEUM WINS NOTED CASE

London. (By mail).—At Bow Street
Police Court recently, before Sir Charles Biron, Mr. Victor Hilton, an author, of Amesbury Avenue, Sreat-ham, was summoned for having, as the publisher of a book called "The World Shall Miss a Great Tragedian," failed to deliver a copy to the trustees of the British Museum, in accordance with the Copyright Act.

Mr. Lawson Campbell, who appeared for the prosecution, said that there had been only one similar case in the last fifty years. The trustees of the Museum were that, as the author, he was displeased with the book and wanted to withdraw it from publication altogether.

The Magistrate.—As a matter of curiosity, what does the British Museum do with all these books? It has always been a puzzle to me.

Mr. Sharpe, keeper of printed books at the British Museum, replied that the books were catalogued and stored in the museum.

The Magistrate.—Do they remain there for ever? Yes, we are bound to keep them.

Mr. Lawson Campbell said that in the event of authors being dissatisfied with their books the copies were not available to the public. Their wishes in this respect were always respected.
A fine of 40s, with 10s costs, was imposed.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

New York, March 30.—Patsy Rosetti, Laborer, was in the police lineup today charged with the murder of Samuel Sacco, former convict and Mrs.
Sacco, who were shot to death in their apartment, March 20.

SINCLAIR'S

"SCARFACE" TO BE QUESTIONED

Al Capone Will Face Grand Jury by Tuesday of Next Week

Chicago.—"Scarface Al" Capone, a king to the gangsters and a hoodlum to the Government came, now, was conquered and must return for more questioning by a Federal grand jury about a liquor ring in Chicago Heights.

The date of his second grand entry into the grand jury room was indefinite, but probably it will be next Tuesday.

It will be sooner if Capone's lawyers have their way, because they fear the gangster chief may become a target of Moran gangster machine guns, just seven Moran gangsters provided bull's eyes for rivals on St. Valentine's Day.
Capone was in seclusion today following his melodramatic appearance Wednesday at the Federal building at the stroke of 10 a.m. just as he and his attorneys had predicted.

Questioned Two Hours
The gangster leader, who bears the reputation of controlling liquor, vice and gambling rackets in Cook County, was closeted with the grand jurors about two hours. What questions he was asked and what he said in reply remained a secret between him and the grand jurors, but his attorneys assured anyone who asked that he hadn't told much if anything about his activities before he entered the inquiry room.

In fact, Capone himself before he entered the inquiry room, said:
"This is a bum rap. I don't know anything about Chicago Heights and if I did, I forgot, see."

Whether or not he knew anything about the iniquities of the village, he made a point of collecting his $5 witness fees and 5 cents a mile travel money from Miami, Fla., whence he was called.
He appeared thinner but was tanned from long hours in the Atlantic sun. His blue suit, gray fedora hat and necktie-sock-handkerchief ensemble were immaculate. A massive diamond sparkled from his left little finger.

He slipped into the Federal building unknown to officials or watchers and had to enlighten an office boy before he was admitted to the United States district attorney's office.

Called a Hoodlum

STRIKING INCREASE IN DEATH RATE

London, Mar. 30.—A striking increase in the number of deaths in England and Wales during the first three months of this year was shown today in the statistics of 107 of the country's largest cities and towns.
The increase was attributed to the severe winter.

The deaths totalled 104,575 as compared with same period last year when 64,182 persons died.

EXAMINE VICTIMS TEETH

Springfield, Mass., March 30.—A dentist comparison today may decide whether the body found yesterday in the Connecticut River at Long Meadow was that of Miss Frances S. John Smith, missing Smith College student.

PLANE LEAVES FOR ENGLAND

Sydney, Australia, March 30.—The airplane Southern Cross, veteran of the trans-Pacific flight from the United States to Hawaii, and Australia, left here today on a trip to England.
It is hoped to complete the trip in quicker time than the English aviator,
Bert Hinkler, used on the reverse route.

A lawyer gave instructions that Capone be treated "just like any other hood-lum."

Police, despite announcements that they would attempt to question Capone about the gang massacre, made no move to seize him. There were many detectives, United States deputy marshals, treasury agents and uniformed policemen about the building, almost stepping on one another.

Just For The Feminine Reader

MIRRORS OF A WOMAN'S PERSONALITY

None of us women would be willing to live in a house without a mirror; but I do wonder sometimes how many of us take the trouble to dare honestly to look at our real selves either in an actual mirror or in the mirror of the mind? I suspect that the women who think most about themselves, in one manner or thinking are the very ones who fail to see themselves honestly and as they really are. I don't mean in regard to personal appearance; I think the woman who doesn't do the very best she can for her physical appearance is just a plain dunce; and I think her letting things go is really very significant. I have never yet seen a dowdy woman who has not a dowdy place in her mind, nor an untidy one who isn't untidy inside.

Look at the woman who doesn't care how her hair looks—and don't you just know she's got a kink somewhere? Of course, lots of them say they haven't time to fix up; they claim to have such crowded lives that they have no time to waste on their own looks. Well, I know better. I'll argue with anyone that to stop and tuck up your back hair (or fix your bob, if you wear it bobbed) does not make you feel a little more able to tackle the old job again and a little harder. If a woman has time to look untidy, she has just as much time to look neat. If any of us—and here's a nut for you to munch over—if any of us have time to look cross, we have time to look pleasant. If we have time to nag, we have time to speak pleasantly. If we have time to worry, we certainly have just as much time to be happy. If we have time for unhappiness, there is just exactly as much time to be happy.

time to be happy. If loneliness surrounds us, we can give a look of cheer to the mirror, even if it is a look that is put on for the occasion; we can look at ourselves with our head up and say "Watch me grin—I dare you to down me!"

A PERMANENT WAVE AND ITS CARE

Permanent waving is not as hard on the hair as curling it with a curling iron. The hair is made up of tiny cells or scales which overlap, as do the scales on a fish or the shingles on a roof. In straight hair this structure is straight. When the hair is curled, these cells must be loosened up on one side to make the hair curve. When this is done with the curling iron, the structure of the hair is torn and broken on the side farthest away from the iron and it is likely to be baked stiff on the side closest to the iron.

In permanent waving, steam is applied, not long enough or hot enough to cook the hair but just enough to make it elastic so that one side will stretch without breaking the cells and they may be bent into the shape of a wave. The permanent wave will last until the hair grows out.

It is not well to have a permanent wave too frequently. One wave should not be given over another. It is better to have a permanent only about once a year, with time to rest the hair and encourage the development of oil in the scalp, between times.

As the hair grows out, a wave may be kept close to the roots, at the top of the head, by means of the water wave or finger wave. Have an oil treatment for the scalp twice before you have your next permanent wave.

WHAT'S NEW (From A Women's Standpoint)

The little ankle socks are to have accessories in the form of cosmetics, and each has a small pocket at the top one contains a dainty powder puff while the other has a strong comb. The pockets are kept secure with a press stud and the accessories are not conspicuous.

Capucine tones occupy an important place on the summer textile color card for bottoms, while chaireuse continues to be featured in addition to a grass green, and opaque green and pale pink, a brilliant blue, a vibrant red, light red and medium tones of yellow, a light violet blue and a purple violet are among other colors given prominence.

Miss Diana Churchill, daughter of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, made her first speech in public this month at Claxton Hall, Westminster, where she presented the awards to the winning choir in the annual singing competitions of the junior branches of the Primrose League of her grandfather, the Lord Randolph Churchill, was one of the founders of the league forty-six years ago.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

If you have an old fashioned deal-topped kitchen table try applying two coats of flat white paint and, when dry, two coats of good white enamel. Before painting, sandpaper the surface well. Wooden dressers and draining boards can receive similar treatment as well as the edges of shelves and fronts of cupboards.

The Love Myth By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 66 DANGEROUS DAY

When Cornelia had finished writing the graceful little note that Lucinda had received by special messenger just before Florence burst into her room with her disturbing news, she looked up from the desk in the hotel sitting room and remarked to her brother and Julian:

"It's such a beautiful day! What a shame we have to be in town!"

"We don't have to," answered Julian promptly. He was feeling curiously free that morning. Funny he thought, when he ought to be broken hearted, because he'd lost Lucinda! But he supposed that it was because he knew definitely, once for all that the matter was settled.

"Why don't we hire a car and go for a day in the country?" he suggested. "Make it a sort of last party? Because we will be too busy to play the rest of this week what with packing and all."

"Splendid!" agreed Cornelia, with enthusiasm. Her eyes began to shine. She would have one whole day with Julian. Much might happen. She suggested, not pretending to herself that she wasn't doing it for a purpose—the purpose of providing a companion for her. In case she and Julian wandered away from the party. "Can't we take Norman, too?"

"Sure!" Julian promised. By noon they were on their way. Norman had joined them. They had no particular destination. They would stop for lunch at whatever inn pleased them. The day was cloudless and the crimson and russet foliage of the oaks and elms and maples was a delight to the eye.

Cornelia was happy for the first time in months. The news of Lucinda's engagement had released her from a gnawing fear, and Julian's own high spirits assured her that he was not broken hearted. He had never been, she decided, in love with Lucinda. Or, if he had been, he had made a good recovery.

They lunched at a picturesque place hidden in a perfect forest of flaming maples on a hillside above the Hudson. The air was soft and fragrant with the scent of drying grass and leaves.

Ned and Norman were seized with a desire to fish and borrowed tackle and bait and license from the proprietor. Cornelia watched them scrambling down the river-bank, laughing like boys. She asked Julian, hoping he would say "No."

"Do you want to fish too? I shan't pletely Lucinda's statement that Cornelia loved him. He believed that to be sheer nonsense.

"My mistake," he said. "I'm sorry. I'd like to see you two nit it off. I'm fond of you both."

Cornelia could have cried. She had to stare very hard at the gently flowing river to keep the tears back. How could he be so dense? Or—a awful thought—was he only pretending to be to see how the land lay? Of course, she argued, Norman had been her shadow of late, while Julian had been occupied with Lucinda. Julian might think that Norman had the inside track and from friendly loyalty, might not want to spoil his chance. It was an absurd and wholly illogical argument, but a woman in love can make herself think anything.

Cornelia knew that she was going to betray her carefully guarded secret, but she couldn't have remained silent any more than she could have stopped an avalanche. She looked squarely into Julian's eyes and said simply:

"You know why the idea is absurd?" "I know," he echoed, startled. "Why? I'm the last person in the world to know why people fall in love—or don't fall in love—as the case may be!"

"I couldn't," said Cornelia, in a very low voice, "ever love any one else."

She held her breath.

"Any one else?" he repeated, puzzled. "I say, are you supposed to have been in love? To be in love with some one now?"

She hesitated, hoping he would guess. But he didn't. She opened her lips to quizzically. "Penny?" he offered. "I was this long," she answered seriously. "That I'll be sort of sorry to leave the States. I'm crazy to see home again, but—" she paused and shrugged.

"I know just how you feel," he answered. "I want to go back too. And yet this was home to me once and it still holds me, I miss it when I'm not here and I can't let it go."

They were silent for a moment and then he said seriously: "I'm going to miss you awfully, Cornelia. We've been great pals haven't we?"

"Yes." Her voice was barely audible. She began to twist blades of dried grass in her slim fingers. "Yes, we have been great pals. I—I'll miss our rides and—and everything."

"Oh, well," he said, drawing himself lazily to a sitting posture, "if I'm only as far off as California, I can hop over often. And then you will be getting married one of these days, and you will be coming to the States on a wedding-trip."

Her heart went cold with foreboding. He sounded so cheerful, so matter of fact.

She forced a laugh. "Hardly. There isn't a man on the horizon."

He looked at her with a twinkle in his handsome eyes.

"Not even old Norman? I rather thought—"

"How absurd!" He grinned. He liked to tease her as he would have teased a sister, if he'd had one. He had forgotten com-mind staying here alone.

She was sitting on a gentle sunny slope and he lay stretched at full length beside her. A cap was tilted comfortably over his eyes and he smoked a pipe. To her delight he said:

"Not I. I'm perfectly content as I am—a perfect afternoon, a perfect girl, and perfect peace?"

She laughed, and colored with pleasure.

"I'll prove I'm a perfect girl by not talking, if you want to sleep."

He reached out a lazy hand. "You are such a comfortable person. Cornelia, honey. Nobody could possibly get bothered around you. You have a gift for creating serenity."

She laughed again. "I'm not sure stoney from that description."

"Well, you know what I mean," he grinned.

She stole an admiring glance at him. He was so lithe and good looking. So clean. A little lump came into his throat at the thought of leaving him. The bright sunshine faded a trifle as she reminded herself that this was indeed their last day. Soon there would be preparations for leaving, then the trip across the continent and San Francisco—and good by.

She simply couldn't bear the thought of sailing out of the harbor and leaving Julian on the pier. It was unthinkable. And yet that was exactly what was going to happen within the next fortnight. Unless—

She turned her gaze upon her companion. He was looking up at her,

How far would you go to be sure of a better Oil?

Knowing that a better oil means smoother performance, longer life, greater economy and bigger trade-in value for your car, you'd probably go a long way to be sure of a better oil.

That's what Imperial Oil Limited did—went all the way to tropical South America for the crude out of which to refine Marvelube.

There's lots of crude oil available right at Canada's front door. If Canada's largest and most modern refineries had been able to evolve as good an oil as Marvelube from locally available crude they would have been glad to do so. Peruvian crude made a purer, carbon-free, fuller-bodied oil—an oil that meant better lubrication—so Peruvian crude was

The decision set a new standard in motor oils. Aircraft operators, the most particular buyers of oil, are enthusiastic about Marvelube because it has given them a longer period of operation between engine overhauls, and a greater margin of safety.

You can enjoy the same benefits in your car, and there is a grade of Marvelube that is refined to meet the exact requirements of your car. Consult the Marvelube chart at good service stations and dealers everywhere.

COMMISSIONER LANDIS IS PROBING CHARGE OF BAITING BY MCCARTHY

Commissioner Landis, who plays no favorites, is on the trail of manager McCarthy of the Chicago Cubs. It is reported, and wants to obtain official reports of an outbreak of umpire baiting during a recent game between the Cubs and the Los Angeles Coast League club in Ormer Wigley's Los Angeles stadium.

The Cubs took two out of the first three games with the Angels. In the fifth inning of one of the games rain began falling and with the score 9 to 8 in favor of the Cubs, Umpire Glendon started to rain time. It was not raining hard and the fans together with Manager Krug, of the Angels, protested. So the umpire ordered the teams to proceed, whereupon Leader McCarthy kicked like a steer.

Rain continued to fall and in the sixth inning when the Angels had made three runs, Chadbourne called the game, which meant the Cubs' defeat. McCarthy grabbed the umpire by the collar as he started to leave the field and treated him roughly, so the story goes.

The Cubs' manager was proved because his team had lost and allowed his hot temper to get the better of him. The story of the row reached Commissioner Landis at his office in Chicago and he telegraphed Umpire Chadbourne and his assistant, Casey also Manager McCarthy to explain matters.

Landis, it will be recalled, investigated a ball player's cowardly assault on a Pacific Coast League umpire two years ago and imposed both a suspension and fine. Having established that precedent, the Commissioner evidently is determined to suppress rowdiness in baseball of his own accord. In other words, he is earning his $65,000 salary and Organized Baseball wondering where he will strike next.

Miss Bessie Bridges, of Fredericton, one of the veteran teachers in South Africa after the Boer War, and for year a teacher in New Brunswick, died recently in south of France.

Always to be remembered as the finest batsman of all time, Tyrus Raymond Cobb has many friends who cannot understand why one of the major league clubs does not engage him. Cobb has announced his retirement from the game but has accepted an invitation from Dan Howley, manager of the Browns, to act as a batting instructor for that team. One of Cobb's admirers voices the opinion of others, no doubt in the following communication:

"I am sure that Cobb would like to add to his records that of being the first and only man to play 25 years in the majors. No player ever has rounded out a quarter of a century in professional baseball and it would be an epic, a new world's record for length of service and an inspiring example to all athletes if the famous Georgian would be allowed to celebrate a silver anniversary in the uniform of one of the big league teams."

"Cobb as a player, and coach with the Dodgers, with the Giants or with the St. Louis Browns, would add color and batting strength to any of those teams. He is not through. At the age of 41 he still is a fine player, fast, alert, enthusiastic and the most interesting and magnetic man in the game."

"Why shouldn't Cobb be a great player until he is 46? Anson was a regular until 45, batting .300 every year after 40. At 43, he averaged .395. Cobb can play three or four years longer, just as Anson did. He is the most popular of players and most highly respected personally and professionally. Still a marvel of skill. Ty hit 330 last year and fielded .964. Why not let him play his 25th year in the majors?"

Resolution, urging that the C.N.R. take over ferry service between Iona and Baddeck was unanimously endorsed by the executive of the Cape Breton Tourist Association meeting at Sydney.

HEAVY STORM DAMAGE IN TRENTON

Telephone And Hydro Gangs Spent Busy Night Repairing Lines

HYDRO SERVICE RESTORED AFTER VIOLENT GALES

Driver of Ancient and Decrepit "Flivver" Gets Impromptu Bath

DANGEROUS WALKING

Newstand Is Blown from Moorings by Severe Storm

Slowly recovering after one of the worst wind storms experienced in this section of the country for the past decade, Belleville and district citizens are taking time to patch up their wrecked homes and buildings. At one time the Bay Bridge road was closed to traffic as it was feared that the extra weight might cause serious damage.

The driver of one "flivver" crossing the Bay Bridge early in the afternoon had a hair-raising experience, as the wind lifted the top off with a mighty blast. The waves from the Bay were breaking high over the road and the unfortunate motorist became stalled there. He was the recipient of an icy bath from the waves which were washing over the bridge.

One of the rack houses at the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company was blown down last night being heavy as the whole side of the building was forced in. Two business houses on Front street lost their roofs, the one in particular being badly torn and wrecked. In the course of the wrecking of this roof two chimneys were blown over and plaster decorations had to step lively to avoid the falling bricks.

On Catharine street the wind reached such a velocity that it overturned a loaded milk wagon and the street was covered with debris. William Lane's newstand, also at the corner of Bridge and Front streets was blown over, but was later replaced without much damage having been done.

Hydro poles and telephone communication suffered the greatest loss, however and for some time in the afternoon industry stood at a standstill, as far as electricity was concerned, falling branches and trees wreaking havoc among the wires. Telephone communication between Belleville and Toronto was impaired.

The officers of the association include, Duncan Foster, president, P. B. Nelson, secretary and George O. Tice, auctioneer. About a hundred cattle will be placed up for auction.

It has been stated that there is a shortage of good holsteins this year, but the quality of the cattle will undoubtedly maintain the previous high average.

TRENTON HIT BY TERRIFIC GALES; ROOFS TORN OFF

Hundred Employees Benedict-Practor Co. Have Narrow Escape

TREES ARE UPLIFTED

Sick Man Shocked When House Was Badly Damaged

Trenton suffered more during yesterday's storm than did Belleville, although nobody was injured in either community. The roof on the home of Mr. James Hayes was blown completely off. Mr. Hayes has been ill for time months and the shock of the accident was so great that he could not speak or utter a sound for nearly five hours after it occurred.

Perhaps the most serious damage was done to the Benedict-Practor factory. The wind blew back of the wall down, causing considerable damage. The factory employs about one hundred men and women and they were all working at the time. Fortunately, all were uninjured.

The Dempsey Block, on one of Trenton's main streets, had part of the roof blown off and the Star Cafe, on Dundas Street, suffered the loss of part of its roof.

The roof on the home of Mr. Tom Jarrett, owner and publisher of the "Quintessence," a Trenton Weekly, was demolished and considerable damage was done to the Catholic separate school, St. Peter's-in-Claret, when a section of the roof was removed by the high winds.

Trees Cause Damage

Authorities stated to the Intelligencer today that falling trees and branches caused considerable trouble yesterday. Several trees were scattered about the streets, blocking them for some time and more fell on the railway tracks.

The trees are still in the Trenton harbour today, unharmed, although it was thought that the violent winds would cause much trouble in the ship piling.

MISS V. LEWIS BELLEVILLE GIRL, A PRIZE WINNER

Is Awarded $100 in C.D.S.L. Dressmaking Contest Here

Reports of the results from the interesting dressmaking contest recently conducted by the C.D.S. and Teco Stores operated by the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., have been received by Mr. MacMillan, manager of the Store here.

The local angle of this contest attracted widespread attention and the dress which won the prize here made by Miss V. Lewis, went to Toronto to compete against the first prize winners of the various other cities in this well-known chain of retail establishments, to compete for grand prizes.

Report received by the store here stated that the awards of these grand prizes were decided with great difficulty, due to the fact that all of the entries were of such exceptional merit and it was only after exhaustive examination of each dress and placing the awards on points for style, choice of materials, workmanship and trimming that final choice was made.

The first grand prize of $100 cash awarded to Miss Vivienne Lewis, 199 East Bridge Street, Belleville, Ont. Miss Grace Simms, Huntsville, Ont.; third prize of $25 was awarded to Mrs. Geo. T. Walker, Sudbury, Ont.; fourth prize to Miss Margaret Menzies, Peterborough, Ont.; fifth to Mrs. Allan Forsyth, Chatham, Ont. Honorable mention was accorded to Mrs. H. McIntyre, Brantford, Ont.; Miss Florence Shantz, Kitchener, Ont.; Mrs. S. Bruckner, Stratford, Ont.

The dress which was first grand prize was a black and white three-piece ensemble and was unanimous choice of the judges. In competing for the awards, each dress maker had a number, so that both the maker and the store from which the dress was submitted were unknown to the judges.

It is planned to run this dressmaking contest regularly twice a year in the fall. The dress which was first grand prize had created such general interest and has brought such a gratifying response. It is expected that the next contest will be held in the Fall.

RAILWAY DANCE A FINE SUCCESS

49th Annual Affair at Johnstone's Is Largely Attended

Johnstone's Academy was the scene last night of the 49th Annual Dance of the Brotherhood of Railway Locomotive Engineers, which again proved to be one of the most delightful affairs of the season. The attendance was large and the committee in charge wish to thank all those who in any way contributed to the success of the evening.

For Brookhurst are High Orchestra dispensed the music in their usual fine manner, while novelties and a hall which had been decorated especially for the occasion added much to the entertainment. At the commencement of the evening, a Grand March around the Hall was held, led by Mr. Dan McMillan, Belleville's veteran ballroom leader.

The first prize was won by Miss Flossie Wheeler and Mr. Albert Ethier; the Hat Dance was won by Mr. Bryant. Mrs. Frank Farris and Mr. Ackerman of Sarnia, Ont., were the winners of the Spot Dance.

The committee in charge of this most successful evening is as follows: A. Cooper, E. E. Kerr, Wilbur Graham, Charles Ackerman, Cecil Davis, George Milligan, W. J. Coleman, F. L. Munro, Howard Smith, Arthur J. L. Munro, John Dolderfield, Arthur Jackson and Wm. Adams, secretary.

Chicago Suffers Heavy Property Damage in Wind-Storm

REPAIRING LINES

Newspapers Are Forced to Get Outside News by Radio

Chicago, April 2.—Property damage mounting into millions and a serious new flood threat remained today to remind the midwest of the rain, wind and snowstorm that swept over the region Sunday and yesterday. Heavy rains in Central and blizzards in the Northern states had again swollen rivers to all the streams and the danger was considered as the tributarities considered this added burden to the Mississippi, which was already nearing the tops of the levees.

Chicago itself suffered property damage estimated at a million dollars. Telephone and telegraph lines were down in many States. Wisconsin suffered most and several newspapers, that state were forced to get their outside news by radio.

Four deaths were attributed to the high winds which blew down signs, trees and chimneys and bowled over small buildings and homes in Indiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois.

Montreal, April 2.—Public Utilities companies were busy repairing the damage sustained during yesterday's gales and found losses heavy. The Bell Telephone Company was the chief sufferer, it being estimated that the cost of repairs to its poles and wires would reach fifty thousand dollars. Other concerns "lost heavily" when the poles and wires went down. Telegraph service was resumed today with the Maritime provinces which were without service for some hours late yesterday.

ALLEGED OUTLAW ESCAPES POLICE

Orval Shaw Again Eludes Police of Western Ontario

Kitchener, Ont., April 2.—Orval Shaw, Skunks Misery outlaw, escaped capture by less than ten minutes shortly before eight o'clock today when he was shot by G. T. Groh, three-quarters of a mile from Hespler.

Groh's son, Howard followed shot gun and a soldier's tune beside a depression in the hayloft at eight o'clock, but while waiting for the police, who arrived within ten minutes, the outlaw disappeared with the typical "shunk" mystery. The examination of the tune revealed a driver's license in the district east of Lake Simcoe, the scene of Shaw's activities at the time of the Brennan shooting.

The police believe Shaw was actually in the barn when the youth discovered the shot gun and the tune, but hid in the early morning gloom and escaped when young Groh ran to the house to phone the police at Hespler.

AVON RIVER RISING

Stratford, April 2.—As a result of the heavy downpour of rain last night the lower Avon is on a continually increasing rampage and this evening was reaching a very high level.

PEACE PACT IN CHINESE STRIFE

Canton, China, April 2.—Declaration of neutrality in the present Chinese internal strife by General Chan Meng Shu, civil governor of Kwangtung province, has caused the utmost surprise among the generals of Kwangsi military clique, who regard it as tantamount to the declaration for the National Neutrality manifesto ordered from Kwangtung to withdraw to Kwangsi. This movement is already under the Chinese taking over active control as quickly as the Kwangsi forces evacuate.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Two human loves make one divine.

E. B. BROWNING.

ADVERTISING THAT PAYS

Despite what is being said about Britshers being poor self-boasters it is acknowledged all over the world that their ideas of business advertising values are among the most solid. Addressing the Manchester Publicity Club recently on "Advertising as a factor in the modern world," Sir William Edge, one of the foremost industrialists, said: "One thing all advertising men insist on today is the straight truth. It doesn't pay to live a lie, and it doesn't pay to advertise a lie." This, Sir William urged, was being accepted by millions of people in all civilized countries, and intelligent housewives were beginning more and more to look to the advertising pages of reputable magazines and newspapers for assistance and advice in making the family income go as far as possible. The time was coming, he added, when magazines and newspapers would be bought for their value of their advertising pages.

Sir William undoubtedly spoke the truth when he said that to advertise a lie was sure to end in failure. There is nothing which destroys public faith in any store or business house so quickly as false, exaggerated or misleading advertising. Happily for Winnipeg the city's reputation along this line has consistently been of the best. Winnipeg merchants have long recognized the truth of the successful British industrialists' words.

SIR WALTER SCOTT'S LETTER

The centenary of the death of Sir Walter Scott is already in the minds of the literary world. There are few men who have exercised such an influence on their time and their fellow linguists as the "Wizard of the North." His personality as a man has had almost as great an influence as his works, and there are differences of opinion as to whether his poetry or his prose have been more effective.

There is certain to be a revival of interest in his novels; they will have a renewed life, and there will be many reversals of opinion concerning them. Some of the novels that are commended by the critics will fail to find favor with modern readers, but modern readers who preserve will be surprised to find those that the critics place in second or third class are most enjoyable and attractive tales. Scott himself was a man of highly amiable character, friendly with all, and obliging to a degree. He was accustomed to answer all sorts of letters which came flooding in upon him, and it is believed there are letters of his all over the earth. Professor H. J. C. Grierson of the University of Edinburgh, has undertaken to edit a new edition of the letters, and he will be assisted by Mr. Davidson Cook and Miss Marguerite Wood. General Maxwell Scott, the present head of the family, has endorsed the plan, and given consent for the use of all still copyright material. It is probable that with the many Scottish affiliations possessed by Hamilton there may be letters from Sir Walter in the city or vicinity, and it is requested that access be permitted to these for the purpose of copying them with previously published texts. Constable & Co. are appropriately the publishers, and communications may be sent to them or their agents, the Macmillans of Canada. It is hoped to make this edition of the Letters a monumental tribute for the centenary year.

HELPING AMATEUR SPORT

It has been announced that the Ontario Athletic Commission, the Government body which collects a tax from professional sports in Ontario, will assist amateur baseball in the Province this year by a grant to meet the expenses of junior teams.

This is a step in the right direction.

The principle that professional sport should contribute something toward the maintenance of the amateur organizations that train and develop professional players is sound, and in leaving a tax on professional hockey, baseball and boxing and using the money so raised to foster amateur sport, the Ontario Commission is carrying out a policy that is reasonable and fair and that will produce results.

And when this question of amateur sport is to the fore it is unfortunate that the Government did not see fit in its Budget to abolish the amusement tax on such sport.

The amount raised from this source is not great, but the tax is a handicap to financing amateur games of all kinds and a nuisance as well.

Its abolition would have been a real help to many struggling hockey and baseball clubs in all parts of the Province, and it is to be hoped that the amusement tax, especially as applied to amateur athletics will be among the first levies to go when the tax reduction program predicted by the Premier comes to pass.—Peterboro Examiner.

THE ANVIL

I wonder that the metal stands the test;

The hammering of dogma, and of creed;

The lifting ferment of world's unrest;

The battering of ignorance and greed!

The dead-white flame of atheistic scorn,

The ringing blows of ridicule and doubt;

The infidel's rough handling, and the worn

Decets of prayers of the half-devout!

Yet still the anvil of God's mercy stands

Singing its answer to each heavy blow,

The stronger for humanity's demands

And man bends on it steadily and slow!

DALE ALEXANDER IS MAKING GOOD

Former Toronto Player Doing Well at Bat With Detroit Tigers

Phoenix, Ariz., April 2.—Whether Stanley "Bucky" Harris plays or not, he is a factor that cannot well be overlooked when the chances of the Detroit Tigers in the forthcoming American League campaign are considered. "Bucky" might be new to the club, but nevertheless he is an experienced hand at putting out good ball teams. His record will attest at that. In the five years that he has been wielding managerial reins, his products never have finished out of the first division.

Considerable interest will center upon Harris' accession to the Tigers, for his accession to the management brings him a leader of a type new to Detroit baseball. He has a way of handling the team that is interesting to study. After holding down an outfield berth for the past 10 years Harry Hellmann, whose chief enjoyment appears to be in knowing dry knits out of baseball fences, has been assigned to first base. Hellmann, who again aims to lead the league in hitting, is finding coverage of the initial sack much to his liking.

Dale Alexander, formerly of Toronto, a fence buster, has been hitting a mighty pace to vie with Hellmann. The six-foot-three-inch first base prospect, who batted .380 last season, appears to have put in a stronger bid for 1929 hitting honors than has Dudley Brann, drafted from Louisville where he led the American Association in total bases and hit around .320. Charley Gehring, ranked as the best second sacker in the league and a .316 batsman last year, will again fill the berth he has held for the last three seasons. He has Francis Sigafos, drafted from Portland of the Pacific Coast League, as a rival, while Manager Harris also can play second, but does not plan to do so as an emergency understudy.

Heinie Schulte, once with the St. Louis Cardinals, and last year with the Houston Club of the Texas league, has been working his head off to make the shortstop grade. Mo the McManus, veteran two years, is a certainty at third. If Roy Johnson, $75,000 fly chaser from the San Francisco Club of the Coast League, fits into the place Harris has opened for him, the Tigers will have an outfield possessed of both power and speed.

Harry Rice, who was secured in a grade with the St. Louis Browns last spring involving Manush and Blue, and John Stone, youngster who was brought up from Evansville last fall and proved a sensation, together with Johnson, are considered an ideal outfield. All are better than .300 hitters. Robert Fothergill, whose connection with the club dates back six or seven years, is yet to be reckoned with, however. George Uhle might have been relinquished by Cleveland because he had lost his pitching cunning, but Manager Harris is not sorry for having the great hurler on his staff. In fact, Harris is counting on the veteran to be a mainstay of the Tiger corps. Uhle, who came to Detroit via the Galloway and Taverner deal, had his "wing" created by a special deal and is developing to the satisfaction of Harris the easy delivery of a ball.

A Lesson in Personal Hygiene

This is the advice of leading doctors: "Discard makeshift sanitary napkins—don't risk good health."

MANY mental and physical troubles of women may be traced to inadequate sanitary protection. Peace of mind, physical comfort, can only come through using proper sanitary napkins.

Kotex is advised unanimously by modern doctors. It is most comfortable to wear, it fits like a garment. Cellulose absorbent wadding is the perfect absorbent for this purpose. And it deodorizes by a special process.

Kotex is easy to adjust, to fit individual needs. And easy to dispose of—follow directions in each package. Get it without hesitancy at any drug, dry goods or departmental store.

The Love Myth

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 67

It was a long moment before Cornelia could find words with which to answer Julian's astonished question: "Are you supposed to be in love with some one?"

"Then she said, in a very, very low voice, with her face averted: 'Are you blind? Haven't you seen?'"

"He couldn't fail to understand. He flushed painfully.

"Cornelia—I—"

She knew then that she had lost. Staked everything and lost. Shamed herself, so that she could never again hold up her head—and lost.

As for Julian, he was almost speechless with astonishment and embarrassment. He wondered desperately what he ought to say.

He managed to stammer: "You—I—I don't deserve this, Cornelia."

She shuddered. If he'd cared at all, he'd be kissing her now. She couldn't speak, and he went on, trying to be very matter of fact.

"If you care for me, I'm more honored than a cuss like me deserves to be."

"I—I—" she faltered, and stopped, and then went on: "Please forget what I said."

"I don't want to forget. It's something very precious."

He sat staring miserably at the gleaming river. Why was everything so topsy-turvy? Why, when he had wanted Lucinda for years, had he ment and the combination of black and white is especially good, although some lovely designs are also the same color.

The vogue for lingerie touches promises to be a popular one this spring, and combinations of wool and sheet linen frills and even crepe lace, accented by pique, have been featured at the Paris openings.

Cleveland motor men are opening a school for women automobile drivers on April 5, where they can learn more about the operation of their automobiles and the traffic rules they must obey.

Laurel treats some of her day skirts to a dip in front and back, leaving the sides fairly high, and to vary a plain sleeve it is trimmed around from wrist to elbow with a succession of program ribbons, black, white and green, each finished in a loop.

No evening frock has enjoyed a greater vogue at Palm Beach than that of flat crepe, which cut on simple, straight lines with graceful draping has no rival, for it is newer and smarter than satin, and for once we have an evening dress that may go successfully to the cleaners many times, moreover no ornaments are used on it save perhaps shoulder straps of crystal or simulated stones, so it is most telling when developed in the brighter tones.

At London's most picturesque recent wedding the bride wore a cloud of white tulle and carried a Victorian spray of jonquils, peonies, snowdrops and so forth and her bridesmaids in blue tulle had sheafs of pink tulips, primroses, mauve, iris and squills tied with mauve and blue ribbons and the pages were in blue satin jodhpur breeches and page coats of velvet with chiffon collars.

failed to take his chance when she'd given it to him? Why was he wrecked because of that, and yet unwilling to undo the mischief of the past twenty-four hours? Why was he agitated at Cornelia's revelation, when he ought to be glad that such a fine woman cared for him? Why didn't he seize the opportunity that life offered him and find contentment, even if it couldn't find happiness?

Cornelia would be such a perfect wife. Life would go on so peacefully and serenely with her. He'd known that from the first. There'd be a home and children and a future to build for. Marriage with her would not be the hectic, casual affair that it had been with Betty. Now would it be on the lofty, idealistic plane that he felt Lucinda would demand. It would be companionable, comfortable.

His ideals were sufficiently shattered, he told himself, for him to ask no more than that. If he were wise, he would take what Cornelia so generously offered. But he wasn't wise—yet even yet. Or perhaps he was too wise. Perhaps he knew himself too well to think that Cornelia's offer would satisfy him.

He wasn't completely miserable about Lucinda. He couldn't be wholly sad about Cornelia. He hated himself for what he believed to be his emotional shallowness. But he couldn't help himself.

Cornelia ended the painful moment by rising and saying:

"Let's go join the fisherman."

He sprang up and stood looking at her anxiously.

"Cornelia, I don't know what to say."

She smiled up at him serenely. Her eyes showed traces of her emotion, but her lips were steady.

"Please don't say anything. It would only make matters worse."

He took both her hands in his. They were cold, but his clasps were warm and friendly.

"Cornelia, I'm going to tell you something. You have a right to know. I should have told you long ago, but I thought you knew, and when I began to suspect that you didn't, it was too late. I'm married. I've been married several years."

She uttered an exclamation. Her blue eyes widened, clouded with a swift shame.

"Oh! I—"

"I thought Donaldson had told you when I first came to the ranch. He knew, of course, and he knew it had not turned out well. Perhaps that's why he never mentioned it. I began to suspect that you didn't know, when people talked about Betty and you—"

"Betty?" she echoed. "The actress, Betty Turner?"

He nodded. "Betty is my wife. At least, I suppose she is. I've never been told differently."

Cornelia continued to stare at him. "You—never heard from her?"

"Never," he smiled wryly. "She left me. It was my fault, I dare say. We lived together only a few months."

"You loved her very much?"

He hesitated a moment, out of loyalty to Betty, and then he told the truth, because he thought it might help Cornelia.

"I never was in love with her at all."

"Then why did you marry?"

"I can't tell you that. It wouldn't be fair. And then he changed his mind. 'Yes, I will tell you. After all, Betty wouldn't care. She was a good girl in lots of ways. She'd be the first to tell you herself.'" made things worse.

He shrugged and walked toward the riverbank where Ned and Norman were fishing. He regretted Cornelia's confession most heartily. He was not only sorry for her, but also sorry for himself. He was fond of her, he valued her friendship, and now, he supposed, he would lose that. Things would never be the same again.

In the space of twenty-four hours, he had lost his love and his friend. The woman he hadn't lost was the one he didn't want—Betty. Perhaps even Betty was gone now. He didn't know, and he didn't care.

Norman asked, when Julian slid down the bank to join the patient and unsuccessful fishermen:

"Where's Cornelia?"

"She got tired of me and left me flat!" Julian answered carelessly.

"When are you going to admit defeat and get ready to start back?" declared Ned, squinting up at the sun.

But Cornelia came down to join them after a bit, and said that she was tired and wanted to go home. Her morning buoyancy had left her. She was silent all the way to town. Ned, with brotherly obtuseness, didn't notice it, but Norman did. He believed he knew the reason.

When Julian and Ned went to Ned's room before dinner, Norman hesitated and then followed Cornelia into her sitting room. She astonished him by bursting into tears on his shoulder.

Long Sleep Makes Baby Happy Again

"Our baby kept waking up several times a night, until we started giving him a little Castoria after his last nursing," says an Iowa mother. "He slept soundly from the first night and it made him look and feel worlds better. Baby specialists endorse Fletcher's Castoria, and millions of mothers know how this purely-vegetable, harmless preparation helps babies, colics, diarrhoea, etc. The Fletcher signature is always on the wrapper of genuine Castoria. Avoid imitations."

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Dog's Drink
If you keep a nickel's worth of brimstone in the dog's drinking water and leave it there, it helps keep the dog healthy and is especially good for a dog subject to worms.

Enlarging Rooms
When re-decorating rooms remember that finely lined papers and light-colored tints give a sense of space. Also arranging big pieces of furniture parallel with the rugs and walls.

Children's Ties
If your seven or nine-year-old son just can't seem to keep his neckties from looking like strings, get him a tie rack just like Daddy's and he will straighten them out and hang them up himself.

Serving Grapefruit
If you wish to serve each guest a half grapefruit, you may cut it in halves with a sharp knife, then remove the seeds and center of each half, by the use of sharp scissors, to snip the tough, white lobe-skins.

Should you have only one grapefruit and there are three persons to serve, cut the grapefruit in halves, scoop out the pulp and juice, add a little water and serve in a sherbet glass.

Oranges and grapefruit may be easily peeled by scalding them as one does tomatoes. Put them in a pan, pour boiling water over them and let them stand three minutes. This will take off the inner lining with the skin. If the fruit is slightly warm, let it cool before serving. It will not taste bitter unless really cooked.

24 DEAD IN EXPLOSIONS

Brussels, April 1.—Twenty-four dead and 25 injured constituted the known toll to-day of a series of explosions in the winter slack coal mine near Hascelt, Belgium. Others were missing. The number of injured were expected to die.

KILL MOTHS NOW!

Warm, cozy homes are ideal incubators for moths. Eggs are hatching—hungry moth worms. Is your home free? Make sure. Kill moths. Spray FLY-TOX now. Fragrant and stainless.

HOOVER CABINET

ONE OF SPORTSMEN

Washington, D.C. (By Canadian Press.)—President Hoover's new cabinet might well be called the cabinet of sportsmen, for almost every one of the eight new members is a devotee of some sport in his spare time.

The chief executive himself, an ardent fisherman, should find much in common with two of the new members, Ray Lyman Wilbur and Arthur Hyde, heads of the Interior and Agriculture departments respectively, for both are disciples of Isaak Walton.

Dr. Wilbur prefers to angle for trout but Secretary Hyde is willing to try for any species of the "finny tribe."

Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy is one of the foremost yachtsmen of the country. He was the owner of the yacht Resolute in the old days when Sir Thomas Lipton used to bring over his latest models to race for the America's Cup.

Riding and tennis are the choice of Henry L. Stimson, who has been selected to head the State Department. Since his residence in Manila he has played tennis almost every day.

Another boating enthusiast is Postmaster General Brown, who, however confines himself to motorboats.

Attorney General Mitchell likes golf, but would rather take motion pictures of wild life in the great open spaces.

The new War Department head,
James W. Good, professes to have no favorite hobby, but his friends say he devotes much time to the study of political economies.

First halt in the air mail service to Prince Edward Island from Moncton came Feb. 25 when the plane was found to have blown out a cylinder head.

West Hants Ministerial Association gave banquet in Windsor, Nova Scotia to Rev. F. S. and Mrs. Kinley, who are leaving to take up work of First Baptist Church, Livermore, Maine.

STATIC

Tamaki Miura was featured on the N. B. C. over station WEAF last night. Tamaki Miura is a Japanese soprano and was starring in "Naniako San", presented by the National Grand Opera company. For those who appreciate high-class music, it was a real treat.

It's a really good idea to purchase a radio license in the near future. Every now and then the car from the dept of Games and Fisheries, at Ottawa, may be seen touring up and down the street, and if they happen to find that you haven't got a license.....

For a really peppy dance orchestra one is advised to tune in on WJZ, the Wonderful Isle of Dreams, Florida, any night after eleven o'clock. It's surprising how easy it is to bring in this distant station (it comes in just around KDKA's wave length) in the evening and the music is worth the effort.

To-night Rudy Wiedoeft, perhaps one of the world's premier saxaphon-ists, will appear over WJZ at 10.30. If you'd hear a saxophone sit up and talk, laugh and weep just tune in on New York and hear this lad perform his antics. He's good.

Richard Dix plays the leading role, with beautiful Gladys Belmont, a new comer to leading parts, opposite him.
Dix has a dramatic role and the picture is a perfect vehicle for him. Hundreds of Indians appear in the picture and some of them play small parts.
The cast contains many well known names such as that of Tully Marshall.

The color effects are marvelously real and beautiful. The scenic backgrounds are inspiring and the gripping drama is well conceived and particularly well acted. It is a new epic of the American screen.

SHE SHOULD PUNCH KEYS

BIG ENTRY FOR KING'S PLATE

Woodbine Classic Will See Many Famous Horses in Race

Toronto (CP)—It is early yet to consider closely the merits of the candidates for the King's Plate, outstanding event of the Canadian turf, but the season will open at old Woodbine Park here on May 18 and perhaps a record field will start in the classic, which features the opening day programme. At any rate 38 Canadian-breds are named in the entries for the 1928 renewal of the oldest continuously-run stake event on the American continent.

The race will be over the mile and a quarter course, for the 50 guineas offered by the King and $15,000 added by the Ontario Jockey Club. Jimmy Loftus in the Mail and Empire says:

At this time a King's plate story can be hardly more than a memorandum of the two-year-old form of the entrants, and this form is generally inadequate. The juvenile records do not show a candidate worth over a mile, and as the plate distance is 10 furlongs only breeding can be used as authority for staying power. Again, the two-year-old only duckling often comes out the swan in his three-year-old year. Older entries, must carry crushing imposts in the scale of weight and most handicappers therefore consider their chances mighty slim.

Gossip among Canadian turf enthusiasts appear to centre the favoritism on the Thorncliffe and Seagram stable entries, with the bulk of the support going to Pin Wheel, winner of the closing juvenile home-bred stakes, and Circulet, the speedy Seagramite who was undefeated until he broke down in the Clarendon Plate. Outsiders, however, are given greater consideration this year than in 1928 when Young Kitty overshadowed her field, and the race is expected to be an "open" one.

Circulet, Irish Sphere and Dance Circle are the trio entered by the Seagrams and on their juvenile form up to midseason the first two named appear to have a real chance to re-establishment.

Fred Scheike, placid conditioner of the Thorncliffe Stable string, will undoubtedly pin his hopes on Pin Wheel, the chequered son of First Sight-Sky rocket, bred by Mrs. Livingston at her Cobourg farm. There is also Shoreline, a winner at Woodbine in the fall, and Rair Oil another with a keen turn of speed. Pin Wheel was the first to cross under the wire in front of the meteoric Circulet and he repeated impressively in the leading homebred juvenile test at Woodbine second meeting. Here is the favorite, according to early calculations.

Saddle Don, a trim bay Lovette filly will likely be the first string in the Hastings stable-bow. She has developed into a beautiful three-year-old and she will be a threat if she runs back to her juvenile form when she won three races.

From juvenile form it does not appear as though J. C. Fletcher will hold as strong a hand in the King's Plate as he did last year with Hanna Debe and Dushka. The latter and Ichitaro are entered, but must tote four-year-old weight.

H. Ryland New, the Hamilton man whose colors flew victoriously over Troutlet in the 1927 Plate in his first season on the turf, is back again on the list with four candidates, Corera, Vestrip, Berdorb and Edmonds. J. P. White of Cedarcrest farm will likely pin his hopes on the Gauntly filly, Ladycrest and R. W. R. Cowie may have a contender in his Master Robbie.

Two 1928 winners that showed a decided liking for a distance of ground are Robt. Newell's Airdrame and Mrs. Ed Glascoe's Daisy Filly. The Windsor sportsman provided a sterling contender in 1927, when Mr. Galety carried the red-starred green jacket in to second position.

GERMANY IS FIRST TO ABANDON GAS

London.—There is a touch of irony in Germany, the first nation to use poison gas, being the first to abandon it, writes an English correspondent. But the decision is the most convincing proof yet of a genuine Teutonic change of heart—or Government—and to Herr Stresemann belongs the main credit for this truly wise step. On the best military authorities hear that now, whatever the United States may do, we shall follow Germany's example, and we may hope that chemical warfare will henceforth be universally taboo. The post-war cult of "high-brow army men, with 'staff brains' who argue that gas is really humane, may be left to think again. Nobody who had actual experience of gassing would subscribe to that theory. From even bad shell wounds, recovery is possible. Poison gas destroys the health permanently. The banning of gas will immensely relieve those responsible for the defence of London arrangements, and enable us to scrap our Chemical Warfare School at Wintbourne Gunner.

Only lady who has thus far traveled from Prince Edward Island by plane is Miss Marion B. Wheat, who took the trip from Charlottetown to Montreal.

HISTORY

Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited was incorporated under the laws of the Dominion of Canada in 1911 with a capital of $1,000,000.00, for the purpose of taking over a Company of the same name incorporated under the laws of the Province of Ontario in 1904 with a capital of $125,000.00. In December, 1915, the capital of the Company was increased to $1,000,000.00 of which $7,000,000.00 was issued. In 1929 the shares were converted into no par value stock, each share of $100.00 par value whether issued or unissued being converted into 19 shares of Class "A" stock and one share of Class "B" stock. PLAN COLLEGE IN QUEEN CITY

Architects Busy With Designs for Emmanuel College in Toronto

Toronto—Elevations of the new Emmanuel College, Toronto, are being drawn by Henry Sproatt of Messrs. Sproatt and Rolph, for the plans committee of Victoria University of which Mr. A. E. Ames is chairman and Rev. F. Louis Barber, M.A., Ph.D., secretary. Mr. Sproatt has already prepared floor plans for both the academic and residence buildings of Emmanuel and their location with reference to the other buildings of the Victoria grounds has been decided. In design and location the buildings are to carry out a comprehensive plan for Victoria University, a plan which was projected 20 years ago and which contemplated the provision of separate buildings for the Victoria faculty of theology, now merged with the New Emmanuel College. It is planned that the Victoria University Chapel (to be erected later) and the Emmanuel group, now being proposed, will practically complete the quadrangle of Victoria University at the northeast corner of Queen's Park. A college announcement states that the Collegiate Gothic style in which the Birge-Carnegie Library and Burwash Hall group of buildings at Victoria were carried out will be invoked again for Emmanuel.

"This style has commended itself with the lapse of time and the ageing and weathering of these structures, which inaugurated a new architectural era in Canadian universities," the announcement says. The floor plans drawn by Mr. Sproatt for Emmanuel afford substantial relief to the overcrowded main building of Victoria and will provide modern equipment, including the most approved type of library reading room, for a working theological college, besides gathering the students into one permanent residence.

The canvass of ministers for the first $100,000 towards the $1,200,000 fund and building fund of Victoria University is said to be proceeding favorably. The first contributions received from ministers outside the faculties of Emmanuel and Victoria Colleges were for $150 each from two pastors of rural churches in Western Ontario.

Rev. J. A. P. O'Brien of St. Catharines, has been appointed a field secretary in connection with the general campaign which is to follow.

PROFESSIONS ARE LESS UNWORDLY

That Type of Instruction Is by Now Out of Date

The modern college professor is neither unwordly nor is he abstract and devoted to the analysis of first principles. A few such do exist, but it is out of date to picture the average professor as following along these lines.

He will be either a writer of textbooks or, in his supreme expression, an expert in his subject, declares Harold J. Laski, professor of political science in the University of London, in the April Harvard Magazine. There will compile his annual volume upon some selected theme within his province, a history of England, a history of France, a history of America, if he is a lawyer he will do his case-book. If he is a geographer of literature he will edit some classic text. There are endless students today waiting for the semicentennial manual whereby the right facts can be memorized without the grim need to omit the irrelevant and the inessential which caught the great man's fancy when he wrote.

The elementary classes in the great universities in major themes like economics, or history, or politics number hundreds and there are

CROP REPORTS

Plowing has been observed in the counties of Huron and Haldimand, and is quite general in Essex according to the Agricultural Representative Branch of the Ontario department of Agriculture. With spring-like weather prevailing the interest in seed grain, cultures and seed potatoes increases day by day. With certified potatoes selling at a comparatively low price, growers in many sections are taking advantage of the opportunity to secure high class seed.

Roighages are reported plentiful in practically all counties however with grain a scarce commodity in many sections. Large quantities of concentrates are being purchased.

Full wheat and clovers were reported last week as having come through the winter in splendid condition. With the exception of some sections which are practically flooded they have been formed from other parts of the province during the past week.

Plantings—Increased interest is being shown in orchards. Pruning is in full swing. Buyers are purchasing springer and cows in milk. This part of buyers buying cows subject to frost is keeping the farmers keenly interested in the Accredited Area Plan.

B use—Several carloads of cattle are shipped each week with net returns to farmers being $5.50 per cow. For best heavy buyers with around $9.00 per cow. For handy weights, Maple syrup producers have been busy completing tapping and attending the fairly heavy runs of sap. The run on Thursday was reported by some makers to be the heaviest for years although the weather so far has not been very favorable for large production.

Catton—Considerable interest seems to have been aroused over the result of last year's seed drill survey. Our window display showing the impact has taken form of a seed drill. Samples is attracting a good deal of attention. Three carloads of Certified Dooley potatoes have already been ordered by our potato growers and orders are now being taken for a fourth one. We consider this very good as we have only a very limited area suitable for the production of potatoes.

Dundas—Cows and hogs are in demand. Brood cows at farm sales sold from $50 to $80 recently while grade dairy cows brought from $60 to $110. Dufferin—More inquiries have been received for special varieties of spring grain than in any other section. It is quite evident that more interest is being taken in the quality of seed sown. It is feared however too large a portion of the cats which will be sown will be of an inferior quality owing to the quality of the grain harvested in 1928. Owing to the weak underbone of the potato market during the past few weeks quantities are being disposed of for live stock feeding. Growers are at the option that potatoes are worth at least 10c per bag at the farm for feeding purposes in comparison with the price of other feeding stuffs.

Glenora—Milk production is increasing and there is a fairly good demand for dairy products. Dairy cows are in good demand, five carloads have been shipped out to the United States during the past two weeks. The average price ran from $100.00 to $110.00 for grades.

Haldimand—One new feature in the Cayuga district is a cannery factory, the promoter of which is endeavouring to secure contracts for the growing of peas. Latest reports would indicate hundreds of colleges as multiplier. Let the professor write but two or three successful books and he will rank in the income tax returns as almost any successful business man. He will drop over to Europe in the summer or even join a neighboring golf club. Prosperity will bring him to orthodox opinion, and he will find that mystic connection which so impresses Main Street between President Coolidge and Prosperity.

At college he will have office hours and a stenographer. His lectures will become well-organized formulae that he repeats from year to year, a standardized product as much the outgrowth of mass-methods of output as the cats of Detroit or the furniture of Grand Rapids. He will buy a little on margin and his stockbroker will whisper faintly that he can meet his deficiencies.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour. Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

It appears that some gasoline had leaked out of the tank, which was situated on the back of the body of the machine, catching fire, igniting the machine and severely burning the rider. The driver brought the motor-cycle to a sudden stop and tumbled off, but not before he had his leg, which was practically enveloped in the flames, severely burned.

It was still today that there was little left of the machine. Hales was taken to the hospital and is now under the competent care of Dr. G. S. Cronk. Hospital authorities this morning reported his condition "the same as when he was brought in here yesterday."

Blows from Hammer May Prove Fatal to a Former Belleville Woman Found in Her Apartment

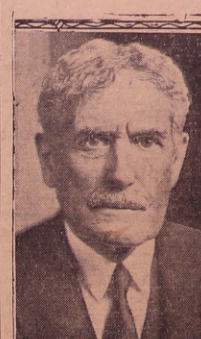

Mrs. Helen Kelso, 68, is Victim of Savage Attack—Maid is Dead With Throat Slashed—Chicago Police Faced With Strange Mystery—Was Here Two Weeks Ago—Suspect Murder and Suicide—Distant Relatives Reside Here.

Mrs. Helen Kelso, of Chicago, Ill., widow of Charles Kelso, formerly of this city, was found probably fatally beaten, in the living room of her home in the Hyde Park District of Chicago, yesterday. In the rear bedroom, the body of her maid, Mrs. Ida Peterson, was found. The maid's throat had been slashed and various other wounds had been inflicted on her body. Mrs. Kelso is in the neighborhood of 68 years, while the maid was seventy-five years of age.

Police at first thought that Mrs. Peterson, who had been with Mrs. Kelso for the past twenty-seven years, had suddenly become deranged and committed suicide after attacking her employer with a hammer. A knife and a bloodstained hammer were found beside her body. Dr. Howard Wakefield, however, after examining her body, said that many details led him to believe that a third party was responsible. He said that there were indications that Mrs. Kelso had been beaten after the maid died. He doubted also that the maid could have inflicted the deep wounds found on her own body.

Mrs. Peterson had been, at one time, an inmate of the State Hospital for the Insane, and suffered from what a physician called "recurrent manic depression." The doctor declared that he had not seen Mrs. Peterson for some time, and thought her condition had improved.

Circumstances tending to contradict the murder-suicide theory were found by investigators from the Coroner's office. Physicians re-expressed their opinion that the maid could not have had sufficient strength to drive the knife into her neck with such force as to break off part of the blade. The attacks, apparently, took place some time Tuesday, but were not discovered until a neighbor, alarmed at the continued silence, notified the police, who forced an entrance to the home.

Y'S MEN VOTED IDEAL HOSTS BY A LARGE CROWD

Annual Dance In Johnstone's Academy a Splendid Success

Each year the local Y's Men's Club, a young and enterprising service organization present their annual dance at the conclusion of the Lenten season and last night's affair, which was held in Johnstone's Academy, culminated a previous endeavor in the social sphere attempted by the members. The hall was a scene of bedlam and jollity until the early hours of the morning and one hundred and fifty couples voted the Y's Men ideal hosts. The hall was transformed into veritable fairyland and the dance was a most enjoyable and successful one. An atmosphere of charm and hospitality were the dominating features of the dance and the auditorium lent itself admirably for the event. Bizarre paper caps added to the novelty created an air of superlative enjoyment. Reg. Brockhurst and his Acacia orchestra dispensed the latest program of dance melodies and Art Grosse, a member of the club furnished two extra piano numbers immediately following the intermission. The variation of the program created keen enjoyment for everyone. A feature of the evening was a pretty dance by little Misses Mary Forrester and Katherine Harris. These two little danseuses captivated the audience with the intricate steps of the ballet and they received rounds of applause when their number was completed. Prizes were given for the two spot dances and members of the club prepared a lunch which was served after the midnight hour. President Norm Edwards was in charge and he was assisted by an able Committee composed of Harry Postle, Secretary; Walter Harden, Art Grosse, Vern Weir, Frank Carter, Harry Redfern, Alphonse Black, Fred Symons and Jack Andrews. The Committee wish to thank all those who assisted in making the dance a success.

In addition to the 1,000,000 extra votes, the regular votes on the subscriptions will be given as per the schedule in effect this week.

NOT TOO LATE

TODAY'S THOUGHT

The affirmative of affirmatives is love. As much love, so much perception.

EMERSON

THE ROMAN GALLEYS

The Occidental world still wonders at tales of the glory that was Rome. Few have interested it more than those of the two galleys which rest beneath the waters of Lake Nemi — "Diana's Mirror." On its shores the Temple of Diana stood and reflected its image in the lake whose waters fill a crater surrounded by the Alban Hills. For centuries the two ships lay buried. Recent despatches would have us believe that soon they will be brought to the light of day.

The first discoveries came in 1835 when Cardinal Prospero Colonna called upon the architect Battista Alberti to salvage the ships. During the operations a portion of the stem of one of them was broken off. Crowds of eager folk led Rome to inspect the find and carry off mementoes. They brought beautiful marbles away with them, plates of lead, mosaics, bronze nails a cubit in length. But funds gave out.

To whom do these ships belong, and by whom were they built? For some time they were thought to have belonged to Tiberius. But recent discoveries assign them to their real builder. On several lengths of leaden piping, brought up by the divers, the inscription reads, "Gaius Caesar Augustus Germanicus." Gaius Caesar, son of Germanicus, was Emperor of Rome from 37-41 A.D. If further corroboration were needed it is supplied by inscriptions on tiles bearing the name of Marcus Fulvius Zosimus, whose name appears on the Imperial structures of the period.

Suetonius gave us a colorful description of vessels built by Gaius Caesar, surnamed Caligula.

He also built Liburnian galleys with ten banks of oars, with sterns set with gems, parti-colored sails, huge, spacious baths, colonnades and banquet halls, and even a great variety of vines and fruit trees; that on board of them he might recline at table from an early hour and coast along the shores of Campania amid songs and choruses. He built villas and country houses with utter disregard of expense, caring for nothing so much as to do what men said was impossible. So he built moles out into the deep and stormy sea, tunneled rocks of hardest flint, built up plains to the height of mountains and razed mountains to the level of the plain; all with incredible dispatch since the penalty for delay was death. To make a long story short, vast sums of money, including the 2,700,000,000 sesterces which Tiberius Caesar had amassed, were squandered by him in less than a year.

If Caligula built pleasure ships to coast along the shores of Campania, may he not have built ships within the enclosed Lake Nemi? Probably he knew of that ship built by Archias of Corinth and Archimedes for Hiero to present to Ptolemy, King of Egypt. On the occasion of his visit to Syracuse he might well have learned about it. Its decks were covered with mosaics representing scenes from the Iliad. On the upper deck were gardens and a temple to Venus. Below were lodgings for the cavalry and stables for the horses.

We must await the verdict of archaeologists.

HUDSON BAY RAILWAY

As construction of the Hudson Bay railway been pushed forward toward the northern terminus at Port

Churchill, public curiosity concerning the character of the country that the road will traverse, has been aroused. The building of the line was originally advocated as a means of furnishing an additional outlet to overseas markets for grain grown in the western prairies. To what extent that outlet will be of use to the farmers of the west, having regard to the fact navigation of Hudson straits must be suspended on account of ice conditions for a number of months each year, time alone can show, says the Mail and Empire. In the meantime, the question arises whether or not the road can hope for freight traffic originating in the territory it will traverse.

The answer to that question lies in the character of the natural resources of the territory. The possibilities of the region are discussed in a pamphlet that Mr. F. H. Kitto, F.R.G.S.M.E.I.C., has written and the Natural Resources Intelligence branch of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa has published. The pamphlet gives a description of the physical features of the region and outlines the history of early exploration there and of the operations of the Hudson Bay Company. Mr. Kitto points out that the greater part of the Hudson Bay region lies within the pre-Cambrian area and recalls that in that area valuable deposits of a variety of minerals have already been discovered. He tells of the programs of development that have been undertaken in the copper-bearing territory north of the Pas in Manitoba and he speaks of gold-bearing areas in northern Saskatchewan and northern Manitoba, of copper on the Coppermine River, or lead and zinc on the east coast of Hudson Bay, of iron and gypsum on the south shores of Hudson strait and Ungava Bay, of iron on the Belcher Islands in Hudson Bay, of copper believed to exist on the west coast of the bay near Chesterfield Inlet, of lignite of excellent quality found on Baffin island, and of extensive deposits of coal on several northern islands. Mr. Kitto, too, asserts that the Hudson Bay region water-powers are numerous, and these would prove, no doubt, of great importance to the development of mining industries. He says that in northern Manitoba is a clay belt of 10,000 square miles, which is traversed by the Hudson Bay railway and half of which is thought to be arable. In addition, there are smaller tracts of fertile land in the region that may be of use as development creates local markets for garden and dairy produce. Fish, game and fur-bearing animals amounted in that great northern region.

Mr. Kitto's pamphlet is readable and of interest to all Canadians. It is of interest to Canadians for the bearing it has upon the outlook of the Hudson Bay railway. The farming community of the prairie section of the Dominion, no doubt, believe that the chief benefit that the new road will confer upon the country will be the opening of a new grain route to Europe. They and other people in Canada may find in Mr. Kitto's book reason for hoping that in these productive industries may be founded upon the natural resources of the Hudson Bay region may furnish traffic for the railway and help to make it a paying enterprise instead of a burden of expense on the taxpayers of the Dominion.

HATCHERY MEN SPENT NIGHT IN HAY BAY MARSH

Walter Hicks and Dick Coulter Had Harrowing Experience

After being absent 36 hours somewhere in the Bay of Quinte in motor boats with their whereabouts unknown, Walter Hicks and Dick Coulter returned safely to the Fish Hatchery at Glenora at one o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

The men had left, each in one boat, with loads of hay to be deposited in Hay Bay. Before the journey was completed one boat suffered a broken propeller and the other's engine stopped. While the men were engaged in taking the engine the seas got rougher and rougher and the boats were washed into the marsh by the waves. This was near Wicklow. The men did not dare venture out owing to the heavy seas and a roaring gale from which the bushes sheltered them. However the night was spent very uncomfortably. The engine was repaired next morning and the journey home safely made, but not without many exciting experiences as the one boat had to be towed. Mr. Coulter and other members of the hatchery staff spent a very anxious night.

Miss Sylvia Tett of this city is the guest of Mrs. Thos. Svinginton, Napanee, for a few days.

Mrs. M. A. Dingman of this city spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Blake Buick, Napanee.

APRIL FASHIONABLE WEDDING MONTH

London. (By C.P.)—April has become a fashionable Society wedding month. Some of the most important weddings of the Spring have been arranged to take place shortly after Easter.

Hon. Madeline Kinnaird, younger daughter of Lord and Lady Kinnaird, and Hugh Gough, only son of the rector of St. Ebbe's Oxford, are to be married this April. The wedding will take place in the chapel of Rossie Priory, the Kinnairds' fine home a few miles from Dundee. Miss Kinnaird is the younger sister of Hon. Anne Kinnaird, who caused a sensation a few years ago when she turned her back on Society and went to live in the glums.

Another wedding of interest is that of Miss Eve Cecil, twin daughter of the Lord Cecil of Exeter and Lady Florence Cecil, who will be married to Commander Richard Shelley, R.N. at Exeter Cathedral soon after Easter. Many of the Cecils will be there for the big sister of Lord Salisbury's brother, and is still called by his youthful nick name of "fish" by some of his intimates.

KIWANIS BALL AT PICTON

Picton's annual Kiwanis Ball will be held May 1st in the Armories. This is one of the big social events of the season and many Kiwanians and their wives are already planning in attending the affair. Unfortunately many Bellevillians were prevented from attending the Military Dance on Monday due to the severe storm. Picton Kiwanis Club always prove ideal hosts.

HORSE THROWN TO ROAD

When a horse which was drawing one of the Belleville company's coal wagons got its foot caught between the rails of the railway tracks as it came down Victoria Avenue hill at Pinnacle street yesterday afternoon, it fell heavily to the ground, and much difficulty was experienced by its driver in getting the animal loose. After the harness had been taken off, however the foot was loose and the horse scrambled to its feet again. Quite a crowd of curious onlookers watched the operation.

KIWANIS LADIES' NIGHT

On Tuesday evening, April 16th, the local Kiwanis Club will hold a ladies' evening and theatre party. An evening luncheon will be served, the guests later going to the Belle Theatre.

POOR YEAR FOR SYRUP

Present indications are that this will be a very poor season for maple syrup. In many cases the best run of sap comes before the snow is out of the woods or the frost out of the ground, but so far this season it is reported there has been very little good sap weather. If the mild weather continues, buds will soon be starting to develop and after that the quality of the syrup is never as good.

SUCCESSFUL SHOWER

A very enjoyable time was spent at the home of Miss Nellie Barrett, John Street, last evening when a fruit and pickle shower was given in honor of Miss Gladys Bryce, a bride of the week. Much merriment was created by the reading of the different cards accompanying the jars of raspberries, olives, etc. Miss Bryce made a suitable reply after which a dainty lunch was served.

SUCCESSFUL EUCHE

Another successful Moose Euche and dance was held in the Moose auditorium last night and a fine attendance was reported. Cards were played during the first half of the evening. Mrs. G. Mossman was the winner of a fine fox fur presented by J. T. Delaney for taking first prize in the ladies section. Mrs. R. Morgan was second and Mrs. M. Kerr third.

LEGION OFFICERS

Charles Hanna will be president of the local post No. 99 of the Canadian Legion for 1929. This was decided at a meeting held in the Legion hall on Tuesday evening last. He will succeed Mr. Earl McQueen. William H. Day will be first vice-president, replacing E. Simpson, and James Shepherd second vice president. The secretary treasurer's position remains with Mr. C. Jeff. Refreshments were served during the evening and a social time was enjoyed following the election of officers.

GUESSED CORRECT WEIGHT

Mrs. B. L. Hyman, E. Bridge St. was the winner in the Arnold's Market competition held here recently. Mrs. Hyman guessed within one ounce the correct weight of a ham that hung in Arnold's window. Hundreds entered the competition and there was considerable interest aroused by it. The exact weight of the ham was fourteen pounds, one ounce. Mrs. Hyman along with several others, guessed fourteen pounds but in drawing for the prize winner her name was first taken.

Mr. Gibson Bailey, of Cooper, will be on Market, Saturday, April 6th, with Maple Syrup. a4-2td

CITY DRUGGISTS DRESS CONTEST WINDOWS FRIDAY

Citizens will have an opportunity of seeing just how clever their drug store window dressers are, in connection with the Fly Tox window display contest commencing tomorrow. The company has offered two cash prizes—and other awards to Belleville druggists for the most attractive window featuring Fly Tox as a moth killer. Its merits as a Fly destroyer are already recognized in that particular field and the window display contest is being run to make known to the public the value of Fly Tox as a Moth Killer.

public the value of Fly Tox as a Moth Killer.

Windows will be put in tomorrow, Friday, April 5th and will remain until April 15th. They will be judged on Tuesday of next week; the Intelligencer, co-operating with the producers and the druggists in arranging the contest, has chosen several well known business men to act as judges—Messrs. Russ Wooten of Wooten's Limited and Fred Smythe of the A1 Sign Studio. Both have had a wide experience in display work and are well qualified to do their work of selecting the best windows in a capable and impartial manner.

It will be well worth your while to see these contest windows and judge for yourself the skill of the various entrants. All drug stores in the city are participating, with the possible exception of Deloit's who are moving within a few days and may not be able to compete.

FAIR PRICES FOR CHOICE CATTLE AT 19TH ANNUAL HOLSTEIN SALE

Successful from every standpoint was the nineteenth annual Holstein-Friesian auction sale held at the rear of the Hotel Bolivar, yesterday afternoon. Fifty-five head of cattle were auctioned off and although the prices did not average up quite so well as last year's, nevertheless they were satisfactory and it was due in no small part to the unflinching efforts of Auctioneer George Tice, that the receipts were so large. $8976.00 was the total sum taken in for the entire fifty-four head and one cow sold for nearly $700, a mark far above last year's. The highest price ever paid at one of these sales was $15,000 a few years ago.

In the morning judging of the bulls took place. The following is the result:

1st Prize—Brookholm Inka Pontiac—owned by B. R. Leavens.
2nd Prize—Wardville Alcatraz Dutchland—owned by A. F. Ward.
3rd Prize—King William Alcatraz—owned by E. B. Purtele.
4th Prize—Brookholm Inka Ormsby—owned by F. H. Hubbs.

6th Prize—Sir Paul Pieterse Komdyke—owned by A. Parks.
7th Prize—Baron Pontiac Wayne—owned by H. B. Denik and Son.

There were four other bulls judged that did not come in under the prize money.

SUCCESSFUL SEASON FOR SWEDE THEATRE

Stockholm, (C. P.)—The theatrical season in Stockholm has this year been characterized by the presentation of a number of interesting plays, new to the Swedish stage. "Argemmon", the powerful tragedy of Aeschylus, "The Birds", the witty diatribe on Athens in the Oscar's Theatre, which is admirably conducted by its managing director John W. or, the well known actor John W. which are sub-sidized by the government—and the Oscar Theatre are offering players only first-class operas in their productions. The management has striven to retain the original set and local color by elaborate and well balanced settings and costumes.

"Volpone" is at present offered at the Oscar's Theatre, which is admirably conducted by its managing director John W. or, the well known actor John W. which are sub-sidized by the government—and the Oscar Theatre are offering players only first-class operas in their productions. The management has striven to retain the original set and local color by elaborate and well balanced settings and costumes.

Out of Stockholm's thirteen theatres, the leading three, the Royal Opera, the Royal Dramatic Theatre—both of which are sub-sidized by the government—and the Oscar Theatre are offering players only first-class operas in their productions. The management has striven to retain the original set and local color by elaborate and well balanced settings and costumes.

The new tendency in theatrical art has been combined with efforts to popularize good plays and operas amongst the broad public through specially arranged low price matinees and evening performances for school children and workmen.

Despite the number of mosquitoes which appear, wider use of cigar-lighters should mean less scratching this summer.

WILD ANIMALS USUALLY TIMID

Tigers and elephants of the Indian jungle do not attack men as a general rule, according to Laxmanrao V. Rasalkar of Southern Maharashtra, Bombay Presidency, India. Mr. Rasalkar belongs to the non-Brahmin class and comes from one of the most backward sections of India. He is the first native of his community to leave for foreign education, says a statement issued by the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University, in which he is enrolled.

Mr. Rasalkar was a government stipendiary student at the Imperial Forest College, Derh Duhn, India, having been the only one of many applicants selected for admission. He served ten years in the Forest Service at Derh Duhn, also four years as chief forester in the state of his Hignness the Maharajah of Kolhapur. He says he has passed within fifty yards of wild tigers and elephants and invariably the animals seemed as much afraid of him as he was of them.

Recounting some of the dangers in the Forest Service he said a member of the service who was riding his bicycle in the paths of the jungle on a trip to the forest station was killed by a wild elephant. This happened just at dusk when the forester accidentally clanked with a cub elephant. The mother elephant literally tore the forester to pieces. She did this by stepping on the body and dismembering it with her trunk.

Mr. Rasalkar praises the mission schools as it was one of these that he received his early education. He is specializing in silviculture at the Syracuse institution, as he believes the growing and care of commercially valuable forests is the most important branch of forestry in India.

In Canada, stores advertising apparel for school children urge mothers to bright colors, especially reds. It is thought that the little redcoats will attract the attention of drowsy motorists.

toists. The movement, while laudable, seems hardly more practical than a suggestion that "all bootleggers be made to wear red pants and be jailed if caught without them."

Commenting on the Canadian attempt at life-saving, W. T. Palmer, manager of the Russell Manufacturing Company of Middletown, Conn., says: "Motorists should not forget that the largest railroad in the country recently was operated for an entire year without killing a single passenger. Highways will be made as safe as railroads not so much by traffic cops, protective coloring of pedestrians, safety gates, and flashing signs, as by arousing the interest of the motorist in the powerful machine which he pilots. Fortunately the average motorist is paying more and more attention to the vital parts of his car, especially to brakes, and brake-lining."

"This he is protecting not only his fellow travellers but his own pocket-book as well. The paint manufacturer's slogan 'Save the surface and you save all,' applies to the selection of brake lining, for the highest grade of asbestos, carefully woven and loaded, offers the best protection to the brake and brake drum. It saves many dollars—and sometimes many erage is paying more attention anian lives."

No Need to Suffer Another Day There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask Doyle's Drug Store or any first class drugist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time and furthermore if one bottle of Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

WOMEN REVERT TO SIDE SADDLE—London. (By C.P.)—Women horse riders are forsaking the modern astride seat for the old-fashioned side saddle. The return of the old fashion is encouraged actively by prominent organisers of horse fairs. The authorities of the most popular events of the kind in the kingdom, have ruled that for the meeting in June women must not ride astride at the paddocks or in the classes of hunters and hacks. Several women notable for their skill in ascending express appreciation at the return to old conditions. "The astride seat is not for women," declares Mrs. Victor Adamson, who holds many riding prizes. "It is too cumbersome and very uncomfortable. Nothing looks more beautiful than a woman riding side saddle, but how many women look well astride—even the best of them?" "Women have not the same grip as men, and to ride astride means special muscle development and a great deal of practice. The side saddle seat is far more easily acquired, more artistic, certainly more womanly, safer and less exhausting."

News of the Movies

REGENCY THEATRE

Even the men who shoot a movie, marvel at the revealing intelligence of this wonderful dog star. The "Dynamite" thrills that you see on the screen is REAL, the thrill performed by an almost human-like animal who does not know the meaning of fear! Little wonder they call him the greatest dog star on this screen! Today at the Regent.

BELLE THEATRE

Night Clubs are said to be the latest form of entertainment adopted by the American people in their search for pleasure. These palaces of mirth are rapidly becoming very popular in the larger cities.

One of Hollywood's most famous Night Clubs was used as a setting for "Jazz Mad," the Universal picture secured by the Belle Theatre and scheduled to open today. The resort is a favorite one with motion picture folk when they are enjoying their leisure between productions.

Director H. Harmon Wright used the same orchestra and entertainment in screen making the picture that appear on the gay program of the club. Jean Harlow enacts the starring role of Franz Hausmann in "Jazz Mad." The great dancer actor is said to have reached the peak of his career in his marvelous characterization of an old German composer. It is one of the most perfect portrayals in screen history, according to critics.

Audiences all over the country have laughed, wept, and applauded Harlow as he unfolds in his characterization the dramatic events of Franz Hausmann's life.

Marian Nixon and George Lewis are cast in featured supporting roles. Rising to great heights Miss Nixon and Lewis offer some of the finest romantic scenes of the year. In the supporting cast are Roscoe Karns, Torben Meyer, Andrew Arbuckle, Charles Clary, Alfred Selwyn, Patricia Carson, Alfred Hertz and the Hollywood Symphony Orchestra.

Svend Gade wrote the screen story and Charles Kenyon the adaptation and continuity. Paul Kohner supervised production.

WAR AGAIN IN NEAR FUTURE?

"I believe another great war is inevitable within the next ten years unless there is more active support for world agencies which are working for peace." These are the words of one of Europe's greatest statesmen and he most forcibly echo the point of view of thousands of international students in all parts of the world.

Even in the United States, where there has been considerable antagonism to international action in main learning, a change is taking place and people in all parts of the country are urging the fullest co-operation of the United States in the World Court and their unqualified adherence to the terms of the Kellogg Peace Pact.

Another dreadful catastrophe is to be avoided," said a prominent United States senator, the other day, "every nation in the world, our own included, must educate their people that conference and conciliation can easily find a way to prevent war if they are given time to operate."

Canadians to whom the late war was an even more intensive and dreadful reality than to our neighbors to the south, have been continuous supporters of all agencies beginning the League of Nations had Canada's unqualified approval and Canadians have taken an outstanding place in its deliberations. The League direct agent in this country, the League of Nations Society has now impressive membership.

That special interest is being manifested in the big campaign for more recruits which is being launched on April 16th.

DOES COLLEGE TRAINING MAKE HIGHER SALARY

No, Says Prominent Educationalist; It Has the Opposite Effect

Dr. Harold Florian Clark, professor of education in Teachers' College, Columbia University, was assigned to investigate whether a college education acts to increase the recipient's earning power, and is now out with a preliminary report that it does not. On the contrary, he believes, "it can even have an opposite effect. For while there are 500,000 persons in college presently to be graduated, the country provides only 1,600,000 jobs for persons with their training; thus there will be competition for places, and an inevitable lowering of salaries. Education is just as much a commodity as wheat," he says, "and must be governed by the same laws of economics. You cannot have 800,000 people in college year after year and expect them to compete for 1,600,000 jobs without lowering salaries sooner or later. You cannot have the present percentage in high schools and expect them all to go into the higher callings. If all tried to do so, salaries would drop to unbelievable levels. The higher callings might even be more overcrowded than the field of unskilled labor is today."

All of which sounds very learned, especially as it is buttressed by many months of research, yet it points as it premise the old lump-of-work theory long exploded, and to this it adds the proposition that the more a man knows the less he earns so absurd that it collapses as soon as it is stated. Probably the snag that tripped Dr. Clark is the notion which he expresses, that "education is just as much a commodity as wheat and must be governed by the same laws of economics."

This is wrong. Education is not a commodity. In asserting that it is Dr. Clark may be thinking not of education at all but of college degrees. Degrees, it may be admitted, are commodities; they cost so much in time and money, they may be exchanged for so much in jobs, security and prestige. In certain of our professions, notably law, medicine and teaching, there is practically no work to be had without them; conversely, there is always a chance of work with them. There is hardly a lawyer so dull that he cannot cross a t for some insurance company, or a doctor so unskilled that he cannot wrap pills for some clinic, or a teacher so uninteresting that he cannot teach French in some ladies' seminary—provided only that he can exhibit the requisite L.B.E., M.D., or Ph.D. And in respect to such men there will always be competition for places and the pay will be desperately small.

But what has this to do with the living effect of education on our national productivity and national wages? Very little, most of us will think. Dr. Clark's investigation is of interest chiefly because of the light which it throws on the conception which a professor holds of the "commodity" which he purveys.

PROMINENCE GIVEN TO TAILORED SUITS

The prominence given to tailored suits in tweeds and hipbacks was an outstanding feature of the advance collection of spring and summer models recently presented by Isobel, the London dressmaker. The majority of these were shown with link button coats over slim pleated or wrap skirts, and were worn with tuck-in blouses or jumpers of crepe de Chine, georgette or satin. Blue, gray, brown and black were the colors stressed in the suitings, while blouses were developed in white or in a slightly lighter tone of the color of the suiting.

Sports Coats Are Strictly Tailored
Sports coats adhered to strictly tailored lines, many geometric insets defined by seaming, being shown on the backs and sides. Jacquards and tweeds were stressed, both alone and in combination with suede and leather. The latter made an effective motorist's ensemble, which included a three-quarter length belted coat, with patch pockets and high collar buttoning to the throat, worn with a red tweed skirt and hat to match.

Tweed was also used a great deal in conjunction with stockinette and angora in a group of sports ensembles, consisting of long coat and skirt to match, with tuck-in blouse or jumper, and again in the form of long coats accompanying one-piece stockinette frocks.

Blue was shown for sportswear with white and gray. The brown and beige tones also were represented and were occasionally combined with old gold. Tweeds used in suitings and in the sportswear ranges reflected small indistinct patterns, in check and birds.

eye weaves.
Among the court gowns displayed by this house, silk net and lace were accorded the utmost importance. For the debutante white silk net embroidered in crystals, and peach colored lace embroidered in peach pearls and crystals were shown. Mauve and silver lace, gold lace mounted on gold lining, and gray net embroidered in steel over oxidized silver lame, were shown for the older woman.

A complete palette of suntan tones in Easter gloves allows a wide choice for the color of the wearer's skin, and it may match that of the blonde, the woman of medium coloring, or the brunette, or it may be deeper, or paler, just as she wishes—only the shade harmonizes with the costume and the glove color is echoed in the stockings.

PAID FATHER A FLYING VISIT

Prince of Wales Prefers Air Method For Short Journeys

Croydon, England, April 3.—The Prince of Wales seems to prefer traveling by air if possible even on comparatively short journeys. He arrived here this morning by automobile and immediately boarded an aeroplane and started for Bognor, Sussex, to visit his father. Weather permitting he intended to return by air this evening.

Croydon.—Word was received here afterward that the Prince had a good trip arriving shortly after noon at Angmeron aerodrome, he drove to Craigwell House, five miles distant.

The first recorded experiment in electricity took place 60 years before the birth of Christ, when the Greek, Thales, of Miletus, rubbed pieces of amber and observed they would attract light objects.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Put a piece of charcoal on one of the shelves of the refrigerator. It acts as an absorbent for all odors and purifies the air.

If the bottom of a can of cleaning powder or paste soap is dipped in paraffin oil it will not leave a rusty stain where it is set down.

Sometimes one has leftover doughnuts that have gone stale. Some cooks use them for a bread pudding and this is good too, with meringue on the top and served with a lemon sauce, but there is also a delightful way of serving these stale doughnuts. Steam them and then make a caramel sauce and add to it chopped walnuts. This makes a delicious dessert and is quite a pretty dish. Stale cake may be used in the same way.

If your fingers are fruit-stained, soap your hands thoroughly before you let water touch them. Wetting them first sets the stains.

If you wear your silk hosiery out in the heels and toes first, try rubbing the feet with new hosiery with paraffin. The paraffin should be rubbed in until white appearance is seen.

Butter heavily the inside of a pudding dish and cover 1-2 inch thick with brown sugar, then line the dish with rich biscuit dough, rolled thin. Into this roll sweetened, fairly thick and sweetened rhubarb and cover with the biscuit dough. Bake in a fairly hot oven (450 degrees). Or if desired, use uncooked rhubarb, sweetening it well and spicing it if desired, cover with the biscuit dough the down with greased paper and steam for 1-2 to 2 hours.

A ROOM AT A TIME

The best way to clean house is to keep clean. Tackle a room at a time and give it a thorough cleaning now and then. Wash the windows and see that the curtains, dories and other accessories are looking their best. Maybe the woodwork needs to be gone over again. Perhaps a lamp base needs polishing or a vase touching up. But all the time that you are touching up these extras don't let the regular work get behind. Do your sweeping and dusting and general work. Keep it topnotch so that no matter who drops in you would feel that your home looked like the cheeriest and pleasantest place you know. There's no more contented feeling in the world than that.

Left-over rice has many possibilities. Mixed with celery it makes delicious croquettes. It can be made into a delicious omelet and a large variety of desserts are made of cold rice. It can be moulded and served with a fruit sauce.

Try this pudding: Mix two cupsful cold cooked rice with three cupsful hot milk, add one-fourth cup molasses, one fourth cup of raisins, one tablespoon of butter or substitute, one teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon of nutmeg. Bake about an hour and the first half-hour stir the mixture twice.

WINGING NORTH

Let's take a trip to northern climes. The Spirit will soon be there. It's bracing air and sunny brooks. Speak like well free from care. We'll fly away with morning dew To parts of peaceful rest. We'll cross the sun with lightning As he seeks to reach the west.

From laden groves and hectic air To land of melting snow The tang of north enslaves my heart Get ready my mate, we'll go.

To haunts where bear vacates his lair To joy in lengthening days The ground hog moves with smarter pace To haunts where partridge lays.

I love that land where maples grow Where birches show silver sheen Crocus poke sweet baby heads To the land of living green.

Where ice bound brooks break free from bonds. A welcome give the sun. Where coolish noon with silver stars Gives rest when work is done. C. C. Stewart, Belleville, Ont.

CLAIM HAGGIS IS DELECTABLE DISH

London, Eng. — The anonymous person who signed himself St. George and sent a haggis to the Zoo, suggesting that it should be given to the ostrich and thus prove that "the Scotch's claim to hardness are fully justified," aroused the anger of the large number of Scotsmen in London. "To send a haggis to the Zoo is an outrage," said the head chef of the Savoy Hotel.

In my opinion, the haggis is one of the finest things that ever came out of Scotland," he continued, and I say that without malice of any kind.

The haggis is fit to be included in any list of the world's delicacies and its popularity in London is very great. It is the best antidote for that I know.

"It may be an acquired taste, but I am about like wild men of the north,

SMALL POSSIBILITY OF WHEAT POOL PACT

Washington, April 3.—By Francis C. Altham, Staff Correspondent of The Canadian Press.—The suggestion that wheat pools in Canada and the United States get together to regulate marketing of all wheat grown on the North American Continent is not taken seriously in Washington. The idea had been introduced from time to time in the discussions of marketing problems.

HIGHLAND BALL PROVED POPULAR

London.—A recent Highland ball in the Hyde Park hotel was a grand affair. All the Highlanders who live in London and who are trappers for greater part of the year had removed the attire for the evening, donned their tartan and were held in Edinburgh and in Perth and Inverness.

There was Lord Dundee, dancing with Mrs. Phillipson, who is a beautiful Dutch woman, and wore a golden silk wig.

There was Lord Graham, the son and heir of the Duke of Montrose, wearing a brown velvet jacket with his kilt and a lace ruffe at his neck. Lord Graham looks as though he were hewn from his native granite, and is a magnificent spectacle in his kilt.

Little Lipstick or Powder

There was Miss Diana Skeffington dancing with Lord Fincaiste, the son of Lord Dunmore; there were countesses Macleods of Macleods and Macleods of Macleods and Macleods of Macleods, for Lady Margaret Campbell had been largely responsible for the ball.

There was little lipstick and less powder about for the Scottish girl relies on her natural, if weatherbeaten complexion.

Five eighteenth reels there were in the program, and Petronilla and the Inverness country dance. But somehow, though they danced with spirit and energy, the Scots looked serious and sad, you could see that the Basenach atmosphere of the Hyde Park hotel was foreign to them.

But these Scottish country dances, apart from the reels, are grand fun. They are reviving many of the old ones in the north, and special classes are held in Edinburgh and in Perth and Inverness.

There is one called the Dashing three times at the recent Highland ball in Edinburgh; and it takes 25 min. until to dance!

Halifax, N.S., April 3.—One hundred and fifty of 746 third class passengers of the liner Doric who were vaccinated Sunday night, when a child was found suffering from small pox on arrival of the steamer from Liverpool, Belfast and Glasgow, failed to react to the vaccine and will be landed today for observation at the isolation hospital.

News item which says Detroit has the first woman fight manager, will bring a melancholy smile to many a married man.

VETERAN DAIRY INSPECTOR IS TO FORSAKE LABORS

Mr. George G. Publow, chief instructor of dairying for Eastern Ontario is to retire on April 1st, after fifty-five years service in the cheese business during which time he has established a high record personally and has brought the standard of the cheese industry in Eastern Ontario to a most enviable position.

Mr. Publow's connection with the cheese industry during his long period of years has been most active and has produced results that would not have been dreamed of when he first undertook the work. It is estimated freely by prominent cheese men throughout Eastern Ontario that he has done as much for the industry as any other man connected with it. His record has been one of faithful service and single-minded purpose which, it is stated by cheese men could not be duplicated in any other section of the country nor in any other county, for that matter.

Mr. Publow entered the dairying business as a very young man after turning from the army where he had first been trained. The father of the former chief dairy instructor was a blacksmith and George Publow as a very young man was apprenticed and learned the blacksmith's trade. During the summer when work was slack in the shop he helped in a nearby cheese factory and soon learned to make good cheese, and good cheese at that.

The call of the cheese vat had pre-eminence for him over his army and he took up the work, destined later to be a great force in the industry to which he had turned his attention. He made cheese in many factories and from 1874 to 1888 he made cheese in the factories known as Benson's, Corry's and Donnelly's. Dundas County: Kew's, Balfour, Scotch Line Union and Riverdale, Perth Factory. This occupied a period of forty-one years and he was engaged in instruction work. Instructional work in the beginning was a voluntary character, being started by the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association. Only factories desiring the services of an instructor and making application were supplied with one and a stated fee was paid to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association for that service. Mr. Publow was the first instructor and from 1888 until 1902 he was with the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association as instructor.

The Government then took over the instructional work and all the factories were included and instruction was given to them free of charge.

In 1902 a model syndicate of factories was established to demonstrate the value of regular instruction. Factories from the Perth section to Brockville were included and Mr. Publow was placed in charge. As a result of this work which was highly successful, all factories were formed into syndicates or groups in 1903 and an instructor was placed over each group. Mr. Publow was made chief instructor for Eastern Ontario.

When all the factories were made into syndicates or groups, there were 23 in all and a man was placed in charge of each of the twenty-three groups. Mr. Publow in turn being in charge of the men. Today there are thirty-one men engaged in the work. In addition to his field work, Mr. Publow was made Chief Instructor at the Kingston Dairy School in 1910 but he resigned at the end of the year, owing to the fact that the extra duties interfered with his regular instructional work.

When milk testing became compulsory the size of the groups was reduced so that each man in charge of a group averaged about 25 factories. That syndicate which has been worked out so successfully throughout the years has been continued and is in force today. The object of establishing these groups was to bring about a uniform type throughout the different groups and to increase the quality of the cheese made. The success of this venture is borne out by the fact that the percentage this year was up to 96.7 in Ontario, a truly remarkable percentage to attain. Another evidence of the success of the system was the rapid and wonderful advances made in Prince Edward which established a percentage of 96.7 percent. These wonderful results have been brought about by the close attention the industry given by Mr. Publow throughout his long years of service, and the co-operation of the individual makers.

These successful conditions were not established overnight but slowly were brought about by improvement here and there each year with the result that today the industry stands on an equal footing with dairying in any country in the world. Mr. Publow leaves his work with a knowledge that his labor has not been in vain. Education, co-operation and application have been the three cardinal points uppermost in Mr. Publow's mind throughout his long connection with the industry and he points out that the co-operation given him in his work by the makers and the application they have of the education work done amongst them, have all tended in one big movement towards the success that has been attained.

Although his position at times brought him into perhaps unpleasant situations where action was necessary to secure requirements, Mr. Publow leaves the work without an enemy, in fact with hundreds of friends, made by his courtesy and consideration at all times.

He relates that it was very different doing the work of instruction in the old days and those of today in some of the factories as related by Mr. Publow. When distances had to be covered by horse and buggy journeying from one factory to another was no light task. In his earlier instructional work Mr. Publow has driven with horse and rig in one day, one hundred miles to meet an urgent call.

A comparison of conditions in the old days and those of today in some of the factories as related by Mr. Publow. When distances had to be covered by horse and buggy journeying from one factory to another was no light task. In his earlier instructional work Mr. Publow has driven with horse and rig in one day, one hundred miles to meet an urgent call.

His ambition was always to bring the grading of cheese in Ontario East to 96 per cent and it must indeed be a source of great satisfaction to him that the cheese grading percentage reached has been 96.7 per cent, even a higher percentage than that of which he had dreamed. —PIONIER TIMES.

AUDITOR SHOTS GIRL AND KILLS HIMSELF

Columbus Ohio, April 3.—E. A. Welsh, milling company auditor, and Eleanor Porter, stenographer, were shot to death today in an automobile near New Albany, east of here. County authorities believe Welsh shot the girl then turned the gun on himself.

LECTURE TRAINS OF GOOD EFFECT

Farmers Given Instructions in Better Farming Methods by the C. N. R.

Montreal, Que.—More than 32,000 persons visited the agricultural lecture trains operated over various portions of the Canadian National Railway System during 1928. It was stated today by Dr. W. J. Black, Director of Agriculture and Colonization for the National System, and the benefit of the operation of these trains would be noticeable in all the territories visited during their itineraries.

During 1928 the Canadian National Railway System cooperated with various departments of agriculture in Canada, in the operation of better seed and forage trains for the benefit of the farmers. Six of these trains were operated, two being in Saskatchewan, one each in Alberta, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Ontario. The trains were operated for the stimulation of the growing of cleaner grain, the production of high-class seed, and the greater use of legumes as a crop, as well as eradication of weeds. The attendance at the lectures and demonstrations totalled 38,216. In Ontario the train operated there made 48 stops with a total attendance of 17,585. In Nova Scotia, 89 stops were made, the attendance being 7,100. In Manitoba, 32 stops were made with an attendance of 2,625. The two trains operated in Saskatchewan made 92 stops, the total attendance being 7,107.

The trains served as an excellent medium for reaching the farmers and demonstrating in a practical way the value of improved grain seed as well as the necessity for growing larger crops of legumes for maintaining the fertility of the soil. In Ontario the establishment of community seed raising plants was advocated has resulted in the erection of many of these.

The C. N. R. also co-operated in the operation of three sheep and swine demonstration trains, one of which was in Saskatchewan and the other two in Ontario. In Saskatchewan the train made 34 stops, and the total attendance was 5,810. At these meetings farmers purchased 472 ewes, 17 rams, 120 sows and 14 boars for improvement of their farm stock. In Eastern Ontario the train made 16 stops with a total attendance of 1,836 and in Western Ontario the sheep demonstration train operated made 14 stops with 1,131 attendance. The lectures included instruction on better methods of breeding, feeding, management and marketing of livestock.

The railway company was represented by its Department of Agriculture in the arrangements for these trains.

PAPACY STAMPS TO RISE IN VALUE

Professional philatelists are predicting a rise in the value of the early Papacy stamps. Already there has been a noticeable demand by collectors during the last few weeks.

Several series were issued between the introduction of postage stamps in 1852 and the Pope's withdrawal to the Vatican in 1870, and many of them are of special interest, because of their issue various forgeries, cancellations, and reprints got into circulation. The genuine stamps are of greatest value when the original covers show postmarks, alterations, and cancellations. The fortunate owners of these stamps are advised to hold on to them as their value is likely to appreciate after the new stamps are issued shortly by the Vatican State.

Crowd gathered in Oshawa before an alarm clock that rested on the curb. Well, traffic cops have to wake up when the sergeant comes around.

The Oshawa Baseball problem was definitely settled last night at a general meeting held in the Industrial Relations Building of the General Motors when a large number of players and followers of the sport gathered to elect the officers for the coming year and also decide as to which league the team will be entered in.

The Old Reliable

DEMPSEY WON'T BE A "SUCKER"

Will only Bid What He Thinks a Fight Really Worth

New York, April 3.—If he thinks a fight is worth no more than one million dollars, he will bid one million and no more. If Madison Square Garden thinks the same fight is worth one million, two dollars and fifty cents, Madison Square Garden can have the fight and also his very best wishes.

Undoubtedly, there are one or two gentlemen in the boxing racket who are slightly off their rocker, as it were, but neither of them is Jack Dempsey, the boy producer, and John proved it today when he quoted the general idea, expressed above, as his notion of how any promoter, with the sense of a reliable errand boy, should and must promote. Of course, the quoted idea represents only a free translation of the thought expressed. What he actually said was that he would give a million dollars for one million dollars' worth of fight and thirty dollars for any fight that might be worth no more than thirty one.

"Too many promoters overplay their hands," said he, and no smarter word has passed his lips since that far off night in San Francisco when he looked Jack Kearns in the eye across a battered, discolored table and used a terse three-letter word, meaning yes. This fellow Dempsey is nobody's chump.

He is, as a matter of fact, a smarter man as a promoter than he was as a fighter. He says that he didn't obligate himself to Ray Miller for the Mandell fight, except in the event that Ray beat McLarnin last week, which Ray didn't. That was what you might call un-dumb business, since Mandell-Miller probably wouldn't draw its own breath after what happened here in the McLarnin fight. Dempsey was smart enough yesterday, too, to cover up by signing Max Schmelling for a June fight through the German's dismissed but still legal manager, Arthur Bulow.

"All Dempsey was doing here was giving himself a break, in case one was coming to him. It was foresight such as this that made Rickard great."

"They say that Dempsey has made a mistake in tying up with Humbert P. Purney, but if a mistake has been made, it was made by one of the cleverest attorneys in New York city and he made it strictly in Dempsey's interests. There is more to that deal than appears on the surface. They must have shown Dempsey and his lawyer something more convincing than the other side of a two-cent stamp.

Anyhow, John feels that he has been sent in among the right people and a feeling like that is half the battle. He also approves of the use of horse sense in the matter of competitive bidding and that is the other half.

"I have the money to bid what I want and what I want will be no more than a fight is worth to me," he explained.

"Why should I pay more? You don't let anybody overcharge you for a necktie or a plate of soup. You buy a fight the same as you buy anything else that strikes your fancy. If you feel that you aren't getting your money's worth, you put your money back in your pocket and forget about it."

"I repeat that too many promoters overplay their hands, because they think they have to have a fight at any cost. Personally, I would not take it for a minute on those terms."

He didn't say so, and maybe he didn't mean it that way, either. But Dempsey gave the impression that he might have been talking from the pages of Rickard's lesson in the Tunney-Heeney fight. Rickard in his was notorious for the fact that he bid a fight as for the money he hoped to make from it. In any case, that apparently isn't to be Dempsey's way.

F. FREDERICKSON THINKS A LOT OF ANDY BLAIR

Former Player With Winnipeg Falcons Tells of Winnipeg Boys

The question Frank Frederickson has been answering most since his return to the city after his winter in the National Hockey League is, "How are all the Winnipeg boys doing in comparison to the other players?" The answer is not a bit backward in answering that the Winnipeg lads are playing hockey second to none in the league and are more than able to hold their own against any sort of opposition.

"Local fans should bear in mind that the Winnipeg boys are giving this city plenty of publicity all around the circuit," Frank said in general conversation on the subject. "The house town of every player soon becomes known and Winnipeg hasn't suffered a whit at the hands of its players in the N.H.L. The elimination of Toronto by the Rangers," he continued, "in the semi-finals of the National Hockey League for the right to meet Boston in the title, hockey playoffs to decide the ultimate and undisputed right to the possession of the Stanley Cup for the season 1928-29, was also, for the time being, brought to a close for the season the hockey activities of a young Winnipegger who, during the past season in the hearts of Toronto fans, has won the admiration and applause of his team mates as well as the hockey players comprising the roster of every National Hockey League Club."

"He is an aggressive player and an assiduous worker. Off the ice and on, Andy, because of his gentlemanly conduct, is appreciated by all who know him. Winnipeggers should indeed be proud to number amongst its sons a young man of Andy's qualifications."

They say he has declared war on the Garden. He says it will be friendly competition with no blood-letting or foul-play involved. "Sure, I'll outbid them any time they aren't willing to pay every nickel that a fight is worth," he added. When they go beyond my final estimate, I'll just get big hearted and make them a present of the match. I may be wrong but I'm sure of this. "You can't go broke if you keep your money in your pocket."

Primitive, homely reasoning, perhaps. But truth is like that.

LEAGUE LOOKS AN OPEN RACE

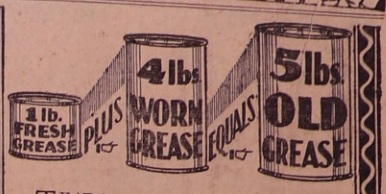

American League Will Provide Splendid Games for 1929 Season

Atlanta, Ga., (By Brian Bell Associated Press Sports Writer).—If early star gazers have read correctly signs in the American League, baseball sky there will be no two team race this season. In 1928 the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics thundered to the wire neck and neck. The Yankees finally nosing out the A's. The St. Louis Browns, in third place, were sixteen games back.

As the new season approaches with its fresh trials and problems it may be found that the Yankees and Athletics have shown less improvement than the other six clubs in the circuit. On their performance last year they were well able to leave well enough alone but the opposition seems to have taken up the challenge in earnest.

Of the four second division clubs in 1928, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Boston, the Detroit Tigers, under new management and partially re-coined, seem to furnish the most serious threat to the teams higher up. Pyn Lary, the high priced new shortstop of the Yankees has found himself at home and Mark Koenig, the double play man, has been a regular. Tony Lazzeri's arm remains something of a question mark but his hitting power has not been lessened. With Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig able to swing their big bats, most of the experts agree that little or nothing can be done about the pennant clubs without consulting manager Miller Huggins. Herb Pennock probably will pitch some good ball games and at least one new pitcher should be ready.

Connie Mack has stood pat on the personnel of the Athletics but he has rearranged the infield. Jimmy Fox, the hard hitting catcher, third baseman and first baseman will be the regular first sacker. Jimmy Dykes

THAT is an old saying and a true one. But it's surprising how few people realize that it is true. How often have you yourself gone to your service man in a hurry and just had some grease added to what is already in your transmission and differential?

That's what you call greasing your car, but in reality, you might as well have saved your money, because the fresh grease is only wasted.

Added to impure grease, it immediately loses its value as a lubricant. What you should do is to have the old grease flushed out and a complete fresh supply put in.

Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" Gear Grease as the most perfect of tested greases.

Drop in tomorrow and let him service your car as only an expert can.

who literally can play anywhere, is the leading third base candidate. The A's infield under the new arrangement may prove to be stronger. Manager Mack and only one extra outfielder of experience, Homer Summa, late of Cleveland and will need at least one more. An already strong pitching staff has been made stronger by recruits but the starting mound men will remain the same.

Stanley Harris, making his bow to Detroit as manager of the home team seems to have a great chance to move the Tigers up from their sixth place position of last year. Roy Johnson, the Pacific Coast recruit, should help an outfield that was far before. Geo. Title, former star Cleveland pitcher, may carry the Club's destiny with him. If he has a good year, the clever "Bucky" Harris will be happy. Other questions for the manager may be how well Dale Alexander will field and will Schube carry on at short. The big first baseman's hitting is not in dispute.

The St. Louis Browns, who hustled themselves into third place, last season have retained their fighting spirit. A clever fielder has been added to the infield in the person of third baseman Eddie Grimes and another recruit into a first with them. Leonard Dondero, may be heard from.

"TO FIGHT NOT TO FIGHT" IS THE QUESTION

Whenever a new boxing fans gather and start talking light the question of whether a champion should be a fighting champion or just a champion is usually dragged out for discussion. According to the remarks of a lot of fight promoters, it's next to impossible to get some of the champions to take their fighters into a ring with them. They'll sign up for nontoxic, over-weight struggles or wrestling matches, but they want no part of a bout which involves the old title.

Tod Morgan, the present boss of the junior lightweights—the trick division which is under the lightweight poundage—is a chap who doesn't seem to be afraid of mixing in titular battles. Tod has met most of the competition in his division and might be called rather actively engaged in defending his crown. But for some reason the customers don't tear down the gates to get in to see Morgan fight, even when his title is at stake. And yet the fans howl for championship bouts.

There must be a reason for the morbid champion expressed by the fans when young Morgan goes to the post with his iron derby under his arm. This lethargy may be traced to the fact that there is only a slight interest in the junior lightweight division. But after all, it's a division with a champion and everything, and it would seem that there should be as much interest in a titular tilt in this division as there would be in any other.

A lot of the fans don't care particularly for the little fellows and Morgan is not a devastating fighter. He doesn't crash down the opposition and that is something else the fans like to see. The lack of attendance cuts down Tod's income but he is desirous of some prize even if it's merely for the fact that he does defend his title. More power to him.

On the other hand, Jack Kearns, the well-dressed manager of well-known pugilists, believes in keeping a champ hidden away. "Keep him buried long enough and the fans will pay any price to see him in action," is the logic of the manly Kearns and he's gathered up over a million dollars for himself while managing fighters to prove that he's right in his diagnosis of the situation. Kearns, as you'll recall, managed Jack Dempsey and later he's been looking after the affairs of another champion, Mickey Walker.

So it's still a question whether to fight or not to fight.

MARMORA

MISS CATHERINE TERRION

Another old and esteemed lady in the person of Miss Catherine Terrion passed away on Friday evening at the home of her brother, Mr. James Terrion, of Aurora Township, at the age of eighty-two years. The deceased had been ill for the past couple of months and two weeks ago was stricken with a stroke from which she never recovered. Miss Terrion was a very industrious kind and sympathetic nature and was much esteemed by her many friends. She is survived by three sons, Miss Isabella, of Westport, Miss Ellen, of Marmora Township, and Mrs. J. Legrow, of Peterboro, and two brothers, James, of Marmora Township, and Patrick, who resides at Peterboro. The funeral took place from her late residence to the church of the Sacred Heart on Monday morning where a solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated by her nephew, Rev. Wilfred Terrion, of Brockville. Interment taking place in the R. C. Cemetery.

A large number of floral and spiritual offerings testified to the esteem of the deceased. Much sympathy is extended to the sorrowing relatives.

Mr. Frank Lynch, of Hastings, spent Sunday at his home here.

Mrs. Edith Day, of Toronto, is visiting relatives in town.

Misses Rose and Ann Hart, of Toronto, spent the week end at their home here.

Mr. James McFarlane spent Easter with relatives in Peterboro. Master Tom McNally, of Deloro, spent last week with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Stan Bertrand. Mrs. Robertson and daughter Rosemary returned to Colborne on Saturday after visiting Dr. and Mrs. Grayford for some weeks. Miss Gladys Gehan is spending a week with friends in Toronto. Miss Clara Sullivan returned on Friday from Buffalo where she has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. Buckley. Mr. Thorold Bailey, Lindsay, spent the week-end at his home here. Miss Dorothy Laine, of Toronto, is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. The Wares.

The different churches here were beautifully decorated for Easter. The altar of the Sacred Heart Church was most artistically decorated with Easter lilies and palms. The festival of Easter was joyously observed at St. Paul's with celebrations of Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. Eighty persons partook of the sacrament at the two services. One of the largest Easter congregations seen for some years was present. The altar and chancel were prettily decorated with lilies and palms. The choir rendered as an anthem "Now is Christ risen from the dead," Caleb Simpson, during the offertory sang "God so loved the world" from Stainer's Crucifixion. The lector's Easter message was entitled "The Assurance of Life." A children's service was held proceeding 11 o'clock service and the Mite Boxes issued throughout Lent to scholars for savings for Missions were brought in.

BAYSIDE

Easter Sunday here, the church was well filled and was only decorated with flowers. The Rev. Mr. Butler read the leaflets to which the congregation responded, then put the services into the hands of the W.M.S. Mrs. Farncombe, of Montserrat, gave an extremely interesting and clever address on the Resurrection Morn. The choir sang very acceptably. Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Brooker gave a solo. Mrs. Bolton and Mrs. Wilson took up the offering.

At the Easter service Mrs. Lewis Wilson was taken seriously ill and had to be removed to her home. Mr. Herb Jeffery, of Wilford, is at Pictou Hospital very ill with appendicitis.

Mr. Lorne Hunt has returned to Walkerville. Miss Maud Pierce is visiting Mrs.

Rupert Garwell. Mrs. Percy Bolton's mother from Odessa, spent Easter here. Mr. Jeffery, of Oshawa, spent Easter with his mother, Mrs. Libbie Jeffery and sister, Miss Mable. On Monday, an old and much esteemed resident, Mr. Chas. Bonisteel, was laid at rest in White's Cemetery. The Rev. Mr. Butler officiated and preached a grand sermon from the fifteenth chapter of 1 Cor. and said, "In this chapter of 18 verses, you have all the words necessary for eternal life. One verse especially we have heard our departed brother say to often. Oh death where is thy sting. Oh grave where is thy victory. Therefore any beloved brethren be ye steadfast, unmoved, always abounding in the work of the Lord—for as much as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord. He was our faithful and efficient Sunday School Supp. for years. His wife died several years ago, and his daughter, Mrs. Robt. Jeffery, did all that loving hands could do in his long illness. Mrs. James Donaldson, of Me Arthur's Landing, was at the funeral. Also his son Col. Bonisteel of Belleville. There is one son in the North West and one died years ago. Three sons of Mrs. Donaldson and three sons of Mrs. Jeffery's acted as bearers. The flowers were beautiful on the casket. A sister also attended the funeral.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mrs. Ed Stewart and daughter, Gloria, of Belleville are visiting relatives here. Mr. R. A. Dunk of Belleville spent the holidays at his home in Campbellford.

Campbellford's Old Town Week is being held the week of July 20th. Mr. P. Leonard of Belleville spent the holidays with his mother, Mrs. Leonard, Bridge street.

The new Chief of Police took over his duties on Monday April 1st. Mrs. H. N. Carr and son Jack are visiting relatives in Toronto.

HEATING BY OIL FACTS RELEASED

More than 600 companies in the United States are now engaged in the manufacture of oil burners, of which slightly more than 100 are listed by Underwriters Laboratories, according to a report just issued by the Oil Heating Institute. The large majority of oil burner sales are made by about 50 of these companies. About 10,000 dealers are required for the distribution of the production of these companies, says the Institute. The report also states that a total of 17,000,000 barrels of oil were consumed during 1928 by the 422,700 burners now in operation in American homes and the Institute estimates that the consumption for the current year will reach 18,000,000 barrels. The total fuel oil consumption for heating commercial buildings and large apartment houses last year reached 16,750,000 barrels and the estimate for 1929 is 18,500,000. The average consumption of oil by the domestic burner is 50 barrels a year, while the commercial burner consumes an average of 500 barrels annually.

M'GRAW LIKES TONY KAUFFMAN

John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, is sold on Tony Kauffman, who once wore a Winnipeg Maroon uniform. In talking to Henry Farrell, well known sport writer, the other day, he said:

"I have Leach in the outfield this year and also Tony Kauffman. I have learned about him. It didn't take me a week to become convinced that he would do. I may surprise you by telling you that I am going to use Kauffman as an alternating regular. It only took one play for me to become sold on him. He came in one day and picked up a ball right off the ground with one hand at full speed and made a snap throw to first."

"Some of my old fellows said: 'Mac, that's better than Mann ever could do.' I knew it when he made the play. I am not being unfair in saying this about Mann. He knew his own limitations."

"Because Kauffman was up once as a pitcher the impression seems prevalent that he is an old fellow. He is not. He's only 27. When he was pitching I noticed that he was a natural hitter and a great fielder. He hurt his arm and then went to the outfield. I'm all enthused about him."

The Belleville Intelligencer's WORD BUILDING CONTEST

AN INTERESTING AND EDUCATIONAL CONTEST — A PUZZLER FOR THE OLDER FOLKS — A BRAIN BUILDER FOR THE CHILDREN.

THE PROBLEM:

The letters selected in the formation of a word must follow one another in their given order in the CHART, that is, in one letter must follow the other in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction in which the word is to be formed; thus, the word S-T-O-R-E, in the middle of the top line, begins with S, the next letter in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of that word is T, then O, then R, then E. And so beginning again with the first letter of the word S-T-O-R-E, namely with S, and proceeding downward (vertically) you have the letter A, and then the letter Y, each following one another in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of the word S-A-Y. In both instances the words formed S-T-O-R-E and S-A-Y are legitimate. Letters once used may be used again and again as long as the procedure is followed as indicated above. And all words must contain not less than three letters each.

General Rules of Contest

The Word-Building Contest is being conducted in conjunction with our $6,000 Automobile Contest.

Any person who pays a subscription of at least six months to The Daily Intelligencer to any one of the different contestants in our Automobile Contest, is entitled to submit an answer to the Word-Building Contest. Subscriptions may be either new or renewals.

Subscribers may submit as many lists of words as they desire provided each list is represented by a subscription payment to some one of the contestants in the $6,000 Automobile Contest, but no contestant in the Word-Building Contest will be permitted to win more than one of the Word-Building Contest awards. Once registered a list cannot be changed.

Only words found in Webster's New International Dictionary, and their grammatical forms and variations may be counted. Obsolete and foreign words must not be used.

Each word must consist of three or more letters, in their given position in the chart.

A prefix or suffix, if incomplete, unless attached to a word, will not by itself constitute a word.

Reformed spelling, contractions and abbreviations are not permissible, unless found in the vocabulary as indicated in third paragraph.

Miscellaneous words will count as errors in checking contestant's list. Giving wrong total of words will disqualify list.

To enter the Word-Building Contest it is necessary to subscribe for at least six months to the Daily Intelligencer. You may either pay your subscription to a candidate in our Big $6,000 Automobile Contest, or direct to the Contest Dept. of The Intelligencer, and the votes for your subscription will be given to your favorite candidate. Look over the list of names in today's issue and decide who to vote for.

How To Proceed With The Chart

Deciding Ties If Any

In the very unlikely event of ties, those tied for any award will be presented with a new word-building problem to decide the winners of the awards. In case there are no ties on the original chart, the prize will be awarded to the contestants submitting the best of the five best answers in their respective order.

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER

While the amount you pay with a list of words does not have any effect on your winning an award, it does affect the amount you will receive should you win one of the awards, as the value of these awards is determined by the winners pay. This is explained in the Award List, which you should study carefully before sending in your list.

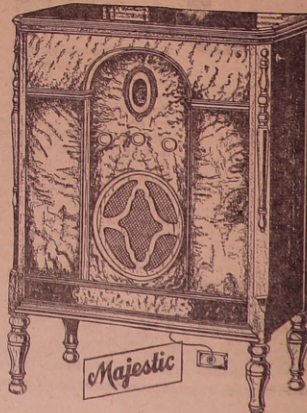

Not more than one award will be awarded to any one person.

The Love Myth

By Mildred Barbour

Norman said briskly: "Nonsense, Cor. I don't see to me that you're an eighteenth century book heroine, to be so much of a chap about him. It was an honor for Julian and nothing you need regret, because Julian's a man who deserved it. I'm his friend and I know."

She waited suddenly: "But if anybody ever found out—"

"Nobody will—you can rest assured of that. Wild horses won't drag it out of Julian. He'll never even tell me. I can swear to that. So I'll be the only person who knows and that's because you've told me yourself."

Cornea gave him a grateful little smile.

"I'll know," she protested gently, "and I'll know every time I see him that he knows—Oh, I wish there was another man in my life. I'd marry him like a shot, just to finish the whole wretched business." She paused a moment—

"There is a man in San Francisco—a lawyer, who's been at the ranch several times. He proposed to me once. I didn't like him, but still—And if I go on alone to California—"

Norman took her firmly by the shoulders.

"You put that crazy notion right out of your head!" He had said a moment.

"If you're so set on getting married to save your pride, why don't you marry me?"

He hadn't really expected to say that but suddenly it seemed so logical and natural. He was alone and sad, and she was alone and sad, and they were fond of each other in a nice friendly way. She was everything a man could desire in a wife, and he would make a good husband.

She gasped: "You!"

"Oh, I know you don't care a rap, but—why shouldn't we turn our nice comfortable friendship into a nice comfortable marriage? Of course, you want romance, and maybe I'll come to us—it wouldn't be hard to love you, Cornea. You see, I'm being awfully frank with you—"

She laughed a little hysterically. "You cared for Lucinda Bannings, too, didn't you?"

"Yes, I cared," he admitted truthfully, "but I never had a chance, and I gave up hope long ago—What do you say, Cornea? Shall we try it together? I'll be mighty good to you, honey. May be I can make you happy."

CHAPTER 63

THE TIRELESS TIDE

Lucinda and her self-invited guest were having a late tea in the living-room of Lucinda's apartment when the maid announced Norman Kendall. Florence, whose eyes were red-rimmed, switched off all the lights except the one beside the piano and sat in shadow. She hoped she looked frail and interestingly pale to the young man who was shortly to have the shock of his life by being informed that she had left her husband for him.

Lucinda said sharply: "Don't say anything about it yet, Florence. Promise to keep quiet and let me do the talking."

She was rather wearied with Florence's emotions and she had racked her brains for some way out of the dilemma into which her reckless friend had plunged herself. But there was no escaping that damning and explicit note to Twombly Thorpe, in which Florence had set forth her intentions. Lucinda reflected that there ought to be a law prohibiting clipping wives and husbands from writing farewell notes until they'd been away a few hours and had a chance to think things over.

Norman came in, looking very gay and wearing a smile that Lucinda rather resented. After all, he'd been her luckless, but devoted suitor for years, and this was the first time he had seen her since the announcement of her engagement to Rolfe. It wasn't seemly for Norman to be looking to sit at peace with the world. Another illusion shattered. First Julian had taken her announcement last night so calmly, and now Norman was looking rather as though he had come into money.

He greeted both girls heartily and said, after he had made appropriate remarks about Lucinda's engagement and Rolfe's luck.

"My secretary telephoned me at the apartment when I came in a few minutes ago, that you'd rung me up and wanted me to call back—So I just popped around to deliver my good wishes in person and ask if there was anything special you wanted me for."

Florence uttered a choked sound that verged on a hysterical sob. Lucinda glanced in her direction warningly. "Er—where were you all day?" she asked, speaking a bit hurriedly. "I thought you were such a conscientious worker, and one of the few times I call at your office, I am informed that you've left for the day."

He laughed. "Oh, I was holding my breath with Cornea and Ned Raeburn and Julian. It was to be a kind of farewell party for the Raeburns, but—"

He paused and laughed again, a trifle embarrassed. "I missed fire, sort of, at seems these last few days to be any swell. Not to me, at any rate. I'm in the family for keeps."

"Whatever do you mean?" demanded Lucinda densely, while Florence stared.

"I'm engaged to Cornea. We're going to be married soon. She's not going back to Hawaii with her brother. Florence was so still that Lucinda glanced toward her apprehensively, fearing she'd faint. But she didn't. She was staring at Norman, a look of terror in her violet eyes. Lucinda managed to say:

"You old rogue! I just knew that would happen!" She hadn't known, of course. She knew that Cornea was in love with Julian and she felt a sense of triumph that she hadn't landed him and then, just as swiftly, she felt a pang of regret for Norman. Of course, Cornea had grabbed him, because she couldn't get Julian. Norman deserved better than that.

And then Lucinda wanted to cry for herself and Cornea. They were in the same boat—making shift with men they didn't care about, because they couldn't get the man they wanted. She wanted to cry for Norman too. And Florence, though Florence's folly didn't deserve the tribute of tears, but Lucinda had done with crying. Last night, she had finished. Marriage with Rolfe might tear her heart to bits but she was proud and she'd grin and bear it. She'd made the bargain deliberately and with her eyes open. She wouldn't have been Lucinda if she had not been willing to pay the price. Her old ideals were gone. Well, she could not help that. But she'd make the best of it. She'd be faithful and decent and square.

All this time, she was saying mechanically the things one says to a young man on the occasion of the announcement of his engagement to another girl, when one remembers—and one knows that remembers—that he has worshipped at one's own shrine for a good many years. But all the time, she was so afraid that Florence would come out of that trance-like state and say something terrible.

So she talked very gaily and Norman was almost convinced that Lucinda was happy in her decision to marry Rolfe. Almost, but not quite. He turned to Florence, rather surprised at her silence.

"Well, are you pleased with the way everything has turned out?"

She astonished him, with a sharp, shrill, mechanical laugh.

"Oh, yes," said Florence, "I'm tickled pink."

Norman glanced at Lucinda and her eyes warned him.

"Florence is furious at me," she said with a shrug. After that, she began to talk of something quite impersonal and finally Norman, declining tea and explaining that the Raeburns and Julian were going with him to the theatre as a sort of celebration, took his leave.

Florence barely touched his fingers. Her violet eyes, lifted momentarily to his, haunted him after he had gone away. They had seemed to say so much that he couldn't understand.

Lucinda gave him her hand in a friendly clasp, as she followed him to the door.

"If you're going to be married so soon, I suppose this is really good-by, in a sense, isn't it?" she said. "Well, good-bye, Norman. I'll always remember our friendship. It's the one thing in my life that never failed me."

He said, touched by a certain wistfulness about her, for all her gay manner:

"I hope you'll be awfully happy, Lucinda."

"Oh, happy!" she shrugged. "At least I shall probably be content. It's the most we can hope for in this world."

She closed the door upon him gently another chapter ended. But the moment she was alone, her mood changed. She became all energy and fairly flew back to Florence, whose head was bowed in her hands.

"Stop crying!" Lucinda snapped. "Now look what you've done! Or what you've escaped rather! Suppose you'd gone to Norman? What a nice figure you'd have cut, announcing that you'd left your husband for him, while he was getting himself engaged to Cornea Raeburn!"

Florence wailed: "What am I to do? I haven't a home. I haven't a husband. I haven't any money—"

"You're going to have to get all three back," Lucinda told her. "And you'll have to eat humble pie to do it, and if Twombly Thorpe holds it over your head, it's your own fault. You had it soft and you weren't satisfied, so you'll have to take your medicine. Now come with me!"

Florence stared at her. "What for?"

"I'm going to take you home and leave you there—if Thorpe doesn't throw you out."

"I'd rather die!" wailed Florence. But Lucinda was ruthless. She bundled Florence into her wraps, summoned Rolfe's car and gave the address of the Thorpe town house. She was red-haired, capable, determined. Florence wept quietly.

Our New Customer Drive Continues

A Personal Message

from the President

Arnold's Markets to all Managers and Employees

FELLOW-WORKERS:

As far as we can check, several thousand new customers visited the Arnold Markets last week.

This is a result of our special "New Customer Drive," and one with which I am well pleased.

We have told the people of Ontario that new life has been instilled into the Arnold Markets—that a new spirit has taken hold—that new methods are in force—new standards of value.

Men, we are on trial, and though we may not continue the "New Customer Drive" always, I want you to remember that we shall be always on trial—today and one year from today.

The new methods will become daily custom. The new ideals will be recognized as permanent Arnold policy.

Remember the Arnold ethics:—Full weight always—a little more rather than a little less.—Immaculate cleanliness.—Politeness and thoughtfulness.—Truthful representation of all goods.—Honesty in all your dealings.

Frankly, I am a crank on weight. Weight is a vital thing. No woman forgives a mistake.

Our scales are tested periodically by the Government and frequently by our own inspectors.

They are accurate.

You must be just as accurate. Time is no excuse or explanation.

I will forgive a mistake on the customer's side, but never on our own. One good friendship is worth all of the meat, sugar, tea or coffee in your store.

Treat your customers as though each were a member of your own family.

Be fair and square and truthful. Be proud of every day's dealings.

Be jealous of the name Arnold's Markets. Make it mean full weight and honest dealing in your customer's mind.

Never shorten the name to "Arnold's." Another business makes use of that name.

Our name is Arnold's Markets. And the word "Market" is as important as the name "Arnold's."

Be proud of it. Give it reason to be proud of you.

HARDWARE GETS SPRING START

Evidence that the spring season is getting an early start is the report this week that in some sections of the country already plowing has begun. Hardwaremen report that their sales volume of spring lines has widened out considerably in the last week and they all express satisfaction with the prospect thus presented to them.

Remarks to the general business situation claim that it was very sound and the prospects for the balance of the year are very promising. The building work completed last year reached a high total but there seems to be indications that 1929 figures will eclipse even the 1928 total, as new building projects are made known each day. Farm finances have been increased during the year from good agricultural returns and increased buying is looked for from this class of customer during the months just ahead. Industrial activity is well maintained and employment figures compare very favorably with the same date in 1928, indicating that wage money are being more widely spread throughout the buying public.

With weather conditions favorable this week to the rapid development of spring business, it is hardly to be wondered at, that a feeling of promise exists among hardware merchants and bright prospects are in view for coming sales volume.

Wholesale hardware firms report their business in spring lines to have been very pleasing in total volume, and that present business is good. Orders are being received in fair volume for general hardware lines and considerable business is being transacted in seasonal spring lines.

Lead and copper hold the limelight this week in price changes. The steady upward trend of the basic lead market has reflected its influence on local lead products prices, and higher levels have been quoted on several Canadian markets this week. Tin is stronger but not to such an extent that it affects prices on solder to any great extent. Montreal prices on solder have advanced slightly, but Toronto prices are without change.

It is felt that copper will reach the 25c. per pound level before the week closes in New York, and even then it is not certain that the price will halt in its upward trend. Builders' hardware made from brass and bronze has advanced ten per cent this week. Valves are very firm. Brass and copper wires have advanced. In fact most hardware commodities in which copper is incorporated have firmed up considerably and further advances in price are looked for.

HYDRO CO. MADE NEW HIGH OUTPUT RECORD

Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation Limited, subsidiary of International Paper and Power Company, produced 166,396,000 kilowatt hours of electric energy in February, 1929, eighty five per cent greater than the output of the Corporation in February 1928. In the first two months of this year the output of the Corporation was 329,091,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of sixty-three per cent over the production during the corresponding period of 1928.

Generators of a combined capacity of 45,000 horsepower will soon be started in the Bryson, Quebec, and Grand Falls, New Brunswick, plants of the Corporation. The stations of Canadian Hydro-Electric Corporation will then have an installed capacity of 602,600 horsepower. An additional 20,000 horsepower in process of installation will further increase the capacity of the Corporation to a grand total of 622,600 horsepower.

The combined initial capacity of 224,000 horsepower of the Pagan, Quebec, and Grand Falls, New Brunswick, plants of the Corporation started in 1928 represented 40 per cent of the total hydro-electric plant installation in Canada in 1928. The initial capacity of 204,600 horsepower of the Pagan plant was 65 per cent of all hydro-electric installations in the Province of Quebec last year.

The perspective drawing above shows the new $5,000,000 international bridge, planned to span the St. Lawrence river at Brockville. The Canadian incorporators of the company, sponsoring the project, are Right Hon. George P. Graham, J. Gill Garner, Col. G. C. Murphy, Ward C. Pittfield and W. A. McLean, former deputy minister of highways. The bridge with approaches will be about 7,000 feet in length with one-half mile and 22 feet of pavement. It will be 120 feet high to correspond with bridges across the new Welland Canal. The United States Senate has already passed the necessary enabling legislation and it now only remains for the New York state legislature, at Albany, to grant its approval before construction is attempted. Morrison, N.Y.,

will be at the United States end of the bridge. The act giving the company Canadian incorporation was passed at Ottawa last year. The engineers engaged on the bridge are the firm of Wynne-Roberts Son and McLean, Toronto, with whom is associated Prof. C. R. Young of the University of Toronto.

CASTLETON WOMAN SERIOUSLY HURT

Dr. Pearl Chute, Well-known Here Signally Honored With New Title

NEW COMPANY TO ASSUME CONTROL LOCAL BREWERY

Budweiser Company To Retain L. W. McLennan, Vice-President CAPABLE DIRECTORS
New Concern To Build New Cellar Costing $50,000

On Tuesday morning next, the Budweiser Brewing Company of Canada Ltd., will take over the Quinte Breweries Ltd., which was sold some two weeks ago. In conversation with Mr. L. W. McLennan, vice president and general manager of the Quinte Breweries, today, the Intelligencer was informed that the new company will be known as the Budweiser Brewing Co. of Canada, which will distinguish it from its contemporary in the United States, although both companies are under the same directorate.

The following prominent men are directors of the company: Hon. Senator W. J. Harmer of Ottawa, who is a prominent financial man of that city; Hon. Senator B. C. Prowse of Ottawa, president of Prowse Bros. Co.; Hon. Frank X. Schwab, mayor of Buffalo, N.Y.; R. J. Young, president of the Direct Agencies, Ltd., liquor importers and former secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers Ass'n.; Walter P. Mullen, of Quincus Ltd., Montreal and O. A. White of Buffalo.

L. W. McLennan, the present general manager of the Quinte Breweries Ltd., will remain in his present capacity with the new company, while Austin H. White, local manager, will also be retained in his capacity as manager of the local plant. Mr. McLennan declared that the new company intends to double the present capacity of the plant, as the demand for the new product is extending over a wider area than ever before served by the Quinte Brewery.

In addition to the Domestic Brand this new company will naturally enjoy an extensive export trade, according to present indications. It is the intention of the new company to put its product on the Quebec market as soon as production will permit and with this well known name and the steadily increasing demand for their present product, capacity production seems almost sure in a short time.

Asked as to whether or not the Budweiser company intended to remove from Belleville and build elsewhere, Mr. McLennan declared that the people of Belleville have been very loyal to their local industry and that for this reason alone he was sure that they would not make any change from this city for the time at least. It would depend entirely on how the citizens supported the company, he said. Indications point to this being a steady industry, however, as it is understood that the Budweiser company intends building a new $50,000 cellar on the present property, while from time to time.

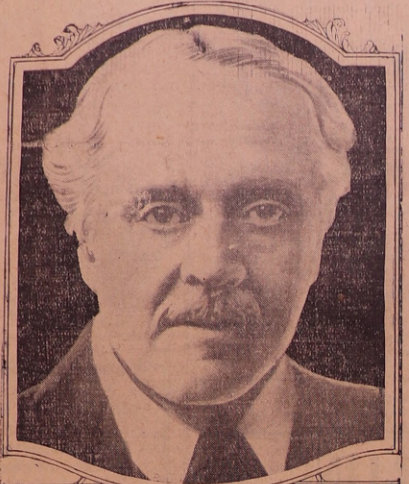

NOT GUILTY OF RAIL FATALITY

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., April 5.—R. Finlayson, Hornepayne, was last night found not guilty by the jury at the assizes here on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of John Brazini, who was killed November 15, 1928, when the speeder driven by Finlayson collided with a gas car on railway near Hornepayne.

POLICE ARREST TWO SUSPECTS

Police all over the country are rounding up suspects in the Orval Shaw case, and this morning two more were picked up by Provincial Police from this city two miles from Deloro. One was wearing an officer's army coat, and was thought to be Shaw by the residents, but he does not answer in any degree the description given for the much wanted "Hermit of Skunk's Mire."

They were brought to Belleville and are being held for investigation, as they have been sleeping for the past two days in the Railway station at Deloro, and have been begging meals from stockkeepers in the district.

The Big Extra Vote Offer Calls For Added Effort Between Now And Tomorrow Night

Every Candidate Should Make a Strong Finish in this Lap of the Race.

Every candidate fully understands that every $10.00 club completed before Saturday night, will mean 200,000 extra votes. Naturally, this is foremost in their minds. It is important that each candidate clearly presents this matter of extra votes, to his or her supporters, while there is still time. It would be too bad if a candidate just required one subscription to complete a $10 club, which would mean a loss of 200,000 votes, and failed to get it before Saturday night, just because a supporter wasn't fully aware of the situation. The readers appreciate the service rendered by The Daily Intelligencer. There is no question as to its value. It is merely a matter of each candidate doing some calculating as to how the greatest number of votes can be obtained and showing supporters how they can incidentally help in winning a valuable prize.

STILL TIME TO GET IN THE RACE

It is not too late to enter the contest. While a race is in progress, although the odds may seem to be against certain ones, it is anybody's race until the last lap is completed. The same applies in The Intelligencer's Big Automobile Contest, especially in view of the fact that the contestants are assured and satisfied that they will get fair play, and that sheer effort will decide the winners. It is already quite evident that this campaign will be characterized by real sportsmanship and before it is over, excitement will be running high. There fore, those who would like to share in this important event, would do well to take advantage of the "Flying Start" offer, which should greatly assist toward a successful finish.

Now for a last word, regarding this Bargain Week Offer. An Extra Vote Ballot, good for 200,000 EXTRA VOTES, will be given for each and every $10.00 worth of subscriptions secured by the candidates up to midnight, Saturday, April 6. The $10.00 clubs of subscriptions can be composed of new or renewal subscriptions to THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.

The regular votes will be given in addition to the EXTRA VOTES.

EFFORT FOR SPECIAL PRIZES

We would remind the candidates who are putting forth every effort to obtain as many EXTRA VOTES as possible before tomorrow night, that this additional effort will be an important factor in deciding the winners of the $100.00 Cash, which is being offered as special prizes to the candidates who turn in the greatest amount of subscription money between the dates of April 1st, and April 13th.

MRS. KELSO DIES OF WOUNDS IN SAVAGE ATTACK

Remains Will Be Brought To This City For Interment
LAST OF FAMILY
Coroner's Jury Decide Maid Suddenly Insane Was Responsible

After being severely beaten in the living room of her home in the Hyde Park District of Chicago on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Helen Kelso, formerly of this city, widow of Charles Kelso, passed away last night from her injuries. Her remains will arrive tomorrow around noon via the Canadian Pacific Railway and the funeral will take place directly from the railway station to Belleville Cemetery. The services will be conducted by the Reverend John Lyons, of St. Thomas Church.

A tragic coincidence lies in the fact that Mrs. Kelso was in Belleville a short time ago, attending the funeral of the late Miss Hamilton, a maiden aunt, a sister of Dr. Wilson, who had lived with Mrs. Kelso in Chicago for many years, and had accompanied the woman to this city for interment. Mrs. Kelso, while here, had the plot that was eventually to receive her remains, in the Belleville Cemetery, changed. She little thought at that time, that she would have departed from life so suddenly.

A coroner's jury yesterday held that the maid, Mrs. J. Peterson, who once had been an inmate of the insane hospital at Elgin, was the cause of the fatal tragedy, and a physician's examination had indicated for a time that a third party might have been responsible. Mrs. Peterson became suddenly insane after beating her mistress on the head with a hammer committed suicide by killing herself with a razor.

MAIL PLANE IS FORCED DOWN BY THE THICK FOG

Three Sacks of Mail Aboard Are Rushed Ahead By Train

Forced down by the thick fog yesterday afternoon a big yellow mail plane was unable to take off today and those in charge are waiting more favorable weather conditions in a field just south of the Canadian National upper depot. The pilot was making the return trip from Montreal to Toronto with three sacks of rush mail and the crew managed to reach Trenton but fearing the conditions would grow worse they returned to Belleville. The plane was later without any damage to itself and the three bags were placed on the International Limited yesterday afternoon and taken on to Toronto. The mechanic proceeded on the train while the pilot remained in the city. A watchman was placed over the craft and an enthusiastic bunch of youngsters were admiring the big machine when the Intelligencer visited the place this morning. This is the second time that the plane has been forced down in this district, bad weather having been responsible for a similar occurrence at Deseronto some weeks ago.

It is expected that upwards of six hundred will attend.

DR. PEARL CHUTE IS GIVEN TITLE

Baptist Missionary Is Well-Known Through Associations Here

Toronto, April 5.—Word has just been received that among the deferred New Year's honors conferred by his majesty, the title of Kaiser-i-Hind has been bestowed on Dr. Pearl Chute of Aklu, India. Dr. Chute and her husband, the Rev. J. E. Chute, have labored in the Baptist mission field in India for many years, and this honor is given to Mrs. Chute for long and distinguished service as a medical missionary. Mr. and Mrs. Chute have been members of St. Clair Ave. Baptist Church for seventeen years and this announcement was greeted last night with great rejoicing at a social gathering at the church. A unanimous resolution was passed that the church clerk cable congratulations to Mrs. Chute on behalf of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Chute went out to India in 1895 and have remained at the same station for 34 years.

Mrs. Chute is well-known in Belleville as she is a sister of Mrs. W. C. Dempsey, Redversville. Although she never made her home in Belleville her two children graduated from the old Belleville High School. Her many friends will receive the news of the conferred honors with interest.

CASTLETON WOMAN BADLY HURT IN COLLISION WITH TRANSPORT

Miss Marya Bendelari

Mrs. N. Reynolds In Critical Condition Following Crash

DRIVER ARRESTED
William Stiver, Pilot Of Truck Is Taken Into Custody

Mrs. N. Reynolds is resting in a very serious condition at the home of Morley Fritz, farmer, two miles east of Brighton on the Provincial highway as the result of a motor accident early last evening, when the car in which she was riding with her daughter was struck by a Quinte Transport truck in the dense fog which prevailed yesterday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Randall and Dewar of Brighton was attending the injured lady whose condition is so serious that she cannot be moved to a hospital. William Stiver of Toronto, the driver of the truck was arrested at Trenton about eight o'clock last night by Highway Traffic Officer Spencer and was later released on bail of $5000. According to his story, he had been following a car all the way from Brighton through the fog when it suddenly pulled up to a stop on the right hand side of the road. He swung over to the left to pass it and a Chevrolet coupe in which Mrs. Reynolds and her daughter were riding, was coming in the opposite direction. A crash was inevitable and the Reynolds car was thrown into the ditch. The injured lady was removed to Mr. Fritz's home where the doctor attended her. Her condition this afternoon was reported as unchanged.

FRIENDS HONOR MISS G. BRYCE

Mock Wedding By Forester Kiddies Is Much Appreciated

A very delightful time was spent last evening at the Johnstone Academy when about sixty neighbors and friends of Miss Gladys Bryce, a bride of past week, gathered and presented her with a miscellaneous shower, arranged by Miss Wm. Grant.

Cards were played for a couple of hours, the winners being—1st Mrs. Dan Donoghue; 2nd Mrs. Ray Harris and consolation, Miss Celina Lynch. Three small children of Dr. and Mrs. Forester presented a mock wedding, the bride looking very sweet in her wedding gown of white with veil and bridal bouquet while the groom wore white t-ousers, frock coat and high silk hat, the ceremony being performed by an older brother. All the guests joined in the wedding march down the hall. A very appetizing lunch was served after which the bride opened all the numerous parcels, containing many useful and valuable gifts, showing the esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The evening closed with the singing of "She's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "God Save the King".

GRECIAN VESSEL IS TARGET FOR ATTACK

The Grecian minister at Ankara protested the alleged seizure of 220 Greek houses in Constantinople by Turkish authorities.

STIRLING MEN ARE SENTENCED

San Bruno, of Stirling, was given two years suspended sentence yesterday at Stirling on a charge of assault laid by John McCaw. The quarrel was the result of a dispute over a drive way, and Pone was shown in evidence to have lost his temper and struck McCaw twice on the head with a shovel.

Garfield Ashley, another young Stirling man, was given one month in the County Jail for assaulting a Chinese restaurant keeper in Stirling. Provincial Police from Belleville investigated each charge, and Crown Attorney Donnan prosecuted.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Life without love is laid;
 and time stands still.
 CONGREVE

MEXICAN REVOLT

News from the battlefields of Mexico is of that contradictory nature which is to be inseparable from active hostilities. Lying is a necessary part of the discreditable business of warfare, and it is not to be supposed that Mexicans are less prone to indulge in such propaganda than other nations; but it would appear that the campaign has turned definitely in favor of the government forces. "Extirpation of the traitors is now merely a question of hours," declares the secretary of war. It is true that the rebels, for their part, announce the capture of one thousand federal soldiers in this same engagement at Jimenez; but boasts of this kind are probably no more than an attempt at whistling to keep up the waning courage. In that area, according to official reports, the insurgents are encircled by a ring of fire from which they cannot escape. Also, in the west coast campaign, the rebels are reported to be beating a disorderly retreat. There would appear to be little doubt, therefore, that the revolution has failed and that the preliminary successes have been turned into dismal defeat. It has been a half-hearted affair, engineered by military factions, with only lukewarm enthusiasm on the part of the general public.

The revolt was led by disgruntled army leaders who were disappointed at being passed over in government appointments. When it has been finally suppressed, the prospects of securing those constitutional reforms promised by the administration will not be quite so bright as they were. It is another example of the futility of war to settle differences. Had the administration been permitted to go ahead with its program, there was a good chance that representative government, and the advantages which democratic institutions bring, would have been granted, but this work of reform has received, inevitably, a serious check. The attempt to make a religious issue out of the disturbance failed completely. The Catholic Church stood aloof, refusing to countenance the irregular methods adopted by the insurgents. So, just another revolution ends, started, like so many others, from an inveterate habit of fighting; one can only hope that the habit is not incurable.

THE EXPLANATION

Various weird interpretations of the Manitoba system of old age pensions are appearing in newspapers outside the province.

The question arose through an attack made by the Toronto Star upon the policy of Premier Ferguson of Ontario, who is requiring the municipalities to contribute 20 per cent. of the cost of old age pensions in that province. Mr. Ferguson pointed to Manitoba where the municipalities were required to provide 50 per cent. of the pension money. The Star responded that because the money was secured in Manitoba through a municipal commission-er's levy it was not a burden on the municipal treasuries and did not affect the tax rates as Mr. Ferguson's proposal would. Other Canadian newspapers elsewhere have accepted the Star's explanation and based comment on it.

The truth is that the government of Manitoba contributes nothing whatever save the cost of administration to the old age pension scheme. Fifty per cent.

of the money paid in pensions comes out of the federal treasury. The other 50 per cent. is secured by the province by means of a levy on the municipalities. Contrary to the Toronto newspaper's explanation, the money does not come directly from the treasuries of the various municipalities, and does not increase the tax rate to the taxpayers.

This year Winnipeg must increase her tax rate by approximately one and a half mills, in order to bring into the city treasury about $321,000 to be paid over to the provincial treasury. This means a great deal more in Manitoba than it would to an Ontario city. The provincial government here has steadily encroached upon the sources of municipal revenue until Winnipeg, for example, has nothing left but land and property taxes to rely upon.

The province has seized all the profits from the sale of liquor, in spite of the fact that the equal division of these profits with the municipalities was a primary principle of the law upon which the people voted in a referendum. It has seized the income tax for provincial purposes, though this levy was first suggested by the city as a means of relieving the real property rates. It has taken into itself the amusement tax, the tax on race-track betting, and other sources of revenue. The cities and rural municipalities have nothing left but property taxes, with the result that they own much unproductive land and have large arrears of taxes.

On top of this the province has placed the entire burden of old age pension on the municipalities. With the principle of old age pensions every one is in sympathy, but so far as the government of Manitoba is concerned their sympathy is merely an empty gesture. It is generous and open-handed with money that the municipalities, over-burdened as they are, must find for it. Altogether, this year the Winnipeg city treasury must find about $730,000 to turn over to the provincial government, representing the supplementary revenue levy, the old age pensions levy, the district levy, the soldiers' relief levy, and the child welfare levy. The amount is equal to 321 mills on the 1928 assessment.

By comparison, Premier Ferguson's policy is just and generous, though equally wrong in principle. No government should be allowed to spend money it does not levy for itself. It is essential that the people should know what they are paying and for what purposes. With the principle accepted that the province can interfere at will to raise the municipal tax rates there is no telling where the process will stop. Winnipeg Tribune.

FOCH

In the last trench of all,
 Our general lies,
 No thunderous shells appeal,
 There are no enemies;
 In life's calm, evening peace he dies

Who watch unseen around his bed?
 The gallant souls he led—
 Living and dead,
 Some, still pressing through the strife
 Of human life,
 Some, who the weary battlefields once trod,
 But through the gates of war have found the peace of God.

His eyes are turned away from earthly things,
 From diplomats and kings,
 From plots and counterplots and wild imaginings.

No maps spread out before him, marking roads;
 He sends no messages by secret codes;
 The way lies plain before him and his Guide
 Waits by his side,
 One who once stilled the sea's strife—
 The Way, the Truth, the Life.

Now the old warrior must go forth
 alone,
 In the rich glories of the setting sun,
 His work is done.
 With all earth's honors on his breast
 This is the greatest fight and best,
 The prelude of eternal rest,
 In the last trench he lies,
 When no fierce guns appeal

Waiting with calm, with fearless eyes,
 Death's bugle call.
GEORGE FREDERICK SCOTT,
 —in Quebec Telegraph-Chronicle.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

A teller motorist rapped at St. Peter's pearly portals last week, and, gaining entrance, St. Peter pointed out the hundreds of miles of golden paving which stretched from the gate across the heavens.

"Fine—beautiful highways, St. Peter, but where are the automobiles?"

Bothered With Headaches?

Many are. Some have headaches from one cause; some from another; very common cause is eye strain. Probably it causes more headaches than anything else. Here is good news—where headaches are caused by eye strain, they disappear when the eye strain is removed. Glasses do that in many cases. We supply them in every style the market affords.

CLUB FINALS ON SATURDAY NIGHT

A. H. Ketcheson And Robert Martin To Contest Singles

Tomorrow evening will see the close of the 1928-29 Badminton season in the Armouries. The finals for the championship of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club will be played off and a social evening will be enjoyed. Spectators have been cordially invited to witness the games.

The greatest interest, perhaps, has been centred in the men's singles championship which will be battled for by A. H. Ketcheson and Robert Martin, both crack players. The men's doubles, also will prove interesting.

When A. H. Ketcheson and Robert Martin will face Jack Rooney and Albert Armstrong for premier honors in that class.

Mrs. C. C. Walker and A. H. Ketcheson will play off with Miss Sylvia Ross and R. J. Graham in the mixed doubles event. The ladies' singles championship will be decided between Miss Sylvia Ross and Mrs. D. Hanna. This match should prove to be one of the best of the evening.

The semi-finals in the ladies' section have been decided last night in two gruelling matches. Mrs. C. C. Walker played with Mrs. D. Hanna and was beaten out after a stiff contest. Miss Ross succeeded in eliminating Mrs. O. H. Scott only after a hard battle.

FOREIGN OFFICE BUYS "SWAKELEYS"

London, (By C.P.)—Swakeleys, the beautiful 17th century house at Icken ham, near Uxbridge, has been acquired, with 30 acres of land, by the Foreign Office Sports Association as a centre for its athletic and social activities.

Pepys, the famous diarist, had pleasant memories of the house, which he spent during the Great Plague. Swakeleys was bought in 1665 by Sir Robert Viner, Chief Financial Agent of Charles II, and Lord Mayor of London in 1674. This was the Lord Mayor of whom Steele relates, as an eye-witness, that when King Charles was slipping away from his sumptuous mayoral banquet Sir Robert "pursued him hastily, and catching him fast by the hand cried out with a vehement oath and accent, 'Sir, you shall stay and take another bottle.' King Charles complied remarking with a smile and graceful air, 'he that's drunk is as great as a king.'"

Now Sir Robert's famous house and grounds, "not very modern in the garden nor house, but most uniform," as Pepys said, has passed into the possession of the Foreign Office Sports Association, largely through the instrumentality of its honorary treasurer, Mervyn Hartley, and at the suggestion of Lord Gerald Wesselsley.

The Association, whose present president is Sir Hubert Montgomery, was created in 1925 and one of its principal objects was to form a connecting link between the different grades of the service at home and also to provide an occasion of contact between the home and foreign staffs.

ANGUS McFEE STANDS HIGH IN HEXATHLON

A report received today from the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. in Toronto shows Belleville to be in eighth place in the list of "C" Class Associations who participated in the Senior Hexathlon Contest throughout the Dominion. Angus McFee who made the highest total for the six events comprising the Hexathlon programme, stood fourth in the list of individual performers amongst the "C" Class Association of the Dominion. "C" Class Associations are those Y.M.C.A.'s having a membership of less than 500 who are active participants in the Physical Department. Some of the other Associations included in this list are: Halifax, Grills, Erik Palmberg, Sweden's Minister to England who has taken a lively interest in the work of the Foundation, and "The Dream Play," translated by Loock.

SWEDISH BOOKS ARE WELL RECEIVED

Stockholm, (By C.P.)—The Anglo-Swedish Literary Foundation, endowed by the Nobel Prize money donated by George Bernard Shaw in 1925 for new translations into English of the works of famous Swedish authors, has now issued its first volumes under the imprint of Jonathan Cape, of London. The initial offering consists of four plays by August Strindberg, "Easter," translated by E. Classen, "The Dance of Death," in two parts, rendered into English by C. D. Loock; "The Spook Sonata," translated by J. B. Pagan and Baron Erik Palmberg, Sweden's Minister to England who has taken a lively interest in the work of the Foundation, and "The Dream Play," translated by Loock.

COIFFURES WITH FLAT CURLS

There is a decidedly decorative quality in thin, flat curls lying upon a white forehead, and they are used in many of this season's new coiffures. Back in the 1880's this type of curl was called a "spitty" and enjoyed a wide popularity. Today it appears in any number of attractive variations.

The usual position for flat curls is at the beginning of the part in the hair. A small strand of hair is brushed forward and cut to the level of the eyebrow. It is rolled under on an iron, allowed to cool and then divided into three equal flat curls which are spread out into a fan shape and look something like a trio of its with all ends together. This arrangement is pretty, the part like an inverted question mark. Two large, flat curls are grouped at the center of the forehead and a third is placed on the right and reaches down to the eyebrow. On the left side a small round curl is pinned in front of the ear. The rest of the hair is waved in a horseshoe effect and is coiled in a flat bun behind.

Dark hair makes the most effective flat curls of course, because of its contrast with the skin. Finger-waved coiffures may be decorated with these curls on the forehead, in front of the ears and on the neck if the hair is long enough.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

One of the nicest hors d'oeuvres is the egg-yolk rose on chopped green olives. Halve hard-boiled eggs lengthwise, half fill the yolk hole with chopped olives, mix the yolk and mayonnaise, vinegar and onion juice, and make an artistic rose atop the olive.

An excellent home-made polish for furniture can be made by using one part of lemon oil to two parts of boiled linseed oil. Apply with a soft cloth and polish with a dry chamois.

To keep chamois gloves soft, put a teaspoon of glycerine or olive oil into the water they are both washed and rinsed in. Also put a trace of soap into the rinse water.

You will not regret the time spent in making removable covers for your small and large ironing boards. Use unbleached muslin, shape to the boards, and sew sets of tape strings to tie on.

Keep a few big pieces of art gum handy and clean spots from felt hats as soon as they appear. For white or light hats use art gum all over so a clean spot will not seem lighter than the rest of the hat.

Spring-Clean MISHAPS

EVEN simple injuries are apt to cause a deal of pain and worry during "spring clean" time. Along with the dust, are disturbed myriads of tiny disease germs. Their mission is to attack any exposed sore place and set up festering and blood-poison.

Knowing this, the wise housekeeper takes a chance. She always keeps a box of antiseptic Zam-Buk on a handy shelf.

Zam-Buk

This famous herbal balm never fails to soothe, cleanse and heal cuts, bruises, scratches, burns, scalds and abrasions.

Zam-Buk kills disease germs, prevents wounds going "wrong way," and grows new skin. It is also far and away the most successful remedy for troubles like eczema, pimples, poisoned sores, piles, ulcers, etc.

All dealers sell Zam-Buk at 50c. box.

AIKINS LADIES SAY FAREWELLS

Easter holidays are being spent in real holiday style in our vicinity.

A number of farmers are making maple syrup and taffy parties are numerous.

Mrs. V. Kenneley, of 5th Con., spent Friday as guest of her mother, Mrs. A. Daley.

We welcome Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Gartland and family as residents in our locality. On Tuesday of last week they moved into their new home on the eighth. Before leaving their old home they were taken by surprise by their friends and neighbors and presented with a handsome purse, while the following address was read by Miss Lena Morrison.

To Dear Mr. and Mrs. Gartland and family.

We your friends and neighbors, have assembled at your home this evening to spend a few pleasant moments with you before you remove from our vicinity.

It is selfish of your friends to express their regrets at your removal, but sentiment has proven itself superior to our good judgment. We very keenly realize that we are sacrificing a family which is desirable to any section.

We shall miss your smiling faces and amiable disposition. But the one consoling factor for which we are thankful, is that the distance is short so we trust that you will frequently visit your old friends who cherish your friendship.

The children will be greatly missed at the school because the Gartlands formed the majority.

We wish you a long and prosperous life in your new home and ask you on behalf of your friends to accept this little gift.

Signed
John Brennan
Jerry Morrison
Pat Cronin

Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Gartland made a very suitable reply on behalf of Mrs. Gartland and the children and after the singing of "They are Jolly Good Fellows," music and dancing were indulged in until midnight when a delicious lunch was served. The small hours of morning had arrived before all dispersed to their several homes after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

We always get it, unpleasant as it may be. I think we owe an equal duty to our patients. There is no need to be brutal about it. We need not tell the whole truth. We may be wrong—we always hope we are.

Discussing the prevention of cancer, Dr. Rowntree touched on what he described as the controversial matter of periodical medical examination. "Why it should be controversial," he said, "I cannot imagine. We go to the dentist at regular intervals; many of us are examined regularly for life insurance; some of us have our drains or electric wiring periodically inspected. Why not follow this out logically, and submit ourselves and our patients to periodical medical examinations?"

Ontario man is accused of getting money from people on a false plea that his horse was sick. What he really wanted, no doubt, was new tires for his car.

The Love Myth By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 70
WOMEN AND WIVES

Lucinda sat before her dressing table reading a letter. She wore a lovely negligee of green lace and her maid brushed her hair until it shone. A maid was her first extravagance, as the prospective Mrs. Aaron Rolfe.

The letter engaging her interest was postmarked Hot Springs. It was in Florence's careless chirography.

"I ought to be angry with you for the heartless way you treated me that last day in town over to write to you again," Florence said. "Or else I ought to be down on my knees thanking you for what you did. Being undecided, I guess I better let bygones be bygones in both respects and confine myself to telling you what went on after you left the scene of action—which was absolutely nothing. Except that I packed my bags and left the house within an hour."

"Oh, Lou, I'll never forget that drive from your home to mine, when I realized that I had to face Twombly and confess that I'd planned to leave for Norman. I was scared and pent and heartbroken, all at once. I'd lost Norman for good and I'd lost my home and husband—such as they were—in losing him. I wanted to die!"

"And then the butler handed me the telegram at the door and saying: 'This came just after you went out this morning, Mrs. Trappel! I could have kissed as if he were personally responsible for what for. Do you remember Twombly's message: 'Have changed my mind about returning New York today. Join the Homestead Hot Springs for Month.' To me, Lou, it was like a condemned man's reprieve. I was saved. That note of mine was on the dressing table, where I'd left it. You tore it up yourself and you couldn't resist saying 'Let this be a lesson to you. It was a narrow squeak. Only Fate saved you. She gave you your life. I had it coming.'"

"Well, as I said before, I packed and took the first train for Hot Springs. I was never so glad to see Twombly before in my life, not even the day at the church, when I knew all my money troubles were over. The poor soul was touched by my evident pleasure at being with him. He became almost human, and I improved the shining opportunity by shaking him down for an emerald necklace. It isn't every wife who can leave her husband and get an emerald necklace out of it."

Lucinda tossed aside the letter when she had finished with it, and then, on second thought, retrieved it and tore it into bits. Florence had escaped unscathed. She was already flippant and cocky. She ought to have learned a lesson but she hadn't. She'd be doing the same thing again, when she'd got over her scare. It sickened Lucinda a little to realize that it wasn't the idea of losing her husband or her place in society, that had frightened Florence. It was the thought of losing money and luxury.

Lucinda wondered if she herself would become like that. She stared hard at her reflection in the mirror, and she seemed to see her face as it would be a few years hence—flabby, with soft living; shadowed with selfishness; as expressionless as a blasé doll. A mask to cover an empty heart!

Was it too late to escape that fate? She turned to the other letter in the little stack on her dressing table. There were invitations, bills, shopkeepers' notes soliciting her trade, letters of felicitation. One was written on cheap stationery and postmarked San Francisco.

The children will be greatly missed at the school because the Gartlands formed the majority.

We wish you a long and prosperous life in your new home and ask you on behalf of your friends to accept this little gift.

Signed
John Brennan
Jerry Morrison
Pat Cronin

Although taken completely by surprise, Mr. Gartland made a very suitable reply on behalf of Mrs. Gartland and the children and after the singing of "They are Jolly Good Fellows," music and dancing were indulged in until midnight when a delicious lunch was served. The small hours of morning had arrived before all dispersed to their several homes after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

We always get it, unpleasant as it may be. I think we owe an equal duty to our patients. There is no need to be brutal about it. We need not tell the whole truth. We may be wrong—we always hope we are.

Discussing the prevention of cancer, Dr. Rowntree touched on what he described as the controversial matter of periodical medical examination. "Why it should be controversial," he said, "I cannot imagine. We go to the dentist at regular intervals; many of us are examined regularly for life insurance; some of us have our drains or electric wiring periodically inspected. Why not follow this out logically, and submit ourselves and our patients to periodical medical examinations?"

Ontario man is accused of getting money from people on a false plea that his horse was sick. What he really wanted, no doubt, was new tires for his car.

She opened it wonderingly. She had no acquaintance in that city. "I am a nurse in the charity ward of the Good Samaritan hospital," said the writer. "I have among my patients a young woman who cannot, we fear, recover. Her health has been undermined by overwork and improper nourishment. Naturally we have not told her that there is no hope for her, but she has guessed it. She says that you are the only person to whom she can say good-bye and she has also a message that she wishes you to deliver, after her death. She says her husband is Julian Marston."

A sharp little cry escaped Lucinda. The maid who was brushing her hair, exclaimed excitedly: "Mademoiselle! It was my fault! I was careful but the brush slip—so!" Lucinda jerked her head impatiently. She read on, scarcely believing her eyes. "Miss Turner, or Mrs. Marston, does not know where her husband is, nor does she wish him to know where she is. I gather that they parted by mutual agreement, and that she has no desire to receive assistance from him. But she seems worried for fear that she may die and he may not be told. She wishes you to communicate with him after her death—of which I shall advise you. I very much fear, Miss Banning, that that news will reach you in a few days. I am enclosing the few lines that Miss Turner has been able to write."

Tears almost blinded Lucinda, as she picked up the sheet of paper on which Bon Ami had scrawled its name.

"Well, Lucinda, old dear, life's handed me a rotten deal, but it's the last one. I'm not sorry to quit. The world's a flop. The worst ever. I went broke in Australia and it's been terrible ever since. I'm sorry for one thing—that I've cheated you and Julian of your happiness for so long. I don't mean to—honest. I thought he would divorce me. I guess I didn't realize how fine he is. I hope you'll be awfully happy together. Tell him when I'm gone—not before, I wanted you to know. Otherwise, you might not hear for ages—if ever. You'll mean a lot to me, Lucinda honey. More than you will ever know."

Poor little Betty! Poor gallant little Betty! And she was Julian's wife! That explained so much. Lucinda didn't try to figure out how Julian and Betty of all people should have married each other. She only knew that now she knew the reason for Julian's silence. He couldn't tell her he loved her, could not ask her to marry him, because he already had a wife.

And now—if what the nurse said was true—he was free—or soon would be. And she was still free!

won't ruin your bathtub!

Unlike coarse, gritty cleansers, Bon Ami will not scrape and scratch the delicate glaze of your bathtub. It soaks up the dirtlike a blotter.

Just sprinkle the soft, snowy-white Powder into the tub. Rub it all over with a well-moistened cloth. Spatter-marks and cloudy rims disappear as if by magic and the white enamel fairly glistens with sparkling cleanliness.

Nothing else purifies and cleans everything in the bathroom so easily, quickly and safely as Bon Ami!

KING OF HOBOES REACHES COAST

Crossed Continent By Favored Method In Twenty-Four Days

Vancouver, April 5.—His Majesty is in town and is cozy scrutinizing the city. In private life his J. Leon Lazarevitch, King of the Hoboes and like a visiting potentates and monarchs he arrived as no ordinary passenger does. His hobo highness hopped off a freight train as it neared the city limits, was completing a journey from Halifax to the Pacific coast in 24 days. An unfortunate incident marred the royal progress across the Dominion. A misunderstanding at Kamloops resulted in the royal personage spending ten days in jail. These inconveniences, however, the king takes philosophically although at first he was naturally royally indignant. "Why this episode might cause international complications," but like a true democratic monarch he was willing to let the matter drop.

Arriving in the city the king sought an opportunity to grant an audience to newspapermen and consented to discuss history, the philosophy of the "open road," religion and the future.

It should be explained that the worthy Leon received his kingship at a properly constituted conference of the International Hoboes' Conference in Minneapolis in 1927. The meeting was held in a park in close proximity to the freight yards where the king and his subjects had easy access to their chosen means of travel. There are almost 2,800 roamers swearing allegiance to his majesty.

The king goes to pains to explain that the hobo is far superior to the lowly garden type of vagrant and tramp. Members of this association are all "public school men" and while eschewing all kinds of "toll, trouble, work and worry," they depend for their sustenance on their ability to engage kindly souls in entertaining conversation with the object of acquiring a meal.

His majesty is armed with a scrap book containing newspaper clippings of his travels all over the world. There is one country he has not visited, Alaska, but he is watching for an appropriate shipment of merchandise which he can accompany in an inconspicuous manner.

This monarch did not stand on regal etiquette here. Some may have thought it was Mayor Makin's task to make the first call, but Leon did not stand on ceremony and made the first advance. But such was his respect for the mayor that he washed and shaved for the occasion.

SINCLAIRS'

national competition when his definition of "jazz" was awarded first prize by an American radio station this week. "Jazz" he said in short is the loose chain on the tire of life. Jazz is the squeak in the wheel of modern life in process of adjusting its bearings. Jazz is the symphonic rickets of musical malnutrition.

CONFLICTIN STORIES ABOUT GEN. BOOTH

London, April 4.—(C.P. Cable).—According to the Salvation Army's organ, the War Cry, the latest reports on the health of General Bramwell Booth, former commander, are far from reassuring. His progress during the past month has not been so good as was expected. On the other hand the General's doctor states there is no cause for anxiety and that the General's condition is unchanged.

RADIO PROGRAMS

Andy Sanella, who has been heard for many months in the Stromberg-Carlson programs as guitarist and saxophonist will play one of his own compositions, "Saxanella" on the program given Tuesday, April 9th over NBC.

Ray H. Manson, chief engineer of a large radio manufacturing company says that the old fashioned idea of the annual spring "housecleaning" is quite applicable to radio. Every radio receiving apparatus will work better if it is given attention now and then.

The fact that reception conditions are least favorable during the warmer months, he says, makes spring the logical time to put the family radio into the best working order. He suggests providing the old set with new tubes throughout for one thing.

BELLE THEATRE

In a scene that was awe-inspiring by its very size and occurring in a huge open air theatre with immovable thousands of spectators, "Jazz Mad," Universal's great film sensation which opened at the Belle theatre yesterday.

Photographing this tremendous scene can be classed among the feats of film-making and the skillful direction of P. Harner Wright in handling the large crowd of people has given the public a sequence of unusual dramatic value.

Jean Hersholt as Franz Hausmann, a German composer, gives the greatest characterization among the many he has portrayed during his long career. He played the part with sympathy and feeling and just the right amount of restraint. Hersholt, after this performance, may be classed with the top few of the screen's great character actors.

Marian Nixon as Elsa, his daughter, gives an admirable performance. It is one of her most charming among the many she has played here. George Lewis as her sweetheart also achieves an excellent portrayal. The two offer many romantic scenes of great beauty.

The story is of Franz Hausmann, a German composer, who fails to sell his symphony for which he had come to the United States from Germany. When he has descended to playing in a comedy jazz orchestra to earn a living his daughter struggles to have his composition played by one of New York's famous orchestras. This revives his spirit and helps win back his former prestige as well as gaining his daughter's happiness. The supporting players are unusually good and include Corbin Meyer, Roscoe Karns, Andrew Buckley, Charles Clary, Clarissa Selwynne Patricia Caron and the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra with Alfred Hertz conducting.

WEDDINGS

MILTON-IBEY
A very pretty wedding was solemnized on April 2nd, at the home of the bride's brother, Herman Ibe, Dominick St., Trenton, when Mamie Irene, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ibe, Trenton, became the bride of Donald Milton, Windsor, Rev. C. B. Brethen officiating.
Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Vera Ibe ushered in the bride leaning on the arm of her brother who took her place under a bridal arch of ferns, spring flowers and white bell, the dining room was prettily decorated in pink and white. The bride was handsomely gowned in French blue celanese silk and carried a bouquet of roses. She wore the gift of the groom a beautiful rope of Dalis pearls.
Mrs. Herman Ibe acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by Herman Ibe, brother of the bride. Only the immediate family of the bride party were present.
The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was silver candlesticks, to the pianist silver compact and to the best man silver cigarette holder.
The bride's travelling costume was navy blue crepe dress, sand hat and navy blue point veil coat.
After the usual congratulations and wedding luncheon which was served, the young couple left amid showers of confetti on the 3 o'clock train for Windsor where they will reside.

Y. M. C. A. BOWLING

The Ladies Junior League schedule closed last evening when the Beavers B. and Moose Hearts met. The Moose Hearts were a happy quintette, not that they won the League but owing to the fact that they annexed their only point of the League season in the second game which they won by three points.
A postponed game between these two teams is being left unplayed in order to start the league play-offs. Mrs. Cooper's 109 was the Moose Hearts leading single while B. Doolittle's 179 was the best for Beavers. Miss Elliott's 166 being next.
Legault's Fairways and Wray's Semi-Centennials started their Senior League game at a merry clip, each hitting over the 1000 mark, the Fairways getting the best of the argument 1057 to 1001 for the first counter. The Semi-Centennials continued strongly in the second while the Fairways felt a little and the points went to the Semi-Centennials 1025 to 933 to Semi-Centennials. Also when the Fairways failed to hit 900, while Semi-

Cents. were able to again go over the 1000 mark, 1028 to 898.
Scorching singles were as follows: Drumm 229; Cummins 205; Yerx 218; Rutherford 239, 221; Wray 220, 253; Cornell 225, 220; Austin 254, 220; O'Callaghan 242.
Much interest is being shown in the new Mixed League which is being started and entries are being received nightly. Those bowlers desiring to roll in this league should make inquiries as soon as possible about conditions, etc.

TOMATO NOW IS VALUED HIGHLY

Was Once Regarded as Poisonous Vegetable; Contains Vitamine C

The tomato once regarded as poisonous, is now known as one of the most valuable of all vegetables from the standpoint of health because the valuable vitamin C is not destroyed in cooking in the tomato as it is in most other vegetables.

Vitamin C is regarded as the most important for general health of the entire vitamin family. It is the vitamin, the absence of which in the diet causes scurvy, a disease usually associated with Arctic exploration or other isolation from a varied diet.

Modern science, however, seems of the opinion that scurvy in varying forms is much more common than generally believed and that some diseases of the teeth, mouth and intestines are closely related to scurvy. As the tomato is as popular eaten raw as it is cooked it may be said to be the best general vegetable to furnish vitamin C.

The tomato also furnishes vitamin A, B and D. A stimulating growth and B being of importance in the health of the nervous system.

Although a large percentage of the tomato is water, it contains calcium, essential to the development of the bony structure, iron in a form in which it may be used in the body, and salts of potassium, sodium and magnesium.

In proteins, fats and carbohydrates, its content is not high, but its value lies in its salts and vitamin C. A tomato patch in the garden is one of the best health investments that can be planted. If there is room for nothing else in the vegetable line, half a dozen tomato vines will yield many servings of tempting fresh fruits for salads. With more room enough tomato vines should be planted for a sufficient supply for home canning.

Because of the value of its vitamin content, tomato juice has become a regular part of the diet of young children. Raw cabbage and oranges are the other raw vegetables that compete with the tomato in furnishing vitamin C.

HOW TO PRODUCE NEW GLADIOLI

A. E. Kündred, world famed originator and grower of gladioli, holds that birth control is an important factor in the development of plain beauty.

Aside from the experience which has made it possible for Mr. Kündred to produce more varieties of gladioli than any other living man, nothing more revolutionary than a square yard of cheese cloth, a pair of fine pliers, a camel hair brush and a watch glass enter into the horticulturist's initial program of operation.

He explains his method of eliminating undesirable gladioli in this way:

"It takes three or four years to tell if a given variety is worth while. My method is to first select a mother plant, when the pistil is ready to receive fertilization. I then take the anthers of another selected variety and dust it off on the pistil of the plant selected to bear the new seed children."

"The union of these two selected plants may produce a number of very valuable seed the first year. These I plant in the propagating grounds where they can be carefully watched and I wait patiently until the tiny bulbs or corns develop. There may be forty or more of these developing from the original planting of seed. Two additional years and sometimes three must now elapse before the seedlings come into flower. From the forty corns I may secure ten, five or sometimes only a single specimen that is worthy to go into the testing grounds where further observations for several more years are needed before the final verdict is reached in reference to its intrinsic merit."

All of my prize winning flowers have gone through this process of elimination. I sometimes depend upon thousands of seeds to produce a single bloom worthy of introduction to the public, and actually feel that I have made a success of "birth control" as I have applied it to the gladioli."

CRIME TIPS OF LITTLE VALUE

Milwaukee, Wis.—There are no text books on burglary or safe cracking, but there are confession stories and mystery yarns and it was to these Adam Orgi resorted once he ejected crime as a career.

His career was short lived. On the stand in municipal court Friday, where he was charged with burglary, he related the circumstances that determined his choice.

Adam is 27 and lives with his own mother on Twentieth Street. They own the place, but it carries the usual mortgage and Adam hadn't worked since December 28 and only casually before that time. His mother hires as a dishwasher when she can find a job. Such was the situation a month or two ago when Adam decided to become a burglar and a good one.

HOW THE PREMIER TURNED TABLES

Toronto, (C.P.)—The ability of Premier Ferguson to disperse wit, wisdom and whimsicality was demonstrated in the House here the other night. The Premier was asked why he had written an introduction to John Henderson's "Great Men of Canada" when the book was not issued by the Government, but rather the Government bought so many copies and distributed them.

"I have written many introductions for outside people," said Mr. Ferguson. Then he was asked by Liberal Leader Sinclair if the Second volume of the "Great Men," which he had announced in the House, was to contain "all Grits" rather than "Conservatives," as in the first book. "Oh, no," said he. "There will be a bit of heaven, too."

ANCIENT SCHOOL IS BEING TORN DOWN

Toronto, (C.P.)—Many Parkdale old boys, not to mention the fairer sex, are watching with interest, and not a little regret, wrecking operations on Jamison Avenue, just south of Queen Street, that, when carried to completion, will mean the passing from sight of the old building of Parkdale Collegiate Institute, in which structure a great many Parkdallians received their secondary education. Shortly after the demolition of the old school was commenced, many former pupils and not a few present-day scholars of the college spent many hours on the scene, picking up here and there a relic to take away as "treasure."

HOUSE OF COMMONS TO CONSIDER LEASE

Ottawa, Ont., April 4.—The "Tm Alone" case may be brought up in the House of Commons today. While no definite decision will be made in this regard until the members of the Conservative forces forger in Caucus this afternoon, it is quite probable that when the house meets at three o'clock, the government will be asked by the opposition for a statement on the recent sinking of the Canadian schooner by the United States coast guard vessel in the Gulf of Mexico.

MILLIONTH FORD Former Picton Man Receives Unique Gift From Car Manufacturer

Toronto, April 6.—Rev. J. G. Widdifield, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Detroit, son of Hon. Justice Widdifield, of Toronto, formerly of Picton, has been presented with a unique gift by Henry Ford, automobile magnate, namely the millionth Model A car built in the Rouge plant. Mr. and Mrs. Ford attended a dinner in the church in which they were married—and as guests of honor sat at the rector's right. Chatting about cars, Mr. Ford mentioned the building of the millionth car. Rev. Mr. Widdifield congratulated him and Mr. Ford replied: "I'll have them send it around to you when it is finished." And he did.

BARN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING BURNT

Charles Vancott Of Sidney Loses Heavily From
The Storm

BRIDGE UNSAFE Traffic Cannot Use Upper Crossing Of Moira On Front Street

Charles Vancott, 32nd Concession of Sidney, was one of the heaviest losers in last night's severe electric storm, as one of the heavy bolts struck his large frame barn a short time after midnight and before anything could be done the whole building was enveloped in flames. Mr. Vancott was asleep at the time and was not awakened until neighbors informed him that his barn was on fire.

Although only part of the lot contained hay, his loss will be heavy as several head of cattle were burned to death as well as much valuable farming machinery. Due to the heavy rain which fell continuously at the time the house in which Mr. Vancott lives alone was saved, as sparks which died reach the roof of the house failed to set the structure on fire.

It is understood that the barn was only partially covered by insurance.

Belleville citizens felt keenly the absence of their morning papers, today as there was no train service from the east or west. Telegraph communications were not of the best this morning, although the telephone service was not greatly hampered, Belleville

NINE KILLED BY VIOLENT STORMS

Tornado Winds Carried House Off Its Foundations —Serious Floods

Minneapolis, Minn., April 6.—Spring storms of tornado violence whipped through parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Iowa, late yesterday, killing nine persons. Three others are missing today and are believed dead. More than one hundred are in the hospital seriously injured, some not expected to live.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars damage is reported, but reports are so incomplete and the storm so widespread it is impossible to accurately estimate the damage. In north Minneapolis alone the damage is placed at $100,000.

One woman at Rice Lake seeking shelter with her family in the cellar of a farm home, was killed by falling roof. The house was ripped from the foundation and carried away.

Two Drowned At Harmony When Car Goes Into Swollen River

NO TRAINS RUNNING Mail Going Only By Air Route—Highway Is Blocked

Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railway traffic is completely tied up for at least twenty-four hours as the result of one of the most serious cloudbursts and resulting washouts and landslides ever experienced in Central Ontario. Commencing early last evening, rain fell in torrents until early this morning, the fall being particularly heavy in the vicinity of Toronto and Oshawa.

At Bowmanville, wrecks occurred on both the C.N.R. and the C.P.R., each crash taking a toll of one life, the engineer of each train being killed. Telegraph communication was cut off when several of the poles were brought down after the C. P. R. cars rolled into the ditch. Telephone poles were the least injured, as they follow the Highway. Two persons were drowned at Harmony when the car in which they were riding was swept off the highway by the heavy rush of water.

Two others were reported as clinging to the overturned car for over an hour. Held Up at Oshawa. All east bound C.N.R. trains are held up at Oshawa, being neither able to come east or return to Toronto, while the west bound trains which were routed via Lindsay and Peterboro early this morning are held up at Lindsay owing to the wash out of tracks. The Superintendent's Office in Belleville this morning informed the Press that it would be at least twenty-four hours before trains would be running, and the schedule would be disrupted for some time to come.

All trains scheduled to leave and arrive in Belleville are now marked "indefinite" on the train board, and indications point to a trainless week end for this district. Passengers on the eastbound C.N.R. passenger train were taken back over the washed out tracks on hand cars, and those who wished to go back to Toronto were taken over several miles of weak spots in the same manner.

Local brokerage firms early this morning found that their wires were not working, but soon after the Market opened the wires were repaired sufficiently to give a service of sorts, while the local C.N.R. and C.P.R. telegraph offices suffered in much the same manner.

According to Superintendent George A. Stokes, the C.N.R. line at Uxbridge, Penetang and intermediate points is also washed away, the storm apparently having followed this whole division. Enormous damage was done to both railway lines, and although they are both working steadily to recuperate from the fury of the storm, it will be some time before everything is back to normal.

OLD 39TH HOLDS RE-UNION HERE

Officers Of War-time Battalion Renew Old Acquaintanceships

War time memories and war-time acquaintanceships will be recalled tonight when officers of the old 39th battalion that left Belleville in the early days of the great war will congregate tonight at the Hotel Quinze. Among those who are expected to be present will be Colonel J. A. V. Preston, K.C., who lives near Cobourg. Senior Major R. W. Smaff, Junior Major A. E. Bywater, of Trenton; Colonel L. B. McLaughlin, C.M.G., D.S.O., of Cobourg, who commanded A Company; Colonel Roscoe Vandewater, D.S.O., who commanded B Company; Colonel Green, Stirling, who commanded C Company; and Colonel L. B. Boggs, of Cobourg, who commanded D Company. Also expected are Quartermaster-Major Caruthers, of Peterboro; Medical Officer Major Charron, Brockville; and Piore Captain Spencer, of Kingston, who was chaplain.

Captain A. H. Kelcherson, of Belleville, was captain in charge of machine guns in those stirring times, and Adjutant Captain Campbell, of Picton, who was superseded by Major McManus, will also be here. A famous warrior in the person of Sergeant Major Jack, who was decorated with the D.C.M., the Military Medal and was cited for the Victoria Cross, is an expected guest.

The old 39th was recruited in this city. The colours were presented to the battalion by the ladies of Belleville and were deposited in Lydd Church, on the south coast of England, after arriving in the old country. After the war they were placed for safe-keeping in St. Thomas' Church and are there to this day.

C. P. R. ENGINEER DIED IN WRECK

J. Kennedy of Toronto, Victim Of Wash-out On Ribht-of-way

J. Kennedy, of Toronto, was pinned underneath his engine when it overturned two miles east of Bowmanville early this morning, and died a short time after being released. Although the train was proceeding slowly through the storm, the engineer apparently had no chance to jump, as he was found in his cab by rescuers. Trainman Holmes, also of Toronto, was injured, but not fatally.

Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters at Montreal gave the following explanation: "Extremely heavy rainfall and cloudburst east of Toronto about midnight caused washouts and mudslides. At 1.45 a.m., about two miles east of Bowmanville a freight train struck a mud slide, resulting in the engine being turned over on its side and following cars being derailed. Engineer J. Kennedy was unfortunately caught under the engine when it turned over and was fatally injured. Trainman Holmes was injured but not seriously."

THE WEATHER

Fresh southerly to westerly winds, mostly fair and mild today and Sunday, probably few scattered thunderstorms.

RIVER RACES IN GUELPH STREETS

Broken Dam Sends Water Down Roadway—Heavy Damage Done

Guelph, April 6.—Torrential rains last night throughout the whole of Wellington county left in its trail an unprecedented flood which has caused damage to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the immediate neighborhood of Guelph.

At six-twenty this morning, the huge stone and concrete dam at Goldies Mill went out with a roar and a few minutes later millions of cubic feet of water was rushing down Speed river in a tumultuous torrent.

In the lower part of the city hundreds of families were roused from sleep by the rush of water into their homes, some families being first awakened by the barking of dogs locked in cellars.

Factories and mills along the river bank were forced to close down, throwing hundreds of men out of work. The water put out fires and crippled machinery. No reports of loss of life have been received.

Canadian Pacific trains from Guelph southward will have to be routed over the National lines as the bridges within the city limits has been undermined and a washout is reported near Speedwell.

Grand River Floods
Galt, Ont., April 6.—Following torrential rains last night which began in the late afternoon with a terrific lightning storm and continued with only momentary abatement well into the night, the Grand River went on a rampage this morning and broke all high water records. ENGINEER KILLED BENEATH GIANT LOCOMOTIVE WHEN TRACK SPREAD DURING NIGHT'S TORRENTIAL RAIN

Robert Milne, Knokn As One Of Star Engineers Of Division

DROVE ROYAL TRAIN Selected To Handle Prince Of Wales On Last Visit To Canada

When the C.N.R. crack train No. 20, running from Toronto to Montreal struck a soft spot in the roadbed on the east of Bowmanville, the giant engine No. 6135 turned over and Robert Milne, of College street, this city star engineer, met his death. The body was pinned under the heavy locomotive and at eleven o'clock this morning had not been extracted. Harry Dewey, fireman, 54 Geddes Street jumped and was not injured. The train was travelling slowly at the time and none of the passengers were hurt.

Reports from the local railway office were meagre as the officials here were unable to get a comprehensive report, as far as is known Milne, his stopped his engine and was feeling his way at a crawl, preceded by track walkers, when the rails suddenly spread, ditching the engine, but none of the passenger cars left the tracks. The train left Toronto at ten-thirty on time but owing to the fierce storm was making slow time. It was one o'clock when it reached Bowmanville and the accident occurred shortly after. The wrecking auxiliary was sent up from Belleville and the expect to have the right-of-way cleared some time today.

Was Not Married

Engineer Milne was a bachelor and lived with his sister, Miss Margaret, at 165 College Street east. He is survived by another sister, Mrs. Joseph Hunter, 292 Foster Avenue, and two brothers, Frederick J. Milne and Augustine Milne, living in Windsor, Ont. "No funeral arrangements have been made so far," Miss Margaret Milne stated to the Intelligencer this morning. "I have heard practically nothing concerning the wreck before the fact that my brother was killed. In the crash, Bob was in town yesterday morning." The engineer took train No. 21 up to Toronto yesterday and was bringing home No. 20 on the return trip.

Robert Milne has been with the rail road for twenty-six years, according to his sister. He started when he was eighteen years of age and had worked himself up to being one of the engineers driving the fast trains of the Canadian National Railways. Milne was one of the engineers who drew the Prince of Wales over this division when His Royal Highness paid his last visit to Canada.

Was Highly Esteemed

Milne's fellow engineers cannot speak too highly of him. "He was liked by all the office and the men, the high and the lowly," one engineer stated to the Intelligencer this morning. "Bob was a real man and one of the best that we had." Another engineer was of opinion that there was nobody on this division more capable of handling the "big 6000" that draw the passenger trains for the C.N.R.

It is not known yet whether an inquiry will be held in Bowmanville or not, although it is not likely. "This is the second accident of this nature to happen in little over a month, the first tragedy occurring at Trenton."

REBELS FORCED OUT OF SANTA ROSALIA

Chihuahua, Mexico, April 6.—Evacuation of Santa Rosalia by rebels is under way. Train loads of soldiers from the National Guard today the outcome of the insurgents, have begun to arrive here. It was believed rebel forces were being concentrated here, either for a stand at Bachimba Pass or for a march into the state of Sonora to unite troops under General Pascual Topet.

HAD TWO HEDS Sidney Farmer Reports Birth of Strange Freak of Nature

G. W. Shortt, a farmer on the 2nd Concession of Sidney, informed the Intelligencer today that a Holstein cow on his farm gave birth last Wednesday to one of the queerest freaks of nature seen for some time in this district.

The calf which was born to this eight-year-old cow possessed two perfectly developed heads which joined on double shoulders, but which tapered towards the rear into the body of an ordinary calf. The new entry into this world had four feet on the front end, but only a pair at the back. One other feature of this freak was that the tail was not placed in the accustomed place, but appeared from the backside not quite so far back as ordinary. The animal lived for only half an hour.

SIX KNOWN DEAD FROM BIG STORM

DROWNED IN CREEK

Two Of Peterboro Party Met Death On Main Highway

Toronto, April 6.—As reports trickled in from outlying sections today, the death toll as the result of last night's wild rainstorm in Central Ontario mounted to six known dead, one missing and unconfirmed reports indicated as many as eight persons lost their lives.

In addition to the two persons drowned when an automobile was thrown through a bridge at Harmony Creek, Ontario, the fatal injury to C.P.R. freight train engineer and the death of a C.N.R. passenger engineer, reports of two drownings as the result of floods reached here early this afternoon.

John Miller, aged 46, of Orbered, Ont., lost his life when his truck crashed through the bridge over the Rouge River just east of here and Oran Cook, aged 13, was drowned in flood waters near Painswick, Ont.

Runaway that two persons lost their lives in floods near Bradford, Ont., is being investigated.

Drowned in Creek
At Harmony Creek Miss Helen Wright and Mr. Walter Norbury, when their automobile ran into the swollen waters of the Creek. The bridge was washed out by the cloudburst and evidently the party drove right into it.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Envy is a necessary evil; it is

VOLTAIRE

MUSIC AND LITERATURE

Music and literature are two phases of artistic expression that stand closely akin to each other. In the former, the emotional element may predominate, and in the latter the intellectual motif be strongest; but in both thought and feeling blend their influence, so that we expect in the best prose a "stately march," and poetry which does not sing to the ear is scarcely worth its title. Strange to say, however, there have been many famous musicians who knew nothing of booklore. They seem to have been wholly engrossed by their own exalted craft. And on the other hand, there are numerous instances of great authors who were either tone deaf or never troubled themselves to get acquainted with the technique of musical art. One novelist, who shall be nameless describes a Highlander as "singing a Jacobite song and accompanying himself on the bagpipes" —truly a wonderful feat! Ruskin held that for a person not to be able to sing should be considered a disgrace. The verdict is too harsh.
Goethe knew nothing of music. Nor did Coleridge. Scott could not distinguish one tune from another. Carlyle, in a splendid fit, called musicians a "windbaggy people," albeit in much better mood he said that the meaning of song goes deep, and that its unfathomable speech allows us a glimpse into the infinite. Boswell tells us that Dr. Johnson could barely distinguish a bagpipe from a guitar, and that although the lexicographer once bought a flageolet, he could not get a tune out of it. Yet what could be expected of a man who said that music excites no ideas and hindered him from contemplating his own?
Charles Lamb, in his "Chapter on Ears," says that "sentimentally, I am disposed to harmony. But originally I am incapable of a tune." And James Hogg might have made a similar confession, for being present at a performance of an opera he gave his whole attention to the conductor, and remarked: "What! And what the 'deils' that fellow that keeps wagging the 'stick'?"

Such cases are hopeless from the musical viewpoint. Fortunately, they are conspicuous exceptions. With relief we turn to authors who manifest a finer and deeper taste and appreciation of harmonic strains. Robert Burns is rightly called a song-writer, for he had ever in mind some songful lilt in writing his poems. It is not so generally known that he tried his hand at playing the fiddle. It amused him to call himself "fiddler and poet." It may be assumed he was no Paganini at scraping the strings.
Amongst great English novelists, George Eliot was one of the most enthusiastic patrons of music, and herself no mean artist at the piano;
she loved to attend the big concerts and opera performances in London, whilst at her home, the Priory, as it was called, the foregrounding of a company of notables interested in literature and musical culture was the hour of recreation which gave her the greatest pleasure. Nobody can read "Jubal" without noting what a deep hold music had upon her life. To her, music signified "the raptured senses melted into one," and the "invisible seeds of harmony, quick with the various strains of life to be." Thus she tells how "Jubal did to his race reveal Music their larger soul, where word and weal Filled the resonant chords, the song

the dance,
Moved with a wider-winged sufferance."

De Quincey, also, that master of English prose writers, had a profound appreciation of music, which "trose into a region of thrilling passion such as my heart had always dimly craved and hungered after."
Has the effect of music ever been better expressed? The "Miltonic line" has in it the voice of the organ.
Tennyson's poetry sufficiently attests his fine musical ear. By the same test, most folk would deny that Browning's verse has any melodic cadence, yet no English author, whether of prose or poetry, has so intensely devoted himself to illustrating the range and power of musical genius, and its unique influence in human life. As in "Abt Vogler," for example—

"All through my keys that gave their sounds to a wish of my soul,
All through my soul that praised as its wish flowed visibly forth."

And Browning tells us that amid all the discords of life, music is still the divine gift, prophetic of the final harmony into which all creation must some day come.

"Sorrow is hard to bear, and doubt is slow to clear;
Each sufferer says his say, his scheme of weal and woe.
But God has a few of us whom He whispers in the ear;
The rest may reason and welcome:
'tis we musicians know."

Here is a sermon in brief and a sentiment finely expressed, which should appeal to every music-lover on earth.

GENUINE PAINTINGS

Another portrait painting has come under dispute, this time an alleged Romney. Lawrence P. Fisher, president of the Cadillac Motor Company of Detroit, bought what was said to be a Romney portrait of Elizabeth, Duchess-Countess of Sutherland, from a New York dealer.
The present Duke of Sutherland, on hearing this wrote the New York Sun that the original of the portrait was at his country house, where it has always been. This arrested the sale and the picture has passed back to the dealer, though it has not transpired so far that the Duke of Sutherland is being sued for libel, slander and other crimes for suggesting that the New York picture is an imposture. Calculations of the number of fraudulent pictures that have been palmed off on American millionaires (Canadians included) make the situation rather alarming for those who have spent their money on "old masters." There is usually nothing about these pictures but the price to attract anybody, and why a millionaire should buy a picture simply because it has a high price, is only known to the millionaire. Probably it is because he has more money than he knows what to do with.
When one thinks of the poog but honest artists who abound all over the world, one is moved to compassion and also wonder that the millionaires have not a keener sense of beauty and use. Our advice to artistically inclined millionaires is to buy modern pictures and encourage modern art. The people who own the "old masters," can well afford to keep them. The modern artists are unlike the "old masters" who no longer are worried over making a living. When it is possible to buy an "old master" care should be taken to examine its pedigree, and to look up its former owner and find out if he has not the original hanging in his back parlor or wherever he keeps his antiques.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Jerry: How is married life? Do you agree on anything?
Bill: No, I'll say we don't, but don't tell her.
"That heiress is going to marry a struggling young man."
"If she's a sure enough heiress, what's he struggling for?"
Walter: Hey! What's the idea of stuffing the tablecloth in your pocket?

Diner: Well, you charged me two dollars for cover and I thought I'd take it with me.

George (nervously): I'd like, the best in the world, Kitty, to marry you; but I don't know how to propose.

Kitty (promptly and practically):
That's all right, George. You've finished with me; now go to father.

Aunt: The best thing you can do,
Robert, is to go and apologize to Muriel.
Bob: Oh, but I say, aunt, I was in the right.

Aunt: Well, in that case, you had better take some flowers, too.

His deeds were not recorded to be read by other men.

He was never in the papers, front or second page or third.

Of his labors in the vineyard only those who knew him heard.

For his life was very simple. Many kindly things he'd done.

But in dealing with his fellows he had never used a gun.

He was useful in his business and of money made enough.

He was honest, he was decent, but was not good copy stuff.

He kept a little garden which he tinkered round at night.

And he gave away the blossoms to his neighbors left and right.

But the papers made no mention of his presence in the town.

For he never was a gangster of unsavory renown.

The poor who knew him loved him for the pity in his smile.

He had helped them bear their burdens over many a rugged mile.

But there wasn't much reporters could relate about his life.

For although he'd made some money,
he'd stayed faithful to his wife.

So he lived and died, unnoticed, just a toiler in the rank.

Who had never shot a rival and had never robbed a bank—

Houses Flooded

Kitchener, Ont., April 6.—Old residents claim that the flood which today is reaching across bridges and high ways at Bridgeport near here is the worst that the village has seen in seventeen years. The ground floors of houses are covered with several inches of water and stock in barns are standing knee deep in water. Birds in past seems to have been the storm center for heavy rains in this district last night.

FIVE BURNED IN BIG HOTEL FIRE

Des Moines, Iowa, April 6.—Police Reports early today said five persons were killed in a fire that swept the Kildwood hotel here. At five o'clock the fire was still raging on the upper floor.

The dead had not been identified. A score or more persons injured and burned were being cared for at hospitals.

water from the Highway. Two other occupants of car Harry and Stanley Northrup, brothers of one of the victims were rescued by firemen called from Oshawa after clinging to the wreckage of the car for some time. Harmony Creek is a short distance east of Oshawa on No. 3 highway. When the car entered the water it evidently overturned and two of the occupants were unable to get clear.

Trains Are Stalled

Three C.P.R. trains from Montreal and one from Ottawa enroute to Toronto are stranded at places along the line. The two trains, that is the north Toronto train and the Ottawa train are at Peterboro. The other two trains, that is those leaving Montreal at 10 and 11 o'clock are at Tweed. Train number 22 which left here at 11 o'clock for Montreal last night is located at Bowmanville.

Trains number 3 and 27 which left for Winnipeg and Sault Ste. Marie respectively, last night have been brought back owing to washouts on Macleod spur division. It is expected to have these washouts in order by this evening. The trains from the west are being brought via Orillia. Everything possible is being done to expedite service east and west and all through passengers are being taken care of with every comfort and being fed.

The C.P.R. official statement follows:

"The main line of the C.P.R. suffered a washout at Oshawa last night, on account of the storm. It is hoped that this washout will be clear and that the main line will be open by tonight, or early to-morrow morning. On the eastern lines, via Peterboro, a 68 foot steel bridge west of Locust Hill and 25 foot stone arch east of Locust Hill have been washed out. Train number 34 which left last night for Ottawa is held up between the washed out bridge and arch, the main line, via Bowmanville is also obstructed owing to the mud slide which took place two miles east of Bowmanville at 1 a.m. this morning, causing the death of Engineer J. Kennedy and the derailment of six freight cars. It is expected to have this part of the line in order also tonight, or early to-morrow morning.

Storm Widened
Communities all the way from Hamilton east to Kingston were affected by the storm, which continued intermittently from 5 p.m. until past midnight. Thunder roared deafening and lightning flashes were particularly vivid as the rain poured down as from clouds.

Traffic piled up in hopeless and expectant jams and collisions of automobiles and street cars were common occurrences. Buildings were damaged by lightning, which also affected electrically operated public utilities. Streets in Toronto became impassable, roads were washed out in places, columns of residents in the low lying sections were flooded and sewers and subways throughout the city were also flooded.

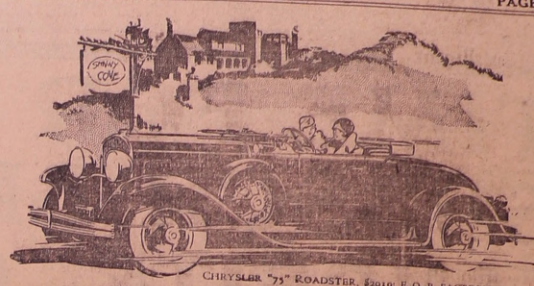

The telephone system, both local and long distance was put out of commission, but service was restored to normal this morning.

Rivers in the suburban areas overflowed and inundated areas adjacent to their banks. The rainfall, estimated at one and one fifth inches, while not a record, is regarded as exceptionally heavy.

Electric light and power went off in several districts and for a time Toronto's street car system was paralyzed by the pranks of the storm.

THE PROBLEM:

The problem consists in finding the greatest number of words in the CHART below. The words are to be chosen in two ways, 1st. In the lines from left to right, namely in the horizontal lines, and 2nd. In the lines (or columns) from top to bottom, namely in the vertical lines.

The letters selected in the formation of a word must follow one another in their given order in the CHART, that is, one letter must follow the other in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction in which the word is to be formed; thus, the word S-T-O-R-E, in the middle of the top line, begins with S; the next letter in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of letter in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the word S-T-O-R-E, namely beginning again with the first letter of the word S-T-O-R-E, namely with S, and proceeding downward (vertically) you have the letter A, and then the letter Y, each following one another in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of the word S-T-O-R-E. In both instances the words formed S-T-O-R-E and S-T-O-R-E are legitimate.

Letters once used may be used again and again as long as the procedure is followed as indicated above. And all words must contain not less than three letters each.

The Love Myth

CHAPTER 71

FRAIL HANDS

The instant she had had that thought the instant that she had realized that Julian was free—or would be, very soon—Lucinda was contrite.

Her emotions were in a jumble. But she must do something immediately about Betty. The girl mustn't be left to die in a charity ward, alone and friendless.

With complete disregard for the nurse's instructions and Betty's wishes, Lucinda rang up Julian.

When he heard her voice, he was astonished. There was an awkward moment while each recalled that last evening when they had parted, as they supposed, forever.

It was strange that at the moment when his phone bell rang, Julian had been thinking of Betty. He'd thought of her quite a bit of late. Possibly because he could have married either Lucinda or Cornelia, except for Betty. Even yet, he knew it wasn't too late. He wasn't vain, but he was aware of the fact that Lucinda would throw over Rolfe, and Cornelia at a word from him. With every one else getting married, he began to feel very lonesome.

Lucinda said gently: "Julian, I've news for you. Prepare yourself for a shock."

He said: "You've broken your engagement," and wondered why he wasn't more excited and pleased.

H.P. is different in every way from every other sauce, with a rich, fruity flavor entirely its own. Suits all tastes and dishes.

"No, it isn't that!" He realized that her voice was grave.
"What?"
"It's about your wife."
"Betty!" For a full minute he forgot that Lucinda had never known that he was married.

"Yes, Betty."

"But how? I didn't know—"

"She's dying, Julian! She's in a charity ward in a hospital in San Francisco. A nurse wrote me and Betty enclosed a line to say good-bye. She doesn't want you to know—yet—not until she's gone. I'm afraid she is dead, by this time—the nurse said there was no hope. What can we do?"

"Do?" he echoed—was silent a moment—and then said quickly: "I'll take the first train for San Francisco."

"It may be too late," suggested Lucinda.

"I'll risk it. There'll be things to see to, anyway. Of course, I'll wire at once and see that she has the best of everything."

"You're a dear, Julian!" Lucinda told him warmly. "Good luck to you—and little Betty!"

Julian sent wires that would insure Betty, if she didn't live—a speedy recovery from the charity ward to the best room in the hospital and would give her the best medical aid in California. With a hasty farewell to the Raeburns and Ned he was on his way.

During the journey across the Continent, he had plenty of time to think and found that he didn't want to. It was horrible that Betty should be so near—if not already—beyond the border. She had been so full of life, so brave in her defeat. He wondered how he had come to her present plight, after her big triumph. But he didn't have to wonder very much. Betty spent money with a prodigal hand. He knew that, rather to his sorrow. He supposed too, that she'd neglected her health shamefully. She always had.

He refused to think of what Betty's death would mean to him. His long-expected, long-hoped-for freedom of go to Lucinda then. She wasn't married yet. He knew, somehow, that she wouldn't marry Rolfe until she saw him again. But he didn't want freedom at the price of Betty's life.

In Chicago he received an answer to his telegraphic instructions.

"Your wishes carried out. Regret can not hold out hope. It was signed by the superintendent of the hospital."

It was dusk when he arrived in San Francisco. He hurried directly to the hospital. Lights shone from its windows as cheerily as though battles with Death were not going on behind many of them. He waited in reception room while nurses in crisp uniforms and young internes in white coats went noiselessly by. Finally the head nurse appeared.

"You may see your wife for a minute only, Mr. Marston," she smiled and led him to an elevator. They went down a long bare white corridor, with a table at one end. A nurse sat behind it, making entries on a chart. She nodded brightly as they passed.

The head nurse tapped on a door at the extreme end of the corridor. It was opened by a nurse who said, when she had been introduced to Julian:

"She is awake but you mustn't let her talk. She knows you are here. I thought it better not to risk a shock by having you just walk in."

Julian was beside the high white hospital bed. He was looking down at Betty, so small and frail that her body scarcely showed under the smoothness of the sheet. Her hands were almost transparent. Pathetic little blue-veined hands. Julian found himself staring at them before he looked at her face. Somehow, they caught at his heart strings with their pitiful, unconscious bit for protection.

He looked up and found her dark eyes wide open, staring at him. She tremed all eyes. Her little white face was no more than a setting for them.

She was trying to speak. He bent down to hear her, and his strong hands closed on hers. He had a horrible feeling that they would never be warm again, those thin helpless hands.

She whispered: "It was good of you to come—But you were always white." Then she closed her eyes and the nurse motioned him to leave.

WHAT'S NEW

(From A Women's Standpoint)

Dean Inge says, "Psychoanalysts are popular because they regard human nature as fundamentally innocent."

Smart New York likes the jacket suit of loosely woven tweed with flat fur collar and silk jumper for spring.

Dean Inge believes "the modern world belongs to the half-educated, rather difficult class, because they do not realize how little they know."

A new wedding scheme is for a bride gown in white, with eggshell for the maid of honor and the rest of the attendants wearing frocks of the shade through the very pale pinks, blues, greens and yellows, and these delicate colors are only faintly tinted and are much paler than the actual pastel shades.

Dark silk crepe ensemble coats covering printed frocks are favored in New York and the polka dot is prominent in the designs of prints while for the more mature small floral patterns are presented.

Sponsored by couturiers for evening gowns is black, leading colors, and next in favor comes red tulle then green in the various seasonal shades from strong creme de menthe to the popular grasshopper, and blues are shown in midnight, royal, hyacinth and powder, while Damson plum and raspberry are two striking colors in tulle, less frequently seen but fashionable.

Straight lines will predominate in the majority of the spring coats, while in the small but smart minority will be found some delightful models which adhere rather to the animated silhouette and this matter of line is achieved by low-placed flares and circular cuts, a suggestion of the bolero and a variety of interpretations of the cape theme.

The turbines of the new French liner Ile de France have 800,000 blades, and required for their construction 115 miles of strip-brass.

News of the Movies

REGENT THEATRE

"Pay as You Enter," the Warner Bros. farce which comes to the Regent Theatre Monday for a run of 3 days, is said to have plenty of action, with a prize-fight, a hectic romance between Mrs. Faenda and her street car suit, Clyde Cook and William Demarest, and violent fun-making. Myrna Loy plays vamp Lloyd Bacon directed from a scenario by Fred Stanley. Don't fail to see the funniest film of the year.

BELLE THEATRE

A new source of fashions for women has been discovered by enterprising modistes in Hollywood and is rapidly spreading throughout the country. The thousands of film fans everywhere, who during the past decade have taken delight in dressing their hair, deporting themselves and imitating their favorite players, have recently demanded that their dressmakers copy the gowns worn upon the screen.

So prevalent has this custom become in Hollywood a number of modistes have secured entire into the various studios to study the color schemes and lines upon the actresses themselves.

While Columbia was making "Nothing to Wear," which will be the attraction at the Belle Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the number of requests by dressmakers to inspect the wardrobe used in the production greatly increased. Over a hundred complete outfits including underwear, stockings, slippers and hats are shown in the picture. Many of these are exclusive models, the most recent creations of Molynaux, Lanvin, Piore, Eric, Madame Chanel and other world famous fashion dictators. They were brought to Hollywood by Jane Winton, who has an important role in "Nothing to Wear." Before signing with Columbia Miss Winton spent several months in Paris selecting outfits for screen wear. She explained to designers the use being made of the studio by dressmakers and arranged for a number of advance models.

Aside from being an excellent entertainment full of suspense, thrills and spontaneous humor, "Nothing to Wear" is a veritable fashion show.

He chose it for its big car prestige

ASTONISHING how many people who formerly paid high prices for the privilege of big car ownership are now turning to Pontiac. But it's not at all surprising when you consider Pontiac as the Big Six it is... instead of the low-price class in which its cost places it. It's a car you can refer to with a sense of pride... a car that will more than justify your confidence in its prowess. Just see it and drive it if you'd learn why experienced and exacting motorists choose Pontiac for the Big Six prestige it provides.

—Professional fishermen of Lake Erie

ment on the other hand, hope the run will continue. The men who fish for a living have a more or less legitimate complaint against the presence of so many perch. The price has dropped from 23 cents a pound to seven cents. It does not pay to set nets at this price and as a result many fishermen have turned to white fish. The perch followed the movement of the ice to the Niagara River.

Boats have been bringing from 2000 to 4000 pounds of the fish each trip.
They are of excellent quality and weigh from one half to three-quarters of a pound.

The big play off in the Men's Junior League started last night when the fourth place Maple Spillers met the third place Houston Co. quintette. The first game Houston won 822 to 742 but the Spillers took the second 763 to 680 when the Houston trousers tum-bled badly. At the end of the second spasm the Maple Spillers were up 3 pins 1155 to 1502. The final game was the deciding title and the Maple Spillers supplied the necessary punch to eliminate the Lumber men from the race.

CHEAPER, FASTER SPEED IN THE AIR

Made Possible by a New Cowling Which Was Just Developed

Washington, D.C. — Faster and cheaper transportation in the air has been made possible, government officials announce, by the new Cowling for radial air cooled engines developed by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Adapted to the big passenger planes now being built with two and three engines, the Cowling has been found in tests to be even more effective than its original application to aircraft powered with only one engine.

The multi-motored planes are the ones on which government and industrial aeronautics authorities are counting for the development of air transportation of passengers and freight within the next few years.

The new Cowling, when given its first practical test recently on the record-breaking coast-to-coast flight of Captain Frank M. Hawks, was credited with adding 20 miles an hour to the average speed of his single engine plane.

The committee estimates that a three-engine airplane fully equipped with the Cowling will be able to increase its average cruising speed on about 100 miles an hour to 120 or 125 miles or maintain its 100-mile rate with 20 to 25 per cent less fuel. The latter represents a saving of about 21 gallons an hour for most airplanes of this type, and increases their maximum flying distance 20 to 25 per cent.

Planes equipped with three 200-horse power engines and capable of cruising at 100 miles an hour, committee experts point out, would have to be given three 400-horsepower plants and strengthened throughout to attain an average of 120 to 125 miles an hour. Thus, it is reasoned, the new Cowling represents, in terms of the cost of such a change, at least $9,000 in added value to such airplanes. Each Cowling costs about $25.

Viewed from the standpoint of safety in flight, the experts declared, it provides equally striking results. The margin of safety is greatly increased, they explain, because the Cowling enables the machine to fly as well with only two engines as it can with all three in operation when the engines are not Cowed.

Boston, Mass. (By Canadian Press) — The steamer Peary has sailed away in quest of a "dream island" in the Pacific. On the bridge of the steamer as it sailed from Boston, stood Matthew F. Branley, wealthy Cleveland paying contractor, who planned the cruise to fulfill a dream in which he visualized a sunken island off the west coast of Mexico.

After the dream, Branley made an extensive search for the island in ship and airplane. From an airplane he finally discovered beneath the ocean a shoal resembling his "dream island." He commissioned Captain L. D. Lockwood to find a ship suitable for expedition to the island to determine whether the island could be reclaimed by the erection of a sea wall.

The Peary, which was used by Commander Donald B. MacMillan in an expedition to the Arctic in 1925 and which has been tied up at a shipyard in Chelsea since that voyage, was recently purchased by Branley on Captain Lockwood's recommendation.

CONVICT WRITER WILL SOON WORK OUT OF PRISON

Columbus, Ohio. (By Canadian Press) — A man whose identity has been hidden for five years behind a convict's number will walk through the gates of Ohio Penitentiary March 1, free to wage a fight to regain his place in society and to follow, if he can, in the footsteps of O. Henry.

For five years he has been on the prison records as John Murphy, alias Stewart, and prison officials have let it go at that. For almost five years they have turned over to him cheques that bore a name unlike "John Murphy," alias Stewart, but the record stands. He was John Murphy, alias Stewart, when he came to the penitentiary and when he leaves he will go under that name.

"Murphy" was received at the penitentiary from Marion County in October, 1923, convicted of burglary and sentenced to a term of five to ten years. Assigned to the prison library, he delved into the books there and put in his spare time writing. His first story was accepted with a request for more, since then he has written steadily, and not long ago his work came to the attention of former Governor Vev Donahay. The governor commuted his sentence to expire at the discretion of the clemency board. The board has set March 1st as the date.

Before I entered the penitentiary I had never attempted to write," Murphy told a newspaper reporter. "I have gotten my background from the stories available to me in the prison library, building on their suggestions and my own experience to make the plot for my stories." "Murphy" said his writings brought him more than $7,000 in 1928. His writings were carried on through the help of prison officials, who permitted him to work at night and purchased materials for his work money he earned through his writings.

NEW FACTORY AT SHANNONVILLE

Canning Plant To Be In Operation This Year For Tomatoes

Negotiations have been completed for starting a canning factory at Shannonville and building operations have started. The new company has been incorporated as the Shannonville Canning Limited, with the following officers:

John A. Weese, Ameliasburg, President.
John Walker, Ameliasburg, Vice-President.
Arthur Rightmyer, Bloomfield, Manager.

The company is capitalized at $50,000.

The site was purchased from the Murphy estate, comprising part of the old mill property facing the Provincial Highway, and contracts have been let for the erection of modern buildings and the installation of necessary machinery.

The main building will be 60 x 120 feet, two stories high; the boiler house will be of brick, fire-proof, 32x24 feet, and the retort room 36 x 36 feet.

The main building will be metal clad.

Last year John S. Stacey, well-known contractor of Trenton, erected in record time, the big factory here for the Belleville Canners Limited, at a cost of $60,000. He has been awarded the contract for the erection of the new factory at Shannonville at a cost of $16,000.

This season tomatoes will be special tied in, but next year peas and corn will be canned as well.

Those interested in the new enterprise are John Weese, J. Walker, A. Rightmyer, Ed. B. Partlett, H. E. Fairfield, H. McDonald, G. H. Kingsley and B. H. Leavens.

"OLD TIMERS" HELD REUNION

On Thursday evening a most enjoyable time was spent by the members and visitors at the regular communication of the Belleville Lodge, the occasion being the get-together of the older members of the Lodge. A full course banquet opened the proceedings and during the meal Professor Wheatley's Juvenile Orchestra played several selections. This orchestra is composed of Miss Rose Wilkinson, Masters Fred Store, William Harvey, Charles Thorne and Thomas Poddar. Vocal solos were contributed by Bro. A. R. Stillman and Master Charles Thorne, while Brother George Weymark favoured with a violin solo. The "Old Timers Toast" was proposed by Bro. R. D. Fonten and responded to by the older members.

PRESENTATION TO NEW SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. and Mrs. E. Sandercock, of Stirling, were pleasantly surprised when a number of their friends of St. Paul's United Church gathered at their home to bid them good-bye prior to their departure to Belleville, where Mr. Sandercock has taken over the duties of superintendent of the House of Refuge. Reeve Montgomery was appointed chairman for the occasion and after making feeling remarks that he was sorry to see Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock leave Stirling, called upon Mrs. H. Jackson and Mr. J. P. Lusk to make the presentation. The former presented Mrs. Sandercock with a beautiful floor lamp and the latter gave Mr. Sandercock a club bag on behalf of their friends of the church.

NEW SETTLERS FOR BELLEVILLE DISTRICT

During the last few days a large movement of British immigrants have been dispatched to farming districts throughout Ontario.

The quota for Belleville arriving at The Government Immigration and Employment Office consisted of young single men from Northumberland, Leeds, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Middlesbrough.

These men having received a short course of twelve weeks in farming prior to sailing for Canada under the "Trained Scheme" are greatly assisted in grasping the Canadian methods of farming.

TWENTY KILLED AS TRAIN IS DERAILED

Bucharest, Rumania, April 5.—Twenty persons were killed and 79 injured when the Bucharest-Jassy express train was derailed late last night near Buzey. Most of the bodies remained in the snow all night long until the next trains arrived.

Relief work was made most difficult by the blizzard today, such injured as could be removed were taken to the hospital at Buzey.

Identities of the dead had not been established although it was said the majority of them were business men and soldiers.

DUSTBINS

At night it makes me laugh to see
The dustbins standing in the street.
They look like squat old revellers,
Dismal, dumpy, full of guile.
The haughty house of the Square
So prim and Georgian, so demure,
Pretend the dustbins are not there,
And shut their eyes with careful blinds.
But as I pass the dustbins seem
To leer at me with oafish jests:
"Oh! ho!" they say, "We stand outside,
But still we haunt you like your sins.
Dust to dust—so ends your pride!
We keep your secrets in our bins,
Till you're houses are and great,
Ashes are their final fate."

I watch by night the prowlers come
To search the dustbins cautiously.
Tubby and Tom creep down the steps
With nose and whisker all alert.
The slum cat like a shadow steals
To snatch his share from pampers puss—
A chicken bone, a herring's head,
Ariches for the finest cat.
The dustbins chuckle as they come—
"Oh, help yourselves, but share the feast."

For hunger makes us all akin.
There's a trifle for the least;
We'll please you all who seek our bin.
Bake the ashes till you find
Some or tit-bit to your mind."

Then all the dogs come out bedtime, Thievish at heart, though high their breed.
The stolen morsel is more sweet
Than any dinner on a plate.
With eager nose and searching paw set the pot of ferns in a pail of water all night.

To place ferns upon the window sill means their death, as they cannot stand a cold draught.

When your house plants look a trifle dejected, and water does not revive them, try putting coffee grounds on the roots three times a week; then once a week give them a tablespoonful of olive oil; do not allow the earth to become hard and dry.

Coal-oil is a good friend to the housewife during spring cleaning and can be used with success in many different ways.

For dirty paint, a discolored bath, or Stuffed apples are an appetizing way and such things there is nothing like coal of using up the remains of cold pork

They rake the ashes for a prize
The dustbins mutter to the dogs—
"Paddy and Peter, Jack and Tim, You're not so fine as each pretends—
Wait till day is growing dim,
You'll turn to Jackals then, my friends,
Snout and snout the bone you like,
Cocker, terrier and tyke."

There's an old woman I have watched;
She steals out softly from her lane
To gather cinders in a sack.
So fearful and so furtive she.
Like one who has known kinder days.
The bits of bread and treasure trove,
She hides them quickly in her shawl.
With bird-like, furtive look she fills
Her sack, then off she creeps again
Into the shadows of the arch.
I almost hear a dustbin sigh—
"It's well for her that waste is rife.
She values what the rich despise.
My house holds a thriftless wife.
She squanders what the poor would save."

We who keep our watch by night
See a word that fears the light."

The street lamps make a topaz chain,
Like golden chariots the trams
Clank by with humming song of haste.
Pale and indifferent as a flower,
The moon floats high above the street.
The dustbins sneeze and grin.
They have no reverence, no awe;
They jest at great men and at rogues.

"So many things that we could tell
Of high and low life, though we're blind!
We must keep our lids on well
To hide your refuse and your sins.
Here we sit so squat and sly Laughing at the passers-by."

W. M. LETTIS.

There is nothing like coal-oil for cleaning the very dirty hands we all get in days of strenuous housecleaning.
A little coal-oil rubbed on the hands and when they are washed in water

the dry ingredients, alternating with

Wash, hull and drain 1 box of straw-

FOR DRIVERS

Don't if you are a pedestrian, take a chance which may endanger your own life or a motorist's.
Don't step out from between two parked cars without first looking in both directions. Failure to do this may cost your life.
Don't, if you are a motorist, forget that a pedestrian has road rights as well as you.
Don't neglect to drive in a careful prudent manner. You have no right to endanger the property of another, or the life or limb of any person.
Don't neglect to have your car under control and use extreme caution when turning a corner of intersecting streets.
More accidents occur at intersections than anywhere else.
Don't fall when about to decrease your speed or stop, to warn those following you. Due vigilance prevents accidents.
Don't neglect to go slowly where children are in or near the road. You can't even guess what they will do.
Don't back your car unless you are sure the way is clear. Always give adequate warning.

VISION

"It isn't the stone
And steel and slate
That builds it great.
It's the men who vision
The thing clear through
The world like hell
Till the dream comes true."

AUTHOR OF BEAU GESTE

Of all the best-sellers in the world not one approaches P. C. Wren, author of Beau Geste, it seems, in privacy and reserve. His "books" have sold by the hundred thousand. Hundreds of thousands paid to see the film and thousands of dollars were spent on the play. His photographs show him to be extremely good-looking.
At the same time, his "books" have terrors. English papers announce that no one seems to know him. He seems as elusive as Capt. Shaw, one-time Col.
Lawrence.

HEAD GEAR

They have been cruelly unbecomingly, haven't they? Every line has been hard, even the trimming ridge, and the line over the forehead must unkind to all but the most perfect faces. I talked of this the other day to a very smart milliner, who quite agreed on the ugly lines, and spoke dis-paragingly of the women who insisted on wearing them. She said there is still this type of hat for those who can wear them, but there are also hats with soft brims which can be draped to suit the face. I watched her fit some very smart-looking imported shapes to several girls and women without exception as soon as the hat went on the head, both hat and wearer became young.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

"CITIZEN"—Thanks for your appreciative words about our little article on the garbage can question. Also for the poem "Dustbins". It is delightful and I am using it elsewhere on the Page. Wherever did you find it?

"L.B."—I wish you would let me print your letter. It is highly amusing. As to the question of breakfast in bed I do not agree with you. My own idea is that there isn't much he matter with anyone who can eat a big breakfast in bed and not suffer or it, except a slight indigestion of complete and highly developed lateness. But a busy woman deserves to be lazy occasionally, eh?

"Caterpillar"—What a funny pen-name! I hope the inference is not 'slow but sure,' but some thing beautiful about to break forth. The most beautiful caterpillar I ever saw was ade with its back studded with gleaming jewel-like spots, like rubies, emeralds, and opals. I held my breath from the sheer beauty of the creature.
And now to books and your query.
Apparently you are one of those who suffer from people who borrow and never return. The bookplates shown last week in the "Saturday Night" were interesting, weren't they? If you do not want to get a cut made, you might have some square slips printed with your name at the bottom, say, and in the centre have this verse by Arthur Guiterman:
Remember, Book, your proper shelf, rom which my friend hath helped himself.
And like a dove with wings unloosed, return, come back, fly home to roost!

The printer would choose a nice little border for your slip and presto! A bookplate of your own!

PLAN RESEARCH IN ALLOYS OF IRON

New York, N.Y. By Canadian Press —Research in alloys of iron, to keep America abreast of world progress in industry, and described as the most ambitious undertaking ever attempted in this field, is planned by the Engineering Foundation in cooperation with the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, it is announced at the national headquarters of the Foundation here.

The industries, universities and technical schools, bureaus of the United States Government, scientific organizations, and foreign agencies will aid. Practically all industries, it is said, are affected. The initial task is a critical five-year review of all available literature in English and other languages, resulting in a series of monographs and manuals, at a cost of $150,000.

The second phase of the programme which, it is expected, will extend over a long period of years, will be research directed toward increasing fundamental knowledge of iron and its combinations with other substances, particularly alloys of pure iron with one or two or three or more other pure metals; also the effects of the impurities incident to practical operations.

NERO

When all the world is full of woe
And life, it seems, is just a riddle,
The sweetest comfort man can know
Lies in the music of a fiddle.
Think of the ease that Nero had
And buy yourself a priceless Strad!

When Roman hopes were all at zero,<
And nothing but the fire was hot,
Did this excitement trouble Nero?
Upon his word, sir, it did not—
He simply strayed away at home,
And didn't care a damn for Rome.

So, if I should awake one night
To find my house on fire, and all
The clothing in my room alight
And pictures burning on the wall,
I'd smile to see the roof cave in,
And calmly play my violin.

Law-Abiding Chinese

So people are to paint and are already painting, among the low abiding and not very thrilling Chinese of the neighborhood, and are feeling mighty original and dashing about it.

I do not deny that there is no reason why they shouldn't paint as well or badly in Pennsylvania, as anywhere else. But Limehouse in reality has no glamor whatever about it, and the East India Dock road is as dull as the Cromwell road without being nearly as long.

A Boring Neighborhood

A lot of well-known people take it into their heads to spend an evening occasionally at Charlie Brown's pub in Limehouse. Mr. Brown is an amiable person with a collection of curios and a character as irreplicable as doubt, as his whisky. But one can be more bored in his well-condemned hostelity than could be thought possible—North, South, East or West.
On the whole, West is preferable.

Of course, the House of Commons at Ottawa, which was struck by lightning is quite used to being electrified.
Some people can dial wrong numbers as cheerfully as the old-time operator could give them.

YOU CAN'T DYE
with Good Intentions

You can get results—after a fashion—with any old dye;
but to do work you are proud of takes real skill.
That's why we put them in Diamond Dyes. They contain from three to five times more than other dyes on the market. Cost more to make? Sure. But you get them for the same price as other dyes.

Next time you want to dye, try them. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare the results. Note the absence of that red-dyed look of streaking or spotting, see that they take tone of the life out of the cloth.
Observe how the colors keep their brilliance through wear and washing. Your dealer will refund your money if you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original
"all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material.
It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. Remember this you buy. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

EARLY EXAMINATION SAVES EYE TROUBLE

In being fitted with glasses, the eyes your eyes require may be mounted in any style frame you desire, but generally that is a matter best left to our judgment and experience, because the attractiveness and comfort of a pair of glasses depend, in large measure on the mountings used.

It is part of our service to give particular attention to selecting the mounting that will look best and feel best on your face. Let us serve you.

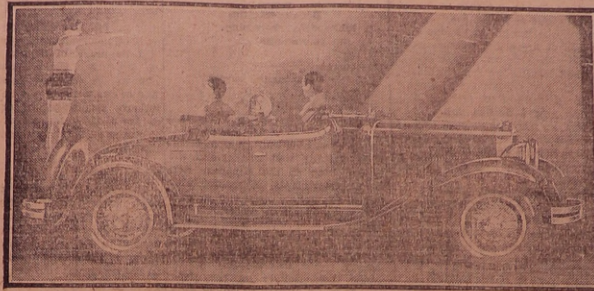

Sometimes people come in with a hesitant and undecided air and ask if we can repair their glasses.

Why, of course we can. We are equipped to handle all kinds of eye-glass and spectacle repair work - promptly, accurately, reasonably.

Also glasses should be adjusted occasionally to keep them in perfect alignment, and we welcome the opportunity of doing this little service for you - without charge.

Have Edwards, expert Optometrists, make an early examination of your eyes and prescribe the proper correction.

WHIPPET BOASTS UNIQUE LIGHT CAR FEATURES

Beauty, Large Bodies, And Many Driving Conveniences Noted

Distinctive features, mechanical perfections and beauty of design, as far superior over those of the present day light car as certain of the original Whippet features were over the light four cylinder car of two and one half years ago are characteristic of the superior line of Whippet Fours and Sixes being presented by the Wyllis-Overland Company, and may have a marked effect in revolutionizing the light car field.

The bodies of the Superior Whippet models have been newly designed, presenting greater beauty and larger size. The full crown one-piece fenders are sweeping in design and give an added touch of tone to the exterior appearance. The radiator is entirely new, being higher and larger, and gives the car a decided appearance of greater speed. The doors on all models have been widened and with the increased roominess of the interiors, provide ample room for entrance and exit.

Chief among the Whippet's mechanical features is the "Finger-Tip Control," designated by many automotive experts as the greatest advance in driving convenience since the self-starter. By means of this "Finger-Tip Control" all the functions of starting the motor, controlling the lighting system, and sounding the horn are concentrated on the single button conveniently located in the centre of the steering wheel.

Another Whippet feature is the adoption of a new system of headlamps with a fixed focus arrangement. These lamps are double beamed, the upper beam being for fast driving, which necessitates the light being thrown forward along the road for a considerable distance, while the lower beam is not dimmed but simply a downward change in the direction of the beam to a shorter distance, thus giving full and complete illumination. The rear and stop lights are set higher and farther away from the body and fender so the largest license plates may be fitted without protruding over the side of the fender. The frame, which has been entirely redesigned, reveals a material improvement over the previous practice, and is marked by an increased sturdiness through the employment of new and heavier cross-member material.

Throughout, the Wyllis-Overland engineers have aimed to produce a car not only of outstanding mechanical performance, but likewise the development of a style in body lines, and a new smartness in color combinations that would place Whippet models in a position of leadership in the lower price class.

MUCH BUILDING DONE IN CITY

Considerable building activity may be noted at the present time in this city, with the warmer weather definitely here to remain at last.

An unusually large number of new homes are being built and Houston Co., Limited, dealers in all types of lumber and building materials, report a steady improving business at this time.

Since moving their headquarters to Belleville from Tweed, a short time ago, this firm has enjoyed excellent business with every prospect of a rapid increase in the future. Houston Co., Limited, is pursuing here the same policy of highest grade building materials at lowest prices, consistent with quality—a policy which built for them a large and prosperous business in Tweed. Houston building materials mean quality building materials at right prices.

With warmer weather in sight, already the thoughts of the average person will be turning to the question of summer and its problems. The matter of one's ice supply is one which in the past has been the cause of considerable trouble and expense, and it is a tribute to our up-to-date day and age that the matter has been finally solved to the satisfaction of almost everyone.

At that there are a few who have not availed themselves of the opportunity given them these days to buy a better class of ice than was previously available. There are a few who, for some reason or other, persist in using the same old kind of ice, when they are able, at the trouble of simply a 'phone call, to have such ice as Graham's delivered to their homes daily and at actually less than they have been paying for out-of-date ice.

ANNUAL REPORT
IS ENCOURAGINGFirstbrook Boves Limited, Shareholders Presented With Fine Report

Shareholders of Firstbrook Boves Limited, were presented with a very gratifying annual report of the year's operation at the first general meeting of the company, held at the new plant in Mount Dennis, Ontario, on Tuesday, March 26, 1929. Substantial increase in business was recorded by the cartons, corrugated and wooden box divisions.

The expression "annual report" at this time is somewhat of a misnomer as the company's incorporation did not take place until June 2nd, 1929, and the accounts presented today represent only an operating period of seven months ending January 31st, 1929.

Mr. E. Victor Donaldson, President of the Company, presented the directors report and in the course of his speech remarked:

"From the surplus account before you, you will note that gross operating profits for the period were $100,870.02 and that in writing off $33,370.48 a liberal depreciation policy has been adopted." After deducting an amount for extraordinary expenses and income taxes of $12,450.19 and bond interest and preference dividend requirements of $23,484.24 a net balance of $31,500.11 is available to be carried forward.

I think it well to mention that, due to the fact that the company has only moved into its new premises within the last fortnight, the above gross operating profits were arrived at before taking into account the savings to be effected through our activities henceforth being combined in one plant. Your directors consider that these figures constitute a very promising augury for the company's future. It is difficult at this time to estimate exactly the savings which will be effected by the adoption of "straight line production" for which the new plant has been expressly designed, but it is obvious that such savings will be of very material importance, particularly as reduced operating costs should enable your company to successfully reach out for new volume.

Aside, however, from purely operating economies, important savings will be attained through the elimination of duplicate staffs and taxation expenditures incidental to the dual operation of our factories, previously situated some distance apart. An additional item of interest, and one which is not reflected in the surplus account, is that there has been a most pleasing increase in sales since the commencement of the present fiscal year.

Before moving to the new plant certain of our department were working overtime to fill orders on hand. With the installation of new equipment here, however, the company is capable of taking care of a greatly increased volume of business without the necessity of overtime operation which naturally will reduce cost of production. It is further of timely interest to mention, as well as a source of great satisfaction to the management, that despite very considerable difficulties, inherent in the removal of large operating plants, production was only slightly curtailed during the period of transference of plant and equipment to the present location."

The annual report and balance sheet having been adopted, the directors were re-elected for the coming year as follows: John Firstbrook, Toronto; E. Victor Donaldson, Toronto; W. Harold Firstbrook, Toronto; George E. W. deClercq, New York; J. A. Gairdner, Toronto; G. H. Muntz, Toronto; O. A. Doherty, Toronto.

At the directors' meeting immediately following the annual meeting, all the officers of the company were re-elected.

The regular monthly meeting of Aiken's Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday, March 21, at the home of Mrs. Stanley Spafford, with a large attendance of members.

The society was glad to welcome two old friends of Aiken's community, Mrs. Warren Spafford of Belleville and Mrs. Brisson, of Rochester, N. Y.

Over forty sat down to the well laden tables and all enjoyed the good dinner provided. At 2:30, the President, Mrs. Selburne Westover, called order for the business part of the meeting. After the regular business, Mrs. Lawrence was called and read the following address to Mrs. Barker, who is leaving our community to make a new home in Toronto with her daughter.

March 21, 1929.
Dear Mrs. Barker and Miss Edna:
We feel sorry you are called from our midst to take up residence in the city of Toronto. We shall miss you for your good deeds, your assistance in church work, Ladies' Aid and the neighborhood in general for your kind and thoughtful assistance in everything pertaining to good.

Mrs. Barker, you have filled the position of First Vice President of our Ladies' Aid since its organization with a marked degree of pleasure to all. We feel we are missing a good faithful worker in our church, and hope you will not be so far away, but you may be able to visit your old friends and look back to the happy days in Sidney. You are leaving a lot of good substantial friends, who will miss you in your absence, and a number of them with your needs and thimble, whom I think will be in a sorry plight when you leave. As I am afraid most of us will be envious of your new friends in Toronto in that line.

Dear Edna, we ask you and Edna to accept this purse and hope it will help to lighten and brighten your pathway. We are sorry you are leaving us, but as the old saying is: "the best of friends must part." And on leaving may you gain new friends in your new home which will add to your future happiness.

For Miss Edna, we must say one might envy you your sunny disposition and cheerfulness, always looking on the bright side of life, which seems an example we all might follow. We all join in wishing for your prosperity and happiness.

Signed on behalf of Aiken's Church and community.
Mrs. A. M. Lawrence,
Mrs. J. W. Bailey,
Mrs. R. B. Duffin.

Mrs. Barker was taken completely by surprise, but made a very good reply, thanking her friends for the gift, and also for all kindness shown during the bereavements of the past year. She invited all to visit her in her new home.

Mrs. Albert Page was elected Vice-President in Mrs. Barker's place. The meeting closed by prayer by Rev. Semsmith.

OTTAWA GIRL IS RECENTLY WED
FINE EXAMPLE

Death occurred Thursday, March 28 in the Belleville General Hospital, to Mrs. Jas. Lazier, aged 19 years, after an operation for appendicitis. She was before her marriage, Ida Theresa, Irene Bushel, of Orillia.

All that medical skill and careful nursing could do proved unavailing. Her work on earth was finished. The obsequies were largely attended and the many floral tributes bore mute testimony to the high esteem in which she was held. After an impressive ceremony, conducted by the Rev. Clark of Shannonville United Church, of which she was a member, the cortege proceeded to Melrose Cemetery, where the remains were interred. She is survived by her husband, one brother, James, of Shannonville, and sister Ruby, of Orillia. To those left to mourn her loss is extended the sympathy of a large circle of friends. Her passing has cast a gloom over the entire community, as she had been married only five weeks.

The floral tributes were: Flowers—From the husband, Mrs. Spray—Mrs. and Mr. George Lazier, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Lazier, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Lazier, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Lazier, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. George Whelan, Norwood, Mr. and Mrs. J. Morden and family, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Fluke, Picton; Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McDonald, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Courts, Mr. and Mrs. William Blarckewick, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Moore, James Bushel, brother, Dr. Welsh, Roslin; Mr. obel Clarke.

Casket Bouquet—Mr. and Mrs. Dan Foote, Oshawa.

We shall know in the beautiful future, When our lessons here are all learned, When we go to meet the dear Master, and the pages of life are all turned. We shall know why this separation. Why this breaking of the chords of love.

We shall know and understand it, When we meet her up above.

order for the business part of the meeting. After the regular business, Mrs. Lawrence was called and read the following address to Mrs. Barker, who is leaving our community to make a new home in Toronto with her daughter.

March 21, 1929.
Dear Mrs. Barker and Miss Edna:
We feel sorry you are called from our midst to take up residence in the city of Toronto. We shall miss you for your good deeds, your assistance in church work, Ladies' Aid and the neighborhood in general for your kind and thoughtful assistance in everything pertaining to good.

Mrs. Barker, you have filled the position of First Vice President of our Ladies' Aid since its organization with a marked degree of pleasure to all. We feel we are missing a good faithful worker in our church, and hope you will not be so far away, but you may be able to visit your old friends and look back to the happy days in Sidney. You are leaving a lot of good substantial friends, who will miss you in your absence, and a number of them with your needs and thimble, whom I think will be in a sorry plight when you leave. As I am afraid most of us will be envious of your new friends in Toronto in that line.

Dear Edna, we ask you and Edna to accept this purse and hope it will help to lighten and brighten your pathway. We are sorry you are leaving us, but as the old saying is: "the best of friends must part." And on leaving may you gain new friends in your new home which will add to your future happiness.

For Miss Edna, we must say one might envy you your sunny disposition and cheerfulness, always looking on the bright side of life, which seems an example we all might follow. We all join in wishing for your prosperity and happiness.

Signed on behalf of Aiken's Church and community.
Mrs. A. M. Lawrence,
Mrs. J. W. Bailey,
Mrs. R. B. Duffin.

Mrs. Barker was taken completely by surprise, but made a very good reply, thanking her friends for the gift, and also for all kindness shown during the bereavements of the past year. She invited all to visit her in her new home.

Mrs. Albert Page was elected Vice-President in Mrs. Barker's place. The meeting closed by prayer by Rev. Semsmith.

TO all the thousands of Used Car buyers throughout Canada who so greatly assisted the Chevrolet dealers to reduce their Used Car stocks through the recent sale, we offer sincere thanks. We are confident you will be more than satisfied with your car and with the value you received . . . and we look forward to a continuance of your goodwill.

Although the past month saw a veritable "clean-up" of used cars, yet the Spring demands for new Chevrolet Sixes have been so great that our dealers are fast replenishing their used car stocks and can offer many more unusual values.

To all who have not yet decided on their car, we urge an immediate inspection of these fine used cars at astonishingly low prices.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends. In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST!"

DR. HAFFNER IS CHIEF SPEAKER AT Y. P. DINNER

Gave Illuminating Talk On Egypt; Banquet Well-Attended

Dr. A. B. Haffner was the speaker last night at the Tabernacle Young People's League Banquet, which was attended by over forty members. The banquet room was most tastefully decorated in mauve and yellow, which added greatly to the gaiety of the occasion. Rev. Mr. McCutcheon acted as chairman and toastmaster, while community singing, with Mrs. M. P. Duff presiding at the piano was also indulged in.

Dr. Haffner took as his subject "Egypt", he having spent over a year in that mysterious country during the Great War, attached to the Medical Corps. The speaker had with him many souvenirs and trinkets which made his talk even more interesting, and his address was much appreciated by all who heard him.

Following the dinner, Miss Rachel Fox, president of the League, proposed the toast to the King. Dr. Haffner obliged with a solo, "Danny Boy", and "In the Garden of Tomorrow", as an encore. The toast to Our Country was proposed by Harry Redfern, after which Miss Lorraine Bell sang a solo and encore. Kenneth Bird proposed the Toast to the Church, responded to by Miss Muriel Wardner, and Cecil Lent proposed the toast to the Young People. Miss Faith Stillman and Miss Lorraine Bell responded to this toast. Mr. Gardner Duff then favoured with a solo, and a vote of thanks was moved to the speaker and the artists who had helped to make the evening such a success. This was moved by Miss Fox and Miss Lillian Spracklet.

Rebel General Mobilizes Forces To Meet Federals

THEATRE SHIFTED

Provisional President En Route To Mountains With 6,000 Soldiers

Nogales, Arizona, April 9.—The fate of the Mexican revolution appeared to hang today in the ability of the rebel commander-in-chief General J. Gonzalez Escobar, to co-ordinate his forces in Sonora in time to meet the advancing federals under General P. Elias Calles, Federal Generalissimo.

Indications that the opposing commanders were gathering their forces for the supreme effort against each other in Sinaloa and Sonora appeared when it was announced here that Escobar was expected to arrive in Nogales, Sonora, today from the state of Chihuahua by aeroplane, preceding his principal army, which was racing westward from Juarez and other Chihuahua points.

Nogales, Arizona, April 9.—This, together with word from Mexico City, that General Calles was headed for Culiacan, Sinaloa, to take personal command of drive northward into Sonora, heart of rebel country, indicated that the principal theater of war has been shifted to the west.

Special $100 Cash Offer Closes On Saturday

WHICH TWO CANDIDATES WILL WIN THE SPECIAL $100 SPECIAL PRIZES IN THE INTELLIGENCER'S BIG AUTOMOBILE CONTEST. THESE PRIZES ARE EXTRA PRIZES AND ALL VOTES AND SUBSCRIPTIONS SECURED WHILE WORKING FOR THEM WILL COUNT TOWARDS THE REGULAR PRIZES AT THE END OF THE CONTEST

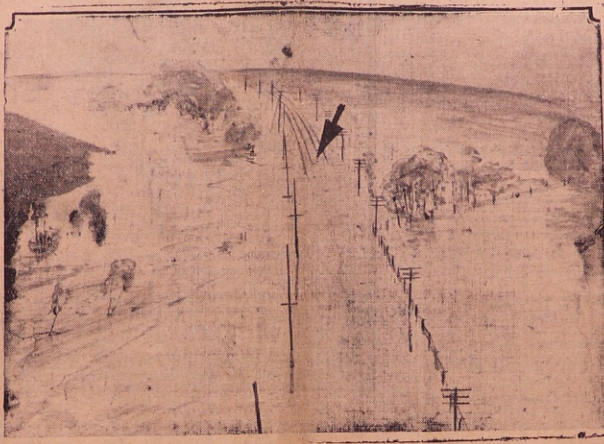

At the end of this week there are going to be two proud people in the INTELLIGENCER'S Automobile Contest. The reason for it will be because these two people are going to be richer by $50.00 each, when they see their names appear in the INTELLIGENCER, as the winners of the special $50.00 prizes.

The $100.00 in cash will be won as follows: To the Contestant in Belleville who turns in the greatest amount of subscription money, as per the rules on the Contest Page today, we will give a Special Cash Prize of $50.00 cash. To the Contestant in the out-of-town who turns in the greatest amount of subscription money, as per rules on the Contest Page, we will give another prize of $50.00 cash.

The Special Cash offer POSITIVELY closes on Saturday night of this week, and much can be accomplished by really determined Contestants before the closing hour.

REGULAR VOTES DECLINE
The regular vote schedule declines at the end of the week. Contestants will receive many more votes for subscriptions this week than they will next week. At no time during the remaining days of the Contest will Contestants be given more votes for subscriptions than they will receive this week. Don't let your friends tell you that the Contest Department will offer a big vote bargain at the end of the contest and that you should hold out your subscriptions until this offer comes along; if you listen to such stories you will be left behind at the end of the race. The highest remaining votes of the Contest are in vogue this week.

200,000 EXTRA VOTES ON $12.00 CLUBS ALSO ENDS.
In addition to the two big offers mentioned above, namely the Special Cash Prizes and the Regular Vote Schedule, there is another important offer to remember. The 200,000 EXTRA VOTE offer on $12.00 clubs of subscriptions also comes to a close at the end of this week. Wise Candidates will take advantage of the 200,000 EXTRA VOTES; these votes may be the deciding factor in winning the automobiles at the end of the Contest.

CREW OF CANADIAN RUM-RUNNING SHIP RELEASED AT NEW ORLEANS

Charges Of Smuggling Dismissed By United States Commissioner

SHORT OF EVIDENCE

Dismissal Does Not Block Coast Guards From Using Firearms

New Orleans, La., April 9.—Captain Thomas E. Randall and his crew of the Canadian schooner "Im Alone", which was sunk by a coast guard craft as a rum runner, in the Gulf of Mexico, were dismissed today by the United States commission at the request of the District Attorney.

In requesting the dismissal, the District Attorney, Edmund E. Talbot, said he wished to have it understood that dismissal did not "in any way prejudice the right of the coast guard to fire upon and sink the rum runners."

This action was understood to have been directed by the Department of Justice from Washington.

Washington, April 9.—Department of Justice officials declined to discuss the dismissal of the charges against the Captain and crew of the Canadian schooner "Im Alone". It was known, however, that officials of the department felt that there was insufficient evidence to warrant proceedings against the men under the Federal law.

Charles Kingsford Smith and three companions in an attempted flight to England from Sydney, was reported to-day by the Drysdale Mission station in Western Australia to have been found on the coast thirty miles southwest of that station.

A boat was standing by to take of the aviators, according to the mislabeled report which was forwarded by way of Derby.

Caution in accepting this report, however, was urged by Guy Chater, who had been prominent in the search of the missing Southern Cross. Captain Chater expressed some skepticism as to its authenticity.

LAST RESPECTS PAID TO LATE C.N.R. ENGINEER

Hundreds From Every Walk Of Life Attended Milne Funeral

All that was mortal of the late Robert Milne was laid to rest in St. James' Cemetery this morning. Hundreds were present at the funeral and St. Michael's church was packed to the doors, a mute tribute to a brave man who died at his post. The Knights of Columbus and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, both of which Mr. Milne was a prominent member, turned out in full force to pay their last respects to the Canadian National Railway engineer and marched with the hearse.

The service at the church were conducted by the Rev. Father Kinlan who also officiated at the graveside. The bearers, all friends of the deceased included John Fitzgerald, Charles Doran, Henry Smith, W. V. Fairclough, Calahan and Hope McGinnis. Interment took place in St. James' cemetery.

There will now be four buses daily running out of Belleville for Kingston, the original Anglin buses, which have been making Belleville their stopping point, will continue on through to Kingston before returning to the Queen City.

Mr. Anglin stated to the Intelligencer this morning that he was not sure what he was going to do now that the line had been sold. "I have been driving one of the busses myself for the past two years," he said. Mr. Anglin will continue running the service for two or three days until the Collacott buses are ready to take over.

E. A. Collacott had an option on the lines for three or four weeks. Previous to this the Colonial Line of Ottawa, Ont., had a sixty day option, but when they failed to complete the deal, Collacott took out an option following the day it expired.

Teach me to live that I may

GRADE CROSSINGS

Attention was recently drawn to the fact that in the United States and Canada last year a toll of 1,500 lives was taken at level crossings. The opinion was expressed that there would continue to be grade crossing fatalities just so long as there were level crossings, human nature being as perverse as it is. It being impracticable to eliminate grade crossings en bloc, it is interesting to note that the Dominion railway board has been giving the subject keen study and has evolved a plan to save human life that divides the responsibility between railway companies and municipalities. Plans of railroad crossings must be furnished the commission and the minimum width of the road surface approaching the crossing has been fixed at 29 feet. The board may order a greater width, when it considers that the minimum width is insufficient. Erection of fences, to prevent the drifting of snow that might block vision, is to be made compulsory and a standard form of warning sign, with large black letters on a white field, will be insisted upon. Further, it will be required that daily inspection of warning signals be made by railroad employees, and in the event of a signal being found faulty, that a flag man be placed at the intersection until the signal has been repaired. This is a notable start. It is too much to hope that the new regulations will prevent all crossing tragedies, but the plan may be depended upon to save some lives that otherwise would be sacrificed. Some time ago, it will be recalled, the Dominion railway board went on record as favoring a policy of grade separation wherever feasible, but it was realized that something would have to be done to induce the hazards at existing intersections — and this plan outlined above will be given the opportunity of proving its worth.

BUSY BELGIUM

Observant travelers through Europe are a unit in declaring that of all the war torn and war shocked countries, Belgium probably has made the most complete recovery. There is little unemployment in the country and taxation is low, compared with some other European nations. During the four years of the war the flat plains of Flanders saw constant fighting. Farm houses were burned or smashed, fields were shell pitted, trenches were dug and pill boxes were constructed. It is hard to believe that there ever was a war there, returning travelers say. Every inch of soil seemed to be under cultivation last summer and the farmers looked more prosperous than ever. Ramshackle houses and barns of before the war had given place to neat brick houses and spacious barns and stables, the roads were fine and civilized life was functioning well. European correspondents say the same thing is true of the historic towns which suffered so heavily from bombardment. Ypres is typical. The headquarters of the British generals in Flanders, it was never taken by the Germans, but it was shelled with clock-like regularity. When the war was ended, Ypres was a mere heap of rubble, with hardly a house left standing. Today, it is reported to be entirely rebuilt and probably in better trim than it has been for centuries. The builders are still at work restoring the damaged parts of the historic cathedral, and the only ruin in the place is said to be the famous and beautiful Cloth

WHILE NURSING A BROKEN LEG

A remarkable testimony for Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"A few months ago I had the misfortune to be knocked down by an automobile, my leg was broken and whole system badly shaken." writes a citizen of Toronto, Canada. "Having lived a very active life before, when forced to the still condition soon made life unbearable. Drugs and medicine proved useless, and I could not obtain relief until I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. The difference was noticeable almost at once, and from then on, during my entire convalescence, ALL-BRAN kept me in perfect condition. Though I am now over 60 years of age, my physician tells me that I have made the recovery of a 25-year-old man."

Many people who suffer from constipation during the enforced inactivity following illness, or while engaged in sedentary work and study, would find rapid and permanent relief in the regular use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Made in London, Canada.

Kellogg's
ALL-BRAN

Ha! which was battered to pieces by German artillery. The Belgians want to leave it as it is, forever, as a sort of ghastly monument of what war means. The equally famous Louvain also suffered terribly from fire and bombardment. The cathedral was damaged and the library and many homes were destroyed, only the exquisitely beautiful town hall escaping. Correspondents report that the houses all have been rebuilt spick and span. The cathedral is repaired and a new library stands in the place of the one that is gone. Belgium, which suffered so terribly during the war, is now busy and prosperous, all the testimony goes to show. The scars that remain are in human hearts.

AN EARL'S DILEMMA

The Earl of Egmonton is reported to be moody and silent and to spend much time alone pondering over his situation. Things are not what they are expected to be, and it is impossible to be a prairie farmer one day and a peer of the realm overnight and find the clothes all fit perfectly and comfortably. His little boy, the young viscount, is said to be amusing himself playing on the village green with the boys of the neighborhood. This is not done by young viscounts and embarrases the village boys who do not know what to make of it, not being so adaptable as a Canadian boy would be under the circumstances. These who would look for pleasure or happiness in such a change are pretty sure to be disappointed. Things are not what they seem. The new Earl has been weighed with a grave and important responsibility. His son has as great a job awaiting him. Great things may come of their change. The Earl has a right to meditate upon his position, and he could have no better preparation for it than his experience in Alberta. It is a different experience and preparation than that which nearly all his peers have had, but as far as life goes it is more real, less artificial, and should have given him a truer sense of values. If he lacks any counsel he might get Mr. Shaw's book, "The Guide To An Intelligent Woman," and as an intelligent peer he will be enabled to understand what might be expected of him.

WORK AND PLAY

Enjoy its jest and brave its care
And scorn no moment of the day.
Be merry when the hour is fair
Be strong upon the rugged way.

There is an hour for laughter gay,
Another time for strength and pluck,
And one must put all jest away
When once the hour for toil has struck.

Give serious thought to serious things
The stern set jaws become a man,
But wise is he who laughs and sings
And gives to mirth what time he can.

Beware the ruts in pleasure's lane;
Beware the ruts in duty's field.
Too long with either to remain
Brings hurts which never can be healed.

FATHER AND SON IN SUICIDE PACT

Vancouver, B.C., April 8.—Two lifeless bodies, those of John Dutton, saw mill worker and his nine year old son Teddy, were discovered in a gas filled room of their residence here Sunday.

Led by the smell of gas, two fellow residents at the house battered down the locked door of the Duttons roamed the floor covered with a blanket and rubber tubs leading from the gas jet clutched in his hands. A few feet away lay the body of his son on the bed. Both had been asphyxiated.

James Jackson, colored, recently passed through Fredrickton, on a tramp from Sydney, N.S., to the Southern States.

The general President made a strong plea to Kiwanians to help the immigrants and the friendless in every way possible, pointing out that true satisfaction lay in service for others.

KIWANIS TOLD OF WORK DONE BY WELFARE LG.

Albert Chamberlain Says Society Cares for Thousands Of Immigrants

Service work in the true sense of the word was brought before the local Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon today when Mr. Albert Chamberlain, President of the British Welfare and Welcome League, Toronto, outlined in an interesting manner the valuable work of this organization.

Twenty-one years of age, but in appearance not more than fifty, this true friend of the British immigrant unfolded a story of personal service which began some twenty-two years ago. At that time, seeing the plight of the friendless immigrants landing in a strange land with little money in the majority of cases, Mr. Chamberlain conceived the idea of a hostel to care for these people—a friend to establish which would tide the immigrant over and assist him to get his bearings in this great Dominion.

A small beginning was made and sufficient funds raised to provide quarters for the work of the British Welfare and Welcome League, and Mr. Chamberlain became President. Following the war the league received the support of the Provincial government, the Hon. John Martin and George Henry. In particular, helping Mr. Chamberlain in this. A large house was donated by the Government and furnished through donations, and hundreds of families are receiving food, lodgings, and a helping hand on arrival in this country.

Mr. Chamberlain's work extended further too, for he succeeded in having the fare from the Old Country reduced, and superintended the immigrant's trip from the time he leaves home until he arrives in Toronto.

JIMMIE DEYMAN

On Friday, March 15th, suddenly and unexpectedly little Jimmy, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Deyman, 806 Logan Ave., Toronto, passed away. Although in his thirteenth year, Jimmy had never walked, nor ran, nor played ball and often games as most boys do, yet he was never heard to complain, but took a great deal of pleasure in watching other boys enjoy themselves, while he sat in his wheel chair in the care of his mother. He had been for several years having the little invalid an outing every week end. Deceased was born in Belleville and early in life attended the Tabernacle Methodist (United) Sabbath School, where on the Sunday following his demise, a memorial service was held. Since coming to Toronto he has been a member of Danforth United S.S. and took much delight in the services. He was a pupil of the School for Crippled Children on Wellesley St. and looked forward to the big bus and the kind hearts attendant to call for him each morning.

The funeral was largely attended, conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. J. Coulter, assisted by Revs. C. W. Watch, G. H. Copeland and W. G. Clarke, all being close friends of the family.

Numerous and beautiful were the floral tributes attesting to the love and sympathy of a large circle of friends for the bereaved parents, brother and sister and grandmother Mrs. J. McCurdy.

THE PROBLEM:

The problem consists in finding the greatest number of words in the CHART below. The words are to be chosen in two ways: 1st. In the lines from left to right, namely in the horizontal lines, and 2nd. In the lines (or columns) from top to bottom, namely in the vertical lines.

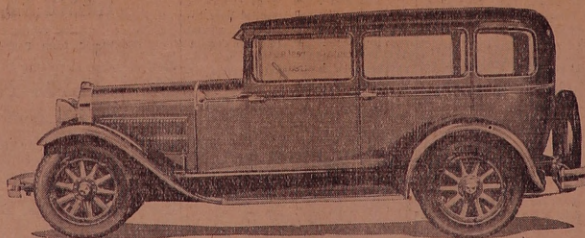

The letters selected in the formation of a word must follow one another in their given order in the CHART, that is, one letter must follow the other in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction in which the word is to be formed; thus, the word S-T-O-R-E in the middle of the top line, begins with S; the next letter in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of that word is T, then O, then R, then E. And so beginning again with the first letter of the word S-T-O-R-E, namely S, and proceeding downward (vertically) you have the letter A, and then the letter Y, each following one another in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of the word S-A-Y. In both instances the words formed S-T-O-R-E and S-A-Y are legitimate.

Letters once used may be used again and again as long as the procedure is followed as indicated above. And all words must contain not less than three letters each.

Love's Sacrifice

CHAPTER I

WHEN WE WERE TWENTY-ONE if you are twenty-one and very pretty and you are running away from it and ninety-eight dollars and twenty-eight cents between you and starvation, the chances are that you are going to New York. At any rate, it is going to New York that Lois Montgomerie and Sally Todd were going when they took the 6:30 a.m. train for Chicago at the little prairie station of Xandersville. The sun was rising on an October day—a great red ball that climbs over the edge of the horizon and surveys the prairie with the disapproval of a choleric eye. The dew was still on the long prairie grass and there were mists in the little hollows.

To take the early train at Xandersville means that you have had to rise before daylight, but if you are eloping so to speak, that is good, because the household is still slumbering. You've had to wash and dress without a little old fashioned satchel and let yourself out onto the side porch, because the front door always sticks and utters a protesting moan when you open it.

You hastily pat Bennie, the brown setter, and say warningly "Shh!" to curtail his rapturous morning greeting. There is more difficulty with Bennie at the front gate. He can't understand why he isn't allowed to escort you. You say: "Go back, Bennie! Go home!" and your last glimpse before a turn of road shuts off your view, is of Bennie standing with his head cocked on one side, watching you wistfully. A lump that wasn't there when you left the house, comes into your throat and you find yourself thinking: "This was my home! I wonder if I will ever see it again?" But you have to hurry to make the train and the morning mists disappear and the autumn air is like wine and you're on the road to the Great Adventure and anyway, it's hard for Youth to be depressed for long. Remember, you're only twenty-one and very pretty. And you have never really been hurt by life.

Lois reached the station first and found it deserted. That was what she and Sally had hoped for. It was for that reason they were taking the early morning train. Later in the day neighbors might be coming in, and it would be awkward to explain their plans.

Sally came along just when Lois was beginning to fear that she would miss the train. Sally was always late. She came, running a little, her small feet in their fancy shoes scuffing up tiny puffs of dust. She was panting and her color was high. She looked very pretty and very young, with her wide, innocent eyes and the fluff of flaxen hair under her hat brim.

"I almost didn't get here," she gasped, setting down her satchel and straightening her hat. "Bert, old pig was out all night and came home just a little before I was ready to leave."

Lois said: "Poor Bert," but it was a purely mechanical comment. "I almost got followed by Bennie—and you know, if he starts, nothing can stop him. He'd have come all the way to New York with us."

Sally shivered deliciously. "Gosh! I'm all trembly, aren't you? Cold chills are going up and coming right out the roots of my hair."

Lois, facing the rolling prairies flushed in the light of the sun, confessed laughingly: "I feel sort of gone inside myself—as though I hadn't eaten for a week, although I had three sandwiches as I came along the road."

"Well, I didn't," said Sally. She opened her hand bag and took from it a generous wedge of chocolate.

Lois asked, eyeing Sally's idea of breakfast with distaste: "Were you able to bring any food?"

"They hadn't dared even contemplate the luxury of Pullmans. A day coach for them for the long journey East! Hence the food problem."

"You bet!" asserted Sally. "I pretended a spell of activity yesterday and helped mother with the baking. She can remember that when she finds I'm gone—though I'll bet the whole family will dance with joy at getting me off their hands. Anyway, I managed to cop a cake and half a pie and a glass of pickles, without getting caught. They are in here." She tapped her bulging satchel.

Lois laughed. "Well it's a good thing I thought of fried chicken and boiled ham and biscuits or we would probably land in New York with a first-class turn-of-ache."

They heard the whistle of the train.

tant train and went to the edge of the platform. The station itself hid from view the dusty road down which they had travelled. Therefore, they didn't see the solitary figure that was coming toward them.

It wasn't until they were in a seat that the dingy day coach that Sally clutched Lois's arm.

"Bert!—Look! On the platform!" Lois looked in alarm. Sally's brother, Bert, was leaning against the yellow wall of the station, scanning the windows of the coaches.

Handing in a bold way, Bert was rather the popular conception of the Western bad man. He was dissolute and lazy. But he loved Lois. No girl can be totally unmoved by the first man who has wooed her. If Bert had not been so worthless, and if she had not been so lovely, this story might never have been told.

"Darn it!" whispered Sally. "What did he have to come for? Why doesn't this beastly train move?"

It did. The engine whistled and the wheels began to grind, but Bert made no effort to budge from the train.

The two girls settled back in the seat with a sigh of relief. Afterward they were able to laugh about their fears and the elaborate preparation they had made to escape from, resentment. As it turned out, neither family made any fuss at all, but there was a mild prophecy of future disaster, when the flight was discovered. It was a blow to their vanity. Lois's brother, Steve, felt it most, but then he adored his sister and was deeply in love with Sally.

The two runaways settled themselves for their long journey. Sally took off her hat, regardless of cinders and tossed it into the luggage rack. She wasn't dressed for traveling. She wore her best frock of light blue silk and her large hat was encircled with a wreath of blue flowers. Lois said:

"Sally, you'll be filthy before we reach New York."

Sally surveyed her best friend with disfavor. Lois wore a dark blue skirt and jacket, a white silk blouse and a small blue hat and gloves. Sally's hands were bare and several cheap rings flashed on her pretty fingers.

"You look like somebody's personal maid," said Sally pleasantly.

A wealthy New York woman, Mrs. Ten Eyck, had leased a ranch near Xandersville for the summer months and her French maid, Antonette, dressed like that. Lois rather fancied the ensemble. Lois and Sally had earned the money for their trip by working for Mrs. Van Eyck. Lois, who had graduated with honors from high school, was secretary to the lady. Sally, having been too lazy to do more than finish grammar school like all the shiftless Todds had looked very pretty—especially in the eyes of the male guests—flitting about in a blue linen frock and not doing much of anything though she was supposed to help Lois.

Both girls had enjoyed the summer immensely. Mrs. Van Eyck had amused herself by taking them on as proteges and her guests had followed suit. There was one boy, Philip Harding III, of New York and Newport who quite lost his head over Lois's dark beauty before his alarmed parents bore him hastily away.

It was while Lois and Sally were with Mrs. Ten Eyck that their long cherished and much discussed plan for wider horizons matured into a possibility. Now it was an actual fact.

"Did Antonette give you that?" demanded Sally, referring to Lois's costume.

"I bought it from her along with a couple of other things. It belonged to Mrs. Ten Eyck. It's nearly new. She never wears a dress more than half a dozen times."

"I think she might have given us some of her stuff," complained Sally, smoothing her sleek blue silk.

"Oh, Sally, we're not servants," protested Lois. "I think she's wonderful

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases.

A teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will send you, FREE Write The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

They'd just been assigned a room at ten dollars a day when Sally gave a gasp.

"My purse! It's gone! The taxi—"

Naturally it was irretrievably lost. Sally's ninety-eight dollars and twenty-eight cents had disappeared after only ten minutes in Manhattan. With only Lois's little hoard between them they faced the inevitable problem.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Ammonia added to rinsing water, restores colors to cottons, curtains, and quilts. Removes red ink, turpentine and grass stains from white articles, while mixed with powdered pumice, it will remove obstinate soot and smoke marks from hearth tiles.

Borax removes tea stains, cleans enamel ware, varnish paint, windows and straw hats. Boiled up inside rusty vessels it dispels the rust.

Lemons, freshly cut, quickly eradicate pencil marks from paint if followed up by a rub with whiting. Lemon juice also removes rust marks from marble and iron mould from linen. In the latter case, the patch should be held over boiling steam.

Milk cleans white enamel, amber plaster casts and statuettes, kid gloves. Linen that has lost its original whiteness will greatly improve by being boiled in sour milk and pure soap, while mildew stains disappear with this treatment.

Olive oil restores the polish to tables that have been marked by hot dishes if the marks are first painted with spirit of nitre. Boiled linsed oil renovates leathers and also brightens paints and varnish.

If a fresh fruit stain is covered with salt, it will usually absorb all the coloring matter, and a rinse will completely remove it.

WAGE war against moths now, and remember this:

Buy something that will kill moths—get FLY-TOX, a spray that seeps in, penetrates, and kills all eggs, moth worms and moth millers it touches.

You run too much risk with sprays and preventatives that merely make fabrics "proof" against moths. Such sprays and preventatives only drive moths to unprotected fabrics. And the irreparable damage goes on.

Therefore, make sure of real protection. Kill moths, for dead moths never eat holes.

You have real protection with FLY-TOX. It is a clean, pure, fragrant liquid that may be sprayed freely and often, and if used according to directions, you need never worry about moth-damage.

For full directions get FLY-TOX moth circular from your dealer, or send to—

STATIC

A real treat last night was the Royal Canadian Band, from station CKCW. There are few recital bands in Canada, or the United States, for that matter that would present a better program.

And add to that the fact that reception was perfect, with a capital "P". The reception, lately, has not been of the best, but last night made up for a whole lot.

On looking over the "coming events" of the radio columns this evening, about the only high light that may be picked out is the Clignet-Eskimo hour over NBC.

But after just getting rid of winter, isn't it rather unpleasant to hear the sleighbells again of the husky teams as they come into the picture running over the cold frigid snows?

It is to be noticed with pleasure that the phrase "I Faw Down: Go Boom" has disappeared from the air. There's one thing can be said for the big radio stations, they don't play a phrase to death.

BEAVER FLOUR MILLS BURNED Lloydminster (Alta.), April 8.—Early today the Beaver Flour Mills erected here fifteen years ago, was ruined by fire of unknown origin. The loss is estimated to exceed $15,000.

KING BORIS TRAVELS INCOGNITO Berlin, April 8.—King Boris of Bulgaria arrived here today from Prague. He maintained his incognito.

MACOMB POST OFFICE ROBBER Peoria, Ill., April 8.—The post office at Macomb, 72 miles southwest of here, was robbed of $21,000 by yeomen who opened the safe early today with an acetylene torch.

"Tony" was put on in the evening and several musical numbers were given. The proceeds amounted to $20. 41-31d.

BELLE THEATRE

A clever comedy drama full of suspense, thrills and hearty laughs is now at the Belle Theatre—Columbia's "Nothing To Wear" will be the attraction.

Unique in plot, working up to a powerful surprise climax the story is woven around the time worn cry of women throughout the ages. It sparkles with spontaneous humor and unusual situations. A husband buys his wife a fur coat and she mistakes it for a gift from a former sweet heart, manages to complicate the situation to such an extent that tragedy is narrowly averted.

A gorgeous background of clothes, luxurious settings and picturesque locations attract the eye, while rapid fire action keeps the audience in a continuous roar of laughter.

Jacqueline Logan as fast as the wife, with Theodore von Eltz as her husband, Bryant Washburn as cast as the former sweetheart with Jane Winton in the role of the other girl.

REGENT THEATRE

Louise Fazenda, now appearing at the Regent theatre in Warner Bros.' riotous comedy, "Pay as You Enter" with Clyde Cook, Myrna Loy and Will Hays. Davenport, is not only being credited with being one of the most charming hostesses in Hollywood but for the fact that many of the dainty viands she serves to her guests are made by herself in the white tiled modern kitchen, which is her favorite room so she declares.

ALEMITE LOST TO POINT ANN AT SOFT-BALL

Jack Alan's Squad no Match For Speedy Cement Boys

GIRLS LOST GAME

Large Crowds Witnessed Fast Games At Local Armouries

Point Ann Softball teams won and lost last night, the men's team winning from the Alemite Products, 11 to 4, and the ladies taking the small end of a 12 to 8 score from the Frontenacs. Both games were clean exhibitions, few errors being apparent, and the spectators certainly received their money's worth. Belleville Softball fans should not pass up these City League games, for these first ones are just as interesting and count just as much as the last two or three on the schedule.

Point Ann, which was a new entry last year in the Ladies Softball League, have improved wonderfully over former years playing, this no doubt being the result of good coaching by the men's team. The Frontenacs are known to Belleville fans of old, for they have been in there fighting for a championship to come their way ever since softball started in Belleville. Frontenacs held a lead on Point Ann last night right from the first innings and they were never headed.

Walter Gerow and Vern Weir handled both games to the satisfaction of both the players and the spectators, which is saying a lot. These two arbiters know the game and can keep it under control with the best of them.

In the men's game, Point Ann notched three runs in the first inning, when errors and a little loose fielding paved the way for the initial counters to be scored. The Alemite responded up after that, however, and held the Point steady with the exception of one inning when they showed over 1000 more. Jenkins relieved Johnny Kerr in the fourth, and he twirled nice ball from then on till the end.

In the sixth innings the Alemite got to "Sonny" Green for four hits, which, coupled with errors, gave the Alemite four runs. It was too late in the game to make up the difference, however, and the game ended 11 to 4 for Point Ann.

Line-ups:—

Point Ann Ladies—A. Hull, K. Genet, E. Brant, M. Genet, N. Parks, I. Hill, W. Sheppard, P. Sero and M. Hill.

Frontenacs—G. Knott, A. Tompkins, P. Holloway, N. By, D. Canning, K. Howie, T. Warham, E. Smith, and I. Thompson.

Point Ann—E. Green, M. Green, F. Bennett, P. Gower, R. Hutchings, J. Macale, Harris W. Strachan, G. Gaulin, M. Morrison.

Alemite Products—C. Barriage, Johnny Kerr, Percy Cole, P. Latchford, L. Blaker, Earl Darragh, Jenkins Flagler, C. Darragh.

KINGSTON MAY ENTER TEAM IN CENTRAL LEAGUE

Efforts To Revive Interest In Baseball Are Successful

Kingston, April 9.—While the efforts to revive baseball in the city for the year have so far proven of little success and while the C.O.B.L. is tentatively arranging the schedule without considering Kingston as a playing member, actively which was quietly carried on during the past week, indicates that there is still a big chance that the city will be back in the C.O.B.L. when "play ball" is called next month.

Though two public meetings were called and no one showed up to display their interest in baseball, it is learned that an organization in the city is ready to step in and act as a foster-father for the orphaned C.O.B.L. club. There doesn't seem to be any worry over the matter without players, even though "Yummy" Jamieson and Harold Buck are out of the city, for such players as Del Cherry, Bernard Tetro, Jim Arnell, "Jerry" Arnell, Hewitt Smith, George Ada, "Hoop" Gibson and Charlie Fournier, to say nothing of the promising juniors who are ready for bigger company are here for the summer and would welcome the chance to get into hard-ball again.

Just what will be done remains to be seen, but the C.O.B.L. is meeting in Belleville shortly when they will complete plans for the year, and if Kingston is not represented at the meeting the Limestone City will be dropped for this year at least.

Several prominent members of the organization in question, when spoken to regarding the matter, admitted that it was under consideration and that some action might be taken the early part of next week.

CAMPBELLFORD PLANNING TO JOIN THE O.H.A.

Possibility Of Northern Town's Entry In Junior Ranks

Campbellford, April 8.—Although there was much discussion of hockey matters the open meeting of the local hockey association and are interested citizens held in the council chamber in the public library at eight o'clock Friday night dealt with practically only three matters of importance. These were the election of officers, a decision to attempt to have a Junior O.H.A. team next winter and to make final arrangements for the play-ers banquet next Tuesday evening. The plan of bringing on local talent and not imported players was also generally favored. Regarding the O.H.A. team, nothing definite was done except to call an executive meeting for Friday evening of next week.

This year two more names were added to the list of honorary presidents of the club. The list now stands, Chas. H. Nado; Mayor Davidson; G. A. Kingston; Reeve Bygott; Chas. Gillespie; Chas. K. Stephens; and Mr. Sykes of the Campbellford Cloth Company. George A. Ironside was elected his third term of office as president of the association. A. J. Meyers and H. T. Scott are the first and second vice presidents, respectively. B. H. Beatty is secretary for another year and S. A. McGuire is treasurer. The executive committee consists of Les Slover, John Sutherland, Chas. Speedie and Dr. S. L. O'Hara. After considerable discussion it was decided to attempt to enter a Junior O.H.A. team from the town as well as maintain an entry in the Trent Valley Hockey League for the past two seasons. During the winter schedule in the league last season

Golf interest centres in baseball at the present time and fans are already looking forward to some red-hot games in the old Central League again this season. A great deal hinges on the decision of the Kingston Club regarding their entrance this year. Just now the matter is pending but each day there is a stronger possibility that the Limestone City will be included when the dry gets under way. The Kingstonians have already presented a right smart team and no one will deny that Joe Daley is one of the "best" of amateur ball in this part of the world. With the exception of last season they always furnished strenuous opposition for the other teams but financial difficulties were met which necessitated their forfeiting a number of games.

The Central League moguls will meet in this city shortly to draw up plans for the season and there is a hopeful feeling among fans here that Kingston be included. The Whig Standard says:

As much as the other teams would like to boot Kingston out of the C.O.B.L. the Limestone City still holds its franchise in the League, and if they have a representative at the C.O.B.L. meeting in Belleville they'll have to be included.

Of course right now it sounds like idle talk, but just the same when the rumor purports that a local organization is ready to take on the C.O.B.L. team, there may be something in it.

They played a double schedule, home and home games with the other members of the league except Madoc and Marmora who were on a single schedule. More definite arrangements will be made at the executive meeting next week.

The players banquet will be held in the Clifton tea room next Tuesday at six-thirty. The tickets are on sale now and since only a limited number are available, any fans who wish to get their cardboards should do so without the least delay. They are going at a dollar each, and the evening is expected to be well worth the cash outlay.

Should Ottawa join the Toronto Inter-Collegiate League it will be necessary to include Kingston to round out the team team 1920. The only objection to Kingston is registered from Peterborough and Ottawa both of which claim the right to Kingston is too long. Again the Whig Standard has to remark:

The Peterborough team has a lot of local interest in the league last year and the year before by the poor teams they brought here the same will happen in the coming year if the same thing is repeated this season. Belleville will field practically the same team minus "Hot" Gibson who will hurt for St. George's of Toronto. Walter Gerow hopes to have the boys out soon for a work-out and with a little co-operation from O. S. Sol, the gladators will no doubt have their initial practice next week.

According to the advance dope Manager Gerow is pinning his hopes on the flinging department in "Vimy" Utrouk, Alex Weir and Bill They who picked the Claco Club in the Industrial league championship last season.

The rest of the team will be back in the fold and "Camp" Palmer who developed into a promising young outfielder maybe in a National uniform this year.

With the badminton season over plans are now being prepared for the big boxing tournament under the auspices of the Canadian Legion in the local armories next Wednesday. The Legion are lining up some first-class battlers and after a lapse of five years it is hoped to restore the title art to its rightful pedestal in Belleville.

The Legion are to be commended and the support of local and outside fans is the one thing needed to make it a success. First class prizes have been donated, competent officials have been appointed and with a colorful array of boxers the game should be re-established here.

The Legion are offering their hall for training quarters and a number

Lacrosse which has been dormant for some years is making a comeback in many centres and there are a number of old players in Belleville who would like to see the game started again in Belleville. Lacrosse is Canada's National pastime but strange to relate, it has been going down hill for some time. Let's hear some of the local views on the possibilities here.

In value, Fisher Body superiority can be measured in actual dollars and cents. For instance, the upholstery cloth in any Fisher Body in a given price class is finer, more beautiful and more durable than the upholstery cloth in other bodies in that price class—and costs much more per yard. Fisher uses finer carpets, genuine plate glass, more substantial roof construction and roof materials, sturdier frame construction, smoother steel paneling, richer, more beautiful finish, both inside and outside. In style, Fisher Body cars lead definitely in every price field. Fisher Body designs are fresh, authentic. Fisher designers are leaders in their profession—for Fisher, the world's largest builder of automobile bodies, is able to attract and does attract the best talent in the body industry. You can obtain

Fisher Body style and value, of course, only in those cars included in the Fisher Body group listed below. When the time comes for you to buy your next car, be sure to inspect, first, the Fisher Body cars selling at the price you desire to pay. Anonymous letter-writing, in which a person's character is assailed or through which blackmail is attempted, is so common that in every important city in the United States a force of about five hundred inspectors is maintained by the Post Office Department to detect, among other things, such misuse of the mails. Claire Carvalho in the March issue of "The Red Book Magazine," David N. Carvalho, her father, the world's greatest handwriting expert, was often called upon by the postal authorities to identify and apprehend anonymous authors of 15-100 or blackmail letters.

Of hundreds of cases which her father solved, Miss Carvalho tells the strangest. She tells of husbands who lack the courage to voice suspicions or to accuse their wives directly, wrote unsigned letters to themselves in which their wives were charged with misconduct. She tells of the wife of a rising politician who accused herself of infidelity in anonymous letters to her husband and who by threats of domestic exposure sought indirectly to receive, and did yet, large sums of hard-earned money. She tells of women, victims of hopeless infatuations, who when their passion was unrequited or someone assumed the object of their misplaced affection in letters sent broadcast with the purpose of destroying the man's character and position in his community. Often poison-pen campaigns had sad and serious results.

Among many incidents ranging from the tragic to the ridiculous, Miss Carvalho tells the singular story of the wife who did not hesitate to blacken her own character.

"The K family was socially prominent in New York City, and Mr. K. was beginning to make some headway toward the satisfaction of high political ambitions when he was disturbed greatly by the receipt of an anonymous letter demanding five hundred dollars. Unless the money was left in a designated spot, Mr. K. was informed in his communication, certain facts about Mrs. K. would be published. Mr. K. was devoted to his wife. Without saying anything to her, he devoted the money where his unseen enemy had requested.

"A month later he received a second note. The same charges against Mrs. K. were repeated. This time the demand was for a thousand dollars, and the distracted husband paid the money as before.

"I want you to bring me specimens of the handwriting of every member of your household, even the cook. I want you to go through your wife's writing desk and get me examples of every correspondent on your list. Do not eliminate anyone—allow me to do that," directed David N. Carvalho when his assistance was asked.

"Mr. K. agreed to do this, and returned the next day with a portfolio filled with an assortment of letters, receipts, postal cards, check-stubs and other data.

"After Mr. K. had gone, Father began a meticulous cataloguing of the writings in the portfolio. He used an indexing method of his own. Rapidly he discarded paper after paper. Then going for a second time through the few sheets and scraps that remained, he selected a post-card.

"On one side of the card was a colored picture of the Atlantic City boardwalk. On the other was a brief message to the addressee—the governor in the K. household. An initial was the only signature.

"This card my father placed in an envelope which he addressed to the downtown office of Mr. K. With it he enclosed a short report: 'The writer of this card is also the writer of the two blackmail letters which you submitted to me a few days ago. Respectfully, D. N. C.'"

"The following morning while my father was seated alone before the roll-top desk, someone stepped into his office.

"Mr. K. began to shake a finger at Father.

BRIDGE STREET CHURCH TO MARK 111TH ANNIVERSARY NEXT SUNDAY

Rev. T. A. Moore, General Secretary To Be Special Speaker

Bridge Street Church will celebrate next Sunday, the 111th Anniversary of its history, when Rev. Dr. Albert Moore, General Secretary of the United Church of Canada will preach.
The history of this fine old church dates back to the very earliest days of Belleville. In 1795 the settlement —then known as "Myers Creek" and the "village of Thurlow" was visited by the Rev. David McLean, a Methodist preacher who held services in one of the log houses of the settlement. In the year 1815 a group of 13 persons was organized as a Methodist Society and Class. By the year 1819 this group had become large enough to warrant the building of a church. This first church was situated on Pinnacle street and was later succeeded by the larger and more pretentious structure now used as a warehouse. Two years previous to the erection of the first church, the village, in 1816, now grown to a settlement of 150, became known as Belleville. As the town grew the church grew. Other churches in time were built, but the mother church of the community developed until in 1864 the present massive and beautiful structure was opened for worship.

For 65 years the multiplied activities of this growing church have been carried on with a marked degree of success in this building. At the time of its erection, Bridge Street Church was regarded as the finest Methodist Church in Canada. It still holds a leading place among the thousands of places of worship of the United Church of Canada.

Famous for years as having the greatest Sunday School in Ontario, this Church has all through its long and prosperous history made a great contribution to the life of Canada by sending out well equipped young men and young women into the various calings of life.

Many notable men have been ministers of Bridge Street Church and many memorable events have been associated with it. The last general conference of the Methodist Church was held in this church in 1883 when the question of the union of the different groups of Methodists was finally decided. The last session of the Bay of Quinte conference prior to the Union of 1925 was also held in Bridge Street Church.

The present membership of this church, well over a thousand, no fewer than 500 having been received during Dr. Malott's pastorate with a net gain of 200 in the seven years of his labors.

The congregation are fortunate in securing as the Anniversary preacher the Rev. Dr. Moore. Mr. Anglin and Prof. Hunt are preparing special music for the occasion.

MOOSEHEART EUCHE

A successful eucche was held by the Women of Mooseheart Legion last evening at the home of Mrs. H. A.

ber attended and prize winners were lins; 2nd Mrs. F. McMartin; Gent's

WINDOW DISPLAY CONTEST AWARDS

Winners of the local Drugists Window Display Contest featuring Fly-Tox as a moth killer were announced to-day by the two judges selected by the Intelligencer to pick the most attractive and effective display from an advertising contest.

After making a careful examination of all windows in the test the judges selected McKeown's Drug Store Fly-Tox display as the best and accordingly awarded this display first prize.
This display is a particularly good one and it would be well worth your while to see it this week. Lattimer & Lavoie Drugs, Limited, will receive second prize, their display also being above the average and most attractive. The average and most attractive. The producers of Fly Tox will award satisfying prizes to all other contestants, although in win one of the cash prizes, all the time and effort and expense of the preparation, and the various windows were highly creditable in every case.

Judges of the windows were Messrs
F. E. Wotten, of Wotten's Limited, and Fred Smythe, of the Al Sign Studio, both experienced in display work and capable of making impartial and expert decisions. The Intelligencer is indebted to these men for their kindness in co-operating with this newspaper and the drugists in making the Fly-Tox Window Display Contest the success it has undoubtedly been.

in much of this area would have been dangerous under even the most favorable of circumstances, due to the high altitude and the roughness of the country. The Texas weather bureau reported good weather yesterday in both Mexico and South America, although much of Mexico at this time of year is blowy, dusty weather with sand-storms and high winds is apt to pre-

FIRST PRIZE

Race For Special Prize Close

The race for the Special Prizes was a close one during the first week of the Contest; in fact so close that had the Special Offer closed last Saturday, several candidates would have lost out on the special prizes by a very few subscriptions.

From all indications, the race for the Special Prizes is going to be close. Only a few more days remain in which to work for the prizes. Candidates should not take a rest this week.

Judges Will Have Charge Of Ballot Box!

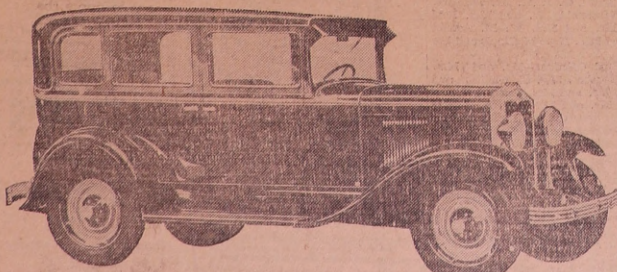

During the entire last week of the contest, a locked and sealed ballot box will be placed in the Bank of Montreal and the keys turned over to the judges. The judges are His Worship, Mayor Greenleaf; C. E. Hanna, ex-M.P.; W. E. Tummon, M.P.; W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., and G. A. C. Weir, Manager of the Bank of Montreal.

All reserved votes or remittances are to be placed in the ballot box and will remain there until the contest is completely closed. Candidates calling at the Contest Office will be requested to bring their last remittances in sealed envelopes, thereby casting a secret vote which positively guarantees secrecy in their voting, thus protecting every participant that no information will leak out as to their final standing.

Ballots and remittances that arrive in the mails after the closing hour will be placed in the box, unopened, by the judges.

To further assure Contestants that THE INTELLIGENCER CONTEST will be conducted in the fairest possible manner, all Candidates will have to sign an affidavit at the end of the Contest that they did not spend their own money in an attempt to win any of the free awards.

SECOND PRIZE

Value $987.00; this handsome 6-cylinder CHEVROLET SEDAN, as illustrated, was purchased from and may be seen at J. T. Warren's Chevrolet Garage, Front Street.

Love's Sacrifice

By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 2

Lois kept a diary of those four days spent in New York. Sally had one too because their ways were apart somewhat, after the first, but Sally grew tired of it and threw the little book away. Sally's whims had a way of ending like that.

Years afterward, on the terrace of a villa on the Italian Riviera, with a very blue sunlit Mediterranean gleaming through the branches of the orange trees, Lois read her little book again. As her slim white fingers turned the dog-eared pages of the shoddy little volume, a smile touched her lips and her lovely eyes, for she recalled dreams of youth and adventure that were passed.

It was the winter that she was most unhappy, just before—

The first entry was dated the morning after she and Sally arrived in New York. They had awakened in unfamiliar luxury of a room high up, in the Vanderbilt Hotel overlooking the Seventh Regiment Army. A stretch of the East River, veiled in pale gray mist, was visible through the blue and gray taffeta curtains. Lois had lain for a long time, staring at the pale cream-colored panels of the walls, the blue velvet carpet, the taffeta bed spread, the dresser that seemed to demand the presence of gold backed brushes. Her neat white imitation ivory set and Sally's practically toothless comb were embarrassingly out of place.

Lois could see her own reflection in the mirror that was set in the door leading to the bath. Her hair, like a soft black cloud, was spread on the damask pillow. The creamy pallor of her oval face was accentuated by her very beautiful, very scarlet lips. Her eyes were arresting. The casual observer would look for black eyes or brown. He found himself gazing into the clear transparent green of sea-water at close range. Two great pools of it that darkened under stress of emotion to emerald. They were eyes that men didn't forget—nor women.

Lois, staring at the flattering reflection in the mirror, wondered how her eyes would help her turn ninety eight dollars and twenty-eight cents into food and shelter for herself and Sally until they landed jobs.

Sally awoke just then, stretched luxuriously opened one eye, and said, in a tone of awe:

"Gosh, this is swell! I'd like to sleep all day in a place like this."

Lois laughed. "Well don't try to do it. We have got to move and move quickly my child. At least in a day—let me see—how much would that be by the minute?"

Sally groaned and buried her head in the sheets.

"When I think of my purse, I want to die."

Lois was already in the bathroom, turning on the faucets and watching the hot and cold water cascade into the tub, the collar of which is carelessly draped, while the cape, not the coat, is the correct form for a taffeta evening wrap, and it is invariably voluminous.

The Prince of Wales has just adopted a new mascot on his three cars, and it is a small bronze soldier in field uniform, executed with wonderful fidelity, even to the correct number of puttees folds and Mills bombs, while the Duke of York has a silver lion mascot, and Prince George has a model ship on his new green sports car.

Pink shoes have been affected with white corns for a long time in the South and a bit of pink is repeated in the general ensemble as in the hat and jewelry such as pink pearls or rose quartz beads, while quite as attractive and just as delicate as pink shoes are those of chocolate crepe de Chine, striking when worn with matching colored costumes.

the capacious tub.

"This tub fills with great rapidity, therefore guests are cautioned. She began to read the notice that is a part of the Vanderbilt baths. "My goodness Sally, this is nicer than carrying pitchers of water up to our rooms and bathing in a basin!"

She plunged into her bath and emerged, looking like a swimmer, with her alabaster-white body draped in a capacious Turkish towel. Then she tubbed her hair and said to Sally: "You'd better, too. Heaven only knows when we will have another chance at hot water like this."

Sally looked at her. "It takes so beautifully. I want my breakfast. I'm hungry as the dickens after three days of cold chicken and stale biscuits and soggy lemon cake."

Lois said: "But you look so beautiful like a Botticelli angel after you have done your hair. And if you're going to look for a job—"

Sally obeyed with bad grace, muttering something disparaging about Botticelli of whom she'd heard only vaguely. Lois had taken a course in fine arts at high school. Lois said: "But you look so beautiful like a Botticelli angel after you have done your hair. And if you're going to look for a job—"

Sally obeyed with bad grace, muttering something disparaging about Botticelli of whom she'd heard only vaguely. Lois had taken a course in fine arts at high school. She was rather mad about the art of the sixteenth century. No wonder, she thought. I want my breakfast. I'm hungry as the dickens after three days of cold chicken and stale biscuits and soggy lemon cake."

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Such men as he be never at heart's ease,
 Whilst they behold a greater than themselves.
 SHAKESPEARE.

TOURIST CAMPS

In a few weeks the tourist traffic will commence in real earnest. Belleville played host to thousands of pleasure-seekers last year and the tourist camp under the direction of Ald. Russel Wotten was the mecca for hundreds of travellers, particularly from the United States. It was literally crowded every night from June until September and the inauguration of this department by the City Council was a step in the right direction. The City Fathers made no mistake in appointing the energetic
 Mr. Wotten to this responsible position. He put into operation several of his original suggestions and the Belleville Camp has gained a widespread reputation among tourists, many of whom have spent extra hours on the road in order to spend the night here, where conveniences of the highest order were provided.
 Ald. Wotten worked in conjunction with City Engineer Charles Campbell and there two men are to be congratulated for their efforts in the past two years. The tourist camp is good for Belleville as thousands of dollars are left in the pockets of city merchants.

It has been generally conceded that there were more tourists in Belleville last year than any time previously, and it has also been acknowledged by the merchants that these same travellers were not slow in leaving their money here. This was easily evident by the amount of American currency left in the tills, for really the majority of the tourists are Americans. Already this season automobiles bearing United States license plates have been noted, although the season will not officially open for six weeks or two months.

There are some who state that a motor tourist spends as little money as possible while on his annual holiday but the fact remains that he must, of necessity, spend considerable money in order to provide himself and his family with the ordinary necessaries of life. He must have gas-oiline for his motor car, oil and repairs besides a hundred other inci-dentals which causes him to let loose the bank roll. The question arises
 "What does become of the Tourist's dollar?" Investigations have been made by reliable people in some of the larger centres and certain conclusions have been reached. It is claimed by these investigators that not less than twenty-five per cent of the dollar is spent in the hotels, since most tourists choose to remain under canvas. It must be remembered, however, that this twenty-five per cent spent in the hotels benefits, to a degree, the local merchant, as the hotelman must get his supplies. The restaurants it is figured get about 18 cents of the dollar and it is likewise distributed. The retail stores get about thirty per cent, the garages ten cents, the theatres six cents, while the remaining ten cents goes for miscellaneous purposes such as souvenirs, etc.

This it is shown that practically all of the dollar goes into the pockets of local merchants and the whole city is benefited. In encouraging tourists to come to this city and to spend some time here business is bound to improve and everyone will benefit. The merchants of the city may increase their business by studying the needs of the tourist and to display these goods in their stores windows. The majority of tourists do their shopping by looking in the windows and if they see something which appeals, they are going to spend.

 Belleville is on the main highway and the merchants have a great opportunity to benefit themselves by taking an interest in the tourist trade. Thus, it may be considered that the money spent in the tourist camp is providing one hundred per cent interest. Dr. Kinnear, one of the new aldermen, is in charge of the Tourist Committee this year, and he will, no doubt, put into operation many new ideas.

LEGAL DEFINITION DIFFICULTIES

Legal definitions seem to be hard things to make. In Canada the question is constantly being discussed as to when it can be said that a man is drunk. Now we see that, in Great Britain the question has arisen as to what constitutes a meal. It arose in this way. The Bradford police complained that at a restaurant which was licensed to serve intoxicants with meals after 10 p.m., they had seen people drinking with nothing more than a few potato chips before them.
 The licensee argued that no one had yet defined "meal" in the meaning of the Act. The magistrates, therefore, renewed his license on condition that he submitted a menu of a meal substantial enough to satisfy them.

This led to a good deal of discussion, and one man wrote The Manchester Guardian saying that he went to a popular Manchester restaurant at 10:40 p.m., well fed but very thirsty, and called for a beer and mushrooms on toast.

"No, sir. You can't have a drink with only mushrooms on toast."

"Why not?"
 "O, well, sir, you're supposed to have a meal, sir, and that's not enough. You can have an omelette,
 sir."

"And what is the colossal difference, for legal drinking purposes, between mushrooms on toast and an omelette?"

"Well, you see, sir, you must have something that you eat with a knife and fork."

So, by that reckoning, a hog'shead of mutton broth would not constitute "a meal"—nor would an omelette if its eater were civilized enough to attack it with an unalloyed fork.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Lindy's sweetheart was probably unduly worried when the "Lone Eagle" failed to arrive at a Texas flying field yesterday morning. At least, these air travellers can offer a multitudinous excuses for tardiness, since these pesky planes are apt to develop engine trouble any time.

"Paint up and Clean up" should be the slogan of every citizen for the next few weeks. There is always an accumulation of rubbish during the winter months and a little paint here and there will work wonders toward improving the appearance of our fair city.

The Parks Board under the new proxy Chas. J. Symons is getting down to business and are making extensive plans for the summer months in the matter of beautification.

Memorial Park, on Station Street, is now assuming the appearance of a real beauty centre and the Board will make no mistake in concentrating their efforts here, as it is at the junction of one of the main arteries leading to the city.

And, after all, travellers judge a city by the first impressions.

The Horticultural Society is ready to provide ideas and the members are keen for more flower beds. Join the Horticultural Society and make the city truly "Belleville the Beautiful."

Despite the precaution of temporary wire fences on corner lots trespassers have not learned to avoid tramping over the sodden lawns and beaten paths have been worn in many places. It is discouraging for a planting owner to see his labors of carelessness of some pedestrians. A concerted campaign in this direction might help some.

THE GARDEN OF THE HOLY SOULS

In Thy garden, in Thy garden, though the rain
 Fall and the winds beat there,
 And they stand, unsheltered, piteous.
 In storm,
 They who were once so fair.

In Thy garden of the souls, where Thou art Gardener,
 Thou who was once so mild,
 Now pruning down to naked stems and leafless
 The roses that ran wild.

Oh, Thy roses once waved in the wind
 so sweetly,
 Though thick with thorns beset;
 In the morning sunshine opening, and at evening
 With cool dew wet.

In Thy garden where Thou walkest
 as a wanderer,
 How poor, how small they stand,
 Yet once their beauty, to the hearts that loved them.
 Lighted the living land.

In Thy garden where no smile of Thine is granted,
 Yet keep within thy heart,
 A place in Paradise for these transplanted.
 Still with Thee where Thou art.

In Thy garden, in Thy garden, where Thy roses
 Without a thorn are swept,
 And each poor branch in endless wreaths unfolds
 To kiss Thy feet.
 ELEANOR HAMILTON KING.

The Potentialities of Sound Pictures

SOUND pictures have caught the imagination of the public as has no other form of entertainment since the advent of radio broadcasting.
 And this latest development of the motion picture industry is only in its infancy. It has most interesting possibilities in the fields of entertainment and education.

Think of the pleasure which sound films will bring to millions, when (in the near future) all "movie" theatres, in small as well as large communities, may present drama, comedy and music as interpreted by the foremost artists of the world!
 Imagine the added interest and historical value of news and travel "sound" films!

—And bear in mind that most people in Canada who will see and hear this newest form of entertainment will do so in theatres operated by or affiliated with Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Limited.

In our opinion, Famous Players is an enterprise which has an unusually promising future. We offer and recommend its Common Stock Voting Trust Certificates, at $51 per share.

We shall be pleased to furnish particulars of this

SUCCESSFUL MOOSE DANCE

A most successful time was had by all at the Moose supper and dance held in the Moose auditorium last night. An innovation was added when J. Howard, radio announcer for station CKGW, Toronto, the largest radio broadcasting station in that city, "called" several square dances through out the evening. Cards were played in the earlier part of the evening, to be followed by dancing. Refreshments were served at midnight. One of the largest crowds of the season was on hand for the affair.

MAY REMAIN CLOSED

Massassa will in all probability remain closed this summer, as it was last season. Mr. Ralph Boulter, who two years ago conducted a dance-hall at this summer resort, stated yesterday that he did not know what would be done with the property this year. "There would be a splendid opportunity for somebody to run a boat between Belleville and Massassa," he stated. It will be remembered that trouble over a right-of-way prohibits entrance to the park by hand.

LOCAL OFFICERS WON BALL GAME

Engaged Prince Of Wales' Own Regiment In Stirring Argument

The Officers of the Argyll Light Infantry together with some of the associate members of the mess went to Kingston last night to play a game of soft ball with the officers of the Prince of Wales Own Regiment.

Mr. Cecil Fraeale umpired the game and although his decisions at times caused considerable argument and some enthusiasm to the Argyll officers, despite this handicap the game was won by Belleville with a very close margin.

The batteries for Belleville were Col. Keeler and Captain Scott, while for Kingston the batteries were Major Ludlow and Captain Day. The return game will be played in Belleville the middle of next month and the Kingston players claim that they will bring their own umpire and win the game. Further details suppressed.

WINDSOR PILOT IS KNOWN HERE

Windsor Hornets won the championship of the Canadian professional hockey league by defeating Detroit last night by a score of 3-1. There is a story connected with that win insofar as Belleville is concerned as Herbie Mitchell, Manager of the Hornets, was for some years a member of the Belleville Intermediate hockey team. He was also a star at baseball and played third-base for the old Ontario team formerly managed by Bob Colling. Herbie was a smart hockey player and was about as fast on the blades as any boys heretofore. Mitchell had no peer as far as third-basers went and he was a prominent figure on local ball diamonds for some years. He was employed by Alan Schryver, local drug dealer while in the city. He married a Trenton girl and after leaving the city turned professional and played with the Hamilton Tigers and later the Boston Bruins.

A survey of Canadian flora was first stressed by Dr. A. W. Hill, director of the Royal Botanical Gardens at Kew, London, and last year it was given prominence in the presidential address at the meeting of the Royal Society of Canada in Winnipeg. The plan was finally crystallized by Dr. H. M. Tory, head of the research council.

HOW MANY WORDS CAN YOU FIND?

Solve It And Win A Beautiful Radio CONTEST OPEN TO ALL A BRAIN BUILDER FOR THE CHILDREN

THE PROBLEM:

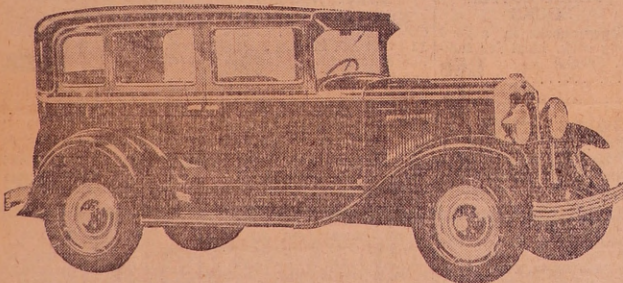

The problem consists in finding the greatest number of words in the CHART below. The words are to be chosen in two ways. 1st. In the lines from left to right, namely in the horizontal lines, and 2nd. In the lines (or columns) from top to bottom, namely in the vertical lines.

The letters selected in the formation of a word must follow one another in their given order in the CHART, that is, one letter must follow the other in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction in which the word is to be formed; thus, the word S-T-O-R-E, in the middle of the top line, begins with S; the next letter in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of that word is T, then O, then E, then R. And so beginning again with the first letter of the word S-T-O-R-E, namely with S, and proceeding downward (vertically) you have the letter A, and then the letter Y, each following one another in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of the word S-A-Y. In both instances the words formed S-T-O-R-E and S-A-Y are legitimate.

Letters once used may be used again and again as long as the procedure is followed as indicated above. And all words must contain not less than three letters each.

SECOND PRIZE

Value $987.00; this handsome 6-cylinder CHEVROLET SEDAN, as illustrated, was purchased from and may be seen at J. T. Warren's Chevrolet Garage, Front Street.

THIRD PRIZE

This universally known $695.00 Ford Roadster will be the Third Capital Prize in THE BELLEVILLE DAILY INTELLIGENCER'S AUTO CONTEST. The Ford was purchased from and is on exhibition at The Belleville Motors, Ltd., who will be pleased to show this car to any of the contestants, or their friends.

LAST OPPORTUNITY TO WORK FOR THE SPECIAL $100

The $100 offered as Special Prizes in The Intelligencer Automobile Contest, will come to a close on Saturday night of this week.

$50 in Cash will be given to the out-of-town candidate who turns in the greatest amount of subscription money by Saturday night of this week.

$50 in Cash will be given to the city candidate who turns in the greatest amount of subscription money by Saturday night of this week.

So far the race for the Special $100 has been a close one. In fact so close that had the Special Offer closed last Saturday several candidates would have lost out, by a very few subscriptions.

The roads have been a serious drawback to contestants who have promised subscriptions in the country. Many contestants report that had the weather permitted, they would have secured many more subscriptions during the first week of the special offer. However, it is hoped that the weather will continue to be favorable during the last week of the special offer, which will assist contestants in getting around to see those who have promised their support.

A LITTLE ADDED EFFORT, MAY MEAN A SPECIAL $50.00.

You are assured of receiving your paper for the length of time you subscribe for. You will receive value for every penny you pay the contestant for. The Intelligencer. Contestants are often assured of a subscriber's support "later on in the contest," and when they call, probably, after miles of driving, they are informed that they have "changed their minds". IT PAYS TO BE FRANK!

POINT ANN TEAM HOLDERS OF CUP HIGHLY HONORED

Champions Of City League Are Honored In Big Banquet

A GALA EVENING

Each Member Presented With Miniature Trophy
And Sweater

Canada Cement Company did honor to their champion City League hockey team in the form of a big dinner at the club house at Point Ann last night. Plans were laid for the big event some time ago and it was one of the brightest affairs held for some time. The banquet hall was prettily decorated in the colors of the team and hockey sticks were suspended from the walls to add a realistic touch to the dinner. A novel feature was a small table laid out in the form of a rink with the miniature hockey players lined up at each end. After trying for ten years to win the Cup emblematic of the City Hockey championship the team did not succeed until 1929 and it was in right real fashion that the win was celebrated. Chief Charleston provided an excellent chicken dinner to which those in attendance did more than ample justice and during the course of the evening the ever popular "Duke" Smith rendered a number of directions on his banjo. He gave one special number himself which made a special hit and he was roundly applauded at the conclusion.

Mr. J. H. Legate, general manager of the plant acted as chairman of the evening and his opening remarks were brief. He congratulated the team and those who had been connected with it for their achievements and expressed the wish that they repeat next year. He paid special tributes to the substitute players whom he said had sat on the side-lines and when occasion demanded they were only too willing to step in and do their bit. Mr. Legate made reference to the splendid spirit in which the League of fliers and managers co-operated to make the League a success. He called on Mr. William Armstrong to present the trophies and sweaters donated by the Company to the members of the winning team. Each player was the recipient of a small silver cup suitably engraved while they were also given beautiful sweater coats done in the company colors and bearing the Canada Cement crest.

Mr. Armstrong presented the following players with the awards: Geo. Murray, Buddy Roseberry, Bub Gaulin, Josh Maracle, R. Hutchings, J. A. Charleston, Manager Arthur Long, Abe Dix, Alex. White, Earl Macleod, Frank Goyer, Cleo Colling, Murney Green, Bobby Hull and Chad Bennett. Mr. Legate personally congratulated each one of them as they stepped forward for the presentation.

Donald Roe on behalf of the other team managers, expressed the pleasure that had been derived from playing with Point Ann. He characterized them as real true sportsmen. Donald acted as secretary of the League in the season just past. Mr. Herb Soalton made a short address congratulating the players on capturing the hockey title. "Hockey," he said, "is a Canadian game and the fastest sport in the world." He stated that players were probably criticized to a great extent particularly by those who were not in a position to do so. Mr. Soalton said the past season had been the most successful in the history of the local plant.

Mr. Legate then called upon Sam Curry, President of the League to present the Leybourne trophy to Mr. Arthur Long, Manager of the Point Ann team. The president offered his congratulations and remarked on the happy associations with the Point Ann team. Mr. Long made a brief reply and expressed the hope that the trophy might be retained in Point Ann to add to the already mounting number of cups won in the sports line. Mr. W. C. Leybourne, R.O., donor of the cup was then introduced to the gathering.

Other teams in the city league were represented: the Aleutics by Clarence Rigby, the Maxmities by Lorne Cook and the Glaciers by Donald Hurst. Following the dinner a euchre party was held after which dancing in the reception room featured until the early hours of the morning. The Bon Ton orchestra supplied music and Bill Gauhin acted in the capacity of caller for the square dances.

STATIC

It is almost amusing to think that only several years ago people used to let their batteries run down in late spring and put their radio receiver "on the shelf" for the summer. But one can hardly blame them for in those days the limits of broadcast reception were vastly diminished in the summer time, the noise level was almost unbecomingly high and broadcast stations slackened their efforts during the summer months. In fact there was a general let-down on the part of the broadcaster, the listener and of the manufacturer.

As the present summer season approaches, this condition practically absent and radio enthusiasm continues unabated from the winter months. One reason for this is the efforts of broadcasters to please their public. In spite of the great amount of effort that goes into the making of good radio programs, broadcasters are working on them as hard during the warm as during the cold months. The number of program sponsors with the large chain operations is nearly as high now as during the winter, and this assures a good diversity. For the first time in radio history the two large chain broadcasters have adopted the policy of presenting their biggest features straight through the year. Technical progress is being made too. Many broadcasting stations are equipped with transmitters of improved range that will enable DX-ers to tune in on them even during the summer.

Manufacturers as well, are partly responsible for public interest continuing through all seasons. Present day receivers have a sensitivity that makes fair distance reception possible even in summer and construction that reduces noise level to a point where it is seldom disagreeable.

In view of such conditions as these, summer is no longer a dead season for the radio fan but a good one.

MORE ACCIDENTS ARE REPORTED

Compensation Board
Figures Show Rising Trend
In This Regard

Reports emanating from the offices of the Compensation Board show a strong upward trend in the number of accidents reported, so much so that some are inclined to question the value of preventive efforts. This questioning is, doubtless, good for the safety movement as it keeps officials alive to the needs of the situation, but those interested in industrial safety need not lose heart according to R. B. Morley, general manager, Industrial Accident Prevention Association, who refers to the increase in payroll in the past year and to the growing practice of reporting the most minor type of accident to the Workman's Compensation Board. "Accident statistics are vital to accident control," said Mr. Morley and referred to the compilations covering the fifteen classes of industry in the associations. A careful tabulation is made of the experience of the eight thousand plants comprising the membership of the organization and this information is followed up by letters and by calls in the field force of the associations.

Mr. Morley adds the growing interest of executives in accident prevention has already begun to produce results. There are all told about 250,000 plants under compensation in Ontario, of which 8,000 are under the jurisdiction of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association. The payroll of these eight thousand, however, is about two thirds of the total.

In March, 1929, there were 6,236 accidents reported to the Compensation Board, of which thirty-four were fatal. This is a small drop from February when there were 6,490 accidents including 49 fatalities, but March, 1929, figures are higher than March last.

The total benefits awarded to injured workers and their dependants in March of this year were $626,806.59, of which $105,769.29 was for medical aid. These figures show very little change from February when total benefits were $626,148.48, including $102,002.06 for medical aid.

MOTHERS' MEETINGS AUSPICES W. C. T. U.

Every Wednesday afternoon at the Dundas St. Mission, during the winter months, Mrs. J. Boyd has superintended a sewing class among the mothers with the help of ladies from the various churches. The closing meeting of the series was held Wednesday after-noon. Those taking part in the programme were:

Miss Colclough—solo.
Mrs. Mott—recitation.
Mrs. Knott—solo.
Master Andrew Knott—guitar solo.
Mesdames McMullen and Farnsworth (duet).
Mrs. Delme—reading.
Mrs. Titus—recitation.
Miss Florence Lake—reading.

In acknowledgment of the ladies' appreciation of Mrs. Boyd's untiring and an assured bouquet.
Rev. McMullen gave a few encouraging remarks re the good work which was being carried on. At the close of the programme a social half hour was spent, refreshments being served.

COOLIDGE OUT OF OFFICE BUT SERENE

Andrew Johnson left the presidential office misunderstood, remarks the New York Sun. Hayes' excellent official record did not wipe out the smear of the election scandal of 1876. Arthur was denied another nomination. Cleveland left the White House in 1893 as a beaten man and in 1897 as a Democrat whose party had deserted his ideals. Roosevelt's break with Mr. Taft had begun before the inauguration of the latter. President Taft left office with the stinging of having carried only two states in the election of 1912. Wilson was broken and embittered when Harding replaced him. But Mr. Coolidge steps out serene and untroubled.

C.N.R. WIN FROM ALEMITE AFTER THRILLING LAST INNINGS RALLY

Hustlers Take First Game From Argyll Light Infantry

PLAY FRIDAY NIGHT

C.N.R. And Point Argyll Expected To Put Up Great Battle

Living up to its advance notices, last night's game between the C.N.R. and the Alemite was a thriller from start to finish. The Railroad boys finally came out on the long end of an 8 to 6 score, but not before the Greasers had scored four runs in their half of the seventh innings, and had two more runs on the bases which failed to materialize.

Earl Eyo was on the mound again for the C.N.R. and he threw them across with rare abandon, and will be a hard pitcher to beat in any game this season. Jenkins, for the Alemite, was going along nicely all evening, and the runs which were scored against him could not be blamed on him. These railroaders are a pretty hitting crew, and the pitcher who gets by with less than eight runs scored against him is doing mighty well.

Going into the seventh inning, the score stood 2 to 2 for the C.N.R., and the fans were getting ready to leave. But then the fireworks started, and before the smoke of a battle had cleared away, four runs had been pushed over the fence.

In the first game, the Argyll Light Infantry went down to defeat at the hands of the Hustlers, who hustled hard on the bases, and rough shod. The final score was in the neighborhood of 23 to 6. Gene Doyle pitching for the winners, had the Infantry men puzzled all evening, while the offerings of Gibbs seemed to be no mystery to Jack Oster's bunch of ball tossers.

Lease fielding helped greatly in the final score, however, and before the Hustlers win, however, and before the season is over the Argyll team will be putting up a real fight for a place in the play-offs.

LOCAL FOOTBALL FANS ORGANIZING

First Match Will Be Played With Kingston Team

A meeting of local football enthusiasts will be held on Friday evening of this week at 8 p.m. in the Canadian Legion hall for the purpose of organizing soccer for this season. Last year a start was made and before the season closed some first matches were played with outside teams. Practice arrangements must be made at once as Kingston Sons of England are scheduled to play the locals on April 20th. The Kingston team captured the City League in that city last year and the Belleville team will have to be at their best to beat them. Any new players will be welcomed by the local club and they will be given every opportunity to make good. Practices will be held at Pine Street School grounds every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening. Soccer enlisted many friends in the city last year and with some keen matches being arranged the game should go ahead by leaps and bounds

PLANS MATURING FOR BIG LEGION BOXING TOURNEY

Armouries Will Be Scene Of Bouts Next Tuesday Night

Belleville sport fans are anxiously looking forward to Tuesday April 16th when an event of unusual importance in the sport line will take place in the form of the big boxing tournament at the armories under the auspices of the Canadian Legion Post 99. A score of more of leading local artists are now in training at the Legion headquarters and all are said to be in tip-top shape. Three splendid silver cups have been donated for competition in the various classes and this should stimulate some keen boxing. All of the boys taking part are not local talent and some outside lads will be seen in action and one of them in particular, Beutley, of Nanaimo, has already built up a reputation in the padded ring.

Boxers may still enter providing they leave their names at the Canadian Legion Hall together with the necessary dollar to ensure their appearance which will be returned to them after the bouts. The hall is also in use as training quarters. First-class officials have been appointed for the bouts and Bob Colling and Jack McFee were well known in connection with the ring in their earlier days.

The Legion are doing a fine work along charitable lines in taking care of the families of veterans and the money derived from this boxing show will be devoted to this purpose. Seats are on sale at the Canadian Legion headquarters and other stores in the city. Those in charge, however, are arranging to seat all those who attend and everyone will have a clear view of the show. This boxing show, the first that has been sponsored in Belleville for some time will no doubt be largely attended.

SOLD OIL HOLDINGS FOR FORTY MILLIONS

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Thomas B. Slick, the world's greatest individual oil operator, who has sold his mid-continent holdings to the Prairie Oil and Gas Company for between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 turned to the oil fields for adventure while in his teens.

Born 45 years ago in the heart of a rich oil district, in Clarion, Pa., and reared with the throbbings of the pumps always in his ears, Slick fought through early hardships to win his place in the industry. After working as teamster and tool dresser to earn enough money for his start as a lease buyer, he drilled two dry holes before striking oil.

Ever since his second "duster" Slick's good fortune in "wildcat" territory has been proverbial among oil men.

rus MacMillan, McGill University; F. Milner, New Zealand; Sir Archibald Strong, Australia.

The conference will end with a reception in the evening.

He'd drilled in one producer after another with almost uncanny regularity. The cushioning field, which Slick entered when it was still "frank wildcat," then he has kept just ahead of the "pay," pioneering in virtually every field of the state. Recently, he had a prominent part in the development of the Sedgwick Country area near Wichita, Kans.

Cold and firm, Slick has a reputation for saying just what he meant. His first offer is always his last, although if he needs a lease to complete a project he has been known to say "write your own price." He never has been known to back down, no matter how large the amount.

BIG OUTLET FOR WEST CANADA LINKED BY STEEL WITH THE PAS

Railway Reaches Great Hudson Bay After Long Period of Work

Churchill, Man., (By Canadian Press.)—Churchill is at last connected by rail with the outside world, fulfilling the prediction of General Sir J. H. Lefroy, ex-president of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, who christened this port the Archangel of the west more than 50 years ago. When steel of the Hudson Bay Railway reached here the vision of the late Captain Beach, pioneer homesteader of Churchill, who constantly preached the Churchill mouth as the only site for a railway terminus to the Hudson Bay, also was fulfilled.

Capt Beach died in Winnipeg in January, 1927, six months before the final decision to change from Port Nelson was announced by Hon. C. A. Dunning, Minister of Railways and Canals, a decision reached on the recommendation of Fredrick Palmer, Port of London engineer and expert of the British Admiralty, engaged by the government for the purpose of examining Nelson and Churchill.

With Mr. Dunning's decision that work would start forthwith in August 1927, the grade to Nelson from Kettle Rapids was abandoned, and the line laid north, work on the line to connect the Pas with Hudson Bay began in 1931, with Churchill as the end in view. The change to Port Nelson was announced in the House of Commons by Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways, February 28, 1933, with the qualification "unless upon completion of survey and inspection it might be thought advisable to decide otherwise." A vote of $4,500,000 was submitted in May, 1933, for the building of the road and a decision to carry on was reached in August of that year.

Hon. Frank O'Leary maintained his preference for Churchill, and a controversy raged throughout the west on the question of choice till Mr. Dunning, on Palmer's report, selected Churchill. Steel was then at Mile 350 and the new route called for 150 miles more, which it was estimated would be finished by this spring, and is now accomplished, except for the dressing, as there is a great deal of steel laid on frozen muskeg which requires considerable ballast. Though estimates of engineers are that traffic will not be general over the line to Tidewater before September, the ultimate achievement is hailed as secure by all advocates of the Hudson Bay route as an ocean outlet for Western Canada.

Against the extra cost of building a railway 87 miles farther, to reach Churchill, was set the extra cost of harbor work to fit Nelson for its purpose. Recently it was announced from Ottawa by Mr. Dunning that preparations were already contemplated for a ceremonial opening of the line, in which he deemed it most appropriate that Senator, Right Hon. George P. Graham, former Minister of Railways and Canals in the Laurier Government, should officiate, he having turned the first sod in the construction. It is proposed, Mr. Dunning said, to ask Senator Graham to drive the last spike some time this summer, when actual shipping will be more nearly possible. Though Manitoba and Saskatchewan have longed for this culmination of a dream of fifty years, and agitation has been waged continuously to bring about the construction of a railway to the Hudson Bay, as an outlet for prairie grain in particular, as an alternative to the railway haul to Montreal, Quebec, St. John, Halifax or New York, the most coherent efforts in this direction were manifested in 1924 with the organization, in Winnipeg, of the On-to-the-Bay Association, with Brig-General R. W. Paterson as president. Meetings of the association, many meetings with motion pictures, and speeches advocating prosecution of the work, were held in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina and other places in the two provinces, and though there seemed a difference of opinion as to which route should become the terminus, the association avoided that topic to stress the necessity of the railway to "The Bay."

That politics had nothing to do with the association was evidenced at many meetings, where Premier Bracken, either presided or took part, with ex-Premier Norris and Col. F. G. Taylor, M.L.A., the leader, respectively, of the Liberal and Conservative parties in the Manitoba House, assisting the movement in every way. At a meeting here was seen and heard O. D. Hill, of Melfort, the town now chosen as the junction of the Canadian National line from Saskatoon heading for the Bay. Mr. Hill represented the Associated Boards of Trade of Saskatchewan.

Premier Bracken's remarks at the annual meeting in 1925 called attention to the crookedness "unless in the construction of the road. The power possibilities of the Nelson River since have received much attention; the pulpwood resources of the territory have been traversed, and in the north country generally, also the mining possibilities, which have since been immensely developed with almost unlimited potentialities.

The latest Government announcement shows the plans are to carry the finishing of the line through this summer working both south and north, and by the summer of 1930, the port will be open. Harbor material will be hastened in and at the same time ballasting will proceed to bring the line up to the standard at least of Canadian National branch lines. Next will come barges on harbor works, complementing equipment transferred from Nelson to Churchill when the terminus was definitely decided.

PHOTOGRAPH IMMENSE AREA

Air flying operations are rapidly increasing in Canada, year by year, and one of the fields in which the most marked advance has been made is that of aerial surveying. The preliminary report for 1928 of the photographic work for survey purposes done by the Topographical Survey Department of the Interior, in co-operation with the Royal Canadian Air Force, shows in round numbers a total of 53,000 square miles of territory covered.

Jack rabbits have been known to run at the rate of 35 miles an hour. Great Britain consumes 5,000 tons of pepper per year.

IN MONTREAL IN THE OLD PLACE VIGER HOSTELRY

One of Most Interesting Points in Older Sections Of Montreal

By GEORGE PEARSON

(From Toronto Star Weekly)

The Place Viger is less a hotel than a quiet place where one can get a good meal and eat it amid pleasant surroundings free from hustle. It is within a few minutes' walk of the most interesting points in the older section of Montreal, yet off the beaten track. The ordinary visitor stops at one of the big hotels uptown in the shopping and theater section, but if one is interested in the old lower town and the quiet life, this is the place, although it is only a few minutes by taxi or street car to the heart of the uptown section.

The clients are mostly travellers from Quebec City and the northern part of the province, whose trains arrive at Place Viger Station; travellers off the boats from Europe, the States, Quebec, the Saguenay, Murray Bay, Gaspe and Tadoussac, and certain French residents of Montreal who use it a dinner rendezvous; city hall and courthouse employees, French lawyers and their clerks. Some French Canadians live there the year around. The atmosphere of it is decidedly that of old Montreal—French and cosmopolitan to a degree. It is named from Place Viger Square which fronts it. The square was once known as Dalhousie Square and used to be the hay market for the east end of Montreal. It was named Viger after the first mayor of Montreal, who gave the land to the city for a park. A park it remains and the best of greenery in the heart of the city today. The square sits at the river foot of St. Denis Street, and all around it are associations of the past. Nearly every little nook across the square and sees all this view of the old edifices peeping between the noble elms of graceful shape. On that side it offers one of the most pleasant outlooks in Montreal. And from the other side of the main dining-hall one may see the big boats coming up the river.

Walters With Traditions.
The walters are "pally old-timers," mostly. They remind one of the walters of the old Queen's Hotel in Toronto, in the same tradition of service and friendliness to the guest. Not that the Place Viger is as old as the Queen's was; neither are the walters, but they have the same "feel" to a guest.

When the wines come in, like good walters anywhere, they decant a thimbleful into the guest's glass first, after which his glass is filled—that interesting survival of a custom made necessary when guests were sometimes invited to table only to be poisoned, so that it became an unwritten law that the host should have the top off the bottle. They represent the spirit of old Montreal, they are quite ready to talk to you. Besides they are politicians; they all know the court house staff and the local politicians and they are authorities on why Mederic Martin is no longer emperor of Montreal.

One of them, an Italian, has a fine baritone voice and often, to oblige the older clients who are acquainted with his gifts, lifts his voice in song and sings to them long after the dining room has been closed, snatches of French and Italian opera. The walters are Spanish, Italian, French, English, Scotch and Irish, but all speak French and English and have the family spirit engendered in walters and guests who have lived long together. But after long service they get a pension.

The food, of course, is most excellent, and as for the coffee, no words can do it justice—the kind of coffee one yearns for after a perfect dinner, sitting there overlooking the pleasant square, an orchestra and dancing if you want it, but not blaring in your ears.

The food, the coffee and even the atmosphere may, in part anyhow, be secured elsewhere, but the combined attractions offered by the Viger would be difficult to equal.

Three minutes on a street car takes one from the door up to St. Denis Street, to St. Catherine. At the intersection of those two streets is the Université de Montreal, for the students of the French youth. And on another corner the old parish church of Montreal, famous for its paintings. And near there if one wishes to change one's diet are several excellent French restaurants, the Pension Francaise, Kerhulu's, the Cordons Bleus and others. That portion of St. Catherine Street is all in the east or French end of Montreal. A mere walk along it west one comes to St. Lawrence Main. "The Main" is highly educational; and there again is a wide choice of restaurants, Jewish, Italian, French, with the Hotel d'Italie on the Main, perhaps the best known. Lagache's, St. Catherine, becomes Chinatown in this section, and remains so for nearly a mile westward to Bleury Street. A walk up and down the "Main" on any night would repay any student of human nature; and so would any aimless rambling amid the curious streets between the Main and St. Denis.

Coming nearer home again, back to the hotel, one again acquires respectability amid interesting landmarks of yesterday and sports characteristic of Montreal today. Back of the hotel is the site of the Military Barracks, and all along its rear the St. Lawrence River with its boats leaving their piers for Europe, Quebec, Murray Bay and the Saguenay.

The water front, all along Rue des Commissioners, is as cosmopolitan as only a seaport can be, with ships and sailors of every nation coming and going; their haunts such places as the Neptune Hotel or The Star or the Sailors' Institute.

In the other direction are the Law Courts, the City Hall, the Court House, with its old archives of the city profile in historical material; the historical Place d'Armes with the financial district of St. James Street, centring around it now.

Along St. Paul Street is the great Bonsecour Market, mother of markets, the fish market, Bonsecour Church, the special church of sailors and pilots, and filled with tiny ship models that swing on chains; and above St. Paul Street on Jacques Cartier Square, the old Chateau de Ramenay, probably the choicest historical architectural treasure in Montreal.

For one who wishes to explore the most interesting portions of Montreal, the Viger is the place to live and start from.

USING LEISURE PROPERLY WILL BE ONE OBJECT

When National Council of Education Meets at Vancouver Soon

Vancouver, B.C. (By Canadian Press).—With the object of making life brighter through the proper use of leisure, there will be contributions from, at least, three varying civilizations, when hundreds of famous scholars and humanitarians gather in Vancouver on April 8th for the fourth triennial conference of the National Council of Education.

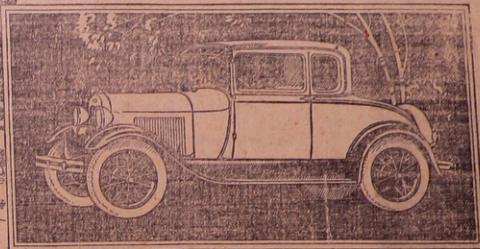

Interpretations of the functions of leisure will be brought from India and Japan, Italy, Germany and Czechoslovakia and from the younger nations of Australia and New Zealand.

Delegations from these countries will present their national or traditional methods of dealing with the announced central problem of the conference: how to use the various educational forces—the radio, theatre, literature—to provide wider interests and thus a more gracious life for mankind.

In Czechoslovakia, for instance, there is the "Sokol Movement" devoted to the physical regeneration of the depressed Slavonic race through community athletics. The story of this movement, which is said to have a great spiritual influence on that nation will be presented to the conference with certain films.

In announcing the meaning of its subject "Education and Leisure" the conference programme quotes C. E. M. Joad, of Czechoslovakia, in explanation as follows:

"Civilized man spends rather more than two-thirds of his waking life in obtaining the means to make life possible; he has only one-third left for living. As a consequence he is a shocking bungler in the art of life through sheer lack of practice. He

Alert and Powerful

SUPERB action both in traffic and on the open road has won world wide demand for the Ford Car. This great performance together with remarkable beauty of line and colour makes every owner of a Ford Car its enthusiastic champion. A short turn behind the wheel will explain such staunch pride of ownership.

Ask your Ford dealer to let you drive a Ford Car. He will be glad to take you out. Select the steepest hills, the heaviest going—you will be amazed at the power at your command. Make for the thickest traffic. Drive alongside other cars. Try the quick getaway, the swift pickup in second, the easy gearshift. Feel the smooth, sure action of the six brake system. A demonstration will convince you of the outstanding merit of the Ford Car. Drive it yourself, there is no better test.

Enduring Quality—Power; ability to endure sustained high speeds; smooth operation of the remarkable Ford engine; quietness of the transmission and rear axle; ease and certainty of control; braking efficiency; acceleration and riding comfort—these are the result of quality inbuilt throughout the Ford Car.

Riding Ease—The unique Ford Car feature of transverse, semi-elliptic springs, has much to do with its road tenacity, reducing the effect of body sway on rounding turns. Torque tube drive, an original Ford feature now adopted by a number of the more expensive motor cars, strain. Four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers cushion road shocks and provide smooth riding even on rough stretches.

Time Payment—If you prefer to buy out of income, you will find the authorized time payment plan offered by all Ford dealers most attractive.

does not realize this, assuming that the knowledge of how to live rightly is instinctive. This belief is a delusion. Savages may enjoy life instinctively, but not civilized man, for the reason that life is not instinctive, but artificial. To enjoy it, he must cultivate artificial tastes, and artificial tastes are acquired tastes."

The conference will seek to find a theory for relieving, or at least, adjusting the present mechanization and uniformity of leisure through the use of modern educational methods, the radio, music and drama, the movie, organized play and literature, much revenue as in 1920.

Special attention will be directed by the conference toward adult education, a subject upon which many books have recently been written by educationalists. It was the contention of the National Council at a recent conference that intelligent life is impossible without continual learning. Every citizen will be put forth at the approaching conference to advance knowledge of how to quicken adult learning.

Tax on playing cards in the United States in 1928 yielded 13 times as much revenue as in 1920.

Do You Buy Your Grease Blindfolded?

TOO many drivers "just leave the car in to have the transmission and differential greased." It sounds simple enough—but very few of them have any idea what quality or quantity of grease they actually get. They go back to the station—pay the bill—and drive away in complete ignorance of what has happened. That is buying "blindfolded."

"WHIZ" dealers are equipped with the "WHIZ" METEDED GREASE dispensing unit—a meter attached to the grease dispenser which shows exactly how much grease has actually been put into the transmission and differential. And of course, the fact that it is "WHIZ" GREASE assures you of getting the best quality of grease.

Your dealer sells and recommends "WHIZ" GREASE. Drop in to-morrow and have him fill out the old Winter grease and replace it with "WHIZ" summer grease.

"One pound of fresh grease added to four pounds of worn grease means five pounds of old grease."

INTELLIGENCER'S COSTLY AUTOS AND OTHER BIG PRIZES MAY BE WON OR LOST BY SATURDAY AT MIDNIGHT

Saturday night is the big night for the Intelligencer's competitors—that is a "big night" for those who are really in earnest in their efforts to win one of the costly automobiles, radios, or other costly prizes which are to be given away absolutely free. Saturday is the last day to secure the $12 club votes, which is 200,000 extra votes for each and every club of $12 worth of subscriptions secured.

Votes Will Make Winners
Give votes are the necessary requisites for success in the contest and the big automobiles will be given to those who have the highest number of votes at the close of the contest, every wide-awake person can immediately secure the advantage of securing every possible extra vote ballot while they are still to be had.

There will be a decline in the regular vote schedule at the close of this week. Wise candidates will therefore secure every possible vote ballot at once.

Special Cash Prizes
For the last time to the value of $100,000 will be remaining which will be divided among the winning the two $50,000 prizes and incidentally the automobiles at the finish of the contest. It is surprising what can be accomplished between now and tomorrow night. The thought of every candidate should be that of making the last day of the present period, the biggest thus far. This is no time for the "slackening of hands." There is too much at stake to entertain such an idea. Continued and constant effort means success.

FORMER BELLEVILLE YOUTH IS FACING CHARGES OF ROBBERY

Miss Madeline Brunet

Clinton Jones, Born On Trent Road Serving Term
In Buffalo

AIDED BY GANGSTERS

Is Held Responsible For Attempted Murder By Toronto Police

Strong efforts are being made to extradite Clinton Jones, a former Belleville boy, from the United States, and equally strong efforts are being made to keep him in the latter country by his colleagues. Jones, who was born in a cottage two miles west of the city on the 5th of December, 1895, left this section in 1912 after his father died. His mother is still living, and is a resident of Toronto.

Jones is wanted by the Canadian police on two charges of armed robbery, and a possible charge of attempted murder. He is only twenty-three years of age, and will no doubt be remembered by many people in this district. He is at the present time serving a six month term in Buffalo, N.Y. Detective Seaton, of the Toronto Police Force was in Belleville yesterday and today gathering information with regard to the Jones family. Jones denies the fact that he was born in Canada, and declares that he never lived here and received his education in United States schools. Contrary to this statement, however, it is known that the police have in their hands sworn statements from the Belleville physician who was present at the birth of Jones, as well as statements from persons who knew the family and remember the father as having been buried in the Belleville Cemetery. Cemetery records bear this fact out.

This morning photographs of the house in which Jones was born and the school which he attended on the Highway west of the city as well as a photo of the father's grave were taken, and will be used in the extradition proceedings which will be taken shortly. Some trouble was experienced by the police in gathering the information necessary owing to the fact that those who could give this information feared that Jones' gangster friends might retaliate.

If the extradition proceedings are successful, and Jones is brought back to Toronto, he will face a term of fifteen years imprisonment, and for this reason he is putting up a hard fight, aided as he is by funds from unknown sources.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Thought can never be compared with action, but when it awakens in us the image of truth.

MME. DE STAEL

TELLING THE TRUTH

Recently a judge of the province of Quebec complained that it was impossible to believe witnesses even when they were testifying on oath in a court of law. If people did not tell the truth when they had solemnly sworn to do so, how could one place any credence in them under ordinary circumstances? This week in a case tried in an Ontario court the same evil was referred to. The judge said some of the witnesses had admitted they were "not scrupulous about the truth," and he was especially severe upon one man who acknowledged he only told the truth whenever it pleased him. It was "rather shocking to hear a man talk that way in the witness box," declared his lordship.
 This habit of lying on oath is of an awkward situation appears to be getting increasingly common, and it is a very serious thing for the country and for the individuals concerned.
 Such a dishonorable expedient proclaims the coward. Under all circumstances the truth should be told, but particularly so under oath. How has it come about that people have got lax in this respect? Why should it be necessary for justices to draw public attention to the prevalence of this moral failure? The conscience does not deteriorate all of a sudden, and that is why it is so important for young people to watch themselves and guard against any tendency to prevarication.

The habit of lying—and there is none which is more damaging to the character—is so easy to fall into.
 Often the truth is hard to tell; it is so much more convenient to cover up a fault, or, in some cases, to spare the feelings of others by saying that which we know to be false. Whatever the motive may be it is a temptation which should be resisted to the utmost. Honesty is the best policy—always and under all circumstances.
 It may not seem to be so at the moment, but if we live only for the moment, we are making a fatal mistake.
 What each one of us has to think about is the future. The little fault of today will grow into a bigger one if not checked. Like a rank weed, it will crowd out our good qualities and spoil our character. Pluck out the ugly thing before it takes firm root. Scorn to tell a lie; be known as a reliable boy or girl in whom confidence can be placed, whose word is never doubted. You will find it well worth while.

SHAW'S EXPLOIT

Orval Shaw, the elusive, for whom the police of many counties have been searching since his escape from jail in Chatham, is not a dangerous, viccious criminal, but he has done nothing either to merit the acclaim of the populace. Shaw was without funds and attired in jail raiment when he gained his freedom. It may be assumed that he has changed his prison garb for apparel less noticeable and that he is not finding it difficult to secure food. The inference is plain. This man undoubtedly has won the sympathies of people who, instead of co-operating with the police to return him to quod, have co-operated with the escaped man to extend his period of freedom. The authorities openly charge that Shaw is given refuge in farm houses, while the police beat the countryside. We wonder what purpose is being served by those who are aiding him. These well-meaning folk are themselves violating the law, and, instead of doing anything to effect the reform of the shifty Shaw, they are indirectly encouraging him to continue his mischivous career. The best service that can be done for Shaw, if they want to help him, is to turn him over to the police. He has incurred a debt to society which must be paid. The quicker he surrenders and takes his medicine, the better it will be for him. Human nature is replete in strange quirks. Not many people voluntarily step forward to help convicted men, upon the completion of their prison sentences. The majority of these fellows need a helping hand to get re-established and, failing to get it, it is not surprising that so many of them turn to the old ways again. But when a convict escapes from prison, leaving the original debt to society unpaid and incurring a new one, seemingly he finds a welcoming committee of sentimental citizens who are prepared to wrap a heroic mantle around him, because of his exploit, and to aid him in keeping clear of the searching arm of the law. We wonder why?

A SOCIAL CRISIS

Charles Curtis, vice-president of the United States, has demanded that his official hostess, Mrs. Edward F. Gann, who is his sister, be seated at formal dinners in precedence over the wives of ambassadors and ministers. A decision to the contrary was made by Frank B. Kellogg, while Secretary of State, and Mr.
 Curtis has appealed to the present
 Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson. The dispute over social recognition is said to be causing more concern in the State Department than the I'm Alone, or Mexico, or any other current problem.

The first chapter of the story was when society in Washington was informed that the new vice president, a widower, would not only have an official hostess, but would expect the husband of his hostess, Mr. Gann, to be invited to all dinners and social affairs to which he and Mrs.
 Gann were invited. The second chapter came when the State department ruled that Mr. and Mrs.
 Gann would be placed at seats lower down the line than the wives of ambassadors and ministers. The protest is a third phase.

There is no question, of course, as to where the vice-president should be seated. The only question is whether the mere act of the vice-president in naming Mrs. Gann as his official hostess can give her the rank which would automatically go to a vice-president's wife. It has been pointed out that the Prince of Wales might designate an official hostess, but that would not make her a princess.
 It is also recalled that when the Prince was entertained at Washington he was seated lower than the British ambassador, official representative of the King.

Mr. Curtis, by the way, is grandson of a half-breed Indian, whose paternal ancestry in turn was French-Canadian. His contentions for Mrs. Gann recall another fight for social recognition of a woman in Washington. This was the famous case of Peggy O'Neill, a daughter of a tavern keeper, in the administration of President Andrew Jackson.
 She married Secretary of War Eaton, but most of the cabinet ladies proceeded to cut her, Jackson, however, championed her cause so relentlessly that he forced several of the husbands of the defending women out of the Cabinet. He was so grateful to Martin Van Buren for siding with him, according to the opinion of some historians, that this was a considerable factor in determining him to pick Van Buren as his successor.

VINDICATING GOLF

Miss Frances D. Perkins, New York's new Commissioner of labor, is authority for the statement that golf is a powerful factor in the humanization of industry in the present day. Many things have been said about this popular Scottish game but this is the most pretentious claim ever made of it.

Miss Perkins points out that so many business and factory executives insist upon spending Saturdays on the golf course, that the five-day week is getting closer and closer to realization. Moreover these executives get so much benefit out of the game, and find it such a valuable medium for entertainment and pleasure that they are encouraging the men in their factories to take it up in their spare moments, and on some courses employers and employees are mingling freely in the effort to keep out of the bunkers and refrain from topping the ball.

The wielding of the golf club is infinitely better than the shaking of the big stick, any time, and when employers realize that the men in their factories are deserving of their hour of recreation as well as labor, the human element will be further enhanced in their mutual dealings. Of course, every devotee of golf knows that the game needs no excuse, but if one were needed, this new influence of promoting better relations between capital and labor is surely sufficient.

I WILL NOT TELL THE WORLD

I will not tell the world my woes,
 It has full measure of its own.
 Deep with its tear the time stream flows.

For man must reap what man has sown.

I will not tell the world my woes,
 Nor wear my heart upon my sleeve,
 There is a God who loves and knows,
 A heart that grieves with all who grieve.

And I will trust Him and be still,
 Keeping the secret of my soul,
 Knowing that as I do, His will,
 I shall appear before Him whole.

A man complete, from sin redeemed
 The struggle o'er, the sorrow pass-

 I shall be all that I have dreamed.
 God keeps His good wine to the

No mortgage other than purchase-money mortgages on property hereafter acquired by the Company or its subsidiary, The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited, may be given by the Company or its subsidiary on any of their fixed assets, and no mortgage or pledge of the shares of The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited, may be made and no additional stock ranking pari-passu with or prior to this Preferred Stock may be authorized except under authority of a resolution passed by 66 2/3% of the votes cast at a special meeting of the holders of Preferred Shares called for the purpose.

From a letter of Mr. James Playfair, President of the Company, we summarize as follows:

PROPERTY AND BUSINESS OF THE COMPANY.
 Toronto Elevators Limited owns and operates a grain elevator at Toronto and owns or controls all the outstanding capital stock of The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited.

The elevator at Toronto, constructed in 1928, is an electrically-operated steel and concrete structure with a storage capacity of 2,000,000 bushels. The Company operates a feed manufacturing plant at the Toronto elevator which is also equipped with special machinery to condition grain. Besides its services as a public elevator, the Toronto elevator will be used to conduct a general grain and feed merchandising business. Ontario is an important stock-raising district and the volume of this feed business, as well as the flour-milling business, has grown substantially in recent years.

The Company's wholly-owned subsidiary (The Sarnia Elevator Co., Limited) owns and operates a newly constructed 1,000,000-bushel public transfer elevator advantageously situated on the waterfront at Sarnia. It is estimated that this unit will have handled approximately 10,000,000 bushels by the close of the current fiscal year. Existing capacity at Sarnia has proved too small to handle the business offered at that point. For this reason, 2,000,000-bushel additional storage capacity is now being installed there. The addition, when completed will give the Sarnia Company a storage capacity of 3,000,000 bushels, and management estimate that they will then be able to handle approximately 20,000,000 bushels per annum. It is expected that this new storage capacity will be ready in time to receive the 1929 crop.

These Preferred Shares are offered for sale when, as and if issued and received by us, and subject to the approval of legal details by our solicitors, Messrs. Blake, Lock, Anglin & Cassels, Toronto, and as to titles by Messrs. Arnold, Parry & Campbell.

It is expected that interim certificates will be ready for delivery on or about April 25, 1929.

Love's Sacrifice By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 4

When Bert had left, Sally wandered idly around the flat. It would be several hours before Lois got back even if she came directly from the luncheon. Sally was lonely. She wished she knew some one to take her to a movie or a tea-dance or for a drive. She had been a little back home. Lois's brother, Stevens—named for his mother's family—was her most devoted suitor. Every one had said that she couldn't have done better than marry Steve Montgomery. She would have liked to if Steve had been different. It would be pleasant to have Lois, who had always been like a sister to her, for a sister-in-law. A double sister-in-law, if Bert had been what she should have been.

But neither Bert nor Steve filled the bill as prospective husbands. Steve was as honest and upright and industrious as Bert was tricky and shallow and dissolute. Steve had inherited the farm that Findlay Montgomery had bought from his wife's people, but at his death they had calmly taken possession again, just as if the sale had never been made. The fact that Steve was only nine and four when both their parents were killed in an accident, made it easy for the relatives to assume possession as guardians but when Steve came of age the situation was unchanged. Steve's relatives continued to hold the purse-strings, and he quietly accepted his role which was scarcely more than that of general manager with very little pay. The relatives set back in comfort and ease. Lois's spirit was denied Steve. He hated friction. He would rather be put upon than fight. His mother's people counted on this. Their daughter had been like him. But Lois was a firebrand. She had inherited her brilliant father's temperament. Restless, eager for life and color and change. The relatives predicted a bad end for Lois.

"Years later they had occasion to be here," she realized.

In New York, Sally, courted of Steve, was blue-less. She resented it being young and pretty and rather fond of masculine society. It seemed to her that afternoon as she browningly counted the few coins in her little purse, that it was up to her to acquire a young man, if only to pay for movies and sundries. It ought not to be difficult for a pretty girl in a city of six million people.

Suddenly Sally, wandering restlessly up and down the six square feet that comprised the living room remembered that the same Martin Frisby, former guest of Mrs. Ten Eyck who had given her the card to Mauda Pictures was back in town again, according to schedule. She had rung him up on her arrival in New York but had been informed that he was playing polo at Menhurst and that he would be back at the end of the month.

Sally tripped down stairs to the public phone and gave Frisby's number. She knew that Lois wouldn't approve. Lois had said, when Sally had attempted to reach Frisby the first time:

"I wouldn't if I were you, Sally."

"But he told me to ring him up, if I ever came to New York."

Lois shrugged, out of a superior wisdom that came from Heaven knew what. "Men often say that without really meaning it. All of Mrs. Ten Eyck's guests were nice to us but they were not in their own world then. This is their world and—well, it might be difficult."

"Difficulties!" Sally had sniffed, and made her call just the same with the result that has been recorded. That afternoon, however, when she asked whether Mr. Frisby was at home, the person answering said guardedly:

"Who is calling please?"

"Miss Todd—Miss Sally Todd."

"Will you wait a moment, Miss Todd?"

A few moments later, Frisby's voice came over the wire. Sally recognized it instantly.

"Hello—Some one wishes to speak to me?"

"Oh, yes, Mr. Frisby. This is Sally Todd. I'm in New York."

"Yes?" he responded vaguely. "Er—how do you do?"

Sally was a trifle dashed. "Don't you remember me? At Mrs. Ten Eyck's ranch last summer?"

"Oh, by Jove yes!" The voice warmed a trifle but only a trifle. "So you came on after all? I recall now that you said something about New York. By Jove yes."

"You gave me a card to Mauda Pictures. I went there and they gave me work as an extra, but—"

"Did I?" murmured Frisby, with a trace of amusement. "That's a good joke. I don't know a soul in Mauda. I must remember to tell that at the club."

He chuckled for a moment, but after that there was a silence. Apparently Mr. Frisby was waiting politely for her to state her business or else ring off.

Sally found herself faltering: "Er—I just rang up to tell you that you really didn't do anything for me why—"

"No need. No need at all. By Jove no!" Frisby assured her.

"Then good by," Sally's voice showed her disappointment.

"Good by," Frisby sounded relieved.

"Let me know if I can ever help you in any way." And then reluctantly:

"You must give me your address."

She gave it hopefully. "Lois and I have a tiny apartment," she announced proudly.

"Lois!" Suddenly Mr. Frisby's merry cry seemed to improve. "Oh yes the black haired queen, with the green eyes. Is she with you too? I say I'll have to look you up."

Sally bit her lip thoughtfully on the way up stairs. Lois had been right. Frisby had been distinctly embarrassed by her call. It vexed her made her indignant. She recalled how he had hung around her at Mrs. Ten Eyck's ranch. There had been one night during a masquerade party when he had monopolized her the entire evening. He had kissed her too. She wondered if he remembered that.

And now it would seem that it was Lois that he had fancied all along. Sally wondered if he had ever made use of the address she had given him. She prepared dinner for Lois and herself and Bert—if Lois had not sent him flying—and more than ever, she wished for a nice young man to take her out to dine in one of the gay, expensive restaurants she passed so often and so wistfully on her way from the studios. Through discreet curtains she had seen shaded lights and flowers and shining silver and damaak on tables costly set for two, and orchestras tuning up and well-dressed people. Sally knew she had nothing to wear if she were invited to dine in such a place but it was fun to contemplate the impossible.

But after all, Lois and Bert didn't come home. Lois telephoned half an hour before Sally, somewhat ruffled, sat down to eat alone. Sally went down stairs to the public telephone. Lois's voice sounded weary. Sally supposed that Bert was pestering her.

"We're having dinner in a restaurant, Sally. Bert's taking me. Will you join us?"

"And get a dirty look from my hand some brother? No thanks! But tell him he's got to pay me for leaving him a clear field—I'm going to take myself to the movies for the evening, and he'll have to reimburse me."

Lois went back to Bert in the modest restaurant he had chosen. It was not one of the gay places that Sally craved but the food was like nectar and ambrosia to Lois after a lunch-room diet. She began to feel less tired. Bert seemed to have plenty of money. His clothes were good. He was handsome—and apparently sober! She was weary and discouraged and jobless and the New York experiment seemed to be a failure.

Bert asked her again to marry him. She was sorely tempted to accept him.

Some Helpful Hints For Busy Housewives

Scratches and bruises on furniture will quickly disappear if gently rubbed with a fresh hickory nut, walnut, or butternut kernel.

Never put the egg beater in water to soak. The water will draw the oil from the gears and make the beater useless. Wash it immediately after using and place it near heat to dry.

One housewife has good results by boiling ham in a cheesecloth bag and then turns back the bag and cuts the ham as needed. She claims all flavors and juices are retained.

When you cook cabbage or onions these simple means for not only throwing the neighbors off the scent but keeping our own living rooms free from the cabbage or onion smell are suggested by Miss Eleanor Enright, of the U. S. National Dairy Council.

"If we wish to prevent a development of bad taste and odor in vegetables of the cabbage family, including cauliflower and turnips as well as onions, we should cook them in a large amount of water in an uncovered kettle for the shortest possible time," says Enright. "It seems a queer contradiction that by letting all the smell of cooking out into the room without even a lid to hold it in, that we are destroying vegetable odors."

Waxed chiffon is among the materials which will be used for smart evening gowns and the "waxing" gives a shiny appearance to the fabric which is thickly patterned with flowers in colorings which suggest a herbaceous border in full bloom.

For the woman who is not as slender as she wishes, the charming new checks and blended plaids and geometrics or the tiny all over floral patterns on dark grounds will prove more successful than striking patterns of more modernistic feeling.

Lanvin is featuring a coat novelty when instead of the usual seaming she often arranges in blocks or other designs transparent lines to accompany her incrustations.

Many of the new draped evening frocks have as their only ornament a sparkling pin which is done in rhinestones and square cut crystals terminating in large cabochon emeralds.

Rubies are being used effectively with the classic type of evening frock in off satin or flat crepe—the sort of a dress which is being done superlatively by Augusta Bernard.

New York reports that the blouse considered with a separate skirt to form a complete costume is reported as receiving more attention each day, for with the increased interest shown in dresses with contrasting bodices or tuners the practicability of a number of blouses with one skirt is being done superlatively by Augusta Bernard.

In Paris the importance color is tremendous and as significant phase shades shown by Patou, and it is noted these colors are worn with a soft subdued tone, such as gray it is remarked, with decidedly becoming effects.

Miss April what's the reason

Thou art acting cool and coy

You're generally bright and girlish

But you're just foolish as a boy

Instead of winsome sunny smiles

You're distinctly cool, 'not gay'

Oh April drop your camouflage,

Or I switch my love to May.

I'll say you are quite perky

With a haughty swishy style,

In fact at times quite breezy

And my hat has gone a mile.

So now April come out boldly

With a warm and sunny sky,

Mr. A. R. Whittall, President of the Company, summarizes from his letter to us as follows:—

THE COMPANY: The Whittall Can Company Limited (formerly A. R. Whittall Can Company Limited) was incorporated in 1916 under the Dominion of Canada Companies' Act, to acquire the business originally established in 1888 by Mr. A. R. Whittall. The business has had an uninterrupted growth of forty one years to its present position of being the second largest manufacturer in the Dominion of Canada of metal packages, sanitary food containers, paint cans and irons for use in paint, varnish and allied industries. It also controls, through at least a majority stock ownership, Associated Quality Canners Limited, Quebec Canners Corporation and Spring Valley Canners Limited.

PROPERTIES: The Company owns a modern brick and concrete factory, situated at the corner of Charlevoix and Mullins Streets in the City of Montreal, containing some 130,000 square feet of manufacturing space. The building is fully sprinklered throughout and has covered shipping platforms with ample siding facilities on the Canadian National Railways. It also owns additional properties suitable for expansion purposes and which is rented on satisfactory terms.

Associated Quality Canners Limited owns seven modern canning plants, located at Essex, McGregor, Harrow, Cottam, Hamilton, Deseronto and Bloomfield, Ont. The Spring Valley Canners Limited owns one plant at Brighton, Ont. and one in the process of construction at Trenton, Ont., while Quebec Canners Corporation has a modern plant under construction at St. Hyacinthe, Que.

ASSETS: The net depreciated value of the Company's fixed assets and equipment as per the accompanying balance sheet of November 30th 1928, amounts to $1,092,884.96. Net current assets amount to $527,714.32. Investments in controlled and subsidiary Companies stand at the actual cash cost of $1,623,000. The total net assets, (including good will which with patents and other intangibles is valued at the nominal figure of $1.00), amount to $3,243,600.28, or at the rate of $170. per share of Preferred Stock outstanding.

EARNINGS: Net earnings of The Whittall Can Company Limited for the three years ending November 30th, 1928, together with proportion of net earnings of Associated Quality Canners Limited and its predecessors applicable to the 56,000 Shares owned by The Whittall Can Company Limited for two years ending December 31st, 1927, and for the fiscal year ending February 28th, 1929, have been as follows:—

1926	$157,191
1927	220,402
1928	278,779

being a three year average of $218,791, or at the rate of $11.52 for each Preferred Share outstanding. For the year 1928 earnings were at the rate of $14.67 per share, or over twice dividend requirements. It is expected that consolidated net earnings of the company for this year will be in excess of $325,000. These earnings are after making full provision for depreciation and Federal income taxes at present rates. Earnings of the Whittall Can Company Limited for the year 1928, without taking into consideration the earnings of subsidiary Companies, were approximately sufficient to take care of the dividend on the Preferred Shares.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The proceeds of this issue are for the completion of the purchase of a controlling interest in the above mentioned subsidiary Companies, for the completion of the plants at St. Hyacinthe, Que., and Trenton, Ont., and for the furnishing of additional working capital.

Legal opinion, Messrs. Brown, Montgomery & McMichael

PRICE: $100 per share and accrued dividend to yield 6½% carrying a bonus at the rate of 1 share of Common Stock with each 2 shares of Preferred.

Fractional shares of Common Stock will be adjusted at $12 per share.

Application will be made in due course for listing the shares in Montreal or Toronto.

From Mother of Six

"I think Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is wonderful! I have had six children of which four are living and my youngest is a bonnie baby boy now eight months old who weighs 23 pounds. I have taken your medicine before each of them was born and have certainly received great benefit from it. I urge my friends to take it as I am sure they will receive the same help I did."

POINT ANN AND C. N. R. TONIGHT AT ARMOURIES

Clash For Leadership Of League; Large Crowd Expected

Softball fans will flock to the Armouries tonight to see whether or not the C.N.R. will win over Point Ann last week was a fluke or not. These two teams step out at nine o'clock tonight for their first league encounter of the season, and it is bound to be a game worth seeing as the C.N.R. won from the Pointers in an exhibition tilt by the score of 4 to 3 a week ago.

Point Ann, who were last year crown of Champions for the third time, are striving mightily to again annex the crown, but both the C.N.R. and the Aleutians teams are right in the thick of the fight, and the game this spring promise to be most hotly contested. Evey will likely be on the mound for the C. N. R. tonight, and the Point will find that he is a pitcher of no mean ability, while the ever reliable "Sonny" Green will throw them over for the Point. So hits are sure to be few and far between, and a close game is expected.

ART DESCRIBED AS EVOLUTION PROCESS Toronto, Ont., (By Canadian Press)—As an evolutionary process culminating in the aesthetic appreciation manifested by the human race, was the subject of an address delivered to members of the Ontario Library Association, by E. Cockburn, Kingston, Ontario, yesterday.

"What is art?" queried Mr. Kyle. He declared it is a sentiment co-extensive with the human race. "Art, like heat, is a mode of motion," he stated. "A record of social progress. But art goes even further back. It is rooted in a degree unknown to human beings, with the animal world. The peacock whose beauty is beyond the skill of man to depict, owes that beauty entirely to the artistic preferences through countless generations of the peahen, and the plumage of birds and the colors of butterflies are equally indicative of artistic selection."

It was Mr. Kyle's hope that a similar study of selection on the part of the female portion of the human race would evolve a race of supermen which has been shadowed forth in this evolutionary process in the animal kingdom. He thought the fact that the public willing to attend lectures on aesthetics is most significant, and a proof of the real hunger that exists for instruction and development in appreciation of the beautiful in life.

HIGH COURT JUDGE CALLED AS WITNESS London, (By Canadian Press)—The rare spectacle of a judge of the High Court giving evidence in Court was presented here, when Mr. Justice Luxmoore appeared as a witness. The case was concerned with a legal bill of costs.

Members of the Bar are privileged to give evidence from the Bar and without being sworn. But Mr. Justice Luxmoore, being no longer a member of the Bar, had to give evidence from the witness box, and to be sworn in the ordinary way.

At one point Mr. Justice Luxmoore spoke rather quickly and his attention was called to the fact that he was making it difficult for the presiding Judge to take a note. A moment later Mr. Justice Avory found it necessary to interrupt his "learned brother" in order to keep his notes level with the evidence.

Incidentally it has long been a complaint that in the King's Bench, too much time is taken up by some wrangling by the Judge of the notes of the evidence. No official short-hand writer is in attendance.

AN ADDITION TO THE BUICK LINE

Ontario, Ont., April 12.—Announcement has been made by R. S. McLaughlin, president, General Motors of Canada, Limited, that McLaughlin-Buick will add to its manufacture of Motor Cars by building a new six-cylinder automobile.

"The new car will offer a Buick-built product in a lower price field," he said. "It will be entirely different in design and appearance and will in no way replace or conflict with the established McLaughlin-Buick line. The name of the new car, together with its details, will be made public in the early summer."

It was Mr. Kyle's hope that a similar study of selection on the part of the female portion of the human race would evolve a race of supermen which has been shadowed forth in this evolutionary process in the animal kingdom. He thought the fact that the public willing to attend lectures on aesthetics is most significant, and a proof of the real hunger that exists for instruction and development in appreciation of the beautiful in life.

Several light opera numbers for male quartet and instrumental soloists appear on Tuesday's program including Herbert's "Kiss in the Dark," Memory's Treasure Chorus—Ensemble, I'm Along! News of the Movies REGENT THEATRE Based on statistics, Hoot Gibson is claimed to be the most successful hero of the screen according to his friends. Gibson, whose starring Universal picture, "The Danger Rider," here at the Regent Theatre has saved the heroine and defeated the villain and his gang more times than any other player. He has starred or played the leading man in one hundred and twenty pictures. Eugene Gilbert appears opposite him in his present production. Reeves Eason, Monte Montague, King Zany, Frank Beale and Milla Davenport appear in the supporting cast. Henry McRae directed.

BELLE THEATRE Alee Francis with May McAvoy and Lionel Barrymore in "The Lion and the Mouse," a Warner Bros. production now at the Belle Theatre, was born in London, England. He was educated there and in Ireland and early began his stage career which carried him many times around the world. He went into pictures in 1911 with Vitagraph in "Two Hired Laddies." Other productions in which he has played are Earthbound; Smilin' Thru; Three Wise Fools; The Eternal Three; The Music Master; Gentlemen Prefer Blondes; The Return of Peter Grann and The Little Snob.

"The Lion and the Mouse" he plays the part of the aged judge who makes a decision inimical to the "Lion" who in revenge ruins him financially. The judge's daughter, Shirley, brings the rich man to time, and restores her father's honor. Mr. Francis' portrayal of the varying moods of the bewildered father again proves him to be one of the greater character actors of the generation.

"COLLEGIATE CHATTER"

By Helen Jones

There remains only one day before the first day of the examinations from which the recommendations will be taken. The examinations start off with Zoology and Physics in the Upper School. As one or two examinations collide, there will probably be a day or so of the following week designated to finish up the set.

Boys' Interform basketball has had a successful year under the able supervision of Mr. Custer. After an exceedingly hard campaign VA proved to be champions. IITA and VB put up a good fight but VA proved more than a match for them in all the games. VA did not lose one game. The players of the victorious team are: Forwards: A. Higgs; L. Maraskas; C. T. Latta; subs: B. Luttimer, A. Countryman; Defens: D. Bonnycastle; Sprague. The two who gained the most points were A. Higgs and L. Maraskas. Countryman played a steady game and Latta was capable on the defence. The team played steady, deliberate basketball and worked hard, playing a brilliant passing game which had the opponents bewildered. VA won from VB by a single basket. VA which better luck next time. The Boys' Interform softball will be starting soon and the Boys' basketball champions of P.C.I. V.S. anticipate another contest of like nature.

The Girls' Interform softball started yesterday. A team picked from VB, IITA and VB played VA. The latter team won 35-17 and to all appearances have a good chance of being the champion softball team.

The Literary Society Executive which has met this week will hold its next meeting on Monday at four o'clock. Members please notice that their names will be dropped from the roll if they are absent for five meetings. There is important business to discuss concerning our constitution and plans for the next year's meeting.

If you are planning to try for the Simpson Co. scholarships or prizes, you may obtain a booklet of information regarding the company from Miss Young, room 114.

A small brown leather purse containing about $3 in small change, a locker key No. 310 and a penknife, has been lost in the school building. Return to room 113. Reward.

Ladies Senior League game of March 27th is now complete and the Y's girls took three points from the Just Kids, the Just Kids getting their lone counter in the last game when Miss Flindall's 254 turned the trick. Other new singles were A. Kelleher 189, 189, M. McKinnon 198.

Beavers "B" continued the climb last night in the Junior League play-off when the 2nd place Pacemakers tumbled to the tune of three points to one. The Pacemakers were off form and only in the second game when they hit 742 for a single point did they appear to be hitting their stride. Beavers "B" now meet Ontario's first place team for the Championship. Last night's best singles for the game were E. Doolittle 160, I. Elliott 216, P. Walden 199.

In the men's Senior League, Gar Anderson's Y's men and Joe Legault's Fairways met. The Y's Men who are leading the league won the first game 968 to 797, and although the Fairways improved in the second with 952, the Y's men were still much better and topped them for 1147. In the third game each team dropped back a notch but the Y's men came out on top to win 948 to 949 and took four points for efforts.

Single string efforts which deserve mention were: Drumm 214, 205, Ruthford 253, 216, Adams 215, 266, 200, Whalen 272, 230, Anderson 227, 249.

ASTHMA

Asthma is a chronic affection of the respiratory apparatus, characterized by great difficulty in breathing, recurring at intervals accompanied by wheezing sounds, a sense of constriction in the chest and sometimes cough and expectoration.

A chiropractor by adjustments, removes the pressure from the spinal nerves thus permitting free transmission of the mental impulses from the brain to the bronchial tubes which results in normal function of these tubes, hence normal breathing.

SASKATCHEWAN HAS BEST ESSAY WRITER

Regina, Sask. (C.P.)—Saskatchewan's educational system continues to reflect some remarkable successes says a local editor. "An instance is furnished in the winning of the MacLean's Magazine of Toronto that the national essay contest among school children has been won by a Saskatchewan student, in the person of Mary E. Banks of Hazenmore, Sask. Both the national prize winner and the teacher of this prize winner are products of Saskatchewan's much reviled educational system. The teacher, Miss Keitha M. King, attended Saskatchewan public and high schools, one of the Provincial Normal Schools, and the Provincial University.

"The subject in this essay contest was 'What the Story of Canada's War Effort Has Taught Me.' Large numbers of school children from the Atlantic to the Pacific competed in it and that it has been won by a Saskatchewan student, and a product of our own educational system, must be a matter of pride to every citizen of this province. Miss Banks was awarded $250 by the Toronto publication, and her school, in token of the victory, also received $100 from the same source for purposes of equipment. A half holiday was proclaimed at the Hazenmore school in appreciation of the victory. Mary Banks is a real Westerner. Her parents were pioneers in the Hazenmore district, having gone in there in 1911, when the nearest town was sixty miles away.

"It is not our desire to seek to inject a political note into the triumph of this Saskatchewan girl, but this triumph does suggest that when the educational system of this province can turn out the Dominion's prize-winning

TO SELL LIQUOR ON OCEAN TRIPS

New Owners Of Leviathan Plan To Resume Practice

Washington, April 12.—Amendments to the National Prohibition Act that would extend its provisions to the high seas undoubtedly will be proposed in Congress as a result of the announcement of the new owners of the Leviathan that the sale of liquor will be resumed on that vessel and other ships of the United States Lines, Inc., on westward-bound voyages.

Officials of the Department of Justice and the Anti-Saloon League conceded today, that under the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Cunard case, the owners of Leviathan would be entirely within their rights in authorizing the sale of liquor outside the three-mile limit on eastward as well as westward-bound voyages.

While such spokesmen for prohibition as Senator Borah, of Idaho and Representative Cramton, of Michigan, declined to comment on this new development in relation to the liquor law, it was clearly indicated in city quarters that attempts would be made to extend the prohibitory statute to the high seas to circumvent the evident purpose of owners of American-flag ships to provide intoxicating beverages for their passengers.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of treasury prohibition activities, expressed the opinion that the Supreme Court decision was so sweeping that owners of American-flag ships moving out of New York could take liquor aboard for runners outside the three-mile limit without coming into conflict with existing law.

He emphasized, however, that American ships could stock with liquor at American ports only to the extent of their needs for medicinal purposes as determined by the public health service.

At Anti-Saloon League headquarters it was pointed out that in the Cunard decision, which was handed down for the Supreme Court by Chief Justice Taft in 1923, it was clearly set forth that it was within the power of Congress to extend the prohibitions of the Volstead Act to the high seas.

Chief Justice Taft ruled that the Volstead Act "is not intended to apply to domestic vessels when outside the territorial waters of the United States" and added:

"In so saying we do not intend to imply that Congress is without power to regulate the conduct of domestic merchant ships when on the high seas or to exert such control over them when in foreign waters as may be affirmatively or tacitly permitted by the territorial sovereign."

GRAIN VESSELS READY TO LEAVE

Fort William A Scene Of Activity As Ice Breaks Up

Fort William, Ont., April 12.—With steam up and their officers and men fretting impatiently, 35 grain boats in port here are awaiting the command that will send them plunging through the broken ice of Thunder Bay, racing eastward with millions of bushels of Western Canada's grain.

Veteran lake mariners watched the progress of a tiny speck away out in the bay, creeping along with ice-breaking slowness. It is the ice-breaking tug James Whalen, which for several days has bucked the ice of Thunder Bay, loosening it so that when favorable winds blow off shore it will move out into the open lake.

Immediately the winds shift the big icefields wedge right in the bay conditions will be favorable for a start. Already, and so soon that lake-head navigators are surprised, word has been received that the St. Mary's River is open at Whitefish. It is considered that when Whitefish is clear of ice, navigation is declared open.

In view of the unexpected report from the east, however, navigators have made no announcement as to the actual start of navigation here.

All but one of the 40 boats wintering here are grain boats. Thirty-five of them carry winter storage grain and all of these will be ready when word comes that the lake is clear. Altogether they will carry approximately 8,000,000 bushels of grain and the long procession will be in progress in a few days.

This departure of the winter fleet each year is one of the sights of Canada. Chief engineers, captains and sailors have been arriving daily from their homes in the east and the whole 15 miles of water-front, speckled with giant elevators and huge grain cars, has for some days been a scene of great activity.

PICTON YOUNG PEOPLE HOSTS

Members Of Holloway St. Branch Spent Enjoyable Evening

The social evening sponsored by the Picton Young People's Society to the Holloway Street Church Young People last night, was a most decided success. About thirty-five of the Bel-ville Young People made the trip to Picton accompanied by Rev. L. S. White and Mrs. Charles A. White.

After the introductory hymn, the president of the Picton Society, Mr. Norman Mein, expressed the delight felt at having the Belleville Young People with them for the evening. In reply, Mr. Wright spoke of the excellent hospitality always extended to visitors to Picton leagues, societies and conventions.

The program was in charge of the Belleville Young People and was opened with an excellently rendered piano solo by Miss Jessie Vandewater, followed by a reading by Anne Ashley.

The main feature of the evening was an Easter story told by Mrs. White, "In the Garden". Mrs. White in telling the story expressed her eloquent talent to a great extent. The last item on the program was a solo by Miss Irene Woodley, a sequel to the story told by Mrs. White, and also entitled, "In the Garden".

As a novel surprise feature, "Stump" speeches were introduced and did much to enliven the evening's entertainment, the subjects taken being of a humorous nature.

Lunch was then served to about 110 people. At the close of the evening, fitting remarks from the visiting president were made assuring the Picton Young People that a most excellent time had been enjoyed.

Ontario man is going to an American university as "nut specialist." He will have his hands full looking after the student body.

A HEART ATTACK Wielded Powerful Influence In West With Manitoba Free Press

New York, April 17.—Sir Clifford Sifton, long prominent in Canadian political and business affairs, died this morning in the Roosevelt Hospital in this city. He had come from his winter home in Florida to consult a heart specialist. Dr. Evans of New York. Death was due to heart disease from which Sir Clifford had suffered for the last two years.

Lady Sifton died about four years ago. The surviving sons of Sir Clifford are John W., of the Manitoba Free Press, Winnipeg; Harry A., of the Financial Times, London; and Victor, of the Regina Leader and Post, Regina, Sask. Another son, Winfield died last June.

Sir Clifford recently celebrated his 88th birthday. He was born in Middlesex county, Ont., March 10, 1841. One of his sons, Major J. W. Sifton of Winnipeg was with his father when he died. He is expected to announce the funeral arrangements this afternoon.

Lady Sifton, formerly Elizabeth Arma Burrows, to whom Sir Clifford was married in 1884, died February 1925.

STILL HOPE FOR PROPOSED BRIDGE

Governor Roosevelt, Who Vetoed Measure To Visit Area

Brookville, Ont., April 17.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York State, who vetoed on Monday the two bills which had passed the New York State Legislature regarding the proposed Brookville-Morrisville International Bridge, is expected to pay a visit to the upper St. Lawrence this summer to investigate the situation. Advice received here from Albany, N. Y., credits the Governor with having expressed the opinion that the bridge is necessary work and with having decided to endeavor to bring about its construction under joint public auspices. Local promoters of the undertaking, who were ready to proceed with construction when the veto was made, decline to comment but feel hopeful as regards the future.

BELLEVILLE CLUB BEING RENOVATED

When the Belleville City Club opens its doors again about the end of May, an entirely different aspect will be presented to the members and their friends since extensive repairs and decorations are being made to the interior at the present time. When these renovations are completed, there is little doubt that the Belleville Club will present the finest appearance of any social club in Canada.

Included in the alterations is an additional bathroom on the third floor, complete repapering of most of the rooms, and painting of woodwork in the building. Work has already been started, and all the contracts have been let. The liquidation of the mortgage and the extensive decorations which are being made are the direct result of the donation by Mr. Hume.

POWERS REJECT SOVIET PLANS

Russians Plead for Maximum Displacement For Warships

CHILLY RECEPTION

Germany Felt It Unwise To Adopt Proposal For Disarmament

Geneva, April 17.—The Soviet plan for reducing world armaments presented to the preparatory disarmament commission by Maxim Litvinoff, vice-minister for foreign affairs, got a chilly reception today.

Even Germany which has constantly protested that she has been discriminated by a treaty and that other nations are not living up to their promises in lessening their armaments, felt that it was unwise to endorse the Russian idea of agreeing now upon the figures of reduction.

Japan, Chile and France all rejected the Soviet project as impossible because they contended it failed to take in consideration realities.

Geneva, April 17.—Soviet disarmament proposals which would entail the scrapping of eight hundred thousand tons of American warships were explained today to the session of the preparatory commission on the disarmament of the League of Nations.

General Alexander Langevo, Russian military expert in defending and explaining his country's proposals, pleaded for the maximum of ten thousand tons displacement for warships as against thirty-five thousand tons fixed with the Washington conference.

He called attention to the limits of ten thousand tons set for German warships by the Allies and said their action proved that the size was as large as was needed for defense and small enough to restrain the owners from aggressive warfare.

INSPECTION OF CADETS WILL BE HELD MAY 1ST

Commander Of District No. Three Notifies Local Corps Heads

The annual Belleville Collegiate Cadet Corps inspection will take place this year on the 1st day of May, according to information received this morning from Captain J. E. Kingston, of Kingston. The Collegiate corps will be larger than ever this spring, some two hundred cadets making up the personnel. As usual, it is expected that the Corps will make a fine showing, as they have been drilling faithfully for the past two months.

Although nothing definite had been decided on this morning with regard to the Public School cadets inspection, it is presumed that they will be held on the morning of the 1st of May as is usually the case. Captain Kingston will again have charge of the inspections, as he is the head of Military District No. 3.

SUSPECT ARRESTED

St. Catharines Taxi-Cab Driver Implicated In Daring Hold-up

CRIMINAL AGAIN LANDS IN TOILS

Ernest Thiebault Is Victim Of Sergeant's Good Memory

Has Previous Record

Was Recently Freed From Leavenworth Prison In Kansas

Ernest Thiebault is again in the hands of the police, this time owing to the fact that he has a poor memory. Last night he appeared at the Police Station asking for a night's lodging, and gave the name of Cecil Winter. This morning, however, when Sergeant Harman was checking the "guests" out the man forgot the name he had given on entering, and told the Sergeant that his name was Roy Miller. As this did not coincide with the name he had given in the evening, the officer became suspicious and quizzed the man, with the result that he admitted that his name was Ernest Thiebault.

Here the good memory of the police officer came into prominence, and he recalled that four years before a criminal had arrived at the Belleville Police station from Cornwall, describing an Ernest Thiebault, who was wanted for theft in that place. The circular was resuscitated, identifying beyond doubt the man who had remained at the Station last night as the man wanted in Cornwall. He was promptly escorted back to the cells again.

Later on when questioned closely, Thiebault admitted that he was the man wanted in Cornwall, and also that he had just completed a term of three years in Leavenworth Prison, Kansas. He also admitted that as a youngster he had been sent from North Bay to St. John's Industrial School, where he was kept until he was twenty-one. This morning in Police Court he was remanded for a week on a charge of vagrancy; and it is noted that he is investigated.

Must Testify In Probe Of Famous Judge Hardy Case

Sacramento, Calif., April 17.—Prosecutors in the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy definitively announced today that Amice Semple McPherson, the evangelist, would be called to the stand as a state witness in the case.

Mrs. McPherson, for whom Judge Hardy is alleged to have illegally acted as an attorney while her kidnapping story was being investigated two years ago, has been under subpoena since the opening of the impeachment trial but until today the prosecuting officers were undecided as to whether she should be asked to testify.

The evangelist testified at the legislative hearing two months ago that $2,500 she gave Judge Hardy was a "Love Offering" and not a fee for legal service.

MAKING BALFOUR NOTE A TARGET

Labor Party Never Supported Measure Regarding War Debts

London, April 17.—The British election campaign was enlivened today as it had not been since its inception with the Repeal of the Balfour note, which fixed the status of Britain's war debtors. Snowden, who was chancellor of the Exchequer in Ramsay MacDonald's labor government, said the Labor party had never subscribed to the principle of the Balfour note, and would hold itself open if the circumstances arose to repudiate its conditions.

The answer of the government and expected affirmation or disavowal by Ramsay MacDonald were anticipated with extreme interest today, since the admittedly strong position of the Labor party made its view on such the integral part of Europe's war debt structure on the Balfour note of extreme importance.

DEVASTATING SNOW AND SLEET STORM SWEEPS ATLANTIC COAST

Newspaper Service Crippled As Winds Rip Wires

HEAVY LOSS AT SEA

Liners Are Forced To Remain In New York Harbor

New York, April 17.—The Atlantic coast from Maine to Virginia was strewn with wreckage today piled up under the battering of a north east storm.

While the wind and waves sank a small craft, demoralized shipping and damaged shore structures along the coast, the storm swept inland carrying rain and snow as far west as Western New York and Pennsylvania.

In the New harbor, a tug and two barges were sunk. The crew of eighteen was rescued from the tug just before it went down. One of the barges carried a $250,000 cargo of whale oil. Six liners were held outside the harbor waiting for the weather to moderate before proceeding to their ports. The storm caused one death in Connecticut where a man was struck on the head by a section of fence blown down by the wind.

Philadelphia, Penn., April 17.—Portions of Northern and Western Pennsylvania were in the grip of an April blizzard today with snow many inches deep in various sections. In Bradford county, United States, the Weather Bureau announced a snowfall of more than eleven inches had occurred.

At Ellentown, Sullivan County, the snow fall was more than a foot and the highways were made impassable in some places by the deep drifts. In most localities the snow and sleet was driven by a strong northerly wind, which caused considerable damage.

Montreal, Que., April 17.—Montreal and district today was under a blanket of snow. The heavy sleet storm throughout the night followed by snow brought havoc with communication wires and newspaper and other services out of Montreal to Quebec City, Chicoutimi, Three Rivers, Sherbrooke and the Maritime Provinces were seriously affected.

The Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telegraphs and the Bell Telephone Company reported that many wires had snapped owing to the sleet.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

Farewell!

We promise—hope—believe—there breathes despair.

ST. LAWRENCE BRIDGE

Governor Roosevelt's action in vetoing the St. Lawrence River Bridge Bill in the New York State Legislature yesterday will undoubtedly result in the abandonment of the project to erect the international structure by Canadian capitalists. It was firmly believed that young Teddy would sanction the measure and his refusal will not be warmly received by Canadians. The town of Brockville have for some time maintained the faith that the bridge bills would ultimately be sanctioned as the piers were laid some years ago but the movement to erect the bridge has since been dormant. However last year it was revived, new interest manifested itself and the Canadian Gov't. placed the stamp of approval upon the venture. The Governor states that it is not the policy of the Government to issue franchises for toll bridges on the main highways. The New York Legislature had already approved of the move as well as the Washington Congress and Canadian Government. Why the Governor should turn back bills that would result in equal benefit to both countries is beyond significance. It would appear that had United States capital been solely involved the bills would not have met their present fate. The bridge would undoubtedly to a great extent have facilitated traffic between New York State and Eastern Ontario and cities on the other side of the St. Lawrence might have been reached within a few hours travel by motor. Governor Roosevelt in the course of vetoing the bills has declared that this enterprise should be controlled publicly rather than by private interests. In that case the bridge will never become a reality until the Governments of both countries come to the full realization of the need of the structure and build it themselves. The revenue derived would pay for the bridge and shareholders would receive excellent interest on their investment. Capitalists alone are in a position to foster the movement and to them belong the spoils. The St. Lawrence Bridge question has been a pressing one and just when it appeared as though the connecting link might be built it has been shelved. We are living in an age of speed and certainly the old ferry system while it has served the purpose is antiquated and to keep abreast of the times and to cater to the motor car where the trend of traffic now lies, the most modern and up to date facilities must be provided. The St. Lawrence area is the one district where a connecting link in the form of an International bridge has not been built.

Tourist traffic is assuming unprecedented proportions and the bridge would bring more American travellers to Canada and likewise more Canadians would have a desire to visit the world renowned Thousand Islands and American shores.

TH ENW TREASURER

The destinies of the city's finances have passed into new hands insofar as the City Trusteeship is concerned. Mr. H. B. Stock late City Auditor, has received a well-merited promotion in his appointment as the new official. Mr. Stock has served the city faithfully and well for the past nine years and he was the logical choice for the position. He has had sufficient experience in matters of finance to be well qualified to handle his new duties and the ratepayers will no doubt support the Council's action. Mr. Stock was instrumental in the upbuilding of one of the city's finest institutions, the Belleville Agricultural Society of which he has served as Secretary with distinction to himself and the Board. A keen business man is alert to every opportunity to save the corporation a few dollars and in his official capacity as Auditor he has more than fulfilled every trust that was placed in him. The treasurer's is a responsible position but he enjoys the co-operation of his conferees and the City Council and will no doubt make a success of it as he has in the role which he has just vacated. The fact that he has had previous experience in his Stock assumes his new duties with the best wishes of a legion of friends in this city.

JACK MINER

Jack Miner was 64 recently and Canadians should be proud of him as a fellow citizen. He says he is going to live to be a hundred or die in the attempt. Let us hope he will survive to be as old as the oldest of the swans that he entertains at times in his bird sanctuary. He has taught the youth of Canada some wonderful lessons about the bird life of the country and the value of their co-operation for the farmer, the gardener, the forester and all who rely on the products of the earth and its kindly fruits for their prosperity. What he has done in making friends with the birds of the air is a remarkable record and it is more than interesting to hear how from untamed and wild creatures they came to recognize him as a friend and protector and to trust him. They first knew him as an enemy as they know so many of us but their friendship can be gained and Jack Miner can show anyone how it can be done.

FORD AND THE MARKET

Henry Ford dropped something of a bombshell the other day when he formed an interviewer that he didn't know anything about the stock market, adding that he "never looked at a stock market quotation in his life." The reporter was trying to find out what Ford thought of the recent collapse of the New York Exchange. He went to the richest and most successful man in the world for the opinion, but apparently he should have approached the butcher or the baker, or the candlestick maker.

If Ford never looks at a market quotation he has missed a number of real thrills during the past week or so. He would also have probably experienced a feeling of pride to note how Ford stock was steadily increasing in

Rheumatism Crippled English Girl

But Gin Pills soon brought relief

A stranger in a strange land, only nine months out from England and six of these a cripple with Rheumatism. No wonder Miss Florence Hallett was dependent. Waiting from Ottawa she came up in a few sentences those dreary, painful months—three doctors, a foot specialist, a month in hospital, then work again when she "should have been in bed."

Gin Pills gave Miss Hallett's warmest praise. "I found an improvement after the first box," she declares gratefully. "I shall always keep your pills by me. I think they are wonderful."

The great value of Gin Pills lies in their soothing and tonic effect upon the kidneys. This relief they give sufferers from Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, etc., is wonderful. But these acute conditions should never be allowed to develop. Take Gin Pills the first time symptoms of trouble show themselves—backache, dizziness, spots before the eyes, swollen joints, headaches, brick dust in urine, a burning sensation attendant on scanty or too frequent urination. 25c. a box at all druggists. value—but no doubt he knows that without looking. And also, Ford doesn't have to try to "get rich quick." He already has the world's greatest allotment of riches in his possession. But it is worthy of note that he didn't gain these riches through taking a chance on stocks. He developed industry, leaving the other fellow to profit in the speculation which his own industry afforded. He never made money in the stock market—and it is equally true that he never lost any.

Ford apparently thinks speculation is the bunk—but then he also has the same opinion of history, and this will discount the lesson that ambitious speculators should learn from his example.

PASSING YEARS (From the Intelligencer of This Day 30 Years Ago)

Mr. T. J. Willis is in Toronto to day on business.

Mr. Paul Lalonde, who has for some time been with A. Field's Minstrels, arrived in the city today. He will remain here but a short time.

The Rev. Dr. Workman is spending a week with Alderman and Mrs. Bogart. He will return to Toronto on Monday.

Mr. Frank Foster last evening took a severe header from his wheel whilst riding on Dunbar street. As a result he was today confined to his home.

During a band concert given in front of Craigwell House, near Bognor, the King took occasion to walk down to the seawall to say a few words to the crowd collected there. The loud cheers that greeted him were interspersed with shouted good wishes for his further recovery. That both the King and Queen were delighted by the welcome accorded them may be surmised from the smiles seen in this picture, which is one of the first to show the King walking after his long illness.

nursing a bruised arm.

The members of the I.O.G.F. Lodge in this city will commemorate the 80th anniversary of the Order by attending divine service at St. Thomas Church, Sunday at 2:30. Rev. A. L. Green, Past Grand Chaplain, will preach.

LIFE

The piper for a penny
Will pipe a tune so gay
The brawlers of Kilkenny
Would cease to hear him play;
And lovers stay their wooing
To hear a sweeter thing.
All coaxing and pursuing
And mirth and youth and spring.

Once I had a penny,
Yellow as the hay,
Now I haven't any—
But I heard the piper play!
The piper for a penny
Puts Maytime in the year.
I wonder are there many Would rather save than hear?
A penny stops a scandal,
A penny buys a plaint,
A penny buys a candle
To burn before a saint.

Once I had a penny,
Might have gone this way;
Now I haven't any—
But I heard the piper play.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Jenny—Oh, right over there behind that price tag.

Mother to Jimmy, who has fallen down the stairs: Oh, dear, did you miss a step.
Jimmy: No I hit every one of them.

Wife—The doctor says he has given you a new lease of life.
Husband—Well, he hasn't left me much with which to pay the rent.

Customer—I want to pay cash for this car.
Salesman—Yes sir. But it's so unusual that I'm afraid you'll have to give us a reference or two."

KIWANIS STAGE TODAY'S MARKET

THEATRE PARTY

Club Members and Wives Spent Gala Time Last Evening

Kiwanians and their ladies held another most successful function last evening when they staged an evening luncheon at the Queen's Hotel followed by a theatre party at the Belle Theatre. The interesting screen adaptation of Victor Hugo's great story "The Man Who Laughs."

As usual the Kiwanian spirit of good fellowship and informality prevailed and President George Leo had his hands full in looking after his large "Family" at the hotel and theatre. Jimmie Bankier made a capable song-leader and Russell Smith looked after the fine box. After a thoroughly enjoyable luncheon at the hotel, and vocal and instrumental solos by Mr. Al Stillman, Mrs. Leo Riggs and Mr. Leo Riggs, the party proceeded to the Belle Theatre and added considerably to the performance by its presence. Previous to the show, Kiwanians and ladies rendered a number of their songs for the benefit of the regular patrons, with Jack Denmark capably assisting on the organ. Kiwanians Charles Hanna and George Griffin led the singing at the theatre, and it was a real success.

Between the comedy and the feature picture, Mr. Leo Riggs rendered a couple of remarkably fine numbers on the organ, which were enthusiastically received by the large audience present. The feature picture itself "The Man Who Laughs" was thoroughly enjoyed by Kiwanians and their ladies, and the theatre party as a whole, the first Kiwanis has had in some years, was voted a real success.

During luncheon, two handsome attendance prizes were awarded to ladies, the lucky ones being Mrs. Bonsted who captured an immense plush rabbit, and Mrs. Greenleaf, who carried off a similar sized doll.

Plan Toronto Trip
Ten members of the Club have signified their intention of making the journey to Toronto on April 23rd to attend the reception and ball arranged there in connection with the visit of the International President. The affair promises to be one of the most colorful in Kiwanis' history.

Candidates! No More 200,000 Extra Votes After Saturday Of This Week

SECOND PAYMENT SUBSCRIPTIONS

If you have worked your territory and do not know where to go next for subscriptions, why not call on the surrounding towns, or call to see the farmers on the rural routes? Or, if you are not in a position to get out of your town, why not try to get second payment subscriptions? You can gain many votes in this way.

For instance, if Mr. A. gave you a subscription for six months by mail during the period which ended March 30th, you receive 12,000 for this subscription. Now, if you can get Mr. A. to give you another subscription for six months, which would make up the complete year to Mr. A's subscription, you will receive enough votes to make up the complete number of votes allowed for a year's subscription when the first six months' payment was made, or 17,000 votes.

Or suppose Mr. A. gave you a subscription for one year between the dates of March 25th and March 30th. You receive 29,000 votes if it is a re-newal subscription. Now if he gives you another year to make up the full two years, you would receive the difference between 72,000 which is given for a two year subscription between the dates March 25th and March 30th, when the first payment was made, and the 29,000 votes you already received, or 43,000 votes. In figuring up the second payment subscriptions compute them on the schedule in force when you turned in the first payment to the contest office.

NOTE! Subscriptions of this kind are to be marked second payment on the receipt stub which you bring to the contest office. You must write on the back of the stub the date you received the first payment, the amount of cash paid for the first payment and, if the first payment was new or old; also give the receipt number of the first payment, also the name of the candidate who collected the first payment. If this information is not given, second payment votes WILL NOT BE GIVEN for the subscription, as it will be impossible for us to figure out the correct number of votes. Write the details as outlined above ON THE BACK OF THE RECEIPT FORM which you send to the contest office, or you will only receive the regular number of votes for second payment subscriptions.

Special $150.00

Another Special Prize has been added to The Intelligencer's Great Prize List. It is $150.00 in Cash to the candidates turning in the greatest amount of subscription money during the next three weeks, starting Monday, April 15th.

Everybody Starts With a Clean Slate

FOR THE $150 SPECIAL CASH PRIZES.

Previous collections do not count. New candidates of those low in the list have an equal opportunity to win a prize as those topping the list. Here is your opportunity to get into the race—win one of the Special Prizes and a big prize at the end of the contest. All work done while working for the specials will count towards winning the free cars and other prizes at the close of the contest.

No More 200,000 Extra Votes

To aid the contestants in getting away to a good start for the special cash prizes we have decided to offer 200,000 extra votes on every club of $15.00 turned in this week. This is absolutely the last chance to secure the 200,000 extra vote ballots. Never again during the rest of the campaign will contestants be able to secure the 200,000 extra votes on clubs of subscriptions. Candidates should do their utmost to secure every possible subscription this week as the disappearance of the 200,000 extra votes will mean a great vote loss on everything turned in after this week.

THE PROBLEM:

The letters selected in the formation of a word must follow one another in their given order in the CHART, that is, one letter must follow the other in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction in which the word is to be formed; thus, the word S-T-O-R-E, in the middle of the top line, begins with S; the next letter in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of that word is T, then O, then R, then E. And so beginning again with the first letter of the word S-T-O-R-E, namely with S, and proceeding downward (vertically) you have the letter A, and then the letter Y, each following one another in consecutive order in the same line and in the direction of the formation of the word S-A-Y. In both instances the words formed S-T-O-R-E and S-A-Y are legitimate.

Letters once used may be used again and again as long as the procedure is followed as indicated above. And all words must contain not less than three letters each.

General Rules of Contest

The Word-Building Contest is being conducted in conjunction with our $50,000 Automobile Contest.

Any person who pays a subscription of at least six months to The Daily Intelligencer is eligible to enter the contest. The contest is open to all subscribers, and is not limited to those who have paid for the contest.

Subscribers may submit as many lists of words as they desire provided each list is represented by a subscription payment to some one of the contestants in the $50,000 Automobile Contest, but no contestant in the Word-Building Contest will be permitted to win more than one of the Word-Building Contest awards. Once registered a list cannot be changed.

Only words found in Webster's New International Dictionary, and their grammatical forms and variants may be counted. Obsolete, archaic and foreign words not to be used.

Each word must consist of three or more letters, in their given position in the chart.

A prefix or suffix, if incomplete, unless attached to a word, will not by itself constitute a word.

Reformed spelling, contractions and abbreviations are not permissible, unless found in the vocabulary as indicated in third paragraph.

Mispelled words will count as errors in checking contestant's list. Giving wrong total of words will disqualify list.

To enter the Word-Building Contest it is necessary to subscribe for at least six months to the Daily Intelligencer. You may either pay your subscription to a candidate in our Big $50,000 Automobile Contest, or your subscription will be given to your favorite candidate. Look over the list of names in today's issue and decide who to vote for.

The Belleville Intelligencer offers those awards for individual effort. While it is proper for members of one household to work together, or several friends, it is not permissible for more than one of those working in unison to send in a list of words.

When in the judgment of the Contest Manager (or the Judges) more than one member of the same family, or more than one of any number of persons who believe have worked together, send in a list of words, the right is reserved to refund subscriptions and to return the list of words he believes has been submitted contrary to the rules.

The Belleville Intelligencer reserves the right to reject any list of words it believes has not been submitted under proper conditions. The Belleville Intelligencer also reserves the right to finally decide any other questions or points which may arise, and those entering the contest agree to abide by such decisions.

In the very unlikely event of a tie, a new Word-Building Contest problem will be presented to those tying. Only those tying will be permitted to solve the tie-breaker.

If no tie exists, the first prize will be awarded to the person who submits the largest list of correct words. Second prize for the second largest list, etc.

All lists must be mailed or delivered to The Daily Intelligencer on or before May 7th, 1929.

Deciding Ties IF Any

In the very unlikely event of ties, those tied for any award, will be presented with a new word-building problem to decide the winners of the awards. In case there are no ties on the original chart, the prizes will be awarded to the contestants submitting the five best answers in their respective order.

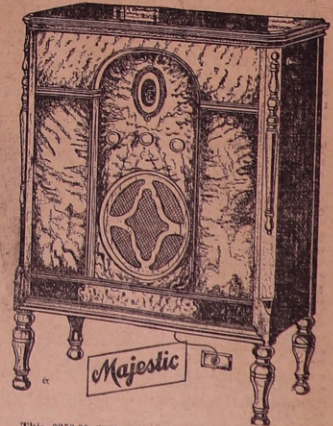

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER

While the amount you pay with a list of words does not have any effect on your winning an award, it does affect the amount you will receive should you win one of the awards, as the value of these awards is determined by what the winners pay. This is explained in the Award List, which you should study carefully before sending in your list.

Not more than one award will be awarded to any one person.

FANS WELL-PLEASED WITH BOXING BOUTS STAGED BY LOCAL LEGION

"Scotty" Kline Features In Win Over Jack Hatfield

KEEN COMPETITION
Spirited Contests Attended By Large Crowd At Armouries

Belleville boxing fans got their first taste of the fight after an absence of five years at the armouries last night when a number of spirited bouts were staged under the auspices of the Canadian Legion. The calibre of bouts were splendid and the fans were well-pleased with the result of the first attempt to revive the pastime here. The Committee in charge left no stone unturned in their efforts and six hundred fans placed their stamp of approval on the matches. The boys have been practicing for the past three weeks and were in good shape after being under the watchful eye of capable trainers. The final wind-up between Jack Hatfield and "Scotty" Kline produced some fine boxing. Kline was a shade the best in the last round which he won for him the judges' decision. Kline will be the holder of the trophy until another contender challenges. The Legion will sponsor further bouts in the month of May.

The only disappointing feature of the show occurred when Bentley and Sedore, winners of earlier bouts, were unable to compete in the finals owing to the fact that both boys injured their hands. They hail from Napanee and are experienced ring generals. Bentley in particular has a smart boy. The fans would like to see him matched in another bout here. Eddie Lee, a Belleville boy, has made reputations for himself in boxing circles in New York City was the third man in the ring and he handled the job well and made all of the boxers fight. Ex-Mayor Morley P. Duff was master of ceremonies while the judges were R. Colling, Jack McFee and Jack Johnston. C. H. Clow acted as time-keeper. Local followers of the ring were surprised at the class of talent that appeared last night as few of them realized that Belleville was the home of so many good boys, many of whom appear to have a great future in the ring. Following is a resume of the various bouts that were staged last night.

1st Bout

George Semark vs Jack Hatfield, 135 lb Class. Three 3 minute rounds. This was a good fight for the starter and the crowd was well pleased. The first round was Hatfield's, though not by a great margin. In the second, Semark made a strong comeback to get the decision but in the third Hatfield went on to win by quite a margin, although Semark was game and fought well. Both boys were tired at the end. Hatfield got the judges' decision, although it was close.

2nd Bout

Baldree vs Harrigan, Three 3 minute rounds, 135 lb Class. This started out mighty fast, but Baldree tired quickly and was not able to stand the pace. Baldree took four knockdowns in the last minute of the first round, and his red headed opponent had him on the floor twice in the second before he knew what it was all about. Baldree's seconds then threw in the towel, and Harrigan was awarded a technical knockout.

3rd Bout

Freddy Leonard vs George Gow. Exhibition. Leonard is a dark boy, and apparently knows his stuff, although he was not called up to show a great deal against Gow. The first four rounds of the five rounder were slow and uninteresting, and the crowd sat back and waited for it to end. The fifth showed a little more action, however, and Leonard extended himself enough so that he won the decision of the critics, although the judges did not render a verdict. This boy would look good against some outside heavy or light heavy, we think, as he knows enough about boxing to put himself up with some of the good ones.

4th Bout

Benny Powell vs Fraser, Napanee, 122 lb Class. Three 2 minute rounds. These two lads were mighty evenly matched, and anyone having to make a decision would have had a hard job. Fraser was given the verdict, but not before he had known that he was in a battle. He won the first round, drew the second, and drew the third, although he looked a little groggy towards the last. Both these lads were on their feet, and hit with a lot of power for little fellows. They will be welcomed back again.

5th Bout

Maraskas vs Sedore, Napanee, 122 lb Class. Three 2 minute rounds. This brawl started out fast, looked like a farce in the second, and ended up with a nice finish, with Sedore, the smaller battler of the two, getting the popular decision as well as the judges'. Maraskas made himself extremely unpopular with his "come and get me" tactics, waving for Sedore to come to him and then running away as fast as he could. The only way he could have gone faster would have been to get on a bicycle. Referee Ed Lee finally warned him to get in and fight or get out of the ring, and after that he warmed up a little to his task. Sedore ended up a little to his thumb in this engagement and was not able to continue on in the eliminations.

6th Bout

Bentley, Napanee, vs Norwich, Belleville, 146 lbs. By agreement this bout was made of four two minute rounds. Bentley took the first round by a wide margin, as

NOTES ON THE BIG BOUTS

Well folks, the first attempt by the Canadian Legion to rehabilitate the great national sport of box fighting was a howling success. Five hundred fans watched the milling at the armouries last night and everybody from the two-bit boys up to the one-buck pew-holders enjoyed the show.

There was more spilled aplenty and lots of action was furnished. In fact, one or two outsiders remarked that they had even witnessed poorer exhibition than the one they saw last night.

7th Bout

Harrigan vs Kline. Semi-final of 135 lb Class. This bout was the best of the evening, bar none. Kline parried most of Harrigan's wild rushes with his right, and then left jabbed his way to victory. Kline took every round, but Harrigan was game and kept plugging away at his lightfooted opponent all the way, and if he had landed one of his haymakers there might have been a different story to tell. Kline is one of the nicest prospects in the city right now, though, and with proper coaching he could be made into a fine fighter. His left was poised to Harrigan, who was bleeding freely by the end of the second round. Kline was then matched up with Hatfield for the 135 lb championship.

8th Bout

Hatfield vs Kline for championship of 135 lb Class. This bout was not as fast as the previous one, as both boys were tired, having fought one other bout before. The first and second rounds were draws, while the third was won by Kline on a very narrow margin. There would almost have been reason in making it a draw, for neither boy was doing too well. However, on the eighth round, Kline looked to be the better, and the award was well made along this line would be appreciated.

There was little love lost between any of the mitt-wielders. They let go with both barrels and as a result they had the cash customers stretching their craniums most of the time to get a peek at them.

Practically every bout on the card was a thriller with the exception of one exhibition set-to. The candidates were out to win the silverware and they made no bones about it.

Only two things marred the perfect evening and these were the injuries sustained by some fair pugilists down Napanee way. Sedore, Bentley and Fraser all residents of Giffardville went home with the bacon in real clean-cut fashion.

Incidentally the local cauliflower artists found out last night that they breed some fair pugilists down Napanee way. Sedore, Bentley and Fraser all residents of Giffardville went home with the bacon in real clean-cut fashion.

Some nice lads were uncovered last night and with some training will develop into smart boxers.

Here's the latest—The Legion will stage another show of its kind on the evening of the 24th. Followers of the ring in Belleville will hold up both hands for the move after last night's bouts.

By the way you Legionaires "Have you turned in your unsold tickets to the headquarters?" Mr. Sheppard desires to have them back in his hands by tonight and a little co-operation better, and the award was well made along this line would be appreciated.

Joe Semaine who was one of the seconds in the south-east corner, was afraid he was jinxing the works when none of his boys failed to get the judges' decision. However Scotty Kline came through with a nice win over "Red" Harrigan and Joe's record was unaltered as a second.

This boy Harrigan is a whirlwind but he tore in like an unleashed lion and his energy was sapped in the first round.

Kline is a pretty boxer and despite the fact that he had little previous training he stepped in and won his two bouts and the silverware last night. He was a big favorite with the crowd.

The trophies will be presented at a big jamboree in the Legion Hall next Wednesday night when the general public and boxing fans especially are invited to attend. Charlie Hanna will do the honors in presenting the awards.

Freddy Leonard who was matched up with George Gow in an exhibition tilt bears all the earmarks of being a boxer. His big sinewy arms and rugged shoulders denote that he comes of fighting blood. Pair him up in a real honest-to-goodness battle and he'll furnish some action. Some fan dubbed him the "Chocolate Kid" and the moniker stuck. Let's see the brown baby go in the next show. His opponent, George Gow is a big, tall, rangy lad and he put up a fair argument but the affair was about as tame as a pink tea. The boys had nothing at stake and they weren't mixing it up.

The ebony lad looked far the best on form.

The first bout was one of the best on the entire card with Jack Hatfield having a shade over George Semark. There was no preface to this bout. The boys sailed in on eight cylinders and before thirty seconds they had the spectators pop-eyed.

Hatfield won by his strong and stirring finish.

Ernie Baldree was no match for the aggressive Harrigan in the second bout on the card. Baldree was down no less than six times and although he was far from out he was unable to continue owing to some developed weakness in his underpinnings.

He took a lot of punishment at that. Harrigan let loose with a powerful right and his opponent crashed to the canvas half a dozen times but refused to stay there. Baldree received a nice hand for his game display.

Baldree's seconds threw the towel in the ring and saved the helpless boxer from further punishment.

Fans were not entirely agreed with the judges when they gave the decision in the Powell-Fraser tilt to the latter. Powell put up a fine fight but Fraser did most of the leading. Some one called for an orchestra when Powell commenced a pretty ballet dance in the first round.

It was at any rate one of the best arguments of the evening and the fans liked it. The kids never stopped from the opening gong.

Louis Maraskas did not install himself a favorite by his tactics last night. It appeared as though he was too timid and despite the fact that he had a weight and reach advantage he refused to use it. Sedore played a game of tag with the local lad and he deserved to win. Maraskas, sung by the "boos" of the audience tore into Sedore in the third round and had he followed it up might have won the bout. He played a tattoo on the Napanee boy's jaw but the eastern boxer came back and lashed a few home in the dying minutes which won him the bout.

By nice foot-work and cool boxing Bentley, of Napanee, was an easy winner over Tim Norwich, of Belleville. He danced around the local scrapper like the proverbial cat around a mouse and laid home some effective blows.

BABE RUTH IS AGAIN BENEDICT

New York, N.Y., April 17.—Babe Ruth and Mrs. Claire Hodgson, former actress were married this morning at St. Gregory's Roman Catholic Church. The ceremony was at 5:55 a.m. thirty minutes ahead of the time announced last night in Ruth's behalf.

Ruth and Mrs. Hodgson obtained the marriage license Monday and announced the ceremony would be performed some day this week. Plans were for the secret marriage were abandoned last night, however when Christy Walsh, Ruth's personal manager, issued a statement in behalf of the ball player saying the ceremony would be at Low Nptal mass at 6:30 today.

This was the second marriage for both bride and groom. Ruth's first wife, Mrs. Helen Woodford Ruth, died in a fire in the home of Dr. Edward S. King, in Watertown, Mass. three months ago. They had been living apart three years. Mrs. Hodgson's husband, Frank Hodgson, also is dead.

Norwich weakened by the constant rain of blows was almost a victim of the only knock-out in the third round, but the bell saved him at the count of nine.

Bentley is a fast boy and local fans would like to see him stack up against a boy of his own calibre.

Irish Lee, referee, made the candidates box all the way and one or two who appeared to be stalling were advised that "they must either fight or leave the ring."

Boxing has come back to stay in Belleville and only such shows as last night's will firmly establish it.

Love's Sacrifice By Mildred Barbour

CHAPTER 8 THE SOCIAL SCALE

The girls in 1 to give up their tiny flat, of course. Sally didn't get it until Lois's six dollars a week couldn't swing it. She was raised to eight after the first fortnight, but it didn't help much with the rent. They took a dismal little room at the top of a house located in what seemed to Lois the smallest district in New York and they ate meagerly in cheap restaurants.

There were times when her "leg work" at the shop had been especially heavy and it was rainy and cold and the house smelled more than usual of cabbage and Sally was off somewhere with Martin Frisby that Lois wondered why she stood it. There was the farm, cool and clean and tranquil, waiting for her. And good old Steve, anxious to make her happy. Or it was felt that she would be a burden to Steve, there was Bert Todd, offering a home of sorts. A place at least where she'd work for herself and not for others. Bert had pockets of financial solvency that, under a properly guiding hand, could be stretched to cover the lean weeks when he heather worked nor gambled successfully.

It would be good, she thought, to have food and shelter and clothes, without having to worry about where they were coming from. It sounded very fine to be independent and "on your own," but it had its frightening moments. She didn't dare think what would happen if she fell sick. It was when such dire thoughts occurred to her that she came nearest to owning defeat.

But her job, small as it was, held her. She sensed its possibilities even if they were as far as Heaven apparently. The thing that really bound her was her love of fine, beautiful colorful things—a love that she had never been able to indulge, prodigally, if vicariously. It was something to touch, to be in daily contact, with lovely things that they didn't belong to her. She liked to run her slim hands along a satin smooth mahogany surface, to trace out with a forefinger some exquisite piece of carving as blind people touch the faces of others. She loved to hold rich velvet and satins and brocades against her no less soft cheek and to throw a handful of color and materials together and feast on the resultant combination.

She was overjoyed one day when Mrs. Dunleigh came upon her doing just the same thing. "What are you moving? Leave that as it is. It's just the harmony I've been searching for—and to think you found it by accident!"

Miss Draper, a dried spinsther type, who supplied the business acumen of the firm and left other things to her partner, said: "Of course, Lois is your protegee. Ails, but don't spoil her by too much praise at the start. You almost didn't make the grade yourself because you got a swelled head when you were a shopper."

Mrs. Dunleigh made an impudent little moue at Miss Draper's retreat back and winked cheerfully at Lois. They got on famously.

Sally was still struggling for a foothold in the movies. Occasionally she picked up a job as an extra which was rather a pity, because it kept her hanging on, in spite of repeated discouragement. If she had never gotten that far she would undoubtedly have turned to something else. Especially as Lois had drifted into the habit of paying the rent and Sally wasn't by any means, naturally selfish or thoughtless. It was only that she was so sure with her little mead of encouragement that she really had a chance in the films and so she kept on. She was seeing a good deal of Frisby.

Philip Harding persisted in his attentions to Lois. Little by little he broke down her determination not to see him. She was lonely and it was depressing dining—if one could call it that, without a laugh—in cheap restaurants. A good meal in a nice restaurant was such a treat. She would have liked to go to the theatre, but Harding never seemed to think of taking her. They went to plenty of movies instead. They didn't join forces often with Sally and Frisby which perplexed Lois. She and Sally had always made foursomes with their beaux back home and she understood that. Harding and Frisby were friends, she didn't suspect that Frisby's favorite way of spending an evening was to tinge with Sally at some roadside and to take a long time to drive back to town. Nor did Sally enlighten Lois when she was seeing Frisby three times to one of Lois's engagements with Harding.

Lois generally met Harding by appointment in the foyer of a hotel she couldn't tell him to call for her in his expensive car at the lodging-house. One evening she waited at the entrance for him. Generally it was he who waited for her. But this evening she came directly from the shop. She looked very pretty in the black gown that she had bought from Mrs. Ten Ricks' maid. Just as she was leaving the shop, Mrs. Dunleigh had looked up and remarked teasingly "Beau-night tonight?" When Lois nodded, laughing, she had reached into a little carved basket on her desk and taken out the beads that she had been wearing the first time Lois had seen her.

"They match your eyes. Wear them!" she had commanded.

Lois had been absent and had said: "I'd never have a minute's peace, all evening, for fear I'd lose them."

"Nonsense! They're only glass. I picked them up at a cheap seaside resort for two dollars and eighty-five cents. It just happens that the color is unique."

So Lois was wearing the beads and Mrs. Dunleigh had been right. They matched her eyes and the black gown and her black hair and creamy skin and she had met them off on night. Lois rather fancied herself that evening.

She saw Harding coming toward her with a girl beside him. For a moment she thought it was Sally—the girl was very blond. But she was much more smartly dressed than pretty Sally. When Philip Harding caught sight of Lois sitting demurely on a high backed sofa, he almost stopped in his tracks. A flicker of red crept up to his temples. He looked decidedly embarrassed. With a murmur he excused himself to the girl and came toward Lois.

"Am I late?" he asked, obviously ill at ease. "I didn't realize that it was the hour of our appointment. Why excuse me a moment until I call a cab? We've just been having tea."

He went back to the other girl. Lois looked after them. He returned in a moment all trace of his discomfort gone.

"Where shall we dine?" he demanded gallily. "It's your party. I say you are looking particularly beautiful to-night."

Lois laughed. "You've probably just finished saying that to the very prettiest girl you put in the cab."

"That's a chap never notices whether his sister's pretty or not. Funny thing that!"

"The—that was your sister?" asked Lois slowly.

"Yes."

Lois walked beside him in silence. So, she thought, he didn't consider her good enough to introduce to his sister. He made chattering engagements with her took her to obscure places to dine, to the movies, to drives. Between his world and hers was a barrier. He was ashamed of her because she was a working girl not because of her speech or her appearance or her deportment.

She was flaming with indignation. She resolved, then and there not to see him again but she hadn't a suspicion of the staggering turn the evening would take.

PLANT TREES IN MEMORY OF DEAD

Winnipeg, Man., (C.P.)—Roads of Remembrance Committee in England is performing a beautiful service of a nature so simple as to have commend itself to other countries, comments the Manitoba Free Press. The committee is trying to plant alongside the roads trees individually commemorative of the beloved and unforgotten dead in the Great War. It is an idea that as naturally expands itself as do buds burst into blossom. Trees are lovely memorials when planted in memory of any loved dead. The practice is followed in France; it has been adopted in Italy, and in Australia.

"A tree is gracious and a lovely form of remembrance," says the Free Press. "It comes within the means of all who could not afford to erect statues either of bronze or of marble. It grows. It adds yearly to its beauty, and enhances the spirit of memory."

"None could such a conception of tree-planting be more appealing than in these prairie provinces. Our trees are so few, each is living statue. Our fertility enriches arboriculture. We have only to plant our trees to complete the painted picture of our surroundings. There could be no finer sentiment than to paint it in the tone of remembrance. Remembrance of our War Dead, of the Dead of the West."

W.C.T.U.

The Belleville W. C. T. U. held their annual meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. N. Farley, Church street. The meeting opened by devotional exercises. After the transaction of a little business the regular monthly Clip Sheet was taken up. This month it dealt with the tobacco and cigarette question. Illustrations were given by men of science showing the effects of narcotics upon animals. It was found that a few drops of nicotine would kill some animals instantly and if given to other animals they could only live for a few hours. Dr. Mayo and Dr. Kollog who are strongly opposed to the cigarette showed the evil effects of nicotine upon the human system particularly upon the heart and liver. Reports of work done by the officers and superintendents were given showing that some good work had been done, regretting that more had not been accomplished. Mrs. Farley gave a monologue on Tithing which was very instructive as well as amusing. Mrs. Farley, president of the W. C. T. U., was asked to take the chair during the elections.

President—Mrs. E. Dixon, Vice-President—Mrs. Lockyer, Rec. and Cor. Sec.—Miss Helena Hill and Miss H. Stapley as assistant.

Treasurer—Miss N. Myers. The meeting closed by singing the Doxology. After which refreshments were served and a vote of thanks to our hostess for her kindness.

Roll Call and minutes by the Secretary, Mrs. W. Bush. The study book Chapter VII entitled "Daughters of Africa" was prepared by Mrs. A. Bonnett and given by Mrs. Jennie Moon. This proved very interesting and instructive telling much of the life of the African woman in her heathen condition and the contrast with her sister who has come under the influence of the Gospel through the missionary Christian homes are the great need of Africa today.

Our allocation this year is $320.00.

Mrs. E. Bush gave a reading "The power of the Resurrection." Mrs. R.

Finkle gave "Seven Ways of Living," these were the careless, lazy, impulsive, self denial, systematic and the equal was giving according as much as we are able to ourselves, and the heroic way, which was John Wesley's way. Mrs. Lawrence gave a reading, "Tithing God's tithing" and Mrs. Grills "When the reaping time comes." The meeting closed by all repeating the watchword, and a dainty lunch was served.

On Sunday, April 7, the W. M. S. had charge of the service in Aikins church with a special Easter program. The hymns and responsive readings were in keeping with the occasion. Mrs. S. Westover gave the Easter message, entitled "Jesus Himself." Mrs. Hinchcliffe, "The Changed Cross" and Mrs. Kells, "The Stone of the Sepulchre." The choir sang an appropriate anthem; Miss Edna Wheeler, a solo in fine voice, and a quartette by the mission band which was much enjoyed by all. CROP REPORT

Crop report as submitted by Agricultural Representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, March 30, 1929.

Reports from all parts of the province indicate up to the present that Fall Wheat and Clovers have come through the winter in most excellent condition, and that prospects look better than for some time.

Barley—Agricultural Representative reports that farmers are very cheerful over fall wheat prospects. So far we have had very little freezing; rains have been frequent and warm. Up to date quite a lot of clover seed and grass seed has been sown. Plowing continues, quite generally and seeding operations have commenced. Market gardeners are busy planting their outdoor crops and tobacco beds and green houses are being steamed and some have been sown.

Brant—Reports that seeding commenced on lighter soils and farmers generally appear to be in a very good position to begin spring work.

Dundas—Reports indicate that horses are in demand, a carload of Western horses recently sold for an average of $140.00 while Durham County reports good horses selling from $125 to $200.

Glengarry—The making of maple syrup products is the order of the day, syrup is selling locally for $2.00 a gallon.

Huron—Orchard men are busy pruning. If weather continues fine, indications point to an early spray. Plowing is general and the land is working up in fine pliable condition.

Lambton—Fall wheat and clovers have come through the winter in splendid condition. Cold winds and dry weather in the course of the next three weeks may readily change the bright prospects of a fall wheat and clover crop to a drab reality.

Lincoln—There is no indication at present of very much winter injury on fruit trees. In some cases, strawberries which were not covered, have been slightly winter killed, but it is too early to determine how much frost

ILLUMINATING FLORAL LECTURE BY GEO. W. TEBBS

Horticultural Society Heard Address By Burlington Speaker

A fine attendance featured the meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society in the city hall last night when Rev. George W. Tebb, of Burlington, official lecturer for the department of Agriculture, Provincial Gov't., was the chief speaker. The officials were pleased with the interest shown, all of which argues well for the success of the Society this year. The speaker was introduced by Mr. D. M. Farrell, president of the local Horticultural Society, who remarked that Mr. Tebb was a fine authority on "Iris" of which flower he has four hundred different varieties in his own garden at Burlington. Prefacing the showing of the slides with a few remarks, the speaker stated that horticulture was rapidly finding its place in Canada and that increased interest was shown in every centre that he had visited. At the present time there are three hundred societies with a total membership of 80,000. Next year the 25th anniversary of the provincial organization will take place and it is the hope that 25,000 more members will have been enlisted by that time. Wonderful co-operation and tremendous interest involved were given as the reasons for the great growth in horticultural memberships. Rev. Mr. Tebb stated and it was hoped that the grant of $20,000 from the Government would be supplemented soon with an extra amount to carry on the work. The grant was made when the society consisted of 20,000 members but with the increased numbers the problem was now to spread the available funds over a larger area than before until such time as the grant is increased.

The speaker expressed the hope that Belleville would continue to go ahead in success in its society and would make itself a strong part of the community resulting in the beautifying of lawns and gardens throughout the city. Through the use of beautiful lantern slides he showed several scenes of English and Canadian gardens including his own Iris garden at Burlington. The views were in beautiful shades and hues and indicated what might be done along horticultural lines in any garden with available space and with a little care and beauty created around a place by flowers was forcefully brought home to the audience who were delighted and greatly interested in the different views which were flashed on the screen. Mr. Tebb interspersed his lecture throughout with rare witticisms and added much to the enjoyment of the lecture and the illustrations.

At the close of the address Mayor Greenleaf moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for his illuminating talk. The motion was seconded by Mr. I. L. Moore, Mr. D. M. Farrell conveyed to Mr. Tebb the society's thanks for his splendid address. Mr. C. J. Symons spoke briefly outlining the aims of the society for the coming year, the chief of which he said was to get the people of Belleville interested in the movement. He deplored the lack of members and said that it was only through numbers that many of the proposals could be successfully carried out. He said that one of the members will make a house-to-house canvass in an effort to interest the people of Belleville in horticulture. "This Society gives invaluable assistance to the Parks Board and we have a great deal of work to do this year. He made a strong appeal to the members to assist in building up the present membership. Dr. Marshall and Rev. John Lyons spoke briefly noting the valuable points rendered by Mr. Tebb in the course of his lecture. Mr. Farrell, president, stated that additional prizes for floral displays will be granted by the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs who are solidly behind the Society in its efforts to beautify the city. He also announced that Mr. W. C. Reid, local nurseryman is donating 50 Japanese walnut seedlings to the first fifty members of the Society to call at his place of business on Dundas street.

POULTRY TALK BY T. B. GREAVE

Secretary of Blatchford Co. Heard With Interest

Mr. T. B. Greave, Secretary of the Blatchford Calf Meat Company, Toronto, at the invitation of the Belleville Poultry Association, spoke to a large gathering of the members in the large club-rooms last night. Mr. Greave whose grandfather founded the Blatchford Company gave an illuminating address on the subject of incubation. The speaker is an authority on this subject having made it a life study. Some of the points brought out during the course of his lecture were: the fact that the average hen has a capacity to lay anywhere between one hundred and thirty-five hundred eggs, but the number usually laid ranges between seven and eight hundred. Regarding incubation, Mr. Greave stressed the point of the importance of turning the eggs, basing his argument on the fact that a good setting hen will turn the eggs as many as seventy times within a period of twenty-four hours. The lecture was well illustrated by a series of lantern slides showing the various stages of the chick in incubation. Mr. John M. Trautman, President of the Association and an indefatigable worker in its behalf had charged the podium. He stated that the organization was planning during the Autumn months a killing and cooking demonstration by a well-known authority on this subject. The Association is also looking forward to the greatest poultry show in its history next year. The large attendance of poultry fanciers were appreciative of Mr. Greave's lecture from which many interesting facts were gleaned. He and valuable poultry of Prince Edward County and will make his first address in Rednersville tonight.

racket has got me and I'm sorry to see another girl fall into it. That's all." "No, specially. The training is no cinch of course but you get fed and housed while you're taking it. That helps in this town, believe me."

"Sally considered this thoughtfully. "And the uniforms are becoming," she murmured.

"Yeah! Like widow's weeds. If a girl's got looks and a nurse's uniform she has a good chance to acquire the weeds—if her rich patient's a man."

"Sally laughed, but then, after a futile wait, she said good-by to her chance acquaintance and went to keep her date with Martin Frisby, she was thoughtful. The casual seed that the stranger had sown began to take root. Nursing had, after all, a certain picturesque side in addition to its humanitarian one. Sally was not humanitarian. The alleviation of human suffering was a noble thing but it left her rather cold as far as personal inspiration went. Her viewpoint was concerned with the material and the picturesque. There was no doubt about the fact that nursing and housework were about the only two professions in which one was housed and fed as well as paid—even housed and fed while learning."

Sally felt keenly her dependence on Lois. This new idea promised, if followed out to relieve Lois at least. Sally resolved to look into the question tomorrow. She had no desire to put in any more time in the waiting room of movie magazines.

She was washing the make-up off her face when Lois returned. Long ago she had decided that it was necessary to exaggerate the gifts that Nature had bestowed upon her, to differentiate her from the dozens of other pretty girl applicants and catch the wandering eye of a casting director. So she heightened each feature with cosmetics and took to wearing Lois' clothes with an air which caused Lois to make an alarmed remonstrance.

Lois came in, banged the door behind her and flung herself into a chair. Her eyes seemed to flash green fire.

"What's the matter?" asked Sally.

"You and Philip fight?"

Lois said, between her teeth: "Don't mention his name to me! I never want to see him again as long as I live."

"Gosh, you must be sore at him! What did he do?"

Lois told her. Sally listened rapidly. "It sounds like a movie. Go on! I didn't think those things ever happened in real life."

"Neither did I," confessed Lois. "It was like a play and I didn't know my lines. In stories the heroine always screams, but I felt like a fool even thinking of it. So I got one hand free and used my finger nails. It worked just as well. Philip let me go and it was he who yelled. He won't look so nice tomorrow. Everyone will ask him where the kitty he was playing with."

Sally was breathlessly interested. "And then what happened?"

"Then—the whole episode seemed so ridiculous that I laughed."

She got up from her chair, walked to the mirror and looked at her reflection critically.

"I'm just wondering," she said, over her shoulder, "if I look like that sort of girl. I suppose I should try mind but—it was the first time that that had ever happened to me. Next time I'll know how to act."

"I think he was a beast!" declared

REGENT THEATRE

Tom Mix, who fought with Roosevelt's troops in the Spanish-American war, depicted the celebrated leader of the Kiowa Riders and in later years was an ardent reader of the Columbia books of the West. When William Fox decided to stage a motion picture from Clarence E. Mulford's novel, "The Ophian," to be called "The Deadwood Coach," he immediately notified Mr. The latter already had read the story and realized that there was an opportunity to stage a picture in the actual location so highly prized by Colonel Roosevelt. This Western picture is now showing at the Regent Theatre.

BELLE THEATRE

"Submarine," the Columbia Picture which is being shown at the Belle Theatre, contains some of the greatest underwater action it has ever been our privilege to witness. Jack Holt has a powerful role as the diver and performs some exceptionally hazardous feats at the bottom of the sea. He is fully supported by Hal Cranes and Dorothy Frazier. In former portrayals Holt's pal, and in some, scenes almost steals the picture. Miss Révier has a difficult role as the dance hall queen, who marries in haste and repents at leisure. She does some exceptionally fine scenes with Cranes and some that are highly dramatic with Holt.

The plot revolves around two buddies who have formed a Damon and Pythias friendship. Through a twist of fate one buddy makes love to the other's wife, unknowingly, but when it is found out the action is fast and furious. It comes to a head in a small cottage and ends at the bottom of the sea where a submarine lies with its nose buried in the mud. The men are trapped and it appears that it will be impossible to reach them. Here Holt comes into his own. He descends to the bottom in diving suit, attaches the oxygen line and arranges the stage so the boat can be raised. Among the highlights are the naval base at San Diego, the fleet at practice picturesque Oriental ports and daring exploits.

TORONTO MAN ADMITS LOCAL THEFTS

Lad Suffers Slight Concussion When Knocked Down In Traffic

SCHOOL BOARD REQUIRE $25,000

Money Will Be Refunded To City Council By Government

HOSPITAL ACCOUNT

Public School Children To Render Concert In Auditorium

The secretary of the Board of Education was last night authorized by the Board to write the Department of Education to the effect that Mr. Uffin, accountant having already audited the "Paid Account" for the cost of the new Collegiate and Vocational School, and its equipment, there still remains unpaid accounts totalling $22,600, made up of $11,600 for the Collegiate and $11,000 for the vocational and commerce.

Thus, a special committee from the Board will attend the civic committee meetings of the city council on the 25th of April, next Thursday, and request the council for $25,000. This amount of money, Mr. Elliott stated, will not in reality be paid by the council, as it is paid by the government at a later date. Mayor Greenleaf, who was present, stated that he was pleased to hear that the School Board would not require further funds.

The $25,000 will cover any possible additional expenses that may occur before the school is fully equipped. As a matter of fact, Mr. Elliott explained, the council will not have to pay quite as much money as was figured in the beginning.

Not A Precedent
It was recommended to the Board last night by a special committee to enquire into the details, that $40 be granted Mr. Ben Simpson for hospital bills on account of an accident his daughter suffered while attending public school. The Board wished it distinctly understood, however, that a precedent was not set in this case.

Likewise it was recommended that $3.75 be paid to Mrs. H. G. Young, who had her fur coat burned while attending Vocational school.

The public school children's concert will be held in the collegiate auditorium on the nights of May 22nd and 23rd, half the children singing on the one night and half on the other. The Collegiate Glee Club, the Musical Committee reported, hoped to render a recital on the King's Birthday, June 3rd.

ENSIGN RAWLINS SPOKE TO CLUB

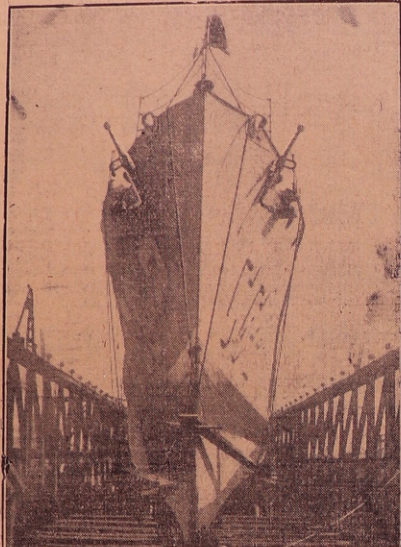

Y's Men Heard Interesting Address From Salvation Army Man

Belleville Y's Men last night at their weekly luncheon had the pleasure of hearing Ensign Rawlins of the Salvation Army here, speak on "Service". Mr. Rawlins gave a brief but interesting lecture on the meaning of this word to those Salvationists who are working for almost nothing in far off countries, because they have dedicated their lives to a life of service. His address was greatly appreciated by the club members.

Harold Howard rendered two solos during the luncheon, while George Robson also delighted with two piano solos. Both these boys have been extremely co-operative at all times with regards to musical numbers, and a vote of thanks was extended to both for the fine manner in which they responded.

THE BIG CIRCUS NEAR AT HAND

These are strenuous days for the boys and leaders at the Y. M. C. A. as preparation is being made for the big annual Circus and demonstration of physical activities to be held on Monday and Tuesday, April 29 and 30th. Behind the scenes groups are preparing humorous and spectacular numbers in addition to the regular calisthenics, drills, exercises, dances, tumbling, horse and bar work etc. The big Gym will not doubt be crowded to its capacity on Monday and Tuesday next at the popular price of 25c.

Destroyed In Dry-Dock

Cutters, cruisers and the like are the small craft of sea forces. Their very names suggest "dwarfish" proportions, trim lines and speed. They are, however, "dwarfish" only when compared with the monster dreadnoughts of the battle fleet. As an illustration of the fallacy of size impression in this regard, this photograph of a coast-guard destroyer, in drydock at the Charlottetown, Mass., navy yard is offered.

TORONTO MAN IMPRISONED IN CAR DIES HORRIBLE DEATH IN FLAMES

J. W. Barnes Pinned Beneath Street Car Early Today

Toronto, April 20.—J. W. Barnes, President of the Eze manufacturing company was burned to death early today when the car he was driving crashed head-on into a west-bound street car on the Bloor Street viaduct. According to information given by police, Barnes was driving in an easterly direction at a smart rate of speed when his car swerved colliding with the street car, the impact being so tremendous that the latter was lifted bodily, and threw across the rails blocking both east and west traffic.

Within a few minutes the automobile and the front portion of the street car were a mass of flames with the street car uppermost. Barnes pinned under death was imprisoned while the flames enveloped him. The crew of the street car and twelve passengers escaped by climbing through the windows and with the others endeavored to rescue the motorist but their efforts were unavailing owing to the terrific heat.

The flames raged unchecked until the arrival of the fire-trucks but the firemen were too late to effect the rescue.

MERRYMAKERS SPLENDID HOSTS

Local Club Sponsored Another Popular Dance

Johnstone's Academy was the scene last night of one of the popular semi-monthly dances when the Merry-makers Club composed of a group of young men played hosts to a large crowd. Tommy Mason's Rhythm Kings supplied the latest dance melodies until an early hour this morning. The club which will sponsor two more affairs of this kind before the social season closes is composed of Charlie Jeffrey, Tom Jeffrey, Milton Davison, Arnold Bryant and Kent Chadwick.

Miss Grace Embury, as Miss Merry-maker in the prize waltz was partnered with Malcolm Blakey, winning for him one of the prizes. Miss Margaret Gwyer picked Mr. Merry-maker, in the person of Kenneth Griffin, for the prize waltz, winning for herself a lovely prize. The committee in charge of this dance are to be congratulated on the splendid efforts they have put forth, in making the dance the success it was.

WILL RECONSIDER SALARY RATING

Matter Of Maximum Salaries For Teachers Is Turned Back

NEW LIBRARY BOOKS

Canon Shattford of Montreal Will Be Speaker At Commencement

Although requests by the public school teachers that their maximum salaries be increased from $1200 to $1500 were discussed by the committee empowered to enquire into this matter (the committee recommended an increase to $1400) the Board of Education last night returned the matter to the committee for further consideration, as the vice-principals and principals have, since the time the public school teachers' request was placed before the Board in March, also asked for an increase. The principals want their maximum possible salary raised from $2000 per annum to $2500 per annum, while the vice-principals asked for a like proportionate increase.

The matter of Collegiate and Vocational School teachers being placed on a salary schedule came up also last night and this too was referred to the committee. "No increases are asked for assistants until they have gained their permanent high school assistant-certificates or their interim specialist certificates," the committee resolution read. "Teachers now on the staff to receive their present salaries plus the annual increase of $100 per year, except assistants with non-specified interim high school assistant's certificates," is one of the recommendations. Increases commence on the attainment of permanent high school assistant's certificates or interim specialist certificates.

Following is the proposed schedule: Heads of Departments—Male or Female $2000—$3000; non-specialist assistants, (female) $2000—$2400; male, $2000—$2800; Specialist assistants, female, $2000—$2500; male $2000—$2700.

Years of service elsewhere count as half-years, commencing with the attainment of a permanent high school certificate or an interim specialist certificate.

The meeting last night was lengthy Inspector Clarke's report dealt mainly with the question of where the departmental exams should be held. The question was referred to a committee with instructions to report back to the Board.

H. C. Redfern requested fifty uniforms for Queen Mary School cadets. This, too, was referred to a committee with power to act.

George F. Thompson, of Hull, wants to place some shields of the respective provinces in the new Collegiate. The letter was filed.

The truant officer's report was received and adopted.

Mr. O. H. Scott was appointed to the special advisory committee to succeed Mr. Ed. Worth.

P. C. McLaughlin, Collegiate Principal, in his report asked that the commencement Exercises held on May 16th, after noon and evening, and also asked that Thirty-five applications have been accepted already this spring, and any further applicants will of necessity have to be placed on the waiting list. The club at present has a membership of over two hundred, and has made remarkable progress in the last few seasons.

INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Wilfred Motley Six, Of Huff's Island, Suffered Concussion

Struck down by a car driven by a man named Clute who is a resident of Amherstburg last evening at 10 o'clock this morning 26 year old Wilfred Motley of Huff's Island, was taken to Dr. McCrory's office where he remained unconscious for over an hour. He suffered a slight concussion, but other than the wrist was uninjured. The driver of the car, Mr. Clute, was not held as he did everything possible to avoid hitting the child and was travelling at a low rate of speed at the time of the accident. The accident occurred almost in front of the City Hall on one of the most crowded corners in the city. Eager hands picked the little chap up and carried him into Dr. McCrory's office, where first-aid was administered. This afternoon he had regained consciousness.

After much wasted arguments pro and con at the March meeting of the Board, an adding machine to cost $100, was recommended by the Printing and Supplies committee for the Collegiate offices to the Board last night. It will be purchased.

Raymond K. Arthur Alleged Robber Is Facing Several Charges

MADE STATEMENT

Padded Up Moira In Canoe And Entered Rear Of Buildings

Arrested in Toronto a few days ago and charged with stealing a motor car, Raymond K. Arthur, of Sudbury, Mining Engineer and a graduate of Toronto University, has been implicated in the clothing thefts which occurred in Belleville on the 24th of September last when several hundred dollars worth of overcoats and dresses were stolen from Sinclair's store and the Oak Hall. Chief Alex Kidd was in Toronto yesterday interviewing the prisoner, and he will be brought back to Belleville immediately after his trial on the Toronto charge, which will be on the 24th of April.

Arthur in his story implicated Claude Ballard, of Kingston, and telephone communication with the Kingston police resulted in the arrest of Ballard at his home there yesterday. Sergeant Trueman then proceeded down the Bay of Quinte, up the Moira River and will bring the prisoner back with him this evening.

Suspicion first fastened itself on Arthur in connection with the Belleville store robberies when some of the stolen articles were found in his possession. When confronted by Chief Kidd, he made a statement which is now in the hands of the police. He admits, it is understood, that he was the ring-leader in the escape, and is accepting most of the blame.

According to his story, he introduced something novel to Belleville, in the method by which he made his approach to the store and also his getaway. Coming from Crowe Lake, where he and Ballard had been camping, they made their way by canoe down the Trent River, after a few portages, to Trenton, then proceeded down the Bay of Quinte, up the Moira River and landed on the river bank just behind the Oak Hall and Sinclair's store.

After selecting what they wanted they left in the same manner, making their way to Kingston. Some time later they came back up the Bay by canoe, and made their way to Toronto along the shore of the Lake. Ballard later went back to Kingston, while Arthur remained in Toronto. It is alleged that Arthur and Ballard are the same persons who entered several stores in Trenton, but nothing definite has been found out regarding this phase of the case as yet.

TODAY'S THOUGHT
How history makes one shudder and laugh by turns!
WALPOLE.

MOVIE THEATRES

The idea behind the resolution passed by the National Council of Education, calling upon the government to prohibit the attendance of children under 16 years of age at moving picture theatres, is sound, but it is a matter of doubt that the request will be met. Moving picture theatre proprietors will ask why their business should be discriminated against. There are moving pictures which have a wholesome effect on adolescents just as there are legitimate stage productions, which should not be seen by growing boys and girls. Some years ago a screen production of Sir James M. Barrie's Peter Pan proved one of the outstanding box-office successes in filmland's history. The whimsical story of the little boy who refused to grow up had been given kindly treatment at the hands of the movie-makers and children flocked to see it in their tens of thousands. That was an exceptional case, of course, but it would have been a pity if such a regulation as the National Council of Education suggests had prevented Canadian children from seeing Peter Pan on the screen. There is now a regulation which prohibits children of tender years from patronizing moving picture theatres unless accompanied by adults. This distinctly puts it up to parents to select the entertainment for their children, rather than leave it to their own immature judgment. Restriction such as is suggested might easily have the effect of making the youngsters curious about what it is that is being presented in the moving picture theatres that is all right for their elders to see, but for some reason or another isn't good for their elders' offspring.

USES OF ADVERTISEMENT

Hon. Dr. Godfrey has shown good sense in modifying the regulation about advertising as applying to funeral directors. It was probably well intentioned as he says, but good intentions do not always find their outlet in good measures, and the effect of legislation is frequently quite the reverse of what was expected. It certainly has been so in the present case, and no doubt the six months' experiment which the minister of health proposes will show a better way of handling the situation. Publicity will do no harm to anyone if it is done under proper auspices and represents true conditions. The medical men of Chicago have given an illustration of unwisdom of a similar nature in expelling one of the cleverest physicians of their city from their organization because as chairman of the Social Hygiene Council he lent his name to the advertisement of this most philanthropic body. The public are only antagonized by such pettiness, and the medical organizations are making a great mistake in indulging in it. The Social Hygiene Council has done much to make certain lines of medical activity popular and well-known to the public, and instead of being grateful for this service the doctors adopt a somewhat unintelligent attitude towards what is being done. The growing tendency to make medicine the property of a close corporation is not in the interest of the doctors, because it is not in the interest of the public. The result is simply that quackery flourishes where proper publicity would do more to protect the public.

In this respect than anything else, sweet are the uses of advertisement.

TOTAL DISARMAMENT

Germany's adoption of the Kantian proposal for total disarmament of the nations brings the subject out of the area of the theory into the range of practical statesmanship. The League of Nations will have to make a pronouncement upon the suggestion. No doubt some will think that it is a plan to compel a show-down by the other nations on the question, not with the object of getting compliance, but of showing that they are not acting in good faith. This would imply that Germany in making the suggestion is not itself acting in good faith. We prefer to think that those who have suffered and are now suffering actually from the effects of war have come to the conclusion that war does not pay, and that some other and more peaceable method of competition, if that is to be the principle in which we are to carry on our affairs, must be tried. As Bernard Shaw says, it is about time the method of Jesus Christ were given a trial, but the business men are against it.

DEMORALIZING BOOKS

The question of immoral literature was brought up at a meeting of the Toronto public library board recently. Complaint was made of the obscenity and profanity to be found in many of the volumes produced today. It was rightly maintained that this sort of "literature" was not proper to be handed out to young people or adults. The surprising thing is that publishers can be found to print and circulate such filth. It is presumably a case of supply and demand; but there comes a time when demand, however insistent, has to go unsatisfied. The protest against the circulation of indecent books, on the plea of free speech, is an unreasonable one. If these writers cannot get their "message" through to the public without indulging in coarseness and blasphemy, it is safe to say that what they have to communicate is not worth printing. The deencens must be observed in literature as in conversation; "littera scripta manet"—it is even worse to permit that to be printed which would not be tolerated in public society. The librarians are absolutely right in setting their faces against the circulation of demoralizing books. With an inexhaustible store of ennobling literature to choose from there is no room for such garbage.

Lieut.-Col. Ponton and the officers of the XV are in correspondence with the Governor General's Foot Guards of Ottawa, relative to bringing the Guards here to camp on July 1st, 2nd and 3rd. The matter will be brought before the City Council on Monday night.

WINDS

See the mountain where has lingered
Passionless and pallid snow.
Hear, then, winds, through treetops
whistling,
Calling to their loves below.
At the sound, a pussy-willow Lifts its languid velvet cheek;
Violets gather round a brooklet,
There to wait with patience meek.

Every growing thing is pulsing,
Elfin winds have stirred their pains
Every bud and vine is answering,
Springing, running down the lanes.
Winds that make the woods surrender,
Claiming all that they will desire—
Give me winds that come deriding Mountain's cold Olympic blues.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Kind Old Lady: And whose little boy are you?

Urchin: So you've been wondering, too!

For a long time the painted sign: "Home Cooking" had hung outside the little restaurant.

"I see that the sign's gone," remarked one observant patron to the proprietor.

"Yes, Mr. I took it down."

"But what for?"

"Well, you see, I came to the conclusion that it wasn't doing the place any good at all; I used to watch the passersby, and most of 'em would glance at that sign and then hurry past."

"Answers."

"Johns has eleven children."

"Good heavens! He's gone stark mad, hasn't he?"

"I am burning with love for you."

"Oh, don't make a fool of yourself."

Baby's Own Tablets Win Great Praise

Many Mothers Always Keep Them in the House

Thousands of mothers state that they know of no other medicine for little ones so equal Baby's Own Tablets—that they always keep the Tablets in the home as a preventative of childhood ailments, or if sickness does suddenly grip their little ones they feel safe with such a remedy at hand.

Concerning the use of the Tablets Mrs. Donat Plouffe, Tingwick, Que. writes:—"I have nothing but praise for Baby's Own Tablets. They are the only medicine I have ever given my two little ones and I am glad to state that the Tablets have always kept them in perfect health. I feel so safe with the Tablets that I always keep a box in the house."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels, soothe the stomach and thus banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever, and make the cutting of teeth painless. The Tablets are absolutely guaranteed free from all injurious drugs. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 2 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LOCAL CHAPTER WAS INSPECTED

Gala Night In Annals Of Belleville Eastern Star

Last night in their chapter room of the Oddfellows Temple, the annual inspection of Belleville Chapter No. 55 took place.

There was certainly a capacity crowd in attendance, visitors being there from practically every chapter in the district with some of the chapters being out in real force. All this made for a very enjoyable evening and the work was put on in a manner very satisfactory to the District Deputy Grand Matron, Sister Myrtle Simmons, the quality of work done in the chapter.

At the conclusion of the business of the chapter Sister Simmons was presented with a very useful and beautiful gift which she acknowledged in a few well-chosen words. Speeches were then heard from the representatives of the various chapters of the district.

After chapter was closed dainty refreshments were served and dancing was indulged in for a couple of hours Jack Denmark presiding in a very satisfactory way as usual, at the piano.

Sister Anna Boyd rendered a much appreciated solo during the signing of the register and bylaws.

CANADA TAKES DEFINITE PLACE IN MUSIC WORLD

Quartette Is Offered Trip To Europe And Old World Tour

Recognition of the fact that Canada has taken a definite place in the world of music was recently accorded when European interests approached the Hart House String Quartette, of Toronto, with an offer of an old-world tour.

During the past musical season the reception of the Quartette by concert audiences and critics of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large cities, was so enthusiastic that the notice of European critics was attracted and the European contract resulted.

The Quartette will first present a series of concerts in London for the British Broadcasting Company. The tour will begin directly these are completed.

It is now generally recognized that the Hart House Quartette, a purely Canadian organization, backed by Canadians and helped to its present eminence by the support of Canadian concert audiences, is the finest string quartette in America.

Until this year it was ranked with the Flonzaley String Quartette as one of the two important chamber music ensembles on this continent. Since the Flonzaley Quartette was disbanded, however, the Hart House Quartette stands alone in the field of chamber music.

That it will achieve even greater honor during the next few years than it has since its formation five years ago can now scarcely be doubted.

Eugene Goossens, the world-famous English composer and conductor, said when he heard the Hart House Quartette perform: "The Hart House String Quartette ranks today as one of the major organizations in the realm of chamber music in the world." This opinion is now being adopted by other critics and composers equally eminent.

Though the Hart House Quartette was formed only five years ago under the patronage of the Hon. Vincent Massey, its achievements have been commensurate with those of musical singles.

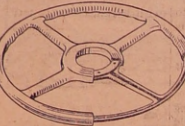

While adhering always to the traditions of the old masters and presenting only the best of chamber compositions, the Hart House Quartette has not neglected Canadian music. They have managed to combine progressiveness with conservatism perfectly. They have done much to bring the work of Canadian composers before the music lovers of other lands and to popularize them in Canada.

The fifth anniversary of the Quartette's formation is on April 27th. This date will become more and more important in Canadian music circles as the years pass and it is realized how greatly Canadian love of music has been nurtured by this purely national organization.

Popular though Orval Shaw may be, there is no evidence that he has popularized Skunk's Misery as a summer resort.

Speaker who says Canada is free from petty jealousies plainly raved officiated as a judge at one of our baby shows.

Safety steering wheel
on new Studebakers

AN IMPORTANT DEVELOPMENT of the motor speedway is the Husted safety steel core steering wheel now used on all Studebaker models. The steering wheel consists of a steel spider and rim encased in hard rubber of special composition. It has an exceptionally tight grip which contributes materially to driving ease. The safety core of the American Automobile Association has required for some time that cars used in speed contests be equipped with a steering wheel of all metal construction.

2—No employee in the office of THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER is eligible to enter this distribution. The management reserves the right to reject any nominations at any time, without giving reasons for so doing.

3—The winners of the prizes will be decided by their accredited votes, said votes being represented by ballots issued on subscriptions, by free voting coupons clipped from the paper, and by votes issued on the nomination coupon.

4—Candidates are not confined to their particular town or community in which to secure votes and subscriptions, but may take orders anywhere in this section; or for that matter, anywhere in Canada or world.

5—Cash must accompany all orders, where votes are desired. There will be no exceptions to this rule.

6—Votes are free. If, except the subscriber nothing extra to vote for his or her favorite. Subscribers should ask for votes when paying their subscriptions.

7—Votes cannot be purchased. Every cent accepted through the Campaign Department must represent subscriptions, paid by subscribers.

8—Votes are not transferable. Candidates cannot withdraw in favor of another candidate. Should a candidate withdraw from the race, his or her votes will be cancelled. With the consent of the Campaign Manager, however, a candidate may withdraw from the race and transfer his or her votes to an entirely new candidate or new entry. Neither will it be permissible for candidates to give or transfer subscriptions to another candidate. Votes on such transferred subscriptions will be subject to disqualification at the discretion of the management.

9—Any effort or collusion on the part of any candidate or candidates to discourage competition by the spreading of false rumors or exaggerated stories, or anything by any candidate or combination of candidates to the detriment of this newspaper will not be tolerated. Any candidate or candidates entering into or taking part in any such agreement, arrangement or effort, will forfeit all rights to a prize or commission.

10—Any ballots issued on subscriptions may be held in reserve and voted at the discretion of the candidate.

11—THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER reserves the right to give extra votes and to alter the schedule of votes, but it guarantees the candidates that all subscriptions turned in from the beginning of the competition will receive the benefit of any alterations in the schedule of votes if same is altered or if any extra votes if any other than those mentioned in this advertisement are given.

12—No statement or promise made by any solicitor, agent or candidate varying from the rules and statements published through the columns of the newspaper, will be recognized by the publishers.

13—In case of typographical or other error, it is understood that neither the publisher nor the campaign manager shall be held responsible except for the necessary correction upon the same.

14—Every candidate is an authorized agent of THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER and as such may collect subscription payments from subscribers.

15—It is distinctly understood and agreed that candidates will be responsible for all monies collected and that they remit such amounts in full, at frequent intervals, or on demand, to the Campaign Department.

16—There will be a 10 per cent. cash commission to all ACTIVE non-prize winners.

17—To ensure absolute fairness in the awarding of the prizes, the race will be brought to a close under a "sealed ballot box" system, and will be under the personal supervision of two or more judges selected from the Advisory Board. During the entire last week of the campaign, the box—locked and sealed—will repose in the corridors of a local bank, where candidates and their friends will deposit their final collections and reserve votes. And until the race has been declared closed, will the seals be broken, the box unlocked, and the Auditors begin the final count. In this way, no one, not even the Campaign Manager, can possibly know the voting strength of the respective candidates, which precludes any possibility of favoritism and ensures fairness to the minutest degree.

18—At the close of the Contest candidates will be asked to sign an affidavit to the effect that they did not invest their own money to win the awards by paying subscriptions for friends. Those unable to sign this form will be disqualified. True, we are out for subscriptions, but we want a clean list, and a clean list means clean sport for the contestants. Those entering the contest with the object of winning the cars by spending their own money, would do well to remember that before the winners are made known, investigation will be made, and if it is found that candidates have spent their own money to try and win the prizes, they will be disqualified and will lose their positions for any awards to which otherwise they would have been entitled. WE ASK YOU—COULD ANYTHING BE FAIRER?

CHAPTER II
TEMPERIN GWINDS

With Sally off her hands, Lois rented better quarters. She had only one room and it was way up town but still accessible and a tiny closet revealed her unexpected kitchenette where she prepared her breakfast and her meager dinner. She had learned to go without lunch.

Her evenings were free now that Philip Harding was disposed of. Sally of course had only an occasional evening off. So Lois put in her time studying. Mrs. Dunleigh directed her reading and research. She took Lois briskly and eagerly through the same routine she had travelled herself some fifteen years before. Lois couldn't have had a greater stroke of luck than to win the interest of Mrs. Dunleigh, who after a time began to give her opportunities to test her ability and talents.

As she made good her salary was increased proportionately and with it, little by little she was able to afford better quarters and better clothes. Her good taste enabled her to look very smart and prosperous on an absurdly small sum. She now had to dress well for already she was being sent out to interview customers. The work was mostly routine, it was true, but certainly outside the province of ordinary "shoppers."

She sauntered off Sally although she expected her for dinner and a good long gossip chat on Sally's evening off duty at the hospital. Sally, however, often disappointed her but Lois was never deeply hurt. She knew that Sally loved a good time and had only a few free evenings. The training was drudgery and the hard at work life Sally had ever done in her life.

When her back seemed breaking and her feet ached and her pretty hands were rough and chapped from scrubbing floors and she looked anything but fetching with her uncut hair scraggling down under a practical mop she would comfort herself with the thought of what lay beyond the arduous training. She visualized herself in a crisp white uniform with a ravishing cap on her blonde curls, tripping daintily up to the bedrooms of a handsome masculine patient and proffering a cool drink. She always envied her prospective patients in the convalescent stage of their malady when they were able to be both grateful and admiring.

Her imagination never extended to fevered nights and irritable mornings before her charge was shaved and bled by an orderly and the room set rights by a probationer. Her entrance on the scene always began with the arrival of roses, which she would arrange in a vase on the bedside table then her patient would remark that she looked like a rose herself in her fresh white uniform and she would say: "I guess we'll have to take your temperature—that sounds like fever to me!" though of course she would see the unmistakable admiration deepening to ardor in his eyes.

Martin Frisby still hung around Sally. He had tried to rush Lois after Sally's departure for the hospital but had received a snub for his pains.

"What's the matter between you and Harding?" he had asked Lois, though he knew quite well. Harding had, strange to say, confessed his failure. Lois answered evasively that she was too busy to bother with evening engagements. She was trying to learn the interior decorating business, she explained.

Lois was in the difficult position of having to refuse the associates she might have had and of being unable to make the acquaintance of those people she wanted to know.

At first Sally had brought her bearings to call on Lois. There was a strict rule at the hospital against nurses or probationers going out with doctors or interns on the staff. But you simply chose a movie in a remote part of the town and trusted to luck that you did not encounter anyone who knew you or would report you. Otherwise you spent the evening at the home of a convenient and sympathetic friend.

Lois, although no older than Sally had always felt curiously responsible for her friend. Sally was so little and young, rather like a kitten. Lois had always been afraid for Sally somehow although she had given every evidence of being able to take care of herself. But she was impulsive and imaginative and incurably romantic.

Lois was always glad to meet Sally's friends. If she approved of them, she always found some excuse for going to the library to read up on Greek or Egyptian pottery or Renaissance painting and left Sally and the young man to chaff over the rabbit.

Lois didn't know, of course of the evenings Sally spent with youths of the Martin Frisby type when synthetic champagne at a road house took the place of a rabbit. She would have worried mightily had she known though she was in no sense Sally's keeper nor did she try to be. And Sally received her, not from any desire to avoid censure but because she knew she was playing with fire.

If you seek the finest green tea—this is it

'Fresh from the gardens'

When the two girls had been in New York a year Lois's brother Steve came to see them. Unlike Bert he looked awkward and ill at ease in his city clothes. He was a young Viking at home in his overalls as blond as Lois was dark.

Sally was, apparently, so overjoyed to see Steve that the slow kindly fellow was in his seventh heaven. He thought it was all over except the ringing of the wedding bells. But Sally would have exhibited the same enthusiasm at the sight of anyone from home.

He asked her to marry him immediately. She refused him of course. He went back home dejectedly. Sally saw him off at the station. Neither of them had any idea of the circumstances under which they should next meet.

(To Be Continued)

THE GARDEN

The snow is disappearing, the temperature is rising and soon plans for the garden will be laid. A few hints are given, the fresh vegetables being taken first:

Radishes, spinach, lettuce, early peas and onions are staple crops of the early gardener, and are the first fruits of his labor. The radish supply can be sown at one time now instead of the usual repetitions, with an extra early, mid-season and late variety all going in together, but maturing in succession.

The same varieties can be put in two weeks later and the work is done for the season. Head lettuce should be sowing in boxes or hotbeds by this time to be ready to transplant into permanent quarters as soon as it is safe to do so.

Many gardeners refuse to bother with headless heart lettuce any longer and have taken to the variety. This grows upright, with long leaves which enclose the heart, and it is self-blanching. A little tying-up will hasten the process. The new spinaches, which will grow and grow without going to seed are a big advance over the old types. They give a bigger and better supply of leaves and some can cut down to within an inch of the ground and will grow up again.

These new varieties are called King of Denmark and New Zealand. White Portugal and any of the Globe varieties are now popular. Onions can be easily grown from seed. These may be used green or for pickling. There are half a dozen good

We know you will recognize Plymouth has distinctive Chrysler-like style and manner, and richness and dignity not to be found in other low-priced cars.

We know you will recognize Plymouth is typically Chrysler in performance—so swift in traffic, so eager on hills, so easy to control and so safe with weatherproof internal-expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes.

We could pack this whole page full of type telling why Plymouth is so vitally different—in style, quality, performance, dependability and economy. But a short five minutes' inspection followed by a brief drive will tell the story far more graphically—and completely.

That's the reason for Plymouth "Learn-the-Difference" fortnight—that's why we urge you to take advantage of this opportunity to learn the all-inclusive superiority of Plymouth—to see it, experience it, enjoy it.

Come in today! Get the facts! See us now—before the big event is over.

PREVENT SPREAD DEADLY SCOURGE

Dr. Forbes Godfrey Takes Action In Death Of Australian Boy

When your Children Cry for It

Mothers, who take one simple precaution, are seldom worried. With a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house they can do what their doctor would tell them to do, when baby is fretful, feverish, colicky, constipated or stuffed-up with cold-cuts, a few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation. It comforts Baby and soothes him to sleep in a jiffy. It's perfectly safe for the youngest infant. Use it freely—and as often as needed, specialist advice. A more liberal dose is all it takes to comfort and relieve older children, when feverishness, bad breath, no appetite, colds, etc., show they need a good purgative. The mark of genuine Castoria is the Fletcher signature on the wrapper. Look for it to avoid imitations.

Toronto, April 19.—Dr. W. J. Bell, Deputy Minister of Health, has been instructed by Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health to go to Niagara Falls personally to supervise the efforts of the health authorities there to prevent the spread of the outbreak of Hemorrhagic Measles among the Australian boys.

"These boys are the guests in our midst and we feel responsible for their well being," declared Dr. Godfrey. "Everything possible will be done to prevent the spread of the disease. All persons who come into contact with the dead lad, William Strauchman, will be isolated for a period of two and a half weeks, and every precaution will be taken. Personally, I deeply regret death of this one boy so many miles from home. Five doctors attended him, but his life could not be saved."

an National Railways from Halifax to Montreal, Miss W. Box, proxy bride of Zeegar Desnik, Dutch-Canadian farmer of Huttonville, near Brampton, Ont., reached Montreal Saturday night and was greeted by her proxy husband whom she will go through another marriage ceremony on arrival at Huttonville on Monday. The couple, met by other immigrants arriving from Montreal College in Holland and before calling for Canada Miss Box went through a form of proxy marriage, the proxy bridegroom was waiting at the Canadian National station when the train bearing Miss Box and a large party of other immigrants arrived from Halifax on Saturday evening. Mr. Desnik had stated that he had deferred plans for the wedding ceremony until the arrival of his bride to be, who favored waiting until they reached Huttonville, for which point they left Montreal over the Canadian National line, the groom who came to Canada from Holland some years ago started farming at Huttonville a couple of years ago and has made good progress in establishing himself since that time.

Besides golden weddings, wives of rich Americans frequently participate in golden divorces.

SPORTOGRAMS

If this weather doesn't make the veterans of other years think that maybe the old soup bone will stand another season, we ask you, what will?

Next week, we understand, the Nationals will commence their annual Spring training at the Collegiate campus. The ground is drying up fast, and with Old Sol shining forth so nicely, what better way to get the shape than by tossing the Spalding around?

Whether Kingston will be "in" this year or not, it is not known as yet, although the meeting of the C.O.B.L. is being held at the Y.M.C.A. here this afternoon. Personally, we are in favor of their entry.

A five team league always was better than a four, and Kingston always put up strong opposition. However, if Peterboro and Oshawa

AN ATTRACTIVE TRANS-CANADA TOUR

A very attractive tour from Toronto to the Pacific Coast to be personally conducted by Dr. W. E. Hume has been arranged to leave Toronto July 11th, returning August 2nd, a total of twenty-two days of delightful travel by rail, steamer and automobile.

The party will journey via Canadian National trains and boats visiting Jasper National Park, Banff, Lake Louise, Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria, and Prince Rupert. Especially attractive features will include three full days at Jasper National Park; the Triangle Tour of British Columbia through the Canadian Rockies with its 500-mile steam train; sail in the scenic seas of the North Pacific Coast; a visit to Watnigait Buffalo Park in Alberta; the great lakes cruise from Port Arthur to Sarnia and of course, interesting sight-seeing trips by automobile at stop-over points. Dr. Hume is well and popularly known throughout the city and district and this together with his own previous travel experience, ensures for all members of this party a delightful trip. Write for a descriptive folder to Trans-Canada Tour, Room 100, 6 King Street West, Toronto, or apply to any Canadian National Agent.

threaten to withdraw if Kingston comes in, it won't be hard to figure where Belleville and Deloro will stand on the question.

Because a four team league is better than a three any day.

More fighters have signified their intention of competing in the scraps to be put on by the Legion next month. If they are any better than the ones held last Tuesday, they will be hard to beat for an evening's entertainment.

There is one man who was present last Tuesday about whom nothing has been said, principally because he was doing a lot of the work and stayed out of the picture. He carried the whole show through without a hitch, and deserves all kinds of credit for the manner in which everything went off. And he is a gentleman by the name of NEVER wait to see if a headache will "wear off." Why suffer when there's always Aspirin? The millions of men and women who use it in increasing quantities every year prove that it does relieve such pain. The medical profession pronounces it without effect on the heart, so use it as often as it can spare you any pain. Every drugist always has genuine Aspirin tablets for the prompt relief of a headache, colds, neuralgia, lumbago, etc. Familiarize yourself with the proven directions in every package.

There is a little doubt that if he handles the arrangements at the next fight, the crowd will be well handled and the show will run smoothly.

The Bay of Quinte Tennis Courts, were kept in play almost all day yesterday, with players who want to take advantage of the fine weather, almost the first since Good Friday. There was plenty of it yesterday and the wielders of the racquet should have been well satisfied.

We also saw plenty of the devotees of golf getting the kinks worked out of their arms and trying to keep their eye on the ball as per instructions. By these tokens we know that the farmers will soon be able to get at the Spring plowing, if they do that any more.

Joe Shortt, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., has started action with regards to a Bicycle Club among the youngsters in this city. Which should have lots of supporters, both among the young people and those not so young.

We have read about the Bicycle Clubs which flourished in this district years ago, before the advent of the automobile, and bulging waists forced her riders into retirement. Why cannot this healthy sport be revived again, especially among the younger folk?

REGENT THEATRE

In "Gypsy of the North" which comes to the Regent Theatre Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Georgia Hale, in the title role, gives a splendid performance as Gypsy but no less impressive is her impersonation of Gypsy's twin brother, for she plays a role. The cast also includes Huntley Gordon, Jack Dougherty and Erin La Bioniere. It is a Rayart Picture produced by Trem Carr from Howard Emmett Rogers' story, under the direction of Scott Pembroke.

BELLE THEATRE

"TWO LOVERS" TALE OF ADVENTURE AND LOVE
With a reputation based largely on romantic stories, told with his characteristic flair for visual brilliance, Samuel Goldwyn adds still another element, mystery and adventure, in his latest, and last co-starring vehicle for Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky, "Two Lovers" in which Goldwyn's famous team of stars make their final appearance at the Belle theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, an adaptation by Alice D. G. Miller of the celebrated Barones Orcey novel "Leatherface." It is directed by Fred Niblo creator of "Ben Hur," "Camille" and "The Enemy" and other notable successes. Ghent in the 16th century furnishes the background for the story of Donna Lenora of Spain and Mark Van Ryeke of Flanders.

Completing the series of "The Dark Angel," "The Night of Love" and "The Magic Flame" were former contributions, Mr. Goldwyn has lavished on "Two Lovers" the most ambitious production of his career. Briefly its story concerns the restoration of William, Prince of Orange, to the throne of the Dutch lowlands. The Spaniards, under the tyrannous Duke of Azar, are frustrated in their attempts to stifle Flemish liberty and to capture the renegade prince by the efforts of the mysterious masked figure, Leatherface. Even the marriage

THE EYES OF THE WORLD ON CANADA

Again this summer the Dean Laird Special Train will make its de luxe tour across Canada and back starting from North Toronto Station July 22nd, and ending at Toronto Union Station, August 12th, a twenty-one days' visit to all the important cities and provincial centres with stops at all the beauty spots in Canada's Rocky Mountains. Everything is planned to eliminate travel worries. The train is your home for three weeks to the coast and back with refreshing changes occasionally of trips on lake and ocean steamships, motor cars and buses. It's a great country, a vast Dominion of surprises for you who have not yet taken the trip and for those who have already crossed, the surprise is in the extensive development and amazing growth of its cities and enterprises.

A hearty welcome awaits you in the West and you will thoroughly enjoy the advantages of an all expense tour for the exceptional sum of $340.00 with Canadian Pacific service throughout. An illustrated booklet of the tour prepared from Dean Laird Laird, MacDonald College, P.Q. or J. W. Davidson, City Passenger Agent, Belleville, will give complete details.

of Lenora, "The Flower of Spain," to the lovely Mark falls. Two thousand players, turreted castles, giant drawbridges, wild night rides, bloody battles in the swamps are among the episodes that tell of their fight for freedom and of Mark's battle to win the love of his bride by a marriage of state.

Let Me Tell You

Salt Fish
This should soak in fresh water before being used. It is then ready to be boiled, and served with egg sauce; or you can make excellent kedgeree, or fish cakes for breakfast.

Greasy Utensils
Economy of soap and soda will result, if all greasy utensils are wiped with paper before washing up. If the paper is saved to light fires they will burn up much more quickly than when ordinary newspaper is used.

When a Cake Burns
Scrape off the burnt part, brush over with the white of an egg and dust with castor sugar. Put cake in the oven for five minutes and all sign of burning will disappear.

Velvet for Polishing Old odds and ends of velvet should be kept, for velvet makes an excellent polisher. A freshly blackened stove rubbed over with velvet shines with increased lustre. Velvet is also a splendid polisher for boots and shoes.

To Wash Vacuum
Velvet: washes admirably, greater success being easy of achievement with all light shades than with darker ones. Lukewarm water should be used and the fabric should never be wrung by twisting, but by pressure. Streakiness and a shaded appearance are the result of twisting it. Dry it, front of a fire, turning the right side to the heat so that the pile will be raised as the fabric dries.

Stains on Table Linen
If applied at once when a stain is made, powdered starch will take out all marks from stain on table linen. Should however, the stain have dried in, just moisten it with a little whiskey before sending it to the laundry.

While Oranges are Plentiful
Do not waste the peel. Grate the yellow portion of sweet oranges and pack in glass jars with alternate layers of granulated sugar. Cover tightly and keep in a cool place. Having once tried this you will never lack a delicious flavouring for desserts. Trindaughter.

A GREAT LAKES TOWING MERGER

Toronto, April 18.—It is understood that the Playfair interests have completed arrangements for the consolidation of the businesses of Simpsons MacNaughton Line, Montreal; Donnelly Salvage & Wrecking Company, Kingston; John E. Russell, Toronto; Reid Towing and Wrecking Company, Sarnia; and Dominion Towing and Salvage Company of Port Arthur, thereby effecting a consolidation of practically all the towing and wrecking businesses from and including the Port of Montreal to the Head of the Great Lakes.

It is understood that the board of directors will include James Playfair as President, Frank M. Ross and John E. Russell as Vice-Presidents, and also Senator Donat Raymond, a director of Imperial Life Assurance Company of Canada, Noah A. Timmins, President of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and John C. Newman, President, General Steel Works.

This consolidation links up powerful shipping and financial interests with the towing and wrecking business as a whole on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence waterway. It is believed that the co-ordination of this service will not only be beneficial to the shipping interests themselves, but also to the new company, as considerable savings in operating and management costs should be effected. The predecessor companies have all been in continuous and successful operation for upwards of thirty-five years, and those men who have been largely responsible for their success in the past will be retained in the new organization.

The amount of the financial interests involved is not known, but it is believed to run into the millions of dollars.

The consolidation, when fully completed, will become of the most important in the history of the Great Lakes. An official announcement will be made shortly, it is believed.

The consolidation marks another outstanding stage in the romantic career of James L. Playfair, and the "man who made Midland," the thriving shipping town in Ontario on the south shore of Georgian Bay.

Mr. Playfair only last year purchased the Canadian Western Boxcar Ltd. of Toronto and Montreal, for a sum reported to be between one and two million dollars.

The Venetia, one of the most beautiful crafts on the Great Lakes, sank the German submarine during her service as a commandeered vessel in the United States Navy. After the War she was turned back into a pleasure yacht and it was from John G. Spreckels of San Francisco that Mr. Playfair purchased her.

For Instance, the Coach $345.00 Down, and monthly Payments of $62.20.
Your present car will probably cover the entire first Payment.

The H. M. C. Purchase Plan Offers the lowest available finance terms on the balance.

On our own streets, here in Belleville, Essex the Challenger, under competent observation, averaged 23 miles per gallon. The average owner in this city can expect 20 miles and upward. Commercial users operating large fleets of Essex cars say that service and maintenance costs, covering millions of miles of operation, are lowest of any car they ever tested.

With its open challenge that excepts no car

—with its 24% greater power and 70-mile-an-hour performance

—with its greater beauty, adult-size capacity, riding ease and economy —and with its brilliant chassis quality and fine, large bodies—Essex challenges, too, in proved VALUE. It offers a completeness of fine car equipment formerly identified only with costly cars, and available, when at all, only as "extras," at extra cost on cars of Essex price. Check these items as you buy. In Essex the Challenger—a complete, fine big "Six"—these items of course are standard. They cost not one cent extra.

They represent easily above one hundred visible dollars' additional value, and are another reason why the public is awarding to Essex the largest business it has ever known.

The Canadian Government has recently reduced the Sales tax on Automobiles. Hudson and Essex cars are now priced accordingly.

SHEARING CARE WILL BE REPAID

Clean Floor And Neat Roll Important; Revenue
From Wool

With wool providing a very important proportion of the total revenue from sheep and with this product sold on a graded basis as it is in Canada, it is important to exercise care at shearing time, point out officials of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association. Clean wool, free from chaff, burrs, dung locks, binder twine, and other foreign material and also from the short black or gray hairs found growing on the heads and legs, is worth decidedly more than wool not so carefully cared for. With the weather warming up those shepherds who are anxious to get a good coat of new wool on their animals before the fall fairs open are shearing now, although this work will not become general in the East for six weeks yet and in the West before the first of June.

Now-a-days sheep are seldom washed prior to shearing. Washing did not get rid of all the grease and foreign material and the wool had to be scoured when it reached the mills anyway, so today the work of washing or scouring is generally left to the mills and the general practice is to sell the wool in the grease. There were many disadvantages to washing on the farm anyway, one in particular being to get the wool into nice shape for shearing. Furthermore there is nothing to be gained financially in selling washed wool as against unwashed.

Shearing should be done in dry weather, on a reasonably warm day, and by all means on a clean floor or piece of canvas. Before taking off the regular fleece all heavy and badly stained tag locks should be trimmed off. After shearing the fleece should be spread on the floor flesh side down, the sides folded in and rolled firmly from britch to neck so that the best parts of the fleece, which are over the shoulder and heart girth, show on the outside of the package. Wool officials are opposed to tying with binder twine, pointing out that this, like the tufts of black or gray hairs which should not be included with the fleeces, will not take the dye when the wool is being processed, and therefore make it unfit for many uses. They advise using paper twine, as supplied by the Wool Growers to all their shippers, or if this is not available the using of the neckpiece, which is twisted into a rope and passed once around the fleece which is then tucked in. Standard wool sacks which hold from 15 to 25 fleeces are advocated for packing the wool in after it is shorn, or if not available, really clean bran sacks. Tight packing in these sacks is very essential as it means less shrinkage in weight. Store the wool in a dry place until sold.

The New McLAUGHLIN- BUICK is the New Style

THE unprecedented popularity of the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick unquestionably establishes it as the new order of motor-car style.

The new Masterpiece Bodies by Fisher are revolutionary, it is true. Revolutionary in the majestic beauty of their appearance. Revolutionary in the richness of their contours and colours. Revolutionary in the spaciousness and sheer luxury of their interiors.

Revolutionary, in fact, in ALL the characteristics which make twice as many people choose McLaughlin-Buick as any other car at or above its price.

France and which are of American origin.

Stockings, gramophone records, plays, music, and other items produce the great American invasion, predicts this particular writer, who invites his readers to take stock of the foreign merchandise advertised in posters all over Paris, and over a good deal of France. From this, he claims, it will be seen that France, in particular, and Europe in general is becoming increasingly closer to America, with advantage to the latter.

This, perhaps, is a darker picture than is actually the case, but there is some foundation in the general sense of it, and particularly in the sense that French industry is genuinely frightened at any encroachments on its territory by American capital. The recent report that the Louvre department store, with all its subsidiaries, was to be acquired, lock, stock and barrel by an American group, was an excellent balon d'essai. Before authoritative denial was published by the store concerned, a howl was raised by practically the entire Paris financial press protesting against what was termed the domination of the franc by the dollar and the serious consequences likely to follow the acquisition of such an important Paris enterprise by American interests.

Official denial brought appeasement to the critics, but their outcry, expressing a fear of the American commercial colonization of Europe, was portently sincere in that it represented the general attitude rather than the reaction to what was believed to be an actuality.

TEA FORMERLY MODERN LIVING WAS EXPENSIVE DEMANDS EXTRA OPTICAL CARE

Tea-drinking is now so universal a custom that it is hard to believe that at one time tea was an epicurean luxury, and sold at from ten to twenty-five shillings a pound. Nevertheless, as late as the mid-Victorian era a tea caddy filled with a pound of tea was a very handsome present. In the eighteenth century, tea-drinking was considered a fashionable pastime, and Sydney Smith's "Tidy Holland's Memoirs" quotes her as saying: "Thank God for tea! What would the world do without tea?—how did it exist? I am glad I was not born before tea."

It was the custom then to keep tea in handsome tea caddies. In a recent article in the "London Daily Express" sent to the Salada Tea Company, the following interesting account is given of the origin and importance of the tea caddy. The old fashioned tea-caddy was, invariably, beautiful in its proportions and intimate in its associations. It is, moreover, a rare thing today to find two tea caddies, one of the prettiest and most charming were made between 1775 and 1801. At first they were made of mahogany or of satinwood, inlaid with other choice woods and sometimes painted with flowers or scrolls. Later on they were made of lacquer of tortoiseshell, of silver or of ivory, sometimes inlaid with silver and gold and mother-of-pearl, and with borders of tortoiseshell—each fit for King Solomon's palace, if Solomon had known the blessing of tea. Some of the finest cabinet-makers of the period, including Chippendale and Hepplewhite, exercised their talents to design tea caddies.

Besides these treasures, some were made of neatly-cut straw work, laid in geometrical patterns, over a wooden box, for such straw work was a hobby of the day. Some stand on little feet, some have a tiny handle on the lid, and all have dainty key-holes. Delicious little cabinets, indeed! The word "caddy" comes from a Chinese word, "catty," meaning a parcel of tea weighing about one pound and a third, for so the Chinese merchants were accustomed to make up their tea.

The possessor of an old-fashioned caddy should treasure it, and use it for its original purpose. The collecting of old tea caddies has become quite a hobby in the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

THE BLESSED

Blessed are the merchants who advertise because they believe in it and their business; for their prosperity shall increase many fold, surely remarks an exchange, and adds:

Blessed is the woman who sends in a written account of a party or wedding; for she shall see the details of a function and the names of her guests correctly reported.

Blessed are all those who do not expect the editor to know everything, but who call up and tell him whenever an interesting event occurs for them; for they shall have a newspaper in their town.

Blessed are those who co-operate with this paper in behalf of the community; for their town shall be known far and wide as a good place in which to live.

KELLOGG CO. HAS ENJOYED GREAT

That's a lot of paper—but for the Kellogg Company of Battle Creek, Michigan, this just barely takes care of their carton and container requirements for six days. Daily they turn out over a million and a half packages of the famous Kellogg cereals for all parts of the globe.

When Mr. W. K. Kellogg founded the company back in 1906 the output was but a few cases a week. To-day the Kellogg Company is the largest manufacturer of ready-to-eat cereals in the world. All in twenty short years.

The Company makes all their containers and about 80 per cent. of the cartons. They maintain one of the best equipped printing and carton departments, and have one of the largest paper storage pits in the state with a capacity of 3,000 tons.

Aside from the container and carton department the Kellogg plant has other features of interest. Perhaps the most attractive and interesting development in the Kellogg Health Program is the Kindergarten nursery. Here children of the women employees are cared for by a trained kindergarten teacher. The Medical and Dental clinic look after their health, and a dietitian sees that they have nourishing meals.

Following are a few high lights relative to the immensity of this institution.

BRITISH CENSORS ARE CRITICIZED

Mode of Censoring Literary Work in Britain Arouses
Discussion

London.—(By C.P.)—Literary censorship is becoming one of the most debated subjects in England as a result of the banning of a number of books recently. The latest novel to come under official disapproval is "The Sleeveless Errand" by Norah C. Jones.

In a recent article on the subject in one of the London illustrated weeklies, Gilbert K. Chesterton discusses the subject at some length and finds that most persons who talk about censorship are in a hopeless muddle. He says if his books have to be censored he would much rather have them dealt with by the Spanish Inquisition than by the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks.

While professing no admiration for the Inquisition Chesterton says they at least acted on certain definite principles which everyone knew and understood. At the present time not even themselves, know on what principles the authorities acted in declaring books objectionable.

Mr. Chesterton says there are three grounds on which a book dealing with sex might ostensibly be declared objectionable but that these grounds were hopelessly confused together in the public mind. One was that objectionable doctrines were preached in the book, another that the book contained passages calculated to excite appetites or desires regarded as anti-social or immoral and the third that it contained vulgar words and expressions. Each ground was quite separate and distinct in itself, said Chesterton but yet very few of the people who either opposed or upheld the banning of a particular book could say on which ground it ought to be or might be denied circulation.

With regard to the first the writers says the authors of so-called immoral books in many cases are merely giving expression to the doctrines which if not preached are practised in many classes of society. He claims a writer's doctrine which is practised in private life by a large section of the population. As to the second it is very difficult to say when a passage is objectionable as the state of the mind of the reader is always a dominant factor in the effect produced. In discussing the third he points out that words in themselves are nothing apart from the meaning attached to them and if the idea conveyed is one commonly entertained it does not make it objectionable in an author to express it in words which may happen to be frowned upon by convention.

The chief fault Chesterton has to find with present attempts at censorship is that they are based on indefinite moral principles but merely on the shifting sands of convention and manners. Taking Shakespeare as an instance he illustrates the difference between convention and morals.

He says many expressions in Shakespeare's plays would certainly be frowned upon by present-day convention.

"Custom-Built" Designers Created the New Willys-Knight

Men of long experience in the "custom-built" field designed the new-style Willys-Knight Six. Their artistry is quite apparent in this triumph of modern beauty.

Grace of line, richness of color, perfect symmetry and proportion distinguish the new-style Willys-Knight Six as the outstanding creation of these style specialists, and make available—at a remarkably low price—the style and richness previously associated only with costly, custom-built cars.

A great automobile—a great engine—no valves to grind, no costly carbon removing. Practically fool-proof and wear-proof. No Willys-Knight motor, so far as we know, has ever worn out. And to all these advantages add the fact that this car holds top place in resale value because, in terms of years, its usefulness is far beyond that of the average car.

Be sure to see the new-style Willys-Knight Six, and arrange for a demonstration at your earliest convenience.

SPRING SHOWING of the NEW CHEVROLET SIX —a Six in the price range of the four!

WE cordially invite you to visit our special Spring display of the new Chevrolet Six.

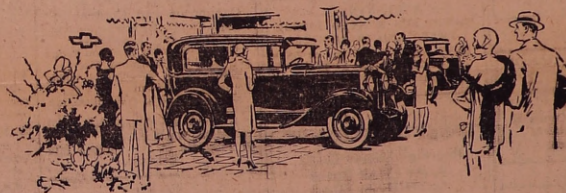

Here, in a price class that has hitherto been occupied exclusively by four-cylinder automobiles, you will see displayed a line of beautiful models that bring you every advantage of six-cylinder performance in the price range of the four... six-cylinder smoothness, six-cylinder reserve power, six-cylinder speed and six-cylinder acceleration.

And this amazing six-cylinder performance is matched in impressiveness by the beautiful new Fisher bodies. Longer, lower and roomier... finished in striking new colors... and offering numerous outstanding comfort and convenience features—they introduce into the low-price field a new conception of luxury, comfort and style.

Come in any time the week of April 20th to 27th. We want you to see for yourself that no other car in the world can give you so much at prices within the reach of all.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS OF CANADA, LIMITED

They may or may not have been unconvictional in Shakespeare's time. They may be wrong now though right when they were used and though they may become right in the future. But if Shakespeare neglected his wife that would be wrong then, it would be wrong now and it would be wrong for all time.

TORONTO INFANT JOINS LAMBS CLUB

Toronto, Ont. (By C.P.)—The youngest member of the exclusive Lambs Club in New York, one of the most famous actors' clubs in the world, is Eric Leif Ericson, son of Commodore Fridthof Gustof Ericson of the Toronto Motorboat Club. Eric Leif was born on April 11 and was one day old when he was proposed and elected. When the Lambs Club members heard about it—Leif's dad is a well-known and popular member of the club of many years' standing—they immediately held a special emergency meeting and made the youngster a member. The application was proposed by Roger Gray and seconded by Walter Catlett. Among those who autographed the application were Jim Corbett, David Warfield, Ring Lardner, Tony Moreno, Charles H. Harris, Augustus Thomas, William Farnum, John Henry Mears, Paul Whitman, Gits and Bob Rice, Leon Errol and Donaid Brian.

Young Ericson was declared eligible to club membership on these special clauses:

That he is a very moral young man. That he has never taken a drink. That he has never been in the Friar's Club.

That he does not talk about himself. That he only bothers with one woman. That he does not smoke or swear. That he does not but in when you are telling a story.

rescued by the schooner Ondine, which arrived at St. Pierre, Miquelon, today, according to a cable received from St. Pierre by the Halifax Daily Star.

TOUCHED 215 MILES AN HOUR

Verneuk, Pan, Cope of Good Hope, April 19.—Captain Malcolm Campbell, the British racing driver, who is seeking to break the 231 mile and hour mark set by Major H. H. Segrave, touched 215 miles an hour in a trial here today in his car, the Bluebird.

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour. Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Do prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours. Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

CHAPTER 12

SILVER LINING

Another year had passed since Steve's visit to New York. It had brought his changes. Lois, for one thing, was a valued assistant in the firm of Draper and Dunleigh, Interior Decorators. She had an apartment not too far from the shop in a modest but pleasant neighborhood. She had included her taste in proportion to her pocketbook which was still pretty flat. It was so to speak, her first commission, and she had been doing very well when Mrs. Dunleigh came for tea and inspection praised her warmly. In a way that apartment was her diploma in the primary grade of interior decorating.

She came down to work one rainy morning in the early spring when the gray wet streets were filled with bobbing umbrellas and taxis churned the dirty water in the gutters and private motors skidded with the grinding of brakes around slippery corners. There was no sign that morning of the soft tender foliage that would soon fill the park; of the tulips and soon the roses; of the tulips and soon the roses that would flaunt their gay colors in window boxes.

Mrs. Dunleigh came in late in the morning. She had been to the pier to see Miss Draper off for Europe on a buying trip. She was soaked through in spite of the fact that she had just descended from a taxi and she was sniffling with a cold.

"I know I'm in for it," she complained. "There was a traffic jam of some sort down at the dock and I had to walk five blocks to find a taxi. It was either that or be chilled to the bone under the drafty sheds. I don't see why Ann had to choose such a beastly day to sail."

"You must get home and change immediately," said Lois really worried. Mrs. Dunleigh's colds had a way of turning into influenza.

"But there's that Walton job on Long Island," protested the older woman. "I was to go down on the eleven-o'clock. He'll never overlook it, if I fail him. As she enunciated it: 'He'll never overlook it, if I fail him.' Lois had to laugh. "He'll never forget it -- if you try to talk to him like that! -- Now be a dear and go home and tuck up in bed."

Mrs. Dunleigh shuffled.

"I'll have to I guess. But Lois, you will have tackle the Walton job in my place."

"Me?" gasped Lois aghast. "Only until Tim gets off again. Then I'll take it on. But you've got to get busy. Take a note book and look important and make some sketches of the rooms, if you can't think of any other bluff."

"But why not tell Mr. Walton frankly that you're ill and can't come? I don't think he would really expect anyone to come to the country on a day like this. It is the country, isn't it?"

"My dear, James Walton wouldn't accept an excuse under any condition. He's a hard man. Most self-made men are. That's how they get their millions -- I don't mean by being totally inconsiderate of others, but they make their money by inhuman effort and energy and they can't understand the weakness and frailty of the lesser mortals. If we fall him today we will lose the commission."

"Well, if he's as unfeeling as all that, when you're ill and the weather is like this, all I can say is that I'd hate to be Mrs. Walton!" declared Lois.

"Spare your sympathy my child! There is no such person. He is a confirmed bachelor."

"But why the house and the decoration?"

"A monument to success, I fancy," shrugged Mrs. Dunleigh. "Ann Draper says you could put the Giltmore inside the house and lose it completely. Silly for a man to have all that space and be alone in it. And I understand he's not very fond of people and doesn't entertain. Well, here I stand, talking while the microbes are simply digging in for the winter in my poor system. I'll have to run. Put up a good bluff and telephone me tonight what just went on."

Lois called a taxi and put Mrs. Dunleigh into it. She had grown very fond of her employer and patroness. She went back into the soft dimness of the shop and glanced apprehensively at the little clock on the desk. She had just time to make the eleven-fifteen

if she got a cab immediately. The colorless clerk took charge of the shop. There would likely be no customers anyway, if the weather remained bad. Lois jammed on a trim little spring hat and slipped into the jacket of her spring suit, and fled for the nearest taxi-stand.

At eleven-fifteen she was in the almost deserted train that glided out of the tunnel and plunged through a steady gray downpour that obscured the window panes and veiled the country side in a gloomy mist. Pangs of hunger as sailed her before the two-hour trip was completed. It was raining harder than ever when she descended to the station platform.

Immediately a chauffeur in uniform approached her, touching his cap. "Mrs. Dunleigh?"

"I have come in Mrs. Dunleigh's place," explained Lois.

"This way please, Miss." He piloted her to the front of the station, where under a porte cochere, an enormous limousine waited. He assisted Lois in to it and laid a handsome rug across her knees. Then he mounted to the post and the car glided out into the smooth roadway.

The ride was fairly long. They left the picturesque village and shot down wide roads lined with tall hedges under trees that arched their bare branches, dripping overhead. She caught an occasional glimpse of a lodge-keeper's cottage or an ornate iron grilled gate between stone pillars. At length they emerged at the top of a cliff overlooking the Sound which lay gray and chill under the rain.

The car turned abruptly into a gateway, glided up an avenue and came to a stop under a porte cochere. The chauffeur sprang down and opened the door.

"This is the side entrance, Miss. You'll have to cross the terrace in the front way. The housekeeper will be here in a minute. We're not exactly settled yet."

"Does Mr. Walton live here?" asked Lois in surprise. She had thought the house was unoccupied, awaiting decoration.

"When he's not at his club in town. One wing is furnished."

At that moment, a pleasant faced elderly woman arrived on the scene and took charge of Lois, introducing herself as Mrs. Webster, the housekeeper. She led Lois into a small charming room that looked out into the beginnings of a garden. A sweet (To Be Continued)

Collegiate Chatter

Once again we may breathe more easily. The examinations are over. The next difficulty is to be prepared for the marks. That's the sticker! Once the examinations themselves are over they are quickly forgotten, but strange to say the minute the marks are read out they can be very readily called back to mind.

There are just about eight more weeks before school closes, which it does on the 17th of June. From then on examinations will come thick and fast. Most of the students will be entirely finished by June 24th, which is a little earlier than usual. The last date for any examination is July 2nd, which does seem a long way off, doesn't it?

There was a Girls' softball game held Friday afternoon, but they will be on all this week as usual. The teams are being eliminated rapidly by the group method and it will not be so very long before the final test, when the champion team will be chosen. The games are played in the girls' gymnasium.

The Lower School both Matriculation and Vocational had no examinations on Friday afternoon but they attended as usual. The boys spent the day in drill while the girls other sat idly or read. On the whole the school was very peaceful Friday.

Inspection day, as you know, is being held this year on the 1st of May. The boys of the Cadet Corps are expected to look on the bulletin board in the boys' entry for instructions as to how they should fasten the school colours on their suits also for information regarding drill periods for this week.

at 2:00 o'clock. Fred Lazier has recently been appointed commander-in-chief.

There was a meeting of the Literary Executive held after school today as usual.

Don't forget that those students who have application forms for their departmental examinations should have them in right away. They must be examined by the Principal, Mr. MacLaurin, before going to the Public School Inspector, Mr. Clarke, and even have to pass through the hands of your English teacher to be sure your list of Supplementary Reading is correct and the space properly filled in.

STATIC

Development of a new communications system, designed to make possible the transmission of hundreds of different messages simultaneously on one radio wavelength, is announced by Albert B. Clark, Boston.

Applications for patent rights on this device and for a patent on a synchronizing device employed, which also is applicable to television, have been made by Mr. Clark.

The new principle in radio practice are made use of and the invention may be used with modifications in connection with existing radio apparatus arranged for code, radiophone or broadcast transmission, Mr. Clark says.

The results are made possible by the employment of timed or synchro- nous apparatus capable of acting at great speed. This arrangement is made to serve the double purpose of consecutively breaking up a large number of individual signals into common, and of properly segregating these components, whence they are built up by special electrical persistence devices into strong signals of the original characters, and then employed to operate any desired instruments such as typewriters, printers, etc.

Two similar systems based upon one basic principle have been developed, Mr. Clark sets forth. One of these makes use of the tremendous electrical speed of photo-electric cells and the neon lamp, such as is used in television. The other employs much simpler means for the chopping-up and reassembling on the signals.

He says this principle also is applicable to wire transmission. Either in radio or over wires, the messages may be relayed by means of any present transmitting apparatus.

In discussing the possible uses of his communications system, Mr. Clark says:

There are unlimited possibilities for the invention such as for press services in which radio now plays a large part.

Mr. Clark, who asserts that he had devised photo-radio systems as early as 1923, expresses the belief that his new system is greatly superior to the photo-radio principle for message transmission.

SINCLAIR'S

UNITED STATES REPORT TABLED

Ottawa, Ont., April 20.—The United States note in reply to the Canadian representation regarding the sinking of schooner Im Alone, is now in the hands of the department of external affairs here. It is a very lengthy document, covering nearly thirty pages. It is understood that it goes fully into the history of the case, and discusses the legal aspect of the pursuit and the sinking of the Canadian vessel, most thoroughly.

The term "furlong" is a shortened form of "farrow-long." The average length of a furrow cut by a plough across a field was about 200 yards. From a rough indication of distance, it gradually became fixed at 200 yards.

Napoleon used to say: "When I want any good work done, I choose a man with a long nose. In my observation of me, I have almost invariably found a long nose and a long head go together."

While quite a few people are reported missing, there is no change in rush-hour congestion on the street cars.

The Sun-Bath - Shower-Bath Limited

HIGH OFFICIALS of the Canadian Pacific were much relieved when a Dr. Ernest French, the Harley Street specialist, refuted the statement originating in London to the effect that mustard plasters were as beneficial as ultra-violet rays. During a long winter the Company has been engaged in building for the Trans-Canada special Solarium-Lounge cars equipped with "vita glass" windows which will admit the most beneficial sun-rays. It almost came to the question of whether the Company would scrap the new equipment and issue plasters to its patrons.

The new cars, designed for the rear end of the limited trains, will be the most magnificent cars ever to be used on a non-pretentious train on the continent. Given over entirely to the use of the passenger, the lounge cars, besides the Solarium feature, have the added attraction of bath-rooms for men and women, completely and lavishly equipped, separate lounge and smoking rooms, a buffet and a large observation room with lavatory covered chairs, divans and settees. There are, of course, ample writing facilities and a small library.

The sleeping cars designed for this train are also "different." Painted in brown, a color note which is carried out in the upholstery, curtains and carpets, these cars contain in addition to the usual public space, two compartments, a drawing room and eight sections. Each section, as will be seen from the illustration above, is separated from its neighbour by a permanent head-board, which gives an added degree of privacy to the occupant.

With the locomotive, and complete with every modern comfort and safety appliance and device, the new Trans-Canada trains each represent an investment of well over a million dollars.

BELLE THEATRE

The noble art of the Flemish masters, Rembrandt and his followers, comes to life again in an expression so less modern than motion pictures according to art critics who have witnessed Ronald Colman and Vilma Blanky's latest film, Samuel Goldwyn's production of "Two Lovers" at the Belle theatre today.

Flanders (Brussels, Ghent and the lowland cities) which give birth to many of history's greatest painters, was revived by Samuel Goldwyn as the background for Fred Niblo's production of "Leatherface." The Baroness Orsay novel on which "Two Lovers" is based. In re-creating the beaute industry, the pomp and pageantry of Ghent in the Middle Ages, Samuel Goldwyn accepted the responsibility of representing the Flanders great masters knew—the scenes that inspired the great art period in the history of painting.

GREAT INCREASE IN U. S. SHIPPING

Washington, D.C. (By Canadian Press.)—Growth of shipping on vessels flying the United States flag from less than nine per cent prior to the world war to over one third of the entire United States commerce is shown in the latest figures compiled by the Shipping Board.

The water-borne foreign commerce of the country for the fiscal year of 1928 totalled nearly 100 million tons and twenty-eight countries with 5,100 ships participated in the handling of this trade. The freight bill totalled 750 million dollars.

Mrs. Louis Well, candidate for Police Commissioner in Dallas, Texas, announced her platform as "The most happiness for the most people."

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it "cleans the blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts." Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe and lasting relief to pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. J. S. McKee and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.
